The most ancient Teachings always highly regarded the Feminine Principle, and even female divinities were considered by them to be the most sacred. We can now find traces of these most ancient cults among the American Indians, whose priesthood is headed by women; women also head the clan, and the whole line of inheritance is considered as coming from the woman's side. Likewise, there is no distinction between the two Origins in the Teaching of Buddha, and woman, as well as man, can reach the state of Arhatship.

Devotion to the chosen TeacherLHR II, 14 December 1935

Devotion to the chosen Teacher was considered a necessary and fundamental quality of a disciple in all the Teachings of antiquity. Therefore, blessed are you if this quality is not alien to your spirit.

Follow Our TeachingsLMG I, 5

Direct your friends towards righteousness. Do not conceal Our Communications. Follow Our Teachings with your heart.

Strive and you will perceive the light. I will point out the way—the heart will understand Our Token.

Inspire othersLMG I, 55

Endeavor to inspire others with the teachings of M∴.

Teachings originate from One SourceLMG I, 395

Respect the principle of Hierarchy. In Brotherhoods great and small, all actions are given through the Elders. There may be teachings and inspirations, but actions originate from One Source.

Understanding of the Teachings of lifeNEC, 81

Let us not forget that there is nothing on Earth higher than the given Plan for the Common Good. Let us manifest understanding of the Teachings of life. As Moses brought forth human dignity, as Buddha impelled toward the broadening of consciousness, as Christ taught the good of giving, so now the New World is directed toward the far-off worlds!

Inner fire is pointed out in many TeachingsAY, 414

The Teaching of Agni Yoga demands continuous ardor. Sometimes respite from outer fiery manifestations is needed, but the inner flame is never extinguished. The ever-burning inner fire is pointed out in many Teachings as a step on the path of realization. One should accustom oneself to the manifestation of ever-present fire. An indication from without can never provide a true impetus. The inner flame burns like a bonfire. It is unworthy to suppress it.

Continuity of TeachingsAY, 416

Each era chooses its new, corresponding Teaching, when all previous Teachings have become distorted. People tend to cling to these twisted distortions of the faith of their forefathers, yet no new Teaching ever excludes preceding ones. Little attention is paid to this fact, for the followers of every Teaching like to build their success on denial of the previous Teachings. But it is easy to prove the continuity of what people call religion. In this continuity is sensed a single stream of one energy. Calling it psychic energy, we speak of the Sophia of the Hellenic world or Sarasvati of the Hindus. The Holy Ghost of the Christians manifests signs of psychic energy, just as do the creative Adonai of Israel, and Mithra of Persia, full of solar power. Certainly, no one doubts that the Fire of Zoroaster is the Fire of Space, which you now study.

Symbol of FireINF I, 372

The symbol of Fire is found in all Teachings, and in Cosmos Fire is affirmed as the manifestation of life. The substance of Fire is so radiant that it is impossible to define and describe it. The Cosmic Breath is the Fire of Space. All cosmic manifestations are permeated with Fire and human thought is Fire. Thought gives form; thought gives direction; thought gives life; thought imparts creativeness; thought imparts the attraction of a drawing magnet. When the spirit kindles its fires, thought creates through the accretion of Materia Lucida. Cosmic thought is comprised in the fiery communion. The Spatial Fire contains the striving energies. Cosmic Fire is boundless in its saturations and its manifestations. Thus, the Cosmic Fire strives with the Cosmic Magnet!

Collect the Teachings about FireFW I, 311

Advise the young scholar to collect everything regarding Fire from the most ancient teachings. Let the Puranas of India, the fragments of the Teachings of Egypt, Chaldea, China, Persia, and absolutely all teachings of the classic philosophy not be overlooked. Of course, the Bible, the Kabbalah, and the Teachings of Christ, all will yield plentiful material. Likewise, the assertions of the most recent times will add to the valuable definitions of Agni. Such a compilation has never been made. Yet can one advance toward the future without gathering the signs of millennia?

Teachings warned about the Epoch of FireFW II, (preamble)

It cannot be that one of the elements has not been stressed in the Teachings. Fire has been mentioned a thousand times, but now the stressing of Fire is no longer a repetition, for it is a warning about events which concern the planet's fate. Most people will not be able to say that in their hearts they have been preparing for the Fiery Baptism, although the most ancient Teachings forewarned about the inevitable Epoch of Fire.

The Teachings and the Golden PathFW I, 567

The Teachings of all peoples speak of the Golden Path, yet men themselves actually think about this least of all. Through its imbalance, its chaotic state, mankind has brought on a coming uprising of fire. But even on the very brink of danger people reject each useful advice about self-preservation.

Purification and the TeachingFW III, 258

Only the cleansing of space, only the purification of the consciousness, only the purification of the Teachings, will produce the manifestation of purified explosions of the spirit. True, the darkness is becoming dense, but when the tension of the forces of darkness reaches its limit, then will the Forces of Light affirm Their might. Thus one should be prepared for the acceptance of great tension. Light conquers darkness!

Teachings of the MastersSUP, 199

Urusvati knows that the Teachings of the Masters have not been fully recorded in human history. Often only details were stressed, while their underlying principles were omitted. Envy and negligence deprive mankind of many achievements.

Teachings are given for applicationSUP, 538

All teachings, even those containing the most urgent counsels, are read casually, as if they were just curious stories. People do not understand that these writings are given to them for immediate application.

The Thinker urged His fellow-citizens to recognize the World that, though invisible, can be sensed.

Teachers of mankind, teaching was the sameSUP, 665

Urusvati knows that when We speak about Krishna, Orpheus, Zoroaster, and other Teachers of mankind, We have important reasons for this. All of them gave instruction, differing in language and custom, but the essence of their teaching was the same.

As yet, the work of comparing these Teachings has not been accomplished. One can point to studies in comparative religion, but We now have in mind an analysis of the common foundations given by the Teachers. A scholar who sifts through the characteristics of all nations and ages will find at their foundations teachings that are as if given by one source. One could mention those few individualities who in succession fulfilled their mission of teaching humanity, thus helping mankind's progress.

At different periods, Teachers, at times without knowing the teachings of others, pronounced ideas that were similar to the others, not only in language but also in feeling. Even someone ignorant of this might think that one individual alone gave these teachings. But those who knew more will draw their own conclusions.

The Great Teachings given to the worldLHR I, 7 October 1930

Striving toward beauty will be the key to it. This knowledge is in each striving toward the General Good. It is indicated in all the Great Teachings which have been given to the world. It is in every manifestation of nature. In forgetting to observe the cosmic manifestations, humanity lost the key to many of the mysteries of Being, and it is just these mysteries that could provide understanding of all the reasons for the present upheavals and miseries. Therefore, while gathering the warriors of spirit, let us direct them toward an awakening of this sacred knowledge.

Telepathic manifestationsAY, 504

The full moon usually is favorable for telepathy. But there are other factors that affect it too. Most important, it is influenced by certain phases of the sunspots. You may yourself have noticed that telepathic manifestations grow stronger with the increased chemical activity of the lunar and planetary rays, but sunspots also affect many other aspects of existence. Cold, which can reach disastrous extremes, the heat of volcanic eruptions, and earthquakes follow changes in the solar aura. One must keep this in mind, because the cold may increase and the earthquakes become more powerful. Thus, a transitory solar manifestation can be terminal on Earth.

Ancient medicine and secretionsAY, 601

Scientists speaking about the subconscious, about cerebral and nervous reflexes, about animal magnetism, about telepathy, certainly speak of one and the same thing—of psychic energy. But this term is somehow not uttered. These snatches of knowledge beg to be united into one current, but narrow-mindedness prevents the proper relating of these various fragments of knowledge. Pure science is not afraid of alleyways. Attention is being paid now to the study of secretions, and perhaps this particular direction, the investigation of glandular secretions, will call attention to the existence of other secretions. Glandular secretions have only recently attracted attention, although ancient medicine pointed out the importance of secretions long ago. This matter was avoided, although all of nature proclaimed it. Is it possible that dialectics and materialism are only limitations? The development of consciousness brings us into closer contact with the entire mighty energy. Is it possible to think as before, with only half one's brain, not caring about the locked-up treasures?

Astral whirls, fiery centers, and cooling currentsFW II, 88

The science of atmospheric influences must undergo considerable changes. One may notice in contemporary apparatus unexplainable tremors which seemingly do not conform to other indications. Such traces of astral whirls bring to the Earth very significant effects. Besides, in this way are affirmed the relations with the Subtle World. Indeed, among the tensions of the Subtle World there may be such pressures that their reverberation even agitates manifested matter. First of all such waves are reflected upon the fiery centers. You yourself could observe how, despite the cool weather, the centers gave indication of great pressure. One must compare this with the reaction to the distant events, which also call forth vibrations of strong tensions. But the astral whirls are observed even less than telepathy. Scientists are unwilling to admit that in their physical considerations a factor of the world beyond can have any significance.

The diamond of consciousness and telepathic visionSUP, 120

Urusvati knows the significance of the moment that separates sleep from the waking state. This moment is called “the diamond of consciousness.” During this transitory condition of consciousness man belongs simultaneously to both worlds—the physical and the subtle. If people perceived such conditions consciously, they would grasp more easily the idea of psychic energy.…

It is correctly observed that a special vibration is needed for the realization of the diamond of consciousness. This vibration originates in pure aspiration, for which conscious knowledge is required. There is neither magic nor sorcery in the ability to perceive this beautiful moment. When man brings impressions from the Subtle World into his physical life he may also perceive the Fiery Gates.

We intensify and deepen these diamond moments through a clear understanding of their significance. Indeed, they are so brief that no effort is required. Prolonged communication with the Subtle World can be achieved, but simultaneous awareness of the two worlds is momentary. We are not referring to Our guiding powers and Our messages to the world. Our discourses, and My words, are not coming to you now from the Subtle World, but are the result of the transmission of thought from a distance. When Urusvati sees the events taking place in Our Tower it is a special function of telepathic vision, whereas discourse with Us corresponds to direct radio messages. That channel cannot be revealed to everybody, nor can everybody have access to Us.

Pains related to events and subtle influencesSUP, 344

Urusvati knows how heavy is the burden of the world. We can remind you of the suffering of Our Sister when embodied in Siena. It should be noted that the pains she endured were related to events in France and Spain. She experienced severe pains in the region of the solar plexus and by them was able to predict certain distant events. Often these events were felt more intensely than local ones. In the same way, one can trace specific links with previous lives.…

During the lifetime of Our Sister of Siena the idea of telepathy was suppressed. Today much is said about telepathy, but its signs are still treated with skepticism. It is astonishing that even in progressive scientific societies there is doubt about it; this attitude only hinders research….

. . .We want to encourage such research, but it is difficult to find some common ground for communication.

Urusvati can provide many convincing details to researchers, but it is essential that her testimony be listened to and correlated with that of Our Sisters and Brothers who have lived in the world. In such correlative studies one will be able to trace the evolution of knowledge about the subtle energies.

The Thinker Himself often experienced strange pains, which He attributed to the rays of the various planets.

Sendings of thought and transmissionBRO, 232

Telepathy was recognized long before the transmission of thought. Sendings of feeling are more accessible to man than sendings of thought. It may be noticed that even the word telepathy is uttered far more complacently than thought - sending, which is frightening for many. Even in psychiatric hospitals a physician will readily agree about a telepathic manifestation, but as for the possibility of recognition of a definite thought transmission, this would denote a dangerous condition. Mesmerism was condemned but hypnotism is recognized. There is much injustice, and yet justice has to be restored.

Thought-energyBRO, 512

Conscious transmission of thought at a distance is still in an embryonic stage. Each undertaking in this direction is to be welcomed, but it will carry little weight for the broad masses. Therefore, together with experiments, lectures about thought-energy should be organized widely.

Brotherhood is primarily a School of Thought.

Miraculous healings and manifestations of psychic energyLHR II, 11 June 1934

You are right—psychic energy can be assimilated only if the nerve centers are ready to accept it. But no one can give it forcibly. It is possible to transmit a certain amount of one’s own store to another person, but only if he is able to assimilate it. This explains many miraculous healings. Likewise, psychic energy acquires power from space, but only if it has acquired the quality of a magnet. All phenomena, such as telepathy, transmission of audience, psychometry, etc. are connected with the manifestations of various qualities of psychic energy. It must always be remembered that the qualities of psychic energy are infinite in their diversity.

Tension

Higher tension can nourish its surroundingsLMG II, 293

Let us imagine the Earth crammed with wireless stations. But a few of them will be of very high tension. Only these few will direct the life of the planet. Exactly so do there exist spirits of high intensity who have fully charged their accumulators in past incarnations. Their characteristic feature will be a firm consciousness of the indissolubility of their inner ego, whence is born the concept of the higher freedom. And to the station of high tension is adjoined a network of smaller stations which receive its continuous waves. Thus, does a spirit of high tension nourish its surroundings; it is analogous to a solitary tower reigning over the space. That is why people are attracted from early childhood to such magnets, even overburdening them.

Readiness and tensionNEC, 152

When you proclaim, “Always ready!” you are, as it were, following Our call. For him who is always ready it is possible to test the whole furnace of tension.

Tension and laborNEC, 155

The structure of the community loves intensity. One can observe how intensity is of assistance during various manifestations. Even a simple tenseness of the body reinforces elementary manifestations. Not only overburdening of the nerve centers but also muscular contractions create a strengthened emanation of feelings. Not sitting in calm comfort but distending one’s limbs in toil will produce a saturation of energy. But indeed, bodily tension is only for the most elementary manifestations; tension of the brain centers is needed. Continual intenseness will be the best.

Let us give you a picture of Our Community. Our resources are intensified for the Common Good. Everyone works in full readiness. Our wireless communication has brought an urgent appeal—personal action is needed. The Elect Council designates an executive agent. Sometimes the agent knows the whole process of the task, but sometimes he is given only an intermediate action. Often there is time enough only for choosing the necessary clothing, and perhaps a book which has just been started goes into the library unread. Often the duration of the commission is indeterminate. Often the results of the errand are not to be seen. What then induces the selected one joyfully to take himself off? What helps him to hasten into the cold and over the blocks of ice? What sort of order can evoke this strenuous labor? This jubilant readiness grows from habitual watchfulness.

When I advise you to develop intenseness and vigilance, I do not speak for the purpose of burdening you. My counsels foresee exultation as a final result. Those who fear intense labor are afraid of the forms and laws of energy. Let them proceed formlessly toward the decomposing moons. Let them supplement with their own dissolution that which is subject to fundamental re-formation.

Know how to foresee the jubilation!

Importance of the quality of tensionNEC, 180

Whether I am hurrying on or motionless, still I am striving. Whether I am learning or giving out knowledge, still I am striving. Whether alone or in a crowd, still I am striving.

How to intensify striving? Where are its roots and conditions? About quality of labor and action you have already heard. These are the conditions: full overburdening and the realization of the insecurity of life. Overburdening sets the body in the direction of tension. Realization of the danger of each hour of life will provide sensitivity and the knowledge of irrevocability.…

It is possible to create a symphony of explosions, and it is possible to create harmonies of machines. Even those with defective hearing notice that sometimes they hear a low voice better than an outcry—it means that the quality is important, not tension alone. Indeed, the quality of each action imposes a deep responsibility and is full of the danger of irreparable harm.

The tension in ArcherNEC, 239

We love arrow-shooting. The unwavering tension of the bowstring precedes the flight of the arrow. Space sings, and the spiral drawn into action increases the usefulness of the particles of matter. Thus, new armor is being forged.

Adaptation to tensionAY, 449

The tension of eternal vigilance, the tremor of striving and salutary toil, demand a special adaptability of the organism. We value this vigilance.

Incessancy of action and tensionINF I, 68

Incessancy of cosmic action reigns in everything. One may speak of changes in the processes, but the principle of incessancy creates evolution. The incessancy of cosmic processes is like a flame reflecting itself upon all activities of manifested life. The revealed vital tensity carries with it the thread of incessancy. The principle of tension and that of dissociation are a combined unit of the cosmic foundation.

The measurement of tensionINF I, 168

Each striving toward action is measured by its tension. Tension gives evidence of the degree of will which underlies striving. The other property of striving is its direction, but for advancement one must direct the energy in step with the Cosmic Magnet. Evolution flows only because of the presence of magnetic action. The complexity of the course of evolution corresponds to the complexity of the dynamics of the Cosmic Magnet. The complex of evolution is likewise conditioned by human striving. The greater the striving, the more power there is. Man does not realize what a power for destruction he carries! . . .

Man strives toward a state of fitful existence. Man holds as inaccessible that to which he must aspire for spatial existence. The two states are in eternal conflict. Thus, let us strive for boundless tension in the direction of evolution.

Tension and willINF I, 174

A higher tension creates a new step of cosmic creativeness. The lives which the spirit passes in low tension shed but meager light upon the earthly path. We have seen whirlwinds of will. We value the tension of will. We shall accept the affirmation of the true principle of life as the offering of the “chalice of fires.”

Thought imparts tensionINF II, 470

Cosmic tension is reflected upon all planes, and transmutation of the spirit takes place on the planet. Only the power of thought can impart tension to the spirit, and transmutation of the spirit engulfs all that is weak. But the ascent is powerful for one who is in pace with the Cosmic Magnet. The cosmic creativity thus intensifies the striving quests. Therefore, the transmutation of the spirit strains all strata.

Tension and the heartHEART, 209

An understanding of the grace and benefit of tension impels the heart to the Higher Worlds. Only on this path does the blue flame glow. Some parts may burn up, but the essence will shine brighter. Do not feel frightened when the great days are approaching. When you are examining armor, you should be aware that victory is made possible only by trust and the heart. It is where the forces have gathered that you can find true successes for yourself.

Tension colors fireFW I, 8

The manifestation of varied fires does not contradict the oneness of the essence of Fire. The rhythm of tension alone will change the color of the visible flame from silver through reddish-gold to an intense ruby-red. The ruby-red of tension is rare, for not every heart can endure it.

Do not avoid tensionFW I, 201

Not only by song and the rhythm of music but by every machine a vibration is created which contacts fiery energies. So, also, each tension, or rather, shock, is a conductor of the very same manifestations of Agni. Hence, one must become accustomed to distinguish and recognize the spark in each tension. One need not emulate the morbid people who avoid tension. One should welcome each fiery vibration as a purifying principle. What ordinary people regard as a calm life is nothing but extinction of fire. They have even invented entire systems of extinguishing fire from early childhood.

Tension and fatigueFW II, 180

Do not confuse fatigue with intensity. These two states, notwithstanding their complete difference, can produce similar symptoms. But fatigue must be overcome by a change of work, whereas tension must be actually increased. It would be a mistake to allow oneself to dissipate tension. One must nourish this manifest fiery power as a precious gift. Each tension is a sharpening of consciousness. Each weariness is a dulling, but in either case let us not forget to take musk. Ur. has wisely established the combination of musk with soda and valerian. Certainly, the very speedy accumulation of musk by means of soda is useful, as it is also the continuation of the reaction to valerian. All three ingredients are of a fiery nature. Not without reason was soda called, in antiquity, ashes of divine Fire, and fields of soda deposits were called sites of Devas' encampments. Likewise, valerian is especially effective in combination with musk. While musk kindles Fire, valerian sustains it as a static condition. In fatigue this fiery remedy is absorbed in order to renew the nerve centers; but in the striving of intensity there is need of prolonged combustion, in order to avoid explosions and shocks. But above all other life-giving agents is the communion with Hierarchy. Musk may dry up, but in communion with Hierarchy its strength will be promptly renewed, and an inexhaustible supply of energy extended.

Fiery tensionFW II, 220

Fiery labor is indeed full of dangers. Ur. already knows how fiery tension acts. Not only in the earthly body but also in the subtle it is impossible to withstand for long such tension. Besides, We focus the vortex upon Ourselves, so that a discharged arrow will strike in a center of tension. This method of focusing is employed by Us everywhere. On it is also based the Tactica Adversa; from it flow the drops of perspiration, about which you know. But in all, centering is preferable to scattering.

The apparatus which were seen by Ur. are of enormous force; they are condensers of fiery tension. Thence comes the idea of the swastika. Scholars must review the ancient signs; in them will be found hints of many of Our apparatus.

In the case of such a special problem as that of Earth, chaos represents a great danger.

Tests and Trials

Tests are for one's own goodAUM, 597

Much is said about trials. It terrifies people that even the worlds are on trial. There is much self-pity about difficult tests. People are even suspicious as to the justice of the very concept of a test. It might help those who fail to understand, to replace the word test with the word verification. Before a bridge every man invariably assures himself of its stability—and by his own movements. For his own sake man tests all his surroundings. He does not like the concept of a test, because it is sent from somewhere else, but his own verification for the sake of his well-being is not repugnant to him. Let him realize that all tests are for his own good. One should repeat that the concept of the coordination of the worlds is a great test.

The path of discipleship and trialsLHR I, 29 August 1934

I may cheer you up by saying that, although the path of preparatory discipleship is long and there are many obstacles and trials on this path, the mastering of these difficulties brings its own joy, achievement and revelation. Also, you must know that these tests are not artificially created but deal with the inner attitude and presence of mind of the disciple, giving him a chance to show how he will act in cases of sudden difficulty and amid general trying circumstances. In Theosophical literature seven years is usually mentioned as the first period of trial, followed by the next period of seven years. But these periods can be shortened or prolonged indefinitely. All depends upon the karma of the disciple and on his inner development and aspiration. For one must achieve the gradual opening of the higher centers; otherwise it is impossible to become an accepted disciple. But remember that until the age of thirty years is reached, not all the centers can be awakened without terrible harm to the organism. To force their opening is equal to suicide.

The embryo of good and evil will be revealedLHR II, 17 May 1937

If your intentions are profound, the trials will not delay, and you will face many psychological problems which you yourself will have to solve. As it is said, "As water develops the heat in caustic lime, so does the teaching bring into fierce action every unsuspected potentiality latent in him [the disciple]." Precisely, each embryo of good and evil in him will be revealed. Thus, if your intention is firm, be prepared for tests.

Tests will increase spiritual and mental workLHR II, 23 April 1938

Yes, each one entering upon the Path of Service for the Common Good is unavoidably subjected to all kinds of tests, which are the results of his increased spiritual and mental work, and also of the hastening of the karma that is being outlived by him. Each thought process changes something in our karma; therefore, if it is directed toward benevolent construction, a corresponding purification takes place, but these purifications may be painful. It is good if we learn to love difficulties, because only personal experience, personal trials and sufferings teach us great patience and compassion, those qualities which lie at the basis of all achievements.

Tests improve the consciousnessFW II, 142

Why so many tests, if the heart can create spiritual transformation? The answer is simple—the heart has been neglected and not applied to life. Thus, many people must improve their consciousnesses in trial.

Without trials, the spirit would not progressAY, 634

Tell those who find the trials cruel that the goal-fitness of those trials is demonstrated by the fact that without them the spirit would not progress. The spirit's experience comes from the accumulations of former incarnations, but the spirit also wants food from the realities of its present life. Labor is available for all who desire to progress. But one should not think of the spirit as the sole producer of the experience of conscious achievement. A portion of the knowledge accumulated in the Chalice must also be applied.

Trials brought forward by decision in the Subtle WorldSUP, 256

Urusvati knows that decisions are made in the Subtle World concerning the tasks in one's future earthly life. Most people in the earthly state do not accept this, but those in the Subtle World know that their incarnations will take place with their knowledge, and, more importantly, with their consent. When they are about to incarnate, people understand the karmic load that will compel them to undergo certain trials, but once in the earthly state they lose the memory of how their destiny was determined. Similarly, dwellers of the Subtle World are fully aware of life on the far-off worlds, but once they are in their physical bodies they usually lose this knowledge completely.

Our spirit is tempered by trialsLHR II, 13 August 1938

I laughed a great deal at the practical wisdom in interpreting the words of the prayer "And lead us not into temptation. . . ." But it seems to me that if the Lord were always solicitous not to lead us into temptation, we would not learn anything. Our spirit is tempered by trials, and the essence of man is cognized only through temptations. Verbal instructions and warnings are of no avail; man is known according to his deeds. Picturing God in the role of a tempter of course does not befit the majestic Divine Principle, therefore it remains to suppose that in the words of this higher Self that He or it should hold him back from offense. But I prefer to say, "Blessed be the obstacles, through them we grow." True, one should not deduce from this that a bicycle can be left on the street without supervision or a save can be left open. All is well in its place.

Testing is unending for a fixed designLMG I, 425

The testing of people is unending. Tests must be repeated until a design is fixed in the brain.

It is easier but futile to write on the forehead with the hand. Truth is better than illusion.

Tests is attained by experienceLMG II, 341

You ask why so many tests are necessary. In the Community everything is attained by experience; therefore, it is right to regard testings as growth. Tests lie as thresholds to the gates of Beauty.

Do away with sighing and tearful faces when speaking about tests.

Rejection of the Common Good casts even a giant into a pit.

Tests become milestones on the pathHEART, 116

For the disciple tests become like milestones on the path, which he notices when he crosses into the Subtle World. That is how we learn to be tested in various states, and that is why we must understand the essence of the work we are doing. How much work that goes unnoticed in the physical world yields splendid results in the subtle state. That is why a broad outlook is necessary in evaluating work. Often the production of something that seems quite abstract results in extremely concrete findings, while calculations that appear perfectly precise yield nothing more than an exercise in patience. The process of testing is wonderfully beneficial and is included in the system of the ancient Teachings.

Tests of the mastery of thoughtFW II, 382

The concentration of thought and its projection is a fiery action. But a far greater fiery energy is demanded for liberation from a thought. We have read about great saints who scorned earthly luxury and freed themselves of earthly accumulations; but, first of all, they had to conquer their own thoughts. Through long tests they learned to summon thought and to dismiss it. When We speak about mobility, it is necessary to have in mind primarily mobility of thought; and such meditation is useful on the path to the Fiery World.

Blessed are the obstaclesAUM, 284

With difficulty do people dare to pronounce the simplest law: “Blessed are the obstacles, by them we grow.” Tests are admitted easily enough, as long as they have not begun.

No one is willing to quicken his progress through obstacles.

Yet it is still more intolerable to humanity to hear of the usefulness of suffering. The reason is not fear of pain or discomfort, but that people fail to cognize a life transcending earthly existence. They are ready to suffer the discomfort of any night-lodging for the sake of tomorrow's festival, but they are unwilling to co-measure earthly life with Infinity.

Of all actions manifested by a thinking being, terror before Infinity is the most impermissibly degrading.

Fear and testsBRO, 39

People fear tests. They are afraid of experiments, but they cannot even imagine all the possible means of learning. Again, physical fear, terror of the flesh, shackles rational actions. Therefore, in disciplinary training terror, first of all, has to be conquered.

Three-year testsLHR I, 15 January 1931

Do not forget about the constant three-year tests. It is much more difficult to go over again the same probation because the surroundings have changed and it is difficult to make up for lost time and to find the lost rhythm, which moves up and does not wait for the delaying ones. Therefore, let us work with unremitting tension. Let us heighten our vibrations in order to receive the Rays that are sent to us which otherwise may pass us by.

Tests and the path of serviceLHR II, 23 April 1938

Yes, each one entering upon the Path of Service for the Common Good is unavoidably subjected to all kinds of tests, which are the results of his increased spiritual and mental work, and also of the hastening of the karma that is being outlived by him. Each thought process changes something in our karma; therefore, if it is directed toward benevolent construction, a corresponding purification takes place, but these purifications may be painful. It is good if we learn to love difficulties, because only personal experience, personal trials and sufferings teach us great patience and compassion, those qualities which lie at the basis of all achievements.

Thinker, The

The Thinker is a collective conceptATNW, 201

Now another thing: The Thinker, so often mentioned in Supermundane, is a collective concept. These thoughts were manifested and repeated many times by the Great Lord in many of His incarnations, and that's why for me the Thinker and the Great Lord are one individuality. It is occasionally possible to recognize words said by other Teachers, but who knows? Haven't these thoughts been heard by the original Thinker?

The Thinker and the power of thoughtSUP, 180

Once a man came to the Thinker and told Him of a strange dream in which he saw a friend who lived far away rearranging everything in the man's home. The Thinker said, "Perhaps he intruded into your house mentally. Indeed, the power of thought can move objects."

And again, the Thinker was asked why clouds form so quickly over mountains. He answered, "Besides the forces of nature, the thoughts of man can produce various phenomena." Thus, He used every opportunity to teach about the power of thought. Most people could not understand this power, which is the birthright of everyone, but still their knowledge was enriched.

When the Thinker was asked why He did not mention the power of thought in His writings, He answered, "The time will come when mankind will be ready to cognize this truth, but each premature transmission will only create obstacles. People must climb every rung of the ladder."

The fundamental truths spoken by the ThinkerSUP, 183

Be assured that only a few contemplate the far-off worlds, or think about the continuity of life, and the very ideas that would help to improve life are neglected.… Yet, how can they learn if the most fundamental truths have not found a place in their consciousness? One must do more than listen politely to these truths; one must apply them as reality.

The Thinker spoke precisely about this over two thousand years ago. Does this not ring out as a great rebuke to humanity? Men have perfected themselves in the techniques of killing one another, but have lost the ability to contemplate Truth. And these words were repeated by the Thinker more than two thousand years ago!

If in those times the Thinker was appalled by the ferocity and cruelty of people, what can one say about today? The bloody sacrifices to Moloch appear merciful compared with the murders that are now taking place! How many times must We stress these words! How can people contemplate truths when their minds are filled with a craving for murder? This, too, was said by the Thinker, and because of these words He was persecuted and sold into slavery.

Difficulties to transmit messages by long distance from the ThinkerSUP, 184

Urusvati knows how difficult it is at times to transmit thought to far-off distances. It is especially difficult to penetrate the layers between the spheres, which can prevent even the most clear-cut thought from entering, and cause it to merely glide over the surface. In certain examples one can observe that the thought is unable to penetrate the personal aura of the recipient. This evidence is overlooked by investigators who assume that thought transmission depends upon the power of the sender, ignoring the important factor of the individual quality of emanations of the recipient. One should consider not only the size of the aura, but learn its contents as well. The same thing is true of the pulse. Not only should its rapidity be observed, but also its quality.

One can imagine the intensity of the messages of the Thinker. Besides the usual conditions, these messages are endangered by the possibility of theft, and attract numerous entities, who do not understand the meaning of the message, but try to feed upon particles of mental energy.

We are greatly concerned that the long distance messages from the Thinker should safely reach their destination. A great sacrifice is required of the Thinker in order that all the spheres may be pierced by His thought. He acts for the benefit of humankind, knowing that, in its ignorance, an ungrateful humanity will meet His solicitude with disdain.

The Thinker answers on what to do if people do not listen to useful adviceSUP, 192

When the disciples asked, “What should one do if people do not listen to useful advice?” The Thinker answered, “Then be silent. There is no obstacle more solid than negation. When someone becomes ill with negation, leave him alone, otherwise he can be driven into a rage. You cannot force a change of the mind, which: given time, it may regenerate the afflicted part by itself and heal the one infected by negation.”

The disciples asked, “What shall we do if no one will accept the truth?” The Thinker replied, “Remember that you have legs! Your oppressors will drive you away and you will then have an opportunity to speak the words of truth elsewhere. Thanks to the persecutors, the Truth will be proclaimed in many places.”

The Thinker possessed a gift for dispelling depressionSUP, 223

It can be observed that a man who speaks with feeling can overcome natural impediments, but the moment inspiration is gone, his defects return. In the same way, one’s mental ardor can become continuous, and like wings will carry one to the Guide. We can work best where there is flame, and therefore warn against fear, depression, and despair, which, like damp coals, cannot produce the needed fire. This comparison came from the Thinker, who possessed a remarkable gift for dispelling depression. The Brotherhood needs such abilities, for both the physical and Subtle Worlds. What We say now has an intimate connection with the life of the Brotherhood.

Warnings of karma by the ThinkerSUP, 229

People sound like children when discussing karma, and expect someone else to take responsibility for their behavior. They blindly accumulate karma, then later are full of complaints and indignation, and only intensify the current of effects. Among Our labors an important place is given to the observation of people's karma while accompanying them on their path. We cannot change the Law, but within the limits of possibility We are ready to hint at a better path.

During His many lives the Thinker never tired of warning people. Many listened to His careful warnings, but few understood His advice. The Thinker smiled sadly when He listened to people discussing karma. Sometimes He would say, "It would be better for you to mention this Law less and live more purely."

Combining the mind and the heartSUP, 235

The Thinker pointed out many times that the mind should be combined with the heart. The student cannot be heartless. The cruel scientist is far from Truth, the obstinate one not worthy of knowledge, and the depressed one blind to the treasures of nature. If the scientist cannot overcome yesterday's limitations, it would be better for him to give up science.

I dedicate many discourses to the Thinker because we must remember His tireless work. He devoted centuries of labor to the deepening of thought, for without such self-sacrifice it would be impossible to achieve the transmission of thought to such vast distances. Therefore, it is ridiculous to think that one can learn and achieve within a few years! Finally, it is not time that matters, but the degree of aspiration.

Third Eye

Third eye and the two glands of the brainLHR I, 28 August 1931

"The third eye" certainly has its physical substratum in the center of the nervous system. Pay most serious attention to the two glands of the brain—pituitary and pineal. The molecular movements of the pituitary gland develop psychic sight, but for the spiritual, highest sight, there should also be movements of the pineal gland. The radiations or emanations of these two glands, when unified, bring the highest results.

Mental breathing and the third eyeLHR I, 1 August 1934

Do not exaggerate the significance of pranayama. The science of breathing practiced by true Raja Yogis has little in common with ordinary pranayama! The Hatha Yogis are interested only in the control of the vital breathing of the lungs, whereas the ancient Raja Yogis looked upon pranayama as a mental breathing. Verily, only the mastery of this mental breathing brings the highest clairvoyance, restoring the function of the third eye and leading to the true achievements of Raja Yoga.

Third eye and the pineal glandLHR I, 5 March 1935

I also must warn that a sensation between the eyebrows does not necessarily mean the partial opening of the third eye; it may be simply the result of muscular strain. There is a belief that the organ which corresponds to the third eye is the pineal gland. This gland, together with the pituitary, is now considered very important in the correct functioning of the organism. In ancient India they were also known as the channels for all spiritual-manasic manifestations.

In true clairvoyance, one cannot say that one sees with a particular organ, as the visions may arise above one's head, or behind one's head, or behind one's back, or from the side, or in front, or in the circle of the third eye, or in the solar plexus, etc., etc., and one can see them all equally well. Let us recall the image of the Goddess Dukkar—the circle of her aura consists of numerous eyes. Let us remember that the nerve centers have their subtle counterparts. Therefore, any abnormality and imbalance in the development of these physical conductors inevitably reacts throughout all the bodies. Thus, let us be careful not to evoke any imbalance

Forty-nine chakras or centersLHR I, 12 April 1935

In Agni Yoga twenty-one are mentioned. The opening and transmuting of these twenty-one centers causes a kindling of the rest, as many centers have double branches. For a high spiritual development, not only the opening of the centers is essential but their transmutation also, as the mere opening of one or two centers leads to nothing more than a low psychism and to many dangers. In general, without the help of the Teacher the correct opening of the centers is quite impossible. Of course, I mean the Highest Teacher, as only such a Teacher is able to know the true condition of the organism in all its envelopes. Only He can regulate the blood pressure, which becomes so dangerous during the opening of the centers, to say nothing of their fiery transmutation. Therefore, in the books of the Teaching there is indicated a long stage of preparation of the organism first of all, precisely a physical and spiritual prophylaxis. Absolutely essential is the purification of the thoughts and heart. Then comes the broadening of the consciousness, refinement of all the senses and cultivation of the heart, which is the organ of synthesis.…

It is customary to mention as the seven main chakras: 1. Maludhara-Kundalini, located at the bottom of the spine. 2. Svadhisthana-chakra, in the abdomen between the base of the spine and the navel; 3. Manipura-chakra, or the solar plexus; 4. Anahata-chakra, or the Chalice; 5. Vishuddha-chakra, or the center of the throat; 6. Ajna-chakra, or the Third Eye; 7. Brahmarandra-chakra, or the Bell, on the top of the head. But, of course, the brain alone has more centers than this. The centers in the shoulders, cheeks, lungs, wrists, kidneys, etc. are seldom mentioned. Even in Hindu literature there are disagreements regarding the location of the third eye. Some associate it with the pituitary gland; others with the solar plexus, etc. Upon personal experience, I may say that when one reaches the state of real clairvoyance, one sees most of all through the center of the Bell. It is possible to see with the center of the solar plexus, and we can really say that each center can see. We can even see the inside of our own organism.

All this is possible with a sufficient accumulation of spirituality, together with the required conditions of prana and altitude.

The third eye aids in the perception of invisible worldsLHR II, 15 October 1935

A clairvoyant is one who has raised the spinal serpent [Kundalini] into the brain and by his growth earned the right of perceiving the invisible worlds with the aid of the third eye, or pineal gland. This organ of consciousness, which millions of years ago connected man with the invisible worlds, closed during the Lemurian period when the objective senses began to develop. The occultist, however, by the process of development hinted at before, may reopen this eye and by means of it explore the invisible worlds. Clairvoyants are not born; they are made. Mediums are not made; they are born.

Symbol of the opening of the third eyeLHR II, 2 September 1937

Regarding the protuberance on the top of the head during the time of the opening of the brain center, this too, should be understood as a symbol. The opening of a center is always accompanied by the enlargement of the blood vessels, which causes some swelling, but not the protrusion of the bone. On many images of Buddhas and Bodhisattvas one can see this symbolical protrusion of the crown of the head. It is termed Ushnisha and is known as the symbol of the opening of the brain center. Likewise, when the Tibetans wish to symbolize the opening of the third eye, they put upon sacred images a wart between the two eyebrows. Clairaudience is usually symbolized on the sacred images by enormous ears.

Pains of centers functioningAY, 220

How can one cure the pains in the spine that are caused by the awakening of Kundalini? He who knows will welcome the pains and relieve them by rubbing in mint. How can we stop the burning of the third eye when it begins to function? Is it not wiser to help its development by shielding it from the sun? Long ago people knotted their hair on the crowns of their heads in order to protect this channel.

Experience the opening of the third eyeAY, 465

Urusvati experienced the opening of the third eye. It is not easy to attain the ability to perceive the radiance of psychic energy. We make use of the tension in the atmosphere to help make manifest the development of the consciousness. That which exists in the depths of the consciousness must be called forth. There is no step of spiritual growth that is easy. One should not force progress in the mastery of psychic energy. The circle of the third eye is difficult. Its union with the Fire of Space takes place near those glands that are filled with the conduits from the centers.

Three flames, then the Chalice of Attainment, and then the third eye—this is part of Our Mystery. Afterward a rest of at least four days is needed.

The foundation of creativityHEART, 519

The fixing of an impression upon the third eye is the foundation of creativity. Not only the ancient Buddhists but also the scriptures of hoary antiquity demanded that the power of observation be trained. A heart that lacks the treasure of observational power dissipates a huge amount of energy where it ought to be showing great caution. A teacher should use the most beautiful objects in developing the students' ability to observe. It is especially inadmissible when a human being just gives things a fleeting glance, which neither notices nor gives out anything. Would it not be an extremely beneficial task for a true scientist to research the chemical composition of a glance?

Hold the Image of the Teacher in the third eyeHEART, 582

Through the heart one is able to transmit one's consciousness along the Chain of Hierarchy, thereby increasing one's strength and making oneself invulnerable. It means that for such vital achievements three elements are necessary: the heart, the Hierarchy, and the concept of indivisibility. Let us accustom ourselves to constantly feeling the heart. Then let us not forget to hold the Image of the Teacher in the third eye, and let us understand what indivisibility of aspiration means.

Peer the golden network of nerves with the third eyeFW I, 91

Let us mentally collect all the fiery approaches, let us examine the signs of inspiration or illumination. We will find identical signs indicating the common foundation, which actually lies beyond. And so it must be, the fire of the heart comes into contact with the Fire of Space. Only thus can be effected the conception, or more correctly, the impregnation of thought-creativeness. Moreover, one must manifest the highest respect for the complexity of the apparatus that forms the contact with Fire. The most delicate golden networks of nerves are almost imperceptible to the eye. One must peer into them with the third eye in order to remember them forever and be imbued with respect for them.

Observation nourishes the third eyeFW I, 243

Experience in the beautiful keeps one within the bounds of authenticity. When the earthly world is so rich, when the Subtle World is still richer, when the Fiery World is so majestic, then experience in the beautiful is needed. Only acuteness of observation helps to affirm beauty. It is a mistake to think that transitory methods of art can create a single basis for judgment. Actually, only the power of observation, which nourishes the third eye, provides a firm foundation for creativeness that is suitable also in the Subtle World.

Third eye and straight-knowledgeFW I, 535

Man is beginning to know the purpose of words. The external expression is not important to the sensitive observer. Sometimes the speaker himself finds it difficult to determine the primary reason for his own words. But a fiery heart knows how the spoken formula was born. No grimace or gestures will lead the third eye into error. Such straight-knowledge is not obtained easily. Many generations each add their mite to the consciousness. Understand that the affirmation of Fire is achieved by many incarnations. The root of thought will provide the way to the realization of other roots.

A yogi learns to have faith in his third eyeSUP, 900

How can one learn to recognize absolute reality in the earthly world? People, from early age, learn about the relativity of things, and this prevents their looking beyond the boundaries of the earthly, coarse body. However, a yogi learns to have faith in his “third eye.” It opens up only gradually, through the exercise of the will.

ThoughtLMG I, 39

We possess the power to both create and destroy obstacles. Thought is like lightning.

Arrows of thoughtLMG I, 91

Sharpen your arrows!

If you like not the symbol of the arrow, take that of the carrier pigeon.

Arrows of thought are energy, which, like electricity, must be concentrated at one point.

You can easily imagine propelling an object,

And you can easily imagine an electric spark.

Directed energy spurs a desire to act creatively in those to whom you send it.

Pure thoughtLMG I, 154

You can carry My Shield.

In each pure thought lies the Glory of God.

Drops of JoyLMG I, 251

Streams of joy fill the ocean of the Creator’s Thought.

And you, pouring drops of joy into the human soul, bring offerings to the Creator of the Worlds.

Enlightenment will never end.

Learn by teaching others.

You were not mistaken in expounding joy.

Each tree blooms in joy;

But when shedding its leaves, it grieves not, remembering the coming spring.

Thought, seeds of the spiritLMG II, 80

Your power will grow, but if you smother the flame you will burn your hands. Let the flame of faith shine freely.

The Teacher watches each thought, ready to select the best seeds of the spirit.

Thought and the birth of true individualityLMG II, 129

Just as We watch over you, so do We watch the development of children throughout the world from the cradle on, weighing their best thoughts. Of course, spirit does not often reach its best development, and the number of deserting ones is great, but We rejoice at a pure thought as at a beautiful garden.

There is thought which leads inwardly, leaving the surface of the spirit unruffled, and there is also thought which flies into space as a projectile, carrying an explosive charge. A ray accompanies the flying bullet. Every spirit knows when thought flies like a boomerang. It is especially desirable that the thought be tinted by one's own color, but only opened nerve centers, instead of bringing forth the color of the thought, enwrap it in the color of the person—this marks the birth of true individuality. Instead of the thought being colored by its contents, the whole sending is permeated by the color of the individuality. Thus is the ray physically formed.

The rainbow is the best sign; each allusion to a rainbow indicates the development of the third eye.

The rays and thoughtLMG II, 157

Fire singes imperfect thoughts. How else to fill the cradle of authentic achievements? The experiment of filtering the thought through the ray is very important. Everyone expresses the essence of his aura, but single thoughts can be of different value according to their spiritual consistency. Then the substance of the thought can be tested by a special ray. The presence of inner spirituality illumines the thought by the color of the aura, but if the thought is a base one it burns under the ray. Thus, there results not only a testing of thought but also a disinfection of space.

The brain and heart do the readingNEC, 107

The school must not only instill a love for the book but teach how to read—and the latter is not easier than the former. It is necessary to know how to concentrate thought in order to penetrate into a book. Not the eye but the brain and the heart do the reading. The book does not occupy a place of honor in many homes. It is the duty of the community to affirm the book as a friend of the home. The cooperative, first of all, has a book-shelf whose contents are very extensive. There will be accounts of the treasures of the motherland and of her links with the world. The heroes, the creators and the toilers will be revealed; and the concepts of honor, duty, and obligation to one's neighbor, as well as mercy will be affirmed. There will be many examples prompting learning and discoveries.

There are two kinds of logic: the logic of external reasoning, which one attempts to learn from textbooks, and that of mental synthesis, by which one collects and links the sparks of spatial thought. These sparks may seem to be a happy accident, even though this "accident" may have been ripening in space for an entire century. The broadened consciousness provides the best possibility of grasping the nodes of spatial thought.

Of course, from the point of view of external reasoning, apparent lapses in the processes of mental synthesis can always be found. As rings of the spiral show to the observer the outer turns and conceal the inner turns, so mental logic proceeds according to the limits of the outer turns while the inner turns are still merged in the streams of collective thought in space. Hence, We take such care about the broadening of the consciousness, in order that union with spatial thought may be approached.

The spoken and written wordAY, 589

The wise one knows the spoken word, knows the written word, knows the thought, and knows silence—so says the old proverb. Let us examine this from the point of view of psychic energy. Truly, one has to distinguish when a spoken word, a written letter, a thought, or silence is most needed. One can achieve much by directing one's energy properly. Refined straight-knowledge will determine which method is the most needed at each moment.

Buddha, the LionINF I, 15

Since it was the Lord Buddha who defined the essence of the human Ego as a process, we can accept this formula of "The Lion." In your daily life accustom yourselves to the thought of eternal motion and do not tarry in the recesses of darkness. Creativeness attracts the creative power. Therefore, observe the sparks of Cosmos.

Let us choose between ignorance and the radiance of Infinity!

Agni Yogi and cosmic raysINF II, 215

How powerfully the spirit of the Agni Yogi creates! So many strivings are affirmed by the Carrier of pure Fire! So many possibilities are awakened! Each pure thought creates an apparent zone of light in space. Like a purifying fire burns the pure thought of an Agni Yogi. Into this zone various cosmic rays are attracted. Hence, space has its rainbow-like zones. Thus does the pure fire of an Agni Yogi create.

Purified thinkingLHR II, 17 May 1937

Karma is woven by thoughts. Thought can either weaken or intensify any karmic effect. Purified thinking liberates from bad karma, for it does not generate evil causes. Thought and will are the rulers of karma.

Kriya-shaktiLHR II, 23 April 1938

Indeed, Kriya-shakti is thought-energy. In order to create in the subtle spheres, an accumulated, highly developed psychic energy is needed, together with imagination and a faculty of clear ideation. Therefore, work in the arts is so necessary.

Letters of the Helena Roerich II, (23 April 1938). Lightning of thought and healing energy. The lightning of thought mentioned in this paragraph was sent by the Teacher to strengthen my eyesight, which was considerably weakened after work with small print. I saw this lightning with my physical eyesight, or rather, with open eyes—it unfolded itself rather slowly before my eyes, as if touching them with a broad, very long fiery strip of a pinkish-lilac color. Afterwards, my eyesight became considerably stronger. Of course, this lightning was saturated with a special property of healing energy.

You ask, could people have lightning-thoughts? Undoubtedly so, because each clear-cut and intensified thought gives off a fiery flash, which means that during spiritual growth and a necessary tension of psychic energy, fiery flashes could become lightnings. But for this spirituality must be high.

Offerings to the Common GoodLHR II, 13 August 1938

Only a petrified heart will not aspire toward the Common Good, but will think only about the salvation of its own soul and about its resurrection in a physical body! One should think not about one's own salvation, but about the offering of life's achievement for the Common Good and sacrificed their lives for it were closer to God than those who had his name on their lips and thought only of their own salvation. "He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal."

Thoughts about thoughtNR-HER, 149

It is beautiful, being clad in valor, to realize the grandeur of thought and of all the energies that it sets into action. Though through mechanical means, nevertheless let people hurriedly approach the thoughts about thought in all its mighty significance. And instead of a chaotic fear, many seemingly complicated problems of life will become illumined by the realization of all the possibilities of thought. Not without reason was it said: "Act not only in body, but also in thought!" What a beautiful concept: "Thought in Infinity."

Creative thoughtNR-HER, 41

Remember the sense of the Beautiful. Keep your enthusiasm and develop creative thought—such thought is the chief thing—the power of thought is the real possibility and it is the most practical advice to have pure thoughts.

Throat

Unmanifested accumulations and the throatAY, 573

Nervous choking is often the result of an over-burdening of the Chalice when its accumulations are not used consciously. Children can suffer from this, which indicates that their former experiences were considerable. Of course, thoughtful care and quiet occupation will balance the struggle between spirit and body. The throat, teeth, and eyes may likewise remind one about the struggle of unmanifested accumulations. In the same way, one should pay attention to what can be called consumption, which also may be provoked by the center of the Chalice.

Overflow of psychic energyHEART, 88

When an overflow of psychic energy manifests, it gives rise to many symptoms in the extremities, as well as in the throat and stomach. Soda is useful in bringing on a discharge of energy, as is hot milk. The Teacher is watching over the fires. The fires not only illuminate the aura but they also stay on in space, which is what makes them so very important. These manifested fires, in their turn, focus the energy and give birth to new nodes.

Tension of the center of synthesisFW I, 176

Before you, is the tension of the synthetic center of the throat; one must understand how many different tensions must be united in order to strike upon the center of synthesis. One must deal very attentively with this tension, for it reflects upon the heart. During such a condition one should protect the throat ligaments, at least externally, and not strain them by talking.

The throat is an instrument of synthesisFW II, 210

It is asked—What center is particularly important just now? The present is a time of synthesis, therefore let us begin everything from the heart itself. Precisely the heart stands above all. Therefore, let the throat and the chalice and the solar plexus not be isolated from the guidance of the heart. The throat is an instrument of synthesis, but transmutation and its application take place in the heart.

Dryness of the throat and fiery tensionFW I, 466

The epidemic dryness of the throat indicates not only dryness of the atmosphere but also fiery tension. There is a heavy accumulation of many signs, but surprisingly little attention is paid to them. On the contrary, with the superficiality of ignorance, the strangest explanations are given of them. The shallowness of these explanations indicates that people prefer to remain with their illusions rather than deal with reality.

Results of tensions from spacial firesFW II, 225

It is an error to think that irritation of the nose, throat, and lungs is caused only by colds. Such tensions also result from spacial fires. Without doubt, irritation of nose and throat can be cured by suggestion. The same cause underlies many cases of so-called hay-fever, which often can be cured by suggestion. Also, many kinds of skin disease are cured by the same method. Often, in fact, skin irritations arise not from external causes but from imbalance of fiery currents. It is regrettable that physicians do not observe this phase of human ailment. Only occasionally do they recognize nervous causes, but then they try to flood them out with bromides, whereas suggestion could produce a better result. Let us not forget that at times suggestion has been employed to speed up the closing of wounds, by way of enlisting the cooperation of the entire organism. Thus, during discourse about the Fiery World, one should not forget the cause, at times, of irritations of the nose and throat. Physicians must be urged to study all methods of suggestion.

Throat and earthquakesFW II, 440

One may observe that during an earthquake the throat becomes quite parched. In this manifestation is seen the tension of fire. Thus, a great number of concepts are diffused into life, one has but to notice them.

Currents of space and fiery dischargeFW III, 121

The principle of transference of sensitiveness is very clearly indicated in the swelling of the lips. An accumulation of fiery energies in the throat is discharged in another center. Likewise, nasal hemorrhage is a result of a strong transference of fire of a center, outwardly manifested through the third eye. If subtle energies are saturated by Fire, then transmutation of the centers is so strong that a discharge is inevitable. Fires are raging; that is why it is very necessary to guard the health. Tension of the currents of space is strongly reflected on subtle organisms. Spatial currents are very strongly intensified. The vision of the black networks revealed all the blackness of the web which surrounds the planet. A whirlwind is being borne through space. Thus, We discharge spatial pressures.

Be careful with the throat center; as a synthesized central point it can definitely receive spatial influences. Such radio stations can exert an influence on the mucous membranes, many other reactions likewise can burden the centers.

Special indisposition and throat sensationsBRO, 245

If people would deal with each other more trustingly, they could observe far greater manifestations of a cosmic nature. For example, if they were not so constrained about confiding their sensations, it would be possible to detect entire waves of transitory currents. There can be noticed particular throat sensations or heart pangs, or tension of knees and elbows. Currents can pass through all the centers. This will not be a sickness but a special indisposition. According to these symptoms it is possible to see where tension of currents is passing. But at least some confidence must be shown, without the fear of being laughed at.

Thought-waves, like arrows, pierce the mucus membranesSUP, 427

Urusvati knows about the filling of space with thought- waves. You can imagine how strained is the space around Us, with waves of the most varied intensity and content intercepting one another. But often these waves are alike in intensity and can interpermeate. It is impossible to tell which hours are the more silent, for the waves invade from both hemispheres.

In Our normal work, We must set aside time for the reception of communications from a distance. But this is not easy, since an organism that is tensed and refined cannot help resounding to calls from everywhere. Remember that, in addition to any direct appeals to Us, space thunders with world events. And now this cacophony has reached such a degree that it can endanger the human organism. Thought-waves, like arrows, pierce the mucous membranes; the throat, the ears, the eyes, and all other mucous tissues can be affected. There are times when thought-waves are even strengthened by the mutual opposition. One cannot always see the explosions of black projectiles. Unearthly Forces are active in them, but earthly thoughts treble their effect.

Location of the throat centerLHR II, 2 September 1937

Likewise, the center of the throat is located, not in the thyroid gland, but nearby. The centers are not located in the glands. They are near them, and they coordinate the work of the glands. There are a multitude of the finest branchings of the centers, but one need not think that the centers occupy much space.

Religious toleranceAY, 469

Three centuries after the departure of the Blessed One, His disciples were already infected with religious strife. After only a century, Christianity manifested extreme intolerance. The last utterances of Mohammed were immediately followed by fanaticism. Religious controversies always destroy the sense of the true Teaching; therefore, We now call for special tolerance and We reject controversies.

Tolerance for all nationsHEART, 295

It is said that envoys from the Sage of the Mountains came to Genghis Khan. A chest that they brought contained a golden cup and several multicolored cloths. An inscription read: “Drink from one cup but clothe yourself in the garments of all nations.” That was how the Hierarchy was revealed and the tolerance worthy of a leader was expressed. In the same way let tolerance also be affirmed by expansion of the Teaching of Light.

Tolerance for limitationsHEART, 578

The deaf and dumb sometimes make strange gestures, as their disabilities make it impossible for them to find other modes of expression. But don’t people who are ignorant of the heart suffer from similar limitations? One should not laugh at such poverty; rather, in a tolerant way that will not be noticed, one should help the impoverished mind move forward to an image worthy of expression. The same tolerance should be shown toward all ugliness or deformity.

Tolerance is humanenessSUP, 553

Urusvati knows that tolerance is totally misunderstood. It is often seen either as condescension or as overindulgence of others. Since both of these are considered to be wrong, it is clear that the very idea of tolerance is not perceived in a proper way. But We see it as one of the basic qualities of humaneness. In human relations it must be reciprocal. All earthly life should be based on tolerance and compassion. Sometimes people manifest these benevolent attitudes consciously, but more often their tolerance and compassion are simply the result of an inherent goodness, and they themselves do not always recognize the value of these acts of kindness.

Tolerance and calmnessFW III, 14

It is asked why We do not put a stop to the false sources. Why do We not expose those who distort the Sendings? If one were to stop by force the current in whose wake humanity is proceeding, fanaticism would turn into brutality. Thus, the evil free will flows like lava, engulfing also those who rise against the Good, as history reveals. Surely, violent manifestations of force cannot carve a righteous path for humanity. Hence, all the subtle energies can be accepted only by a fiery consciousness. Thus, tolerance is truly the lot of the fiery consciousness. Of course, one should purify wherever there are accumulations of filth, and the lot of the fiery consciousness is to purify the records of space.

Understanding toleranceFW III, 54

Let Us explain how to understand tolerance. When We speak about a higher tolerance, We mean that Hierarchy can show leniency because the heart of the Hierarch is all-containing; it feels everything and knows all impulses and intentions, and weighs all the good and the bad. In His leniency the Higher Spirit descends into the sphere of the consciousness of the disciple, and by His indulgence and tolerance uplifts the disciple. But not thus must the co-worker accept the indications about tolerance. For the disciple who is intolerant toward his surroundings, the needed quality cannot be called leniency. When the development of this wonderful quality, tolerance, is indicated to him, it means that first of all he must exclude censure. The indication about tolerance does not mean to have always command over one's fellow worker; it does not mean that the spirit is on such a level that it can condemn those who surround him. The indication about tolerance first of all must awaken in the disciple the understanding of the fact that the spirit must be freed from egoism, because selfhood carries the most frightful monstrosities. Hence, only the spirit of a disciple freed from selfhood can manifest leniency. On the path to the Fiery World, one should understand the true significance of tolerance.

Tolerance and the ability to change one's positionAUM, 217

When the body has tired of one position, it is advisable to change to another. The same thing is true in all circumstances of life. Each change has its causes. Let us learn to deliberate about them, in this way each condition attests its advantages. Thus, I repeat, affirming tolerance.

Tolerance and broad-mindednessSUP, 290

Broad-mindedness is based on tolerance. Wisdom will say, "Let justice be done," yet will not dictate the verdict, for wisdom understands the complexity of the conditions required for justice. Wisdom will sense the right time and will not force events. Wisdom realizes that every event involves all nations.

Tolerance and evolutionSUP, 381

Urusvati knows that tolerance is a fundamental necessity for evolution. Every sign of tolerance must be valued. We, Ourselves, could not help people without the highest degree of tolerance. All one's inner fire of enthusiasm must be used for the Common Good, for dull indifference is most deadly. Truly, fierce opposition is often more justified than unfeeling indifference.

Tolerance and patienceSUP, 752

Urusvati knows that patience is the parent of tolerance. Intolerance is the offspring of ignorance. Nothing obstructs achievement as much as does intolerance. One must become attuned to an attitude of tolerance from one's earliest years. And compassion is akin to it. Tolerance is the best way. Those who argue should not be dismissed if their words contain just one particle of truth. This particle could serve as a bridge for unity. But patience is needed to discover such particles of truth.

When in the Subtle World one can observe that it is precisely tolerance that leads to the attaining of higher vibrations. Consciousness will indicate where the like-minded ones are. They may be different in their looks and ways of expression, but their vibrations will be similar. Only real tolerance will make it possible to come close to them.

Let the Teaching of the Supermundane World indicate all the qualities needed for this achievement. A common moral basis is needed, and also an understanding of the mutual benefit, when thinking about the Supermundane existence.

The Thinker instructed His disciples first of all to demonstrate a beautiful tolerance.

Tolerance in the SupermundaneSUP, 807

Tolerance is especially needed in the Supermundane World, for without this quality man builds a pitiable existence for himself. He will reject all whom he meets, for in each one he will find some trait unpleasant to him. Because of this fault he will not be able to notice the most valuable accumulations. Therefore, broad tolerance must be taught to children, even in their earliest years.

Tolerance in occult groupsLetters of Helena Roerich I, (17 February 1934)

Everything you say about the so-called occult groups does not surprise us but confirms what we expected, as we know of the sad situation within many organizations and we know that human nature is everywhere similar. The evil is always the same: lack of tolerance and a terrible exclusiveness which destroys all foundations.

Tolerance and synthesisLetters of Helena Roerich I, (25 May 1934)

So many suggestions are given to leaders in the pages of the Living Ethics. Every book speaks of tolerance, of ability to embrace and comprehend—are these not actually the foundations of synthesis?

Tolerance and knowledgeLHR I, 8 September 1934

Thus, the Teaching of Living Ethics destroys nothing, does not cast down, but calls for the purification of the heart and thought. But ignorance, being of darkness, always furiously struggles against Light. The first impulse of the savage is to destroy or to kill everything that is not clear to him. Intolerance is the sign of ignorance. Tolerance is the Crown of the Great Knowledge. By this sign, you should determine the worthiness of your interlocutor.

Consciousness is measured by toleranceLetters of Helena Roerich II, (25 January 1936)

One of my correspondents often encounters the most peculiar opinions regarding the Teaching of Living Ethics. These come from the so-called “Donovs.” However, I always insist upon tolerance toward all spiritual movements, and I advise not to force the books of Living Ethics upon anyone and chiefly not to enter into arguments. With some people any exchange of opinion becomes an argument and a personal offense. True, the latter proves the possession of only a small degree of consciousness and knowledge. Buddha said, “Revere your own faith, but do not slander that of your brother.” It is also said by the Brahmo Samaj that not a single religion should be slandered, ridiculed, or hatred. Therefore, a spiritual teacher, whose disciples attribute his origin to the Solar Hierarchy, should display great tolerance toward other Teachings. Our consciousness is measured by our tolerance.

Manifest tolerancLetters of Helena Roerich II, (18 February 1936)

. I can see that you are disturbed by the attempts of certain people to affirm only their own concept of the world. I advise you to accept such attempts with complete calmness. Let people discriminate for themselves. It is impossible to force the consciousness, therefore, manifest tolerance and restraint. Nothing grows as slowly as consciousness. For the assimilation of each new concept, it is necessary not only to throw light upon it from all angles but also to repeat it perpetually, precisely “until a design is fixed in the brain,” as one Thinker put it. Those who are unable to appreciate all the depth and the cosmic scale of thought revealed in the Teaching of Life and who constantly shift their path are not ready to accept the Fiery Teaching. Therefore, not only would it be out of all proportion to waste time in trying to convince them, but it would also be even wrong to violate an unstable consciousness. It is indicated in the Teaching that even with those who have agreed one should not waste much time. Indeed, first let them show that they have applied the first call. There is no point in repeatedly dipping a vessel into an empty well; but once a man proves to be valuable, one must apply toward him the maximum tolerance and patience, in order that, by careful touches, his consciousness may be prepared for collaboration. Consciousness should be broadened most cautiously. Only organic development and versatility of accumulations can assure the true growth of our treasury.

Building the towerLMG I, 364

Yes, yes, yes!

I summon you.

I proclaim you My own.

And on your girdle rattle the keys to the doors of trust.

How many have approached these doors,

And even tried to turn the key,

But did not know how to unlock the door.

And an opportunity lost will not return.

When you approach the lock, do not invite the old passersby.

Do not invite those who have repeatedly shown their ignorance.

At every crossroad new ones await you,

And every stone for the building carries My Sign.

And when you enter and start to build the tower,

Measure for the foundation by encircling the rock on which it will rest;

For from the tower shall you, builders, behold the distances!

The effect of doubt on the towerLMG I, 383

Doubt destroys one's armament. Each loose stone weakens the tower.

The Tower of ChunBRO, 7

Perhaps Brotherhood does exist? Perhaps, as an earthly anchor, it maintains equilibrium? Perhaps in the dreams of humanity it has remained as an unalterable reality? Let us recall certain dreams and visions, so clearly engraved upon the memory, visions of walls and towers of the Brotherhood. The imagination is but a memory of that which exists.

Perhaps someone will remember also in reality the Tower of Chun?

The Tower is guardedSUP, 1

Urusvati knows the Tower of Chun, and remembers how the exterior of the Tower resembles a natural cliff. It is not difficult to prevent access to this Tower. A small landslide can conceal the structure from those below. A small dam can change a mountain stream into a lake, and in time of dire need the entire district can be immediately transformed. People may smile, thinking that organized expeditions could sooner or later penetrate into all the passes. But even before the physical transformation of the area, the power of thought would already have diverted the caravan! In addition, chemical effects can be utilized to prevent the approach of the curious. Thus do We guard the Brotherhood.

Even the most advanced aircraft cannot discover Our Abode. Hermits living in nearby caves are watchful guards. Travelers sometimes speak of having met a sadhu who persistently advised them to follow a specified path and warned them of the danger of proceeding into certain other areas. The sadhu himself had never gone farther, and had been instructed not to provide directions. The sadhus know about the Forbidden Place and know how to guard the secret. Sometimes they may be highwaymen, yet even highwaymen can be trusted guards of a sacred mystery. One should not doubt the existence of an inviolable Abode.

Urusvati remembers the appearance of the passages that lead to Us, and also remembers the light from Our Tower. Many details of these paths are remembered by Our Sister Urusvati. These landmarks are unforgettable and give courage to all, on all paths. She has seen Our co-workers gathering useful plants, and has also seen Our repositories, buried deep. One should see these archives of knowledge to comprehend the work of Our Abode. One should hear Our singing in order to understand the life of Our Ashram.

Thus, We shall speak about Our life and labors.

The harmony of dates and the TowerSUP, 9

We have many formulas ready to be revealed. The Ray from the Tower of Chun shines when the discoveries of scientists coincide with the dates. In their simplicity people do not understand the harmony of dates, and seek to impose their own disorderliness and irresponsibility in all matters. It is of no importance to them that, when certain requirements have not yet been met, a great idea is lost. In addition, they insist that everything be done by their own measures, they regard success as misfortune and rejoice at calamity. The small seems great to them, and the great, insignificant.

The exact knowledge sent out from Our laboratories often cannot be understood because the formulas are given in unusual symbols. But why should We distort ancient formulas that would otherwise have been forgotten? If some formulas survive from Atlantis, they should not be limited by today's scientific concepts. The science that synthesizes and the science that analyzes are worlds apart. Thus it is so difficult to find the harmony that flourishes in the Brotherhood.

The meaning of silence in Our TowerSUP, 89

When silence reigns in Our Tower it means that We are experiencing this powerful tension, and communion with the Higher World will result in a renewal of forces. We need such an accumulation of new forces, just as all of life needs it. It would be a mistake to suppose that We do not need replenishment of energy. In revealing Our human side to you, I am strengthening Our bond with humanity. We certainly do not want to appear as "Beings beyond the clouds"! On the contrary, We want to be close co-workers with humanity. Therefore, let a closeness be created that will be the threshold of cooperation. It is especially needed.

Spirit-matter and the Tower of ChunSUP, 120

There are those who define all the worlds as material, but in the final analysis one comes to understand that all is spirit-matter. Hence, the worlds are material, after all. Indeed, the Tower of Chun is built of matter. But let us not complicate our thinking with nomenclature; the signs of all the three worlds are being manifested, and earthly man can even see the sparks of the Fiery World.

Hierophants of evil and the approach to Our TowerSUP, 123

It may be asked, "Can the hierophants of evil approach Our Tower?" Indeed they can, although these approaches are very painful for them. Their fury gives them a strong impulse. At times We are obliged to use powerful discharges of energy to repulse the uninvited visitors. With such discharges We vanquish the enemies who try to approach Our Brothers. You can remember special currents that you sensed during the night. These currents are salutary and protective. Striving to Us will intensify them. Other influences may cause tears in the protective net, but Our currents do not delay in protecting you.

The principles of the physical and psychicSUP, 235

The work in Our Tower is based on the conformity of two principles, the physical and the psychic. Only thus is it possible to come to correct conclusions. It is hard to imagine the complexity of interplanetary conditions. Aviation in its early stages was confronted with inexplicable obstacles. If we continue our careful observations along these lines we will come upon the most striking evidence. Thus, clairvoyants could be wisely utilized for certain experiments.

As the center of the three worldsSUP, 448

Urusvati knows that the Tower of Chun is the center of the three worlds. This unity is possible because some of the Masters, although still in their physical bodies, can manifest in their subtle bodies, whereas others, in their subtle bodies, have the power to approach the physical world. One should be aware of the importance of maintaining harmonious vibrations in order to make this communication possible between the Subtle World and the physical world. It is most important to safeguard the surrounding atmosphere so that nothing harmful can increase the disturbance of currents. People strive to make contact with the Towers, not understanding that such an intrusion can be disastrous.

Urusvati knows that He who stands upon the Tower sees more than one who sits in a cellar. Is it necessary to repeat what is so obvious? If I say this, there is a need for it. Most people see no difference between a tower and a cellar. Against all evidence, they pay no attention to the Voice from the Tower.

During times of great tensions, people still think as they always do, but such a way of thinking is criminal indulgence. They should learn that every event requires an appropriate way of thinking.

People escaping from a burning house do not care if someone jostles them, for their concern for personal safety has greater urgency. But under normal conditions, people rarely recognize the true state of affairs, and live as if in a dark cellar. They dance in their cellar, they grow angry and quarrel, as if it were a suitable time for all this pettiness!

People have an amazing way of seeing everything through the color of their own glasses, yet take pride in their objectivity of judgment. It is time that they went beyond the limits of their “civilized” ways and developed powers of right judgment. Proper judgment could prevent some dark events. People have heard about Armageddon, but do not see it as real. So We must continue to repeat the obvious, because even the simplest truths are being rejected, and with what conceit! One must also keep on repeating about the need for trust–it is better seen from the Tower!

The Thinker used to say, “Even if I climb to the roof of My house, Athena upon the Acropolis will see incomparably more.”

Approach to the TowerLHR I, 15 January 1930

We should start from the most stubborn energy, which is egoism (that furious dragon of selfishness with its long tail); self-conceit; love of power; self-love; touchiness; irritability; fear; doubt and other similar decorations. And we should replace them with the wings of affirmed unity; complete solidarity with all the co-workers; acknowledgment of Hierarchy; joyous strengthening of the given tasks; tolerance and gratitude for the right directions. We should conclude with—trust to the very end. All this transmutation is so simplified when hearts burn with devotion and love to the One who calls to construction and who points out the way to the Tower.…

It is said, “We offer the best armor; therefore, if they do not wish to substitute the old habits for shining armor the approach to the Tower is closed! Yes, yes, yes! It is necessary to realize the threatening time and not to continue with old habits.” It hurts me to write this, but I feel that it is timely, otherwise something irremediable may happen. Superficially, things may appear as they were, but what is not seen and cannot be replaced will depart. The sorrow of the Teacher is so evident, and my spirit knows and sees the sculpture of the spirit of the co-workers.

Transfiguration

Transfiguration of the spiritINF I, 108

Only the mainspring of transmutation of darkness into light can strengthen the spirit. The transfiguration of the spirit is called the cosmic transfiguration. Cosmos, in its eternal activity of the Fire of Space, transforms the elements into corresponding forms. The spirit transforms the consciousness into a manifestation of all-containment.…

Since the centers of man can be transformed into the most subtle energies of life-imparting fires, one may through each deed of life either attain the highest tensions or be cast into the lowest sphere. Like a whirlwind, transfiguration carries one toward Infinity.

Foundation of cosmic fusionINF I, 109

Transfiguration is Our most wondrous foundation of cosmic fusion. That step of cosmic transfiguration, at which man consummates his earthly path, We call cosmic joy.

Spatial fire is the highest transfiguring elementINF I, 155

Humanity at various stages of its development has known of the power of the Cosmic Magnet. The interrelation between all cosmic forces and man has been attested by most ancient revelations. Man is part of the cosmic energy, part of the elements, part of Cosmic Reason, part of the consciousness of the higher matter. Therefore, when the power is given to an image which acts and emerges from the cosmic seed, Cosmos awaits the transmutation which must lead the spirit toward transfiguration. Of course, I regard the Spatial Fire as the highest transfiguring element.

Humanity must understand that the changes of existences are not only changes of envelopes. Transfiguration does not mean in itself a completed image. And when the Cosmic Magnet summons to a change, it means that the transfiguration brings a new step. When will humanity begin to understand that Truth attracts toward the Magnet, which leads to affirmation of the principle of Beauty? The law of the earthly existence of the Origins holds true.

Records of transfigurationINF I, 174

Each center absorbs its own fire, and these fires can act at a distance. The functions of the centers are psycho-creative, and each center can dissolve and integrate as a creator. We have actual records left by Agni Yogis. And it can be asserted that the White Tara has created much. There are numerous records of transfiguration. We shall so name the transmuting power of Agni Yoga. Thus is the Tara manifested amidst life. The step of crossing into the higher sphere is radiant!

Strive toward TransfigurationINF I, (conclusion)

Thus, without delay and without retreat, let us harken to the voice of the Dawn and let us strive toward the threshold of Transfiguration.

One may receive the key to the next Gates, but first one has to strengthen the spirit in the realization of the grandeur of Infinity.

Fire of the heart and transfigurationHIER, 200

Straight-knowledge is the kindled fire of the heart. It is difficult to express in words when this string of the heart will resound, but Hierarchy can point out this hour of transfiguration.

Transfigure life in its entiretyHEART, 99

Let us recall: someone responded to cosmic manifestations; someone heard distant voices; someone saw the Subtle World and took part in it; someone gave off light; someone levitated; someone walked on water; someone walked on fire; someone swallowed poison without harm; someone had no need of sleep; someone had no need of food; someone could see through solid objects; someone could write with both hands; someone could attract animals; someone could understand a language without having learned it; someone could read thoughts; someone could read a closed book with his eyes shut; someone did not feel pain; someone surrounded by snow generated the heat of the heart; someone could go on without feeling fatigue; someone could help by healing; someone could manifest knowledge of the future. In this way one can recount all the phenomena that have manifested and enumerate a multitude of instructive examples that actually happened. Gather, for a moment, all of these qualities into a single body and you will have the transfiguration of the old humanity into a new one, a process referred to in many Teachings. The main thing to note about this transfiguration is that all its various parts have already manifested, even in the midst of an imperfect existence. This means that with a well-defined effort one can impart to humanity a powerful impetus to transfigure life in its entirety. Therefore, let us remember about the great Fire and the fiery citadel—the heart. This is no fairy tale—the heart is the dwelling of the Spirit!

Path of Christ to the step of TransfigurationHEART, 333

Who in his heart cannot understand the beauty of ascension? Who will not sense at heart the burden taken on when one returns to a temporary house, an endangered house, a cramped house? So people should be conscious of the Higher World, in order that they be transported and ascend. Can one gaze out the window of the narrow dwelling without thinking about the higher worlds? The heart will lead us by the path of Christ to the step of Transfiguration. That is how we shall open the doors of the cramped house. Every unification of consciousness already acts to open the doors.

Fiery transfiguration lifts one beyond sufferingFW I, 618

Truly, the passage of the Good through the furnace of Fire eliminates the sense of suffering. Thus, fiery transfiguration even on Earth lifts one beyond suffering. One should not evade suffering, for without suffering earthly achievement does not exist. But let each one ready for achievement kindle the fires of his heart. They will be the indicators of the Path, and a shield not fashioned by human hands. Someone has asked, “How does the Lord discern those who approach him?” The answer is, “By the fires of their hearts.” If we are astonished by the power of Fire that even here envelops us and saturates our garments, then we can understand how supernal is the glow of the fires of the heart along the Chain of Hierarchy!

Spiritual transfigurationLHR I, 3 June 1931

The reorganization of the world intensifies all forces of the Cosmos. If humanity would understand that reorganization requires the striving of spirit, it would be easy to establish balance in the world. But the nations do not ponder about what to place upon the scales and where the balance is; hence the chaos of thinking is so destructive to humanity, and thus the shifted nations sink to the depths without taking measure for spiritual transfiguration. Therefore, it is time to consider the affirmation of spiritual quests. When the cosmic perturbations require a powerful tension, humanity must know where to look for the center of salvation. Therefore, the quest of a spiritual center will lead unavoidably to Hierarchy. Humanity has lost the urgent formula of salvation. Hence, the anchor of salvation is the focus of Hierarchy. Only a conscious quest and the affirmation of Hierarchy will afford salvation. Yes, yes, yes! Therefore, We gave the foundation of actions and works which are founded on Beauty. It is necessary to manifest complete comprehension of all thoughts and treasures of beauty. It is also necessary to understand the fires of the centers. Only thus can we attain victory.

Struggle evokes the necessary energies for transfigurationLHR I, 6 May 1934

One must remember that the transmutation of the organism and the nerve centers must take place here, on Earth, amidst the spiritual struggles, amidst all the burdens and difficulties of life, amidst all the testing trifles of every day. Only this struggle evokes the necessary energies for the transfiguration and the outliving of all the gross habits and attachments. The earthly life is indeed a purgatory, and without going through it, it is impossible to enter Paradise, or to come to the Brotherhood. The fires of the higher energies would burn the overloaded aura.

The path of spiritual transfigurationLHR I, 12 December 1934

The time now is so threatening, so dangerous because verily it is the last Battle between Light and darkness., Therefore, everyone must honestly and firmly decide on which side he signs his name. Everyone must check his spiritual baggage and definitely join either this or that side. The choice must be taken, otherwise one may expect nothing but deterioration. Our path is the path pointed out by all great Sages—the path of spiritual transfiguration, the path of the development of the heart, without magic and forcing. Verily, there can be no lukewarm middle way when the Sword of Light cleaves the darkness.

Transfiguration of the inner manLHR I, 28 February 1935

Many do not realize, or forget, that only in extreme tension of all forces does the awakening of the inner man, and the further degrees of transfiguration, take place. Such people, in most cases, do not find in themselves enough spiritual strength to resist the plungings of the spirit, which inevitably follow every transport of enthusiasm. The law of alternation of rhythm is everywhere the same.

From experience, I know that at the first touch of the spirit's depression many people lose their enthusiasm and often give up the Teaching entirely. All such people are souls with small spiritual accumulations. Verily they are ignis fatuus. Thus, it is so important to have a profound understanding of the significance of the approach to the Teaching and a constant striving to self-perfection for the transfiguration of the inner man, the true bearer of immortality. This transfiguration reveals an inexhaustible reserve of spiritual power and leads to complete mastery of one's spiritual will—this crown of achievement. If one attains such mastery of spiritual will, one becomes a real co-worker of the Forces of Good. Much labor is required for such transfiguration, but the time must come when one sets forth.

Fiery transfiguration of our inner beingLHR II, 21 January 1936

The advice to purify, improve, and refine one's thoughts and motives is so practical. The spirit carries within itself its own achievement and armor. The purification and fiery transfiguration of our inner being make us the lords of karma. Indeed, the consummation of karma on one planet comes when all the elements, or energies, that enter our essence are harmoniously unified in one striving and have reached the perfection preordained for that particular planet.

TransfigurationLHR II, 2 September 1937

Indeed, Christ did not dematerialize his body during the Transfiguration, but appeared to his disciples in a subtle body. Likewise His Resurrection took place precisely in the subtle body. Remember how He would not allow Mary Magdalene to touch Him, for touching a High Spirit appearing in a subtle body may cause death because of the difference in vibrations.

Spiritual transfiguration and pure Fire of SpaceLHR II, 23 November 1937

Fiery Baptism means the spiritual transfiguration or assimilation of the pure Fire of Space. During Fiery Baptism the opening of certain nerve centers takes place.

Concept of CommunityNEC, 14

Our feeling is one of absence of specialty, because We live for the whole complex of life. Every specialist approaching Us inevitably loses his monochromatic eye-glasses. Therefore, make every effort that the specialty should become but one of the dishes at your table. As birds over the Earth, as bees above all the flowers, we can embrace the entire universe.

Without a specialty it is easier to prepare oneself for the current task in evolution—intercourse with distant worlds and the transformation of the Astral World, the world of dark earthly survivals. The adoption of the concept of Community will open the gates for next achievements, and their dates depend upon people themselves. Therefore, let us take up broadly the quest of Community.

The progress of evolutionINF I, 386

Is not the greatest process in Cosmos that transformation wherein all forms are generated in Materia Lucida and are affirmed as the highest creation in Cosmos? The great transformation creates all the highest cosmic manifestations out of the subtlest energies. Thus are the forms of the Infinite generated, and the course of evolution is constructed upon these designs.

The complex transformation takes place through the cooperation of all energies. The subtlest energies assist the subtlest forms. The human spirit manifests a like striving toward transformation, but there are many who do not assist the course of evolution. The transformation of the spirit can intensify everything which furthers the progress of evolution. But that force depends upon the potential of the seed. Thus, all transformations of Cosmos are intensified as evidences of the Fire of Space. The creativeness of the symbol of Fire brings the confirmation of Infinity.

A tense spirit and new possibilitiesINF II, 227

Gathering cosmic energies, the Cosmic Magnet develops the creativity of the Fire. Each energy attracts its own currents. Thus, a lack of coordination between spirit and matter brings on a striving for transformation. In this transformation is comprised the entire cosmic reality. Therefore, when a spirit is tensed in a true quest he attracts new possibilities. Thus, limitless is the creativeness of Cosmos.

The Epoch of Fire and the Banner of PeaceHIER, 377

The transformation of the world is indeed affirmed in the highest tension. All perturbations, all shiftings, all diseases accompany this transformation. The most powerfully propelled energies bring fires into motion. Thus, in the Epoch of Fire darkness becomes dense, and everything is intensified in a fiery striving. Evil is created by the densified darkness. Light transforms the world. Thus, at the great time, the manifestation of the universal transmutation saturates space.

Thus, during the Epoch of Fire, when Light battles with darkness, the manifestation of the Banner of Peace is that fundamental sign which will give a new step to humanity. Thus Beauty, Knowledge, Art, and all nations will unite under this sign. Thus, only the highest measures can be applied to the Banner. Verily!

Joy over egoismFW I, 607

Also, let us rejoice at such a path. Let the thought about transformation of the heart be a source of joy. Many sorrows and difficulties come from egoism. Many horrors arise from egoism. Many obstacles originate in egoism. One should cease to think about limitations. Since the fiery seed is bestowed, one should rejoice that we carry so great a pearl because of the trust of Hierarchy itself.

The transformation from birthFW III, 499

Spirituality is both an earned and natural quality. On the middle steps it can be cultivated, but it is necessary to begin such transformation from birth. One must provide a pure atmosphere, not darken the imagination with base views, learn to rejoice at the truly highest and beautiful.

Primal Energy and transformationSUP, 2

We long ago accepted the principle that each apparatus can be made more powerful by man himself. One can achieve a transformation of one’s entire life simply by the realization of the Primary Energy.… When Urusvati performed levitation or the moving of objects, it was done not through magic but simply by not impeding the energy. The manifested energy was accepted and then projected. It was united with the cosmic energy, and thus could act.

Unification through cultureSUP, 373

Urusvati knows that culture is the common heritage of all humanity. Despite differences in customs, creeds, and languages, every act of culture is the possession of all mankind. The unification of the world through culture is the first step toward the transformation of all life.

Perceptions and free willSUP, 401

Urusvati knows that four things must be experienced for the transformation of earthly life: the perception of the past, the perception of the far-off worlds, the perception of the Subtle World, and the perception of Hierarchy. But can man grasp these four foundations? Every thinking person will agree that these fundamentals are not difficult to understand. They are inherent in the foundation of one's concept of life, and as soon as they are absorbed, the most ordinary life will be transformed into a beautiful reality. But in order to acquire these realizations one must cultivate one's will, for only a free will can make real those concepts that are dead for many.

The Guiding ForcesSUP, 414

Many of today's psychological notions are inapplicable to life, and in the present state of the planet man cannot waste time with such theories. We must agree that everything that does not lead to the transformation of life should be regarded as useless, and in this there must be no difference of opinion. One can move forward or backward, but to go back among forgotten fossils would be unendurable.

There should be no difference of opinion between you and the Guiding Forces…. Think about Our Towers. It would be unwise not to collaborate in the purification of psychic energy.

The Thinker was horrified when He noticed that people overburden themselves with negation. He said, "It is better to load oneself with a great rock than to deny Be-ness."

Blessings of transmutation and the joy of transformationSUP, 524

Urusvati knows that a disorganized crowd generates especially harmful emanations. A crowd impelled by one emotion is somewhat less discordant. When researchers are able to apply scientific methods to the study of the human aura, they will see what deadly processes are generated by discordant currents.…

Many indications are given that people should settle outside the cities, but all advice is ignored, and people poison themselves in their Babylon's. One can already see that events have taken a direction that was warned about long ago. Once begun, a process follows its own logic, and cannot be stopped. What is engendered must grow. The challenge is to see the blessing in a transmutation that others will see as the destruction of the New Atlantis. The joy of transformation can create better forms of society, but are many ready for this joy?

The Thinker pointed out that the best joys are unknown to people.

Tense transformation and self-denialLHR I, 24 June 1930

I fear that my directions may be disliked by some, and I have reasons for thinking this. But, as it is said, "The Teaching is not soothing syrup, neither is it silver jackstraws. It is a severe crucifying of self and a tense transformation of one's lower nature through the finest fires. Soothing syrup perhaps may be appropriate on the first step, but the Teaching requires the severe and beautiful flowers of self-denial. Those who prefer soothing syrup had better not touch the fiery food prepared for those who choose self-denial."

The chosen Image and the guided spiritLHR I, 29 August 1934

I shall quote to you a page which I have just sent to one of my correspondents:

"It is much easier for people to give up certain excesses and to perform mechanically a pranayama than to restrain a single habit which is a stumbling block on the path of spiritual progress.… Therefore, one must clearly remember that all the Great Teachers care for and deal only with the inner man, whose sphere lies in the realm of thought…. Everything is performed in the name of the chosen Image. Every moment he feels in his heart love and the presence of this Image. The prayer of the disciple is precisely this continuous striving of the heart and the presence of the chosen Image. When such a presence is established, when the guided spirit has become firmly fixed upon his chosen Image so that there can be no turning back, then the true readiness is manifested and the Teacher will not delay."

Transmutation lies in the heartINF I, 349

One of the most powerful magnets is the magnet of the spirit. A most powerful force, which transmutes various energies, is the magnet of the heart. All currents are transmuted by this magnet. Man is attracted to this magnet; therefore, the power of his transmutation lies in the heart. The sun seen in the region of the solar plexus is that powerful magnet. Its location is certainly in the heart, and its reflection is great. It is a most powerful force! Its rays penetrate all strongholds and can be manifested as a most radiant magnetic force. Hence, the sun of the heart is the force which determines the

This volume is not made up of my own words.There is no original commentary
here, no narrative, no analysis.This is simply me copying and pasting large chunks of text from my bookmarks—pages that were easy to extract, with no hyperlinks or formatting issues, saved from open tabs and archived corners of the web.
It's messy. It's unfiltered. It's chaotic.But it's valuable.
Each piece inside this volume was bookmarked for a reason.Not always because I agreed with it, but because it felt like a fragment of something larger—an insight, a worldview, a download.This is source material, plain and raw.
Fragmenta Ex Machina isn't about authorship.It's about preservation and system-building.It's about feeding the machine—laying bricks for the Operating System I'm constructing across these books.This is the raw intake phase. The memory dump. The zero layer.
Later volumes will be cleaner, more refined, more structured.But this? This is the foundation. The ether stream, bound and frozen before it vanished.
So if you're looking for polished prose, skip this one.But if you're here to explore the roots of something much bigger, this is where the signal begins.
Welcome to the fragments.

balance. In ancient times this truth was as well known as the laws of attraction. Therefore, We value the centers which glow as the sun.

The luminaries rise as banners!

Transmutation is only granted when the spirit has conquered selfhoodINF II, 121

The achievement of the spirit is great when the fires are being transmuted. The law of transmutation draws in its wake every striving. As an eternal teacher, the spirit strains all possibilities. The fiery transmutation not only affirms the subjection of the lower to the higher but also draws the highest striving from the substance of the spirit. Therefore, when the spirit verily decides to renounce its encumbrances it opens the way to transmutation. Therefore, the disciples must remember that transmutation is granted only when the spirit has conquered selfhood. Selfhood is the progenitor of all grayish encumbrances. Hence, when the manifestation of egotism thus obscures the spirit, it can be stated that the fire of transmutation cannot contact it. Thus, let everyone remember!

All possibilities for attaining the higher spheresFW III, 86

Fiery Baptism impels the spirit into the spheres which conform to the spirit's requirements. The passing of a man through a fiery transmutation gives him all possibilities for attaining the higher spheres. There where all is intensified by a fiery element, one must be saturated for the assimilation of the higher fire. Thus, one should solemnly accept all steps of the Fiery Baptism. Each step will reveal an opening of the new, supermundane sphere. The Karma of a people may also lead it through a fiery transmutation, manifesting its destined advance. All who follow the Lords are strained in this great passage.

The fiery process transfuses psychic energy from body to bodyFW III, 355

Bodies are transmuted each according to its essential nature. Just as the physical body transmutes and refines blood to an evolutionary extent, so does the subtle body transmute its corresponding essence. The bond between these processes is especially important to observe, because in the process of transmutation of bodies there is attained a correlation which so fierily cooperates with space. While at the beginning of the process of transmutation the physical body strains the centers of the subtle body, after saturation of the centers by fire the subtle body holds power over the physical. This fiery process transfuses psychic energy from body to body. The power of the subtle body represents a panacea on the physical plane. Indeed, the feeling of transmutation differs on the physical and subtle planes, because the sensations depend upon the tension of the spheres. The purification of matter and spirit likewise takes place only through the fiery energies and centers, strained in spatial atonement. The Fiery World is thus accessible to the consciousness which knows the bond with spatial Fire.

Psychic energy intensifies centers during their transmutation. A state of tension in one center naturally diminishes the influx of psychic energy to the other centers, hence a feeling of imbalance. But after each transmutation the influx of psychic energy is stronger. The manifestation of psychic energy takes on a special quality after transmutation. The contact with Cosmic Fires has a powerful reaction, and psychic energy is then subjected to a greater tension. This permits the spirit to make use of psychic energy consciously during sendings. Thus, tension of the centers is revealed as a great transmutation of psychic energy.

Crystals of psychic energy affirm the power of transmutationFW III, 406

Saturation of the centers by higher Fire intensifies psychic energy. When the Fire of the centers is raging, psychic energy is also found to be in a state of highest tension. Balancing these fiery forces after transmutation results in a new kindling of the centers. The process of compressing psychic energy proceeds in conformity with the transmutation. The centers collect within themselves crystals of psychic energy which affirm the power of the transmutation. The Agni Yogi manifests a powerful straining of energy, which creates in conformity with manifested spatial Fire. The treasure of psychic energy can create a powerful panacea. The consciousness which assists the striving of the spirit toward transmutation of the centers performs a fiery action.

Community of spirit is highest transmutationAUM, 167

Life requires no temptations. Life can be transmuted under any and all conditions. Community of spirit is highest transmutation of life. Many of the ignorant do not wish to understand that community of spirit does not depend upon external form. It is created there where the concept of the broadening of consciousness is alive.

Transmutation and the wealth of CosmosINF I, 104

How luminous is the progress of an Agni Yogi, whose Chalice is filled with thoughts of Us! Transmutation of spiritual manifestations is granted to the one who carries the Chalice. We will direct creative threads toward transmutation of the very high. Great is the wealth of Cosmos. Great is Cosmos! Cosmos is in need of spirit-creativeness, and the psycho-creativeness of Cosmos is contained in the consciousness.

Conscious accumulation in the Chalice, together with the Arhat's consciousness, will afford life to the psychic forms. Yes, yes, yes!

The manifested spiral of the creativeness of an Arhat is without end.

Centers of man can be transformed into the most subtle energiesINF I, 108

Only the mainspring of transformation of darkness into light can strengthen the spirit. The transfiguration of the spirit is called the cosmic transfiguration. Cosmos, in its eternal activity of the Fire of Space, transforms the elements into corresponding forms. The spirit transforms the consciousness into a manifestation of all-containment.

It is true that the world of creation is inexhaustible, and there is no hiding place for the engenderments of the human spirit. The issue projected into the wheel of life brings its consequents. He is narrow-minded who thinks that man expiates his deeds by imagining their dissolution in space. As the properties of nature indicate an unending process, so does the spirit of man, who is following an identical path. It is difficult not to acknowledge the limitlessness of transformed energies!

Since the centers of man can be transformed into the most subtle energies of life-imparting fires, one may through each deed of life either attain the highest tensions or be cast into the lowest sphere. Like a whirlwind, transfiguration carries on toward Infinity.

Transmutation is inescapable and expressed in all cosmic manifestationsINF I, 268

The law of transmutation is inescapable and is expressed in all cosmic manifestations. When the fusion of elements creates its formulae, the tensity of transmutation is extremely powerful. In its spiritual and physical aspects life is highly intensive, both in the electing of the vital energies and in the inhaling of those already exhausted. The energies induced through transmutation create the life of the elements. The essence of the transmutation is evolved in relation to various cosmic energies. The records of transmutation assert the power of evolution, based upon the Fire of Space. The substance of the life impulse is affirmed as a transmutation of Fire.

We, Brothers of Humanity, assert that the Cosmic Magnet unites all energies. Where the Origins are ignored, destruction prevails. Where is the end and where the beginning? Upon this formula we can conclude: It is in the never-ending chain of harmony.

Karma and transmutation outline the evolution of the spiritINF II, 62

When in antiquity purgatory and fiery hell were spoken of, certainly transmutation and karma were meant. When the laws were established, their meaning was known. Exactitude of knowledge was expressed in manifestation by the Cosmic Magnet. The knowledge of karma was asserted by the luminaries. Purgatory was put in the place of karmic striving. Purgatory in its present understanding was inherited from the law of transmutation. The fiery hell followed as the law manifested by karma. Karma and transmutation are inseparable! One principle predetermines the other, and the tension of the one evokes the striving of the other. Creativeness of great attraction constructs all cosmic principles. Only striving directed to the manifestation of Fire can yield the formula of reality. Humanity in its heedlessness denies this reciprocal law. Verily, karma and transmutation outline the evolution of the spirit. Space resounds with these laws, and only the law of the Cosmic Magnet directs the striving toward evolution.

Karma and transmutation lead to consummationINF II, 63

Karma and transmutation constitute factors which are directed toward progress; they create the effect by the propulsion of karma and they set the direction through transmutation of spirit. When the striving creativeness attracts the spirit to the Cosmic Magnet, the fiery effect is inevitable. I affirm that the law of karma and transmutation leads to consummation. The seeking spirit, being permeated by fire, is attracted to the Cosmic Magnet. When We, Brothers of Humanity, speak about the Cosmic Magnet, We perceive therein all manifestations of the higher laws. Verily, all that is most beautiful and most pure is contained in this law. Therefore, when We said that the Cosmic Magnet brings into strain all manifestations that contain the whole beauty of Be-ness, We had in mind the saturated, the manifested Cosmic Magnet.

Transmutation is based on independent actionINF II, 151

Transmutation is based on independent action. The spirit which feels all cosmic tensions strives to assimilate the currents. The transmutation depends upon the striving of the spirit to attunement. Only cosmic tension can draw the spirit toward transmutation. Only the spirit who understands the power of attraction creates harmony. Therefore, when the tensed magnet of the spirit manifests independent action, the center of the Chalice fulfills its cosmic ordainment. Thus, a sensitive spirit responds to the resonances of the cosmic currents. Therefore, when the transmutation is strained into effect by independent action the center of the Chalice resounds. The creativeness of the spirit is based on the creativeness of Fire.

Treasure, or Our Treasures

The Treasure of the worldOEC, Legend of the Stone

Within it is a treasure—the Gift of Orion.

Let the mountain of pride conceal for a while the Stone. Let the city of the Stone be glorified. But the path of the treasure is ordained.

Priestly knowledge of all time prepared men for the worthy reception of the Treasure. Long since have wisdom's laws revealed the day when a dual eclipse and the submersion of the sanctities would mark the new advent of the Stone. Let us in prayer await our destiny! . . .

Uroil Zena, spirit of the air, bore to King Solomon the Stone. Proclaimed the Spirit into the receptive ear: "By the will of the Lord of Powers I entrust unto thee the treasure of the Lord of Powers. I entrust unto thee the treasure of the world.…"

The New Country shall go forth to meet the seven stars under the sign of three stars which sent the Stone to the world. Prepared is the treasure and the enemy shall not take the Shield covered with gold.

Legend about the Treasure of the WorldLHR II, 18 November 1935

I was very pleased to see your subtle understanding of the legend about the Treasure of the World. Of course, each sign has many meanings. This Treasure is a fragment of the main body, guarded in the Stronghold of Light. The sending of this gift has signified, from immemorial times, an approaching era of predestined unification and power in the country where it appears. All the great unifiers and founders of nations have possessed it. The East especially is full of legends about this gift of Orion, and the peoples of Asia seek it everywhere.… The legend recorded in On Eastern Crossroads is the truth. According to the legend, this Treasure brings with it a special Covenant which must be fulfilled. The casket mentioned in the legend belongs to the thirteenth century, and was said to have been made from leather which had been in the possession of Solomon himself. Many alchemic symbols are inscribed upon the leather.… The legend states that after a new power is established, the Treasure will return to the Stronghold of Light.

Treasure of sunlightLMG II, 356

Man . . . absorbs the power of the light by means of photoplasm. The different plasms are intermediaries between the visible and the invisible. Photoplasm, being an emanation of the nervous system, forms a rainbow pollen which absorbs rays of light and conveys them into the nerve channels.…

One may see how the pollen of photoplasm effervesces, and how by tiny whirls it carries the received treasure into the pores of the skin.…

The sun's rays must be appreciated as a world treasure.

The scientist will easily analyze the flow of rays from the other luminaries.

Why should people shun the treasures of the universe ordained for them?

Concept of Shambhala as a sacred treasureSUP, 69

Also, many do not understand why some seemingly ignorant lamas can be guardians of Our Brotherhood. One must recognize that these lamas are exceptional; they have preserved the concept of Shambhala as a sacred treasure.

Treasure of the World ChaliceHIER, 267

When the chalice of world events is being filled, then the fiery Chalice of an Agni Yogi is aflame. The law of correspondences acts powerfully. In these consonances the unity of the worlds is contained. Therefore, when the fiery law shifts the old affirmations, the sensitive centers resound with the world's reverberations.…

Therefore, the Mother of Agni Yoga feels intensely the brimming of the World Chalice. Hence, the fiery Treasure must be so greatly protected. When the time of the great fulfillment is close, then the world is in tremor; when the great shifting takes place, the subtle centers reverberate. Thus, the world will remember the great consonance, and Our annals will leave to the world the fiery signs. Thus the Covenants will be fulfilled. Yes, yes, yes!

Treasure of the ChaliceINF I, 105

Correct is your judgment about the forcible opening of the centers. We guard assiduously the predestined treasure. When the magnet of the spirit absorbs all fires into the Chalice, then We affirm the Arhat. The treasure of the Chalice consists of woven threads of pure fire. The Arhat, bearer of the fire of the Lotus, manifests spirit-realization, spirit-knowledge and spirit-manifestation. Thus close is the contemplation of the worlds to the spirit who has filled the Chalice of Amrita.

The Chalice of Offering is a great treasureFW II, 14

Verily, in the Great Service is the feeling of great responsibility. But one should become accustomed to this chalice, for there can be no shortest path without emptying it. The heart which aspires to Hierarchy feels how necessary and salutary is the Chalice of Offering. To some it is only the object of derision and condemnation, but to others it is a precious treasure. It is Our great desire that the true straight-knowledge be developed.

Treasure of the accumulations in the chaliceAUM, 153

Each man bears a secret within himself.… Only by transcending the boundary of Earth is man enlightened in the realization of a portion of his secret. Remarkable is the process when subtle energy reveals the Chalice of accumulations; the memory is suddenly illumined, and the past stands out in all justice. Amazing is the extent of man's transformation at the moment when he leaves the earthly sphere. People call this death, but it is really birth; therefore, how pitiful it is when the subtle body sojourns long in sleep. Especially noteworthy is the transition wherein consciousness is preserved. Then it can be clearly imagined how the earthly tatters fall off and the imperishable accumulation emerges, revealing itself to be a true treasure. It can be understood why this most subtle treasure cannot be revealed amid crude conditions.

Universal treasure of Fire withinFW I, 7

Just think! Each of us carries within himself the One Fire, immutable throughout the entire Universe. No one cares to imagine that the universal treasure is within him.… But the fire of the heart alone unites through its magnet all world structures. One must think about this pre-eminence. It is necessary to utilize this treasure in the entire structure of life. There is but one Light of Fire in all the world. We can understand that Fire manifests at the most remote distances. There is nothing supernatural or mysterious about it. Even a lesser disciple has heard about the all-pervading Fire, but he has failed to realize its application.

Treasure of psychic energyAUM, 536

In hot weather people on Earth move to the mountains. Similarly, man can ascend the heights and make this ascent with extreme joy. Refined psychic energy helps to familiarize him with the new surroundings. It also attracts the best Guides. It is called Magnet, Bridge, Gates, and Treasure, by all the best names, in order that man may be impressed with his own true treasure.

Treasure of assimilationSUP, 863

Synthesis can be developed only through assimilation. What is assimilation? With the expansion of consciousness must come the absorption of what has been learned. It becomes, as it were, one's own. With such a treasure the traveler enters radiant into the Supermundane World, for his inner light has been increased.

Love is the true treasureAY, 424

The measure of understanding is the degree of love. One can memorize lines word by word, yet one remains dead if the knowledge has not been warmed by love.

Truly, when one learns to discern the emanations of feeling in others, one will perceive that precisely love above all attracts the Fire of Space. He who said, "Love one another," was a true Yogi. Therefore We welcome each outburst of love and self-sacrifice. Just as a lever sets the wheels in motion, so does love inspire powerful responses. Compared with the radiance of love, hatred is only a hideous blot. For love is the true reality and treasure.

The treasure of the heartHIER, 106

What is the treasure of the heart? Not only benevolence, not only compassion, not only devotion to the Hierarchy but consonance with the Cosmic Consciousness when the heart, besides its own rhythm, even partakes in the cosmic rhythm. Such a heart can be trusted; it possesses straight-knowledge, it feels and knows, and as a manifested link with the Higher World it expresses the indisputable. The manifestation of the treasure of the heart is also very important for the formation of the subtle body. Try to imagine how important is the experiment with the subtle body. The densifying of the subtle body can give that of which the Teaching of Shambhala so sacredly speaks.

Treasure of free willBRO, 570

Before reaching the far-off paths, it is essential to give him the precious gift of free will.… But the wise one will realize what a responsibility he bears for the use of the treasure of free will. It is as if a purse full of gold were given him; it can be spent at his discretion, but an account would have to be rendered. And the Brotherhood teaches not to spend the entrusted treasure without usefulness.

Treasure of the Ashrams on EarthFW I, 664

If we look on our planet from above, we will observe, besides the evident volcanoes, particular vortices of light and darkness. The human spirit can create powerful manifestations of energy. One may state that the vortices of Light are saviors of the equilibrium of the planet. Nor is it far from the truth to state that the vortices of darkness contain a destructive gas, which is not only deadly to the crust of the planet but can alter the climate and even significantly effect a shifting of the poles. Thus powerful is the significance of the human spirit. Hence We treasure the Ashrams where purified Agni is gathered. Many teachings have pointed out the importance of pure places where psychic energy can be affirmed. References to the importance of pure places are found in the Sacred Writings, in the Bible, and in the Rig-Veda; the Tao likewise contains knowledge of these treasure-places of Earth. We rejoice when We notice the rise of new Ashrams, for people so seldom think of the power of their spirits!

Treasure every Indication of the TeacherLHR I, 17 December 1930

I would like so much to teach you to treasure every Indication, every hint of the Teacher and Guru, as they are so precious!

Imparting Our treasures to the spirits closest to usINF I, 72

The books of Agni Yoga are a gift to humanity. I affirm the gift of the spirit; the approach of Fire will give to mankind a newly inscribed line, leading to the highest manifestations. We consider as most important and valuable the high manifestation of spirit which is linked with the appearance of the fires. We respect a high straight-knowledge and can impart Our treasures to the spirits closest to Us.

Truth

Search for TruthLMG I, 30

Seek happiness and exalt the spirit.

Faith in self and the search for truth create harmony.

Calm found in TruthLMG I, 156

Calm is found in the light of Truth. The mountain before you is not a test, but a task.

Eternal Truth of BeingLMG I, 317

O Lord, give strength to my heart and power to my arm. Because I am Thy servant. In Thy Rays I shall learn the eternal Truth of Being. In Thy Voice I shall listen to the harmony of the World. My heart I give to Thee, O Lord. Sacrifice it for the sake of the World. Know you the truth, the great truth of the everlasting bonds between Father and Son and between the son and his son. The fruit and flowers of my Garden are given to all, and you must be the Keepers of My Garden. At My Gates I shall place you and in My Name you will proclaim. My Word be with you.

BeautyNEC, 27

Pure thought saturated with beauty points out the path to truth.

Truth and new possibilitiesAY, 122

Images of Truth provide to each body, whether it be evolving or disintegrating, new possibilities for flight to higher spheres. Each Teacher of life bases His power only upon images of Truth, and creates the future by His thought, not by the consciousness of the crowd.

The ashes of past fires may dim the vision, but the fires of new images of Truth glow in the Infinite.

Path of perfect truthAY, 156

The one who realizes the true Yoga of Life knows that the lightning of truth can strike down, but can also resurrect.

When We speak of the need for honesty, We do not have in mind unworthy people. We point out the direct path of perfect truth, devoid of any personal element. This opportunity can be perceived through straight-knowledge. The experience accumulated in the center of the Chalice gives invincible knowledge. The center of the Chalice is close to the blood reservoir, for blood is the wherewithal for our passage on Earth.

Thus, the truth is not an abstraction; it is the realization of cosmic laws based upon direct experience. Therefore, though an honest accountant can make an error in his figures without becoming dishonest, an accurate but hypocritical person will not gain the power of spiritual effectiveness.

It is right to consider initiations, meditation, and concentration superfluous practices; these concepts must be expressed in one’s actions. All artificial magic must be left behind.

Duty of a Yogi to purify TruthAY, 178

The same unalterable Truth is given to humanity repeatedly, but clothed in various garments. Invariably, it is distorted in less than a century by confused minds. Therefore, it is the duty of a yogi to purify Truth. When the newly cleaned face of Truth smiles upon the devoted searcher, then joy can speed to the far-off worlds. Space proclaims that the purpose of life has been clarified. And the countenances of the Bearers of Truth are smiling ones. Rare is such a smile, but Yoga can evoke it. Therefore, the path of the Yoga of Life illumines life.

Agni Yogi is a supporter of TruthAY, 219

What can one call an Agni Yogi? Certainly, a supporter of Truth. The perceiving of Truth is as natural to the Yogi as light is to fire. The growth of sensitivity in a yogi cannot be described; it sharpens the five known senses, and also the seven senses related to the astral body, which can only rarely reverberate within the earthly shell, like a resonator. Thus, one should pay great attention to the feelings of an Agni Yogi. From them comes Truth, like light from a flame.

Truth and unending Be-nessINF I, 66

An unlimited harmonizing process goes on in Cosmos. He who seeks Truth will discover the beauty of unending Be-ness.

Ascend to know TruthINF I, 201

The higher consciousness knows the Truth and We are ready to proclaim this Truth to humanity; but for this, humanity must ascend the higher step. Yes, yes, yes!

Carrier of subtle energiesINF I, 287

Only the carrier of the subtle energies can assimilate the highest Truth. Therefore We, Brothers of Humanity, can impart the Truth to him who assimilates the essence of Be-ness. Therefore We, Brothers of Humanity, transmit a part of the Truth to Urusvati. When I say a part of the great Truth, I indeed mean that part which can be assimilated upon this planet.

Those striving to TruthINF II, 238

The spirit imbued by fiery striving manifests a drawing power for all vital impulses. As each energy reaches its identical element, so also the spirit of the higher Agni Yogi reaches the hearts of those striving to Truth. Thus, each energy of the heart molds people. The lever of the heart sets all the strained strivings. This is why people are attracted to the fiery heart of an Agni Yogi. Thus, the power of the heart affirms the manifested striving of an Agni Yogi. The creativeness of the heart can bring the pledge of Light. I so affirm!

In the name of TruthINF II, 482

Only in the name of Truth should the very combative impulses be heightened. Only in the name of Truth can the most saturated fires be heightened. Certainly, each energy issuing from the cognizance of the Great Cosmic Plan attracts cosmic fires. Each conscious thought is attracted into the orbit of the Cosmic Plan. Therefore, every effort in the name of Truth will be crowned with victory. Thus is Infinity built.

Ruler of Shambhala breathes and affirms of TruthHIER, 5

For some, Shambhala is the Truth. For others, Shambhala is a utopia. For some the Ruler of Shambhala is a venerable sage. For others, the Ruler of Shambhala is the manifestation of riches. For some, the Ruler of Shambhala is a bedecked idol. For others, the Ruler of Shambhala is the Ruler of all Planetary Spirits. But We shall say, The Ruler of Shambhala is the fiery Impeller of Life and of the Fire of the Mother of the World. His Breath is ablaze with flame and His Heart is aglow with the fire of the Silvery Lotus.

The Ruler of Shambhala lives and breathes in the Heart of the Sun. The Ruler of Shambhala is the Invoker and the Invoked. The Ruler of Shambhala is the Sender of the Arrow and the Receiver of all arrows. The Ruler of Shambhala breathes the Truth and affirms the Truth. The Ruler of Shambhala is invincible, turning destruction into construction. The Ruler of Shambhala is the Crest of the Banner and the Summit of Life. Accept the Ruler of Shambhala as the manifestation of life; thrice I say—of life! For Shambhala is the guaranty of human aspirations. Our manifestation is guaranty of the perfecting of humanity. Our manifestation is the affirmed path to the Infinite.

In the name of Truth, We createHIER, 353

Verily, the sacred concept of an Arhat has been distorted. It is violated, being bereft of beauty. How dimly the understanding of the Teacher of General Good burns in the consciousness of the world! But Truth lives, and in the name of Truth We create. Therefore, for the transformation of life one should accept Hierarchy as the beauty of Truth. Thus the subtle heart creates for cosmic evolution. Thus, one should realize the significance of the focus within the heart; thus, the great process of the subtle heart must be understood through the heart.

Truth is faithFW I, 433

Faith is the realization of Truth, tempered in the fire of the heart. The Teaching is infinite, otherwise the very concept of Infinity would not exist. One should strive toward Truth. Truth does not reject—it directs. In the Teaching there can be no distorted concepts. Regard the path of the Teaching as the affirmation of that which is beyond doubt. One should not approach Truth along a meandering path. One must proceed by testing each word, each statement, and each covenant. If the Teaching is a true one, each step to it will be enlightening and broadening. Disparagement, denial, abasement are poor guides! More than once you will hear from a speaker the conceited remark that the only correct Teaching is the one known to him. It is then good to remind the conceited one about the grandeur of Infinity, of the millions of years of life on Earth, of the billions of worlds—let him meditate upon the vastness of Truth and the soundness of its fitting recognition.

Word of Truth is repeatedFW I, 665

It is not surprising that the word of Truth is constantly repeated through the course of the ages. How can Truth be forgotten, though times may vary! One can rejoice at every mention of Truth, for that which we love we speak about, in words and in the heart.

Repeat the basic truthsSUP, 689

Urusvati knows how often the most basic truths must be repeated so that they will penetrate the human consciousness. Clairvoyance and clairaudience are not acquired by earthly ways, yet people demand some kind of system that can be derived from their usual daily routine. One instruction can be given: observe clearly and closely, observe vigilantly each sign of subtle sensations.…

Truth is in the heart, knowledge is in the heart, revelation is in the heart. It is said that the Yoga of Love is the shortest path. Truly, it can be called the Yoga of the Heart.

Find in your heart the truth and the one LightFW II, 251

Prayer of the heart is not magic. Aspiration of the spirit towards Light is not magic. One must guard against all forms of ignorance, for it is a source of falsehood, and falsehood is the entrance-way to darkness. Be able to find in your heart the truth of turning to the one Light. Terror fills the world. Do not follow the pathway of terror. One may be fortified by examples of former times. The saints themselves were in contact with the Fiery World through the heart; the same heart which has been given to everyone. Ability to hear the voice of the heart already leads to truth.

Truth is manifested in InfinityFW III, 184

Long ago was it enjoined, “Seek and ye shall find.” In this evolutionary and incessant turn of the spiral, man will find the Truth. The affirmation of Truth is purified of all distortions, because the rubbish and accumulated dust is transitory. But Truth is manifested in Infinity. And though human darkening be prolonged, yet from under the dark strata will be exhumed the affirmations of the Light. Thus, that which is ordained enters in awesome immensity.

Light of TruthBRO, 580

Light of Truth is the light of courage, the light of devotion—with these words begin the Statutes of Brotherhood.

Radiance of TruthSUP, 97

All growth comes with pain, with lightning, and in storm, and only a perfect consciousness can perceive the radiance of Truth. Every evolving thinker must transmit his understanding of Truth while on Earth. If he does not apply Truth in life, man is not worthy of being called a thinker. Thought is life, and life is moved by thought.

Defense of TruthSUP, 383

Urusvati knows that a true aspirant is ever ready to defend Truth. It is wrong to think that Truth needs no defense. That might be so in a cosmic sense, but from an earthly point of view Truth must be affirmed so that it not be distorted.

Forcing the TruthLHR I, 20 April 1935

Indeed, the Teaching is accessible, for in all times that part of Truth which humanity could assimilate was always given to the world. But it is quite impossible to force the truth upon anyone; each one must find it for himself. All that can be done is to point out the direction.

Understanding

Understanding the TeachingAY, 648

When you plant balu and rhododendron in the plains, when you plant apples on the mountains, can you expect immediate results? Likewise, in the mastering of psychic energy sufficient time must be allowed for transformation of the essential nature of the energy. A forced application of tension will not bring expected results. Often people expect results in one dimension, though they occur in a completely different one. Therefore, know the time needed for the growth of energy.

Certainly, one may deepen one's understanding of the Teaching of Agni Yoga in all directions. But this is accomplished only in accord with one's assimilation of what has been given.

Understanding by the law of HierarchyAY, 654

How can one come close to the Source? How will the higher understanding be affirmed? Only by the law of Hierarchy. The Guiding Hand is the Uplifting Hand. The Indicating Hand is the Hand revealing the path to the Highest Law. Thus, is created the great step of the law of Hierarchy. Truly!

Understanding the law of HierarchyHIER, 307

Therefore, humanity must understand the beauty of the higher laws. What, then, will indicate the path to creativeness, if not true understanding and veneration of the Hierarchy? What, then, will attract the spirit to the Highest, if not adherence to the law of Hierarchy? What, then, will direct the spirit toward the manifestation of Truth, if not understanding of Hierarchy? Therefore, for a higher understanding one must accept Hierarchy with one's heart and strive irresistibly to the highest law of Hierarchy.

Uplifting the spirit through understanding of HierarchyHIER, 55

The filling of the Chalice determines the quality of action. Each thought leading to the mighty understanding of Hierarchy uplifts the spirit. Therefore, as striving grows, the broadening of consciousness leads the spirit to the understanding of the Origins. Creativeness of the spirit can build a bridge to higher understanding only through the subtlest energies. Therefore, the accumulation in the Chalice gives the best possibilities and attainments. Man must strive to fill the Chalice and expand the consciousness. Thus, the subtlest energies are within reach of only the subtlest receptivity, and limitless striving opens the Gates to Beauty.

The understanding of the TeacherAY, 665

Subtlety of receptivity is necessary for an understanding of the Teacher. In the realization that the Teacher imbues the disciple's spirit with higher understanding is contained the entire progress of the disciple. The creativeness of the spirit can be impelled upward only when thought ascends. The link between the Teacher and disciple is forged by spiritual striving. Truly, who will uplift the spirit of the disciple if not his Teacher? Only the Higher can uplift the lower. Without this understanding, it is impossible to advance. Thus, let us conclude by stressing the refinement of receptivity.

Reverence for the Teacher and understandingAY, 119

Each act of reverence for the Teacher shows an understanding of the Teaching. Each sign of reverence for the site of the Teacher's labor will show deep understanding and devotion. But these signs of attention cannot be prompted. These signs must by themselves flower in the consciousness. The Teacher will not demand, "Pay your respect to Me!"

Understanding real science and consciousnessSUP, 592

Urusvati knows that the darkest superstition in earthly life is the superstition of negators. They reject learning. They impose their will on science, and thus limit it. They act without reason, and the justifications for their actions are unfounded. They call themselves scientists, forgetting the true meaning of science. They call others fanatics, but they themselves stagnate in their own dogmatism. They insist that other worlds are not populated, but cannot prove it by their deductions. Science, when under the influence of dogma, enters upon a false way.

Such people refuse to acknowledge that true scientists contribute to the development of human consciousness. The science of energies is hated by the superstitious ones, for only by this path can people approach an understanding of the Supermundane. The superstitious ones fear the undeniable evidence provided by this science. They prefer to see space as empty, and continue to spew out their wholesale denials.

Urusvati knows that an integrated memory is the product of vast accumulations. First the person accumulates a great quantity of information, which later is consolidated when the consciousness has expanded and new knowledge is gained by perceiving events in their entirety. And then the shell of the unnecessary cracks and falls away, and the crystal of understanding of the perfection of humanity emerges.

This process of transformation of memory may sometimes feel like a loss of memory, but this is incorrect, for much information is transmuted into a new understanding. A person who is not firm in his consciousness must be shown how much more rapidly synthesis can lead to a wise all-embracingness. The greatest discoveries demonstrate the synthesizing abilities of the mind of the explorer. These experiences are justly called inspiration; that is, the accumulated mass of information falls away, and the arrow flies to its target. Such synthesis is particularly evident when contemplating the Supermundane. Therefore, let us always be ready to fly in thought to the most essential, which is the purpose of earthly existence. Let us learn to understand that superior to all earthly sciences is the pursuit of knowledge of the Supermundane.

Difference between those who understand and those who agreeFoundation of Buddhism, 143-144

Said the Blessed One, “Distinguish between those who understand and those who agree. He who understands the Teaching will not tarry in applying it to life, he who agrees will nod and extol the Teaching as remarkable wisdom, but will not apply this wisdom to life.

“There are many who have agreed, but they are like a withered forest, fruitless and without shade. Only decay awaits them.

“Those who understand are few, but like a sponge they absorb the precious knowledge and are ready to cleanse the horrors of the world with the precious liquid.

“He who has understood cannot help applying the Teaching, because realizing goal-fitness he accepts it as a solution of life.

“Do not waste much time with the agreeing ones. Let them first demonstrate the application of the first call.”

This is attributed to the Blessed One the goal-fitting attitude to newcomers.

Sensitivity to life and understandingLMG I, 361

I will teach you to apply your sensitivity to life;

Therefore, observe all happenings around you.

One must know how to distinguish between accidental signs and Our Indications.

New possibilities will grow in understanding what has been sent to you.

Thus, is the building erected—without losing the given stones.

Not hope but work directs the builders.

The purity of the tuning fork will overcome the disharmonious coarseness produced by human weakness.

Understanding adds a gem to possibilitiesLMG II, 15

Each moment of the spirit’s understanding adds a gem to the treasury of possibilities.

Understanding by the centers of the brainNEC, 150

Acceleration of mutual understanding is not determined by the words pronounced but by the extent to which the centers of the brain are stimulated. Here is a remarkable experiment: a speaker establishes a current of understanding and then suddenly changes the language, selecting a tongue unknown to his listener, and the phenomenon of understanding continues on. Indeed, you know and have perceived silent suggestion, when a spacial thought is communicated with lightning speed. It is interpreted in the tongue nearest to the listener, but the issuing language might have been completely different.

The experiment of transmission of thought is no longer unusual, but the quality of the sending and receiving is insufficiently investigated.… The stability of this current depends least of all upon tension of the brain-muscles. People would rather burst their blood-vessels with tension than manifest a new understanding.

You have long known a dissolving sound which acts not by tension but by quality. Understanding is similar to this sound. In antiquity it was said: “Open the gates of understanding, otherwise my lightning will reduce your lock to ashes.” Indeed, the lightning of thought—this primary creation of all being—pierces all locks.

Life fills with the highest understandingAY, 169

Just as Fire is the all-embracing principle, so does Agni Yoga permeate the whole of life. One can notice how one’s consciousness is gradually sharpened, how the real values of one’s surroundings become clear, how one’s understanding of the immutability of the cooperation of worlds grows. Thus, life fills with the signs of highest understanding. Truth as reality enters one’s daily life.

Understanding of psychic energyAY, 628

I have already said that mysteries and miracles are no longer relevant. In their place, an understanding of psychic energy must be affirmed in the consciousness. It is psychic energy that causes live-giving forces to be set into motion. Let us remember this.

Some obscure centers, as yet unknown to medicine, are revealing themselves as the source of power for our thoughts. Soon these levers will find their application and will merit chapters in books.

Understanding the Teaching to unfold the creativeness of the spiritINF I, 60

Each one must find the key to the Teaching in his heart. Understanding of the universal Teaching can unfold the creativeness of the spirit. The Image of the Teacher can provide an illumined path into the cosmic expanse.

Understanding and cultureHIER, 331

Without culture there can be no international agreement or mutual understanding. Without culture the people’s understanding cannot embrace all needs of evolution. Therefore, the Banner of Peace comprises all subtle concepts that will lead to the understanding of culture. Humanity does not understand how to manifest reverence for that which comprises immortality of spirit. The Banner of Peace will bring the understanding of this lofty significance. Humanity cannot flourish without the knowledge of the greatness of culture. The Banner of Peace will open the gates to a better future. When countries are on the way to destruction, then even those who are spiritually depleted must understand in what the ascent consists. Verily, salvation lies in culture. Thus, the Banner of Peace brings a better future.

Understanding the heartHEART, 265

Understanding of the highest law of the heart follows affirmation of the milestones of the future. The brain is the past, the heart is the future. Thus, more fires kindle around the heart. It should not be forgotten that besides the usual fires every epoch lights its own torches, and of course the Era of Fire gives rise to a special combination. A concentrated pure golden color and golden purple will be close to the forces of Fire.

Understanding and the wealth of TruthAUM, 233

There is solace in the understanding of the three worlds. Nothing else can appraise the wealth of Truth.

Highest understanding and loveLHR I, 15 January 1931

And so, after understanding and accepting with our heart the significance of the great liberating and crowning sacrifice, let us strive to develop in ourselves love, devotion, gratitude and obedience to Hierarchy. Let us be ready to take any burden, remembering that the heavier the burden the shorter will be our path. Truly speaking, from love and devotion issue all the other qualities which help our advancement. Thus, let us cultivate them as the most precious flowers; and, since these flowers of spirit grow and nurture each other, the greatest love will bring the greatest answer. Therefore, let us surround the Great Teacher with the fire of love. Let us guard our respect for Him. Let us evince the most careful, the highest understanding of the Teaching and the Indications, and sacredly, reverently, with the tremor of the heart, face the beauty and the majesty of his creativeness. Remember, those whose understanding is higher will ascend higher.

Union

Union is the basis of the Cosmic Magnet and lifeINF I, 139

Life is determined upon the principle of unity—union of spirit and matter, union of the Origins, union demonstrated by the entire Cosmos. Union is the basis of the Cosmic Magnet. And in the manifestation of dissolution, search only for the evidence of the law of perfection.

Show understanding toward the beauty of changes of existence. Strive toward union with the Cosmic Magnet!

The Universe is created by Cosmic UnionINF I, 71

The law of differentiation varies as much as do the forms of Be-ness; but the law of blending is one, and therein lies the entire cosmic beauty.

The differentiation draws the Origins into the furthest spheres.… But the unifying law is one.

The realization of search and the forward striving of the Origins strengthens the psycho-cosmic magnet, and the attraction grows during hundreds and thousands of years until the final union is reached. A great, great law! Thus is the Universe created by the beauty of Cosmic Union.

Cosmic union will direct creative forces in the New WorldINF I, 93

A concordance of actions is called a real union. Cosmic union will direct all creative forces in the future; this is the principle upon which the new manifested world will be founded.

Union with God within usLHR I, 1 February 1935

And so, the words of the Teaching which you quote: “There is no way without God,” are quite correct. For God is the Original Cause and the Spiritual Foundation of the whole of life; and if we deny this highest power which is in us, we verily commit blasphemy against the Holy Ghost. By losing the path and union with the Highest, the leading Element, we fall into the abyss of chaos and become cosmic refuse till the time of a new universal rebuilding.

Divine CommunionFW III, 63

Verily, Divine Force descends upon the Earth at large and is divinely directed upward in the individual human spirit. This Divine Communion is a manifestation of the union of Worlds, union of Spirit, union of Karma. Many communions can be discerned on the earthly plane. Many Divine Sparks have been scattered, but a Divine Communion is eternal. The source of Eternal Communion is spirit and actions, bound by the powerfully manifest Cosmic Law.

Karma and unionHIER, 25

The stream of karma rushes like a torrent, and consciousness may transform this tide into a repeated sacred union of beauty. But the way in which people understand the karmic stream is attested in human deeds. The evidence of the affirmation of karma and of union is attested by Us as the greatest Truth.

Union constructed upon the attraction of the spiritINF II, 73

Magnetization through the spirit expresses the decision of the Cosmic Will. Only the creativity of spirit can truly be called the creativity of Eternity. Thus, the creative seed of the spirit strains each striving cell. The spirit determines the chain of lives; thus, the cosmic union is so powerful. Hence, the affirmed union is constructed upon the attraction of the spirit. Yes, yes, yes! According to cosmic law the principle manifested by the spirit gathers those seeds which respond to the attraction of the Magnet.

The beauty of higher union and cosmic unionINF I, 83

Cosmic affinity predestines a merging for every atom. But the higher law, the sacred law, is not for many. On the far-off worlds, in the process of higher functions of refined organisms, this Sacrament is affirmed by the law of Cosmos.

The vibration of the seed of the spirit guides the affirmation—and, I shall add, unerringly. The beauty of union affords to thought the way. In the seed of the spirit lives the realization of beauty and knowledge. The nature of the higher union vouches for better worlds. The very best picture of earthly welfare is but a pale shadow in comparison with the joy of cosmic union.

Power of union for light or darknessLHR II, 24 August 1936

Certainly, every union is already a great power, but like everything else in the manifested world it has two sides, and if such union is not strengthened by fiery reverence for the Chain of Hierarchy, it may find itself on the side of darkness instead of that of Light. That is why the fiery reverence and devotion to Hierarchy are so persistently and repeatedly indicated.

Every cosmic union is achieved through the flame of the heart, including union with the TeacherHEART, 1

Therefore, on the path of the Hierarchy, on the path of the Great Service, on the path of Communion, synthesis is the one luminous path of the heart. How can seekers radiate the rays manifested if there is no flame affirmed in their hearts? It is precisely the quality of a magnet that lies latent in the heart. The loftiest creativity is pervaded with this great law. Thus, every consummation, every unification, every cosmic union is achieved through the flame of the heart. In what way can a foundation be laid for great steps? Truly, only by way of the heart. The arcs of consciousness merge in the flame of the heart.

So let us keep in mind the wondrous attraction of the magnet of the heart, which links all manifestations. Indeed, the silver thread that connects the Teacher with the disciple is the great magnet of the heart. The unification of the Teacher and disciple affirms the essence of all aspects of evolution.

Union with the consciousness of TeacherAY, 563

Independence of action is encouraged. But should one be criticized if sometimes the desire arises to reach out to the Teacher for advice and to merge one's aura with His? It was always said: "First the storm, then the thunder, then silence." In this absence of sound comes the so-called Voice of the Silence. But higher than this voice is communion. You know how the voice of the Teacher is transmitted; but there can be a coming together in consciousness, not using words but transporting one's consciousness instantaneously into the consciousness of the Teacher. One almost ceases to be aware of oneself; but the Chalice is filled to the brim with straight-knowledge. Such union surpasses words, for it nurtures one with straight-knowledge. Of course it is not easy to attain such a state; but with expansion of consciousness it comes by itself, if not hindered by ignorance. All forms of communion are made possible by such a consciousness.

The Teacher creates an unseen union with the accepted discipleLHR I, 21 July 1934

After accepting a disciple, the Teacher creates an unseen union with him and includes him in his consciousness. In other words, from that very moment the Teacher knows everything about the disciple. He can know every thought and feeling, even the most transient, and accordingly He can guide his disciple. As for the disciple, his life, from the moment of his acceptance, becomes entirely new. His dormant energies are awakened and their development and transmutation are accelerated. A veritable battery of unseen but powerful rays are directed toward him. These rays become more and more perceptible, in proportion to the striving and the growth of the disciple's consciousness and to the refinement of his organism. The object of this is to transform the inner self and to refine and separate the three bodies for independent work on their corresponding planes.

How union with the Teacher is createdLHR I, 27 January 1933

The disciples are quite right in their desire to give up all reading and concentrate only upon the books of the Teaching in order not to divide their thinking. For the serious student who wishes to become a disciple of the High Hierarch (and not to remain just among the listeners), such complete immersion in the first steps of devotion is most essential, and it should be continued until the complete realization is reached. Otherwise, how can a disciple create unity of consciousness with his Teacher? How else can he create the silver cord which unites him with his Teacher? As you already know, this union with the Teacher opens up all the possibilities. And this union is created by stubborn efforts and by the unfailing striving toward the One Focus. Similarly, a tender plant is fenced about so that nothing can harm its growth.

Establishing the sacred union with the Highest HierarchLHR I, 11 April 1934

I can only add that for the quickest self-perfecting and development of spirituality the most essential is a constant thought about the Highest Hierarch; this is the sacred concentration about which so much is written and which so often is misunderstood. Remembering the Luminous Image every moment of the day and night and doing all our work in His Name, we are gradually establishing the sacred union, which will finally give us the great power of Hiero-inspiration.

Union with the Guide and the Source of Light moves spirit upwardHIER, 180

Disunion from the Guide stops the evolution of the spirit, because the disruption of the chain leads to isolation and impedes the creativeness of the spirit. Verily, only union with the Source of Light moves the spirit onward. Thus, striving to the Highest Hierarchy gives all possibilities and saturates the spirit with the power of Service.

Necessity of fiery union for ascentFW I, 157

In every Teaching we find a symbol of this fiery ascent.… The time is coming and is already near when people will not know how to accept the fiery possibilities. In their confusion they will forget that fiery communion has been ordained. They will excel in counteracting, instead of being filled with, the power of Fire. Therefore I reiterate and remind about the necessity of fiery union.

How twin souls reach cosmic unionLHR I, 31 May 1935

Twin souls, if separated over centuries, do not recognize each other when they meet. Precisely, only those souls which have been united for thousands of years on the earthly plane by great spiritual and heartfelt feeling may reach cosmic union in the higher worlds. The unification of consciousnesses and hearts does not take place in one life, nor even in the course of several lives. Indeed, thousands of years are necessary, in order to accumulate the energies capable of uniting these inseparable bonds. The highest beauty cannot be so easily accessible!

Lawful, family union is a great science of the futureLHR I, 17 April 1934

Verily, many unions which are legalized by all human laws should be considered illegal. True lawful union is a great science of the future. This science will be based on the immutable cosmic laws. Much was said and is said about the affinity of souls. But who knows and understands this truth in all the grandeur of Cosmic Law? You remember that in the books of the Living Ethics it is said that people should be united according to the elements. Only parents who belong to the same element can give life to healthy and well-balanced children. “And in life we often see that fire is united with water, or air with earth. The degeneration of entire nations is the outcome of such mixtures.” The time will come when this truth will be understood in all its glory and people will apply it in life as the most essential. The forms of life and all functions of humanity must be rebuilt according to the laws of Cosmos.

Creating the unity of womanLMG II, 136

The manifestation of the Mother of the World will create the unity of women. The task now is to create a spiritually sovereign position for the woman. And the transmission to woman of direct communication with the Highest Forces is necessary as a psychological impetus. Of course, through the new religion will come the necessary respect.

Unity as the value of cooperationNEC, 4

Unity is pointed out in all beliefs as the sole bulwark of success. Better attainments can be affirmed if the unity of coworkers is assured. One may cite a great number of examples when mutual trust among the coworkers helped in lofty solutions. Let people, from home and hearth up to the spacial preordinations, remember about the value of cooperation. The seed of labor withers without the moisture of reciprocity. Let us not look backward too much. We hastening fellow-travelers shall become weary if we jostle each other. We shall realize a beautiful meaning if we can introduce the great concept—friend. Community may consist only of friends.

Unity is manifest through all SpaceINF I, 52

That which is created by the one, the universal, law of Cosmos is not sundered by the ordinance of cosmic energy. Unity is manifest through all Space, and this law is reflected in all manifestations of life. The multiple forms of Infinity reflect all cosmic fires. Man alone, separating himself from the infinite energy of the manifestation of Cosmos, is precisely eluding Truth. Does Cosmos ordain the annihilation of that which is held together by the one creative and life-imparting impulse?

Only in unity is strength.

This has been known since time immemorial, yet people have always transgressed this law. Precisely unity is needed in order to carry out a difficult task. If humanity were willing, it could work miracles through unified striving. But the small, sporadic efforts at saving the planet are very weak. Again, We are obliged to repeat about the necessity of unity.

Unity called a healing infusionSUP, 81

Urusvati is right in insisting upon unity. We call unity a healing infusion, a harmony of motion that cannot be summoned or created by coercion. Some people regard advice about unity as fetters. They prefer to evoke the destructive forces of the elements and be trampled, rather than make an effort toward cooperation. We shall not tire of showing compassion to the unwise ones preparing for their own destruction. But is it not clear what has been said? Does humanity learn only from bitter consequences?

Let Our Advice about motion and unity go forth. Our Abode rests upon these principles.

Unity in thoughtAY, 534

Most harmful of all are the so-called involuntary thoughts. Every conscious thought is to a certain degree organized, but the little vagabonds, without any sense, obstruct the ways.

When people are united in the acquiring of knowledge their thoughts gain a special significance. Unity in thought is stronger than any physical unity.

In unity lies the success of all worksHIER, 361

Verily, the cosmic Origins are wondrous in their might, and the creative law of Hierarchy imbues all with fire. Therefore, at the base of the entire Cosmos lies the law of the great unification of the highest fires. Hence all great designations should not be dissociated. And the foundation of the future, the radiant Hierarchy of Bliss, is indeed intensified in the assertion of great laws. Verily, it must be remembered that one can build only through Hierarchy. One may be in the orbit affirmed by Hierarchy only when the consciousness understands that a blow upon the Shield of the Name of the Hierarch is a blow at Us, and each one permitting a blow pays dearly. Thus, in unity lies the success of all works. The admittance of depreciation is an evidence of faint-heartedness and defection. Unity is a wondrous fire!

The Fiery World and unityFW I, 469

The beauty, light, and splendor, of the Fiery World are affirmed by each approach to it. Moreover, a special rapture is awakened by the feeling of unity. The fiery light leads to a mutual attraction, in other words to a true unity. The flesh, on the contrary, gives the impulse for each disunity. This property of the physical world impedes the embracing of the transport of unity upon this dusty and foggy surface. Therefore, one should direct one's thoughts the more to the Fiery World, in order to reinoculate oneself with the feeling of unity, already depleted. One should recharge, as it were, the magnet that has remained unused. The knowledge of how to utilize a magnet is necessary even in daily life. Likewise, the potency of Fire that has been left unused merges into the depths and becomes inaccessible. One must call it back by all the best recollections of it and by the worthiest imagination. Verily, for the fiery splendor a purified imagination is needed. One should understand that the dense forms cannot give any idea of the Fiery World. But an instantaneous illumination can remain forever as an ineffable feeling based upon unity.

Greatest division will give the impetus for unityFW I, 565

Often the divisibility of the heart has spurred the resourceful mind. Yet how can one divide that which is permeated with the one Fire? One can light many separate lamps from such Fire, but Fire itself cannot be divided. Thus, whole-hearted striving toward Hierarchy is undivided. I deem that many instabilities result from a lack of realization of the unity of Hierarchy. The time is coming when all the conditions of life will drive people to an understanding of the one Hierarchy. It has been wisely indicated that the greatest division will give the impetus for unity. Is not the present a time of the utmost disunity? Can humanity become still more divided? This is the dawn of the accomplishment of unity. The waning moon prepares for the coming of the new moon. Is not an infant upon it?

Unity of energy of all worldsFW II, 93

Humanity does not wish to realize the power of its own radiations. It dimly keeps on repeating about its likeness to God, but does not understand the unity of the energy of all worlds. The establishment of even a weak unification of energy can provide a defensive armor for the planet.

Dismemberment versus unityFW III, 124

The world suffers from a dismemberment which engulfs all the great beginnings. In place of unity, dismemberment is preached everywhere. There has remained not one principle which people do not distort at its core. Each beginning is affirmed first of all as a part of a great Whole. How could this matter fail to be treated in human searches? The invisible is isolated from the visible World. The Higher is isolated from the Earth. Only a striving for unity of concepts of magnitudes can establish the necessary link between the Worlds. Without saturation of the heart it is impossible to embrace all the Worlds, for how to affirm a cosmic bond without the acceptance of the unity of the whole Cosmos? In the small and the great let us manifest understanding of this Great Law. The dismemberment of Worlds leads to a state of savagery. On the path to the Fiery World let us remember about the unity of Worlds.

Knowledge teaches unityAUM, 255

In many countries, when people wish to express a steadfast affirmation, they solemnly pronounce the word Amen. The origin of many words can be traced to ancient sources. When we examine the meaning of the word Amen in Greek, Hebrew, Egyptian, and Sumerian, through many steps we arrive at the same affirmation of the triune symbol.

Thus, instead of disunity, knowledge teaches only unification. Only those evil by nature strive toward disparagement and disunity. Each follower of knowledge finds everywhere the golden path to the unity of Grandeur and Light.

Unity is a motive forceAUM, 433

To all it may be told how indispensable is unity. It has already been pointed out that unity is a real motive force. It has been said that unity is a magnet. It is a healer, health, it is rapid attainment. What is there still to be added?

If what has been said has no effect, it will be useless to say that unity is harmony with Hierarchy. If this indication is not adopted, a concept about Hierarchy can hardly be assimilated. But this will denote a house without a foundation. Each whirlwind will overthrow such a shaky structure. Whence will strength be drawn to withstand the first hurricane?

Unity as a motive force of the BrotherhoodBRO, 166

Once again let us affirm the distinction between cooperation and Brotherhood. I note a puzzlement about this, as if the two concepts were identical. But they are different steps. Cooperation is definitely expressed in outward action, but Brotherhood is conceived in the depths of the consciousness. Co-workers may differ in the degree of consciousness attained, whereas brothers will sense each other precisely according to consciousness. Brothers may not be working together outwardly, but Their thinking will be strongly knit together. They will be united freely; their unity will not be a burdensome yoke or a bondage. But precisely these brothers will understand unity as a powerful motive force for the good of the world. It is impossible to place limits upon such unity, for its basis will be love. Thus, cooperation will be a preparation for the realization of Brotherhood.

Harmony and unityBRO, 193

Do not think that enough has been said about unity and about creative harmony. On each page it is necessary to repeat about this very thing; in every letter unity and harmony should be mentioned. It must be kept in mind that every word about unity will be an antitoxin, destroying the spatial poison. Thus, let us reflect about the good of unity.

The need for unity and harmonySUP, 349

Urusvati knows how emphatically We insist upon the need for harmony and unity. We often speak about unification, but now We wish to point out a special aspect of this concept—harmony. Only unification will bring right results. It is true that any kind of unification will intensify energy. Even unity in evil can be effective, but it can never be harmonious, for evil by its very nature is disharmonious. Also, unity in evil cannot last, and its results will be vague. But goodness is always harmonious, and it alone can produce meaningful results. Thus, by speaking of harmony We affirm goodness.

Each quality has many aspects, but they cannot all be revealed at once for they would not be understood. We first indicated unification in a general sense, and now it is time to point out the specific conditions that are required for the achievement of complete unity.

Earthly unity is not simpleBRO, 297

After the grandeur of Infinity is it possible to speak about simple earthly unity? Even if this is not asked, still many will think thus. But who, then, has said that earthly unity is something simple? In order to understand it realization of synthesis is needed first of all. But such generalization can come about only through realization of Infinity. Earthly unity is certainly not simple!

This word is uttered often, but rarely is it applied to action. Can many people get together in unity? No sooner does the principle of labor bring them together, then occasions for discord arise. It is impossible to explain what unity is if in the heart there is no conception of Great Service.

Each seed of spirit belongs to cosmic UnityLHR I, 24 February 1930

Great unity in Cosmos holds sway like a powerful law. Only those who accept this law may truly participate in the cosmic cooperation. The unity of essence in everything directs humanity toward creation. When the consciousness draws from the treasury of space, then the Cosmic Magnet exerts its influence. The manifested treasury contains the affirmation of energy saturated with unity. Therefore, each seed of spirit must feel similar unity. Each seed of spirit belongs to the cosmic unity, in which all cosmic creation is contained. Man deprives himself of this truth by adopting the way of isolation. The law of Unity is immutable in all its variety. Only by this law is it possible to construct because when the attraction creates, then in the power of action lies unity. All affirmed Be-ness is founded on unity. The administering law is so powerful that cosmic construction is upheld by this principle. In all its manifestations this law gathers its particles, unifying all which belong together. This great law is the Crown of Cosmos!

Therefore, practice unity. Preserve striving, and fulfill as well as possible the task of friendly cooperation.

Who, then, are they who do not esteem and love unity? They have never experienced the feeling of steadfastness which is always connected with unity. They do not know valor, which is indissoluble from unity. They have renounced advance, which is strong in unity. They have not absorbed the joy existing in unity. They have scorned the stronghold of unity. What, when, is left for them? Either to crumble under the hurricane, or to wither under the sun, or to rot in the moldiness of prejudices. Who, then, are those who disdain UNITY? [Emphasis added]

Unity in spirit and consciousnessLHR II, 10 September 1938

One can cooperate successfully while being in different cities and even in different countries. With every new scientific discovery and invention distances become of less and less consequence. And the only true unity, unity in spirit and consciousness becomes stronger and more powerfully asserted. Brotherhood can be realized only in unity of consciousnesses. The Teacher works for this unity of consciousness with the closest disciples, but physical unity is not taken into consideration. And even closely harmonized consciousnesses that are in comparatively close bodily proximity must part at times for the renewal of their forces and for new accumulations. Hence the instruction of Lord Buddha about the necessity of travels for the members of the community.

The beginning of the feminine awakeningLMG II, 138

Urusvati—it is time to say that this is the name We have given to the star which is irresistibly approaching the Earth. Since long ago it has been the symbol of the Mother of the World, and the Epoch of the Mother of the World must begin at the time of Her star's unprecedented approach to the Earth.

The Great Epoch is beginning, because the spirit understanding is linked with the Mother of the World. Even to those who know the date it is marvelous to behold the physical approach of the predestined. The approach of this very great Epoch is important; it will substantially change the life of the Earth.

A Great Epoch! I rejoice so much, seeing how the new rays are piercing the thickness of the Earth. Even though in the beginning they are hard to bear, yet their emanation induces new elements, so needed for the impetus. New rays are reaching the Earth for the first time since its formation.

Today is the beginning of the feminine awakening. A new wave has reached Earth today, and new hearths have become alight; for the substance of the rays penetrates deeply.

It is joyous to feel the approach of the New Epoch.

Coworkers and irreplaceabilityAY, 331

How to know which are the best co-workers? Only by their irreplaceability. It is right to value one who has become irreplaceable.

Only to Urusvati can I entrust the Teaching, without fear that it will be distorted or diminished. Only centuries-long experience provides the needed degree of devotion together with the understanding of the essence. I can entrust to Fu. the earthly deeds, because through him I can act.

I can provide to My disciples all that is needed, but I expect the development of experience. Affirm the work in practice, because the seven years' duration of the first period is coming to an end.

The word cult-ur, the cult of LightHIER, 173

Therefore there is no way by which one can escape responsibility. Even the smallest thought enters into the megaphone of space and attracts to itself the same kind of locust, causing the smoky atmosphere of the planet. Thought can purify by destroying the microbes of disintegration, but it can likewise attract unbridled elements. Not without reason do the dark ones use especially underdeveloped people for certain machinations. You often utter the word cult-ur; it means the cult of Light. I remind you of how great is the common responsibility before Light if each thought can either obscure or purify space. Thus let us remember.

UrFW I, (preamble)

Ur is the root of the Light of Fire. From time immemorial this Radiant Principle has attracted the hearts of many peoples. Thus, from the covenants of the past let us transport ourselves into future attainments.

Lunar glass and flightFW I, 70

Flights into the Subtle World may be difficult; even an experienced consciousness may meet obstacles. Today Urusvati experienced such a difficulty. An effort was needed in order to pierce chemical strata which are formed by astrochemical fusions. The days around full moon are not favorable for flights. The so-called lunar glass can impede, and very strong perseverance is required.

Aurora BorealisFW II, 424

The Lights of the Mother of the World resemble the pillars of the Aurora Borealis. Very rare is the phenomenon when the microcosm—man—can be compared to the Macrocosm. Ur. has seen such a manifestation. It responds to the pressure of world energy.

Urusvati knows the Tower of Chun, and remembers how the exterior of the Tower resembles a natural cliff. It is not difficult to prevent access to this Tower. A small landslide can conceal the structure from those below. A small dam can change a mountain stream into a lake, and in time of dire need the entire district can be immediately transformed. People may smile, thinking that organized expeditions could sooner or later penetrate into all the passes. But even before the physical transformation of the area, the power of thought would already have diverted the caravan! In addition, chemical effects can be utilized to prevent the approach of the curious. Thus do We guard the Brotherhood.

The vital substanceSUP, 28

Urusvati was surprised to see that flowers from the plains could survive on Our heights. It must not be thought that such acclimatization can take place quickly. Urusvati has met with her Tibetan Friend in Our flower garden. We also have many plants inside Our buildings. For many experiments it is necessary to use the vital substance of living flowers. We advise conversing with flowers more often, for these currents are very close to the Subtle World. I affirm that We apply Our Power to all that exists. Thus We have the organic unity on which I so often insist.

The Great Pilgrim and reincarnationSUP, 163

Urusvati knows that the best sayings of the Great Pilgrim and much of the most remarkable healing that He performed remained unrecorded. He not only spoke to the people and to His disciples, but also spoke privately to many others. Who, then, could have recorded these remarkable Teachings?

The Teacher did not speak about reincarnation to the people because in His country this truth would not have been understood. Even among the disciples very few could fully comprehend the Law of Reincarnation. Some sects knew about reincarnation, but the idea provoked strong arguments and the majority doubted, just as it doubts today.

Urusvati knows how to guard what has been entrusted to her. Such safeguarding elicits two extreme opinions—that the sacred can be entrusted only to specially tested people, or that the Supermundane Law, the Law of Nature, will find its own best way of dissemination. As usual, extremes are imperfect, and the truth lies in the middle.

Sister YogasSUP, 937

Urusvati reveres Karma Yoga. All yogas are related to each other; Agni Yoga and Karma Yoga can be regarded as sisters. Agni Yoga leads luminously into the Highest Realm. Karma Yoga ignites the sacred fire of labor.

Harmonies and earthly soundsSUP, 941

Urusvati loves the sounds of the Supermundane World. The supermundane harmonies are healing and inspiring, but they are often interrupted by the noise of battles, wailing, and the roaring of mad crowds. Much energy is required to transform these earthly moanings into harmonious sounds.

The Yogi and the Common GoodSUP, 951

Urusvati knows that the Yogi can be called a peacemaker. The Yogi radiates peace for the sake of the Common Good. The Yogi ends quarrels. The Yogi does not tire of talking about the Good.

Much patience is needed to overcome human conflicts. What is the source of this invincible patience? It grows from the realization of the Supermundane World. The Yogi knows how each earthly quarrel, each hatred, will resound in the Supermundane World. They increase amidst the subtle energies. Therefore man should not permit himself to sully the Supermundane World. The Yogi not only heals the surrounding space, he also can strike there where the infection has become incurable.

Gratitude is a valuable qualitySUP, 955

Urusvati knows that the Yogi can be called grateful. In the Supermundane World gratitude will always be a valuable quality. Because of his link with the Subtle World, the Yogi understands the significance of gratitude. It has already been said that gratitude is valuable to the one who feels it. At each action of good, the fire of the heart shines brightly and fills the emanations with healing.

In defense of cultureLHR I, 13 May 1931

The time is not far off when the representatives of the countries will publicly support the cultural projects on a large scale. Let all women and all the younger generation rise in defense of culture against all oppression and persecution; let them guard this life-giving flame with all their power. Nations cannot live without this creative fire. Destruction is inevitable where the Cult-Ur dies away. I want to believe that the powerful “Woman’s Unity” will make itself heard and will give a new healthy direction to the mind of youth, will show them the true values and will help them to find the joy of existence by enriching it with a new understanding of each life and each labor. Women—it is your turn to say something new!

Urusvati will manifestATNW, 16

Urusvati will manifest the coming together of Earth and Heaven. Urusvati will manifest the measure of beauty by a symphony of the spheres. Urusvati will manifest a Ray of Light penetrating the walls. Urusvati will manifest the flight of the arrows of spirit. Urusvati will manifest comprehension of the density of matter when her spirit wills it. Urusvati will expose the emptiness of thought not ignited by spirit, for Ours is the path of Earth to the Palace of Transformation. Who will not wish to accept these riches? …

Now a new understanding of the earthly path to Heaven is growing. The Temple be established only by the way of Earth. We will all heave a deep sigh when the weight of the Temple stones have been passed from the spirit to Earth. Urusvati feels. Urusvati knows. Urusvati will reveal. Urusvati appeared to kindle a miracle on Earth. Urusvati will weave a pure cover for Our Shield; so I say, “Do not obstruct Our Urusvati!”

Urusvati is comingATNW, 78

Urusvati, Urusvati, Urusvati, the thread is being wound invisibly. Taking into account occurrences of the World, the pollen of the flowers falls upon the open heart. The seeds are placed at the threshold of the house, and the thorns of roses detain travelers on the path. Urusvati is coming. We are waiting for Urusvati.

A first-time experimentATNW, 98

You need to know this news. Urusvati is conducting a tremendously important experiment. It is a new step—to hand the Wire of the Brotherhood to someone who lives in the midst of ordinary life. The guidance of the one Teacher is one thing, but confiding the Life of the Brotherhood is quite a different thing. The Wire opens a door to the Life of the Brotherhood. Our plain and hardworking Life may be disclosed only to one who can find the power of true fearlessness. This kind of experiment is being conducted by us for the first time.

Valerian and higher altitudesAY, 73

At the high altitudes, one should not take valerian —which has been recommended to you—with spices, and it is harmful to consume food in the same quantities as at lower levels. The mountains are important, as an element which leads one out of the lower earthly conditions. On the heights one feels that one has been freed from ordinary earthly demands. Certainly, if an altitude of eleven thousand feet has a significant effect upon the astral body, then each added thousand feet has an even greater effect upon the physical body. It would be an irreparable error to try to artificially reduce the conditions on mountains to fit our lower earthly habits. Remember and apply.

Valerian for organs of respirationAY, 172

The yogi must keep his organs of respiration pure. For this, hot milk, valerian, and mint are prescribed. The yogi must keep his stomach and his bowels pure; licorice and senna are prescribed for this. The yogi must keep his lungs pure, and for this he is given aloe, and also resins, prudently used. The yogi must keep pure the all-pervading soma, for which he must make use of musk. But purity also requires vitality of the glands.

Valerian for fatigueAY, 241

Can a yogi feel fatigue? Of course, he can; he can even become ill. But he will know that a new store of energy must then be gathered. He will know where energy was overspent and will, without losing equanimity, make use of valerian and musk.

It is a joy to know that our bodily apparatus can obtain the needed restorative energy. Fatigue from the past is happiness for the future. A new reinforcement of energy is always an advance over the past. This means that fatigue is our friend.

Valerian for fatigueAY, 323

Also, do not hesitate to stress that valerian can be a powerful protector when one is suffering from the fiery sickness. Think about psychic energy as simply as possible. Indeed, the finer energies are not manifested like thunder. They penetrate the remote layers of the atmosphere, and are manifested in especially subtle ways.

Valerian when agitatedHEART, 548

When agitated, it is better to eat very little. Valerian is good, and of course milk with soda is too. The heart should be eased. It is a mistake to turn to narcotics and alcohol. Of course, through the practice of Yoga agitation should be transformed into exaltation. When We see the causes, the effects, and the possibilities, the vast potential of healing by heart energy becomes clear. But since it is like a drop of some precious substance, let this energy not be squandered in unnecessary action.… The heart should be trained to acquire consciousness in every action. Look upon this as a law. It is intolerable that a human being should bend like a blade of grass beneath the turbid wave of Tamas. What could not be overcome yesterday must be consciously removed today. One must always watch oneself and welcome the most difficult tasks as a purifying cloak. A seeker should always act in this way, especially in the days of Armageddon.

Valerian kindles the firesFW I, 381

Among the minor narcotics beware especially of bromine. It is an extinguisher of the fires, yet is very often used in various compounds. Valerian, on the other hand, kindles the fires. Treatment with narcotics is like curing by use of snake venom. The Atlanteans used snake venom, but one can imagine of course how often such treatment was fatal. For public health, one must take care that foods should not be contaminated. Over-fermented cheese and other foodstuffs filled with the poison of decomposition must not be used. Fire requires pure fuel.

Valerian as a prophylacticFW I, 386

Among the prophylactics against cancer and other fiery ailments one may advise valerian. I often speak of this tonic and preventive remedy, but any prophylaxis must be systematic—every evening without fail, like the daily course of the sun.

The fiery nature of valerianFW II, 180

Do not confuse fatigue with intensity. These two states, notwithstanding their complete difference, can produce similar symptoms. But fatigue must be overcome by a change of work, whereas tension must be actually increased. It would be a mistake to allow oneself to dissipate tension. One must nourish this manifest fiery power as a precious gift. Each tension is a sharpening of consciousness. Each weariness is a dulling, but in either case let us not forget to take musk. Ur. has wisely established the combination of musk with soda and valerian. Certainly, the very speedy accumulation of musk by means of soda is useful, as it is also the continuation of the reaction to valerian. All three ingredients are of a fiery nature. Not without reason was soda called, in antiquity, ashes of divine Fire, and fields of soda deposits were called sites of Devas' encampments. Likewise, valerian is especially effective in combination with musk. While musk kindles Fire, valerian sustains it as a static condition. In fatigue, this fiery remedy is absorbed in order to renew the nerve centers; but in the striving of intensity there is need of prolonged combustion, in order to avoid explosions and shocks.

Valerian in wineFW III, 596

Not in temples only was valerian added to the wine, but many Greek wines knew this admixture. Thus, musk and valerian and soda can be combined.

Valerian as daily foodLHR I, 28 August 1931

Valerian remains in the category of “life-givers” and its significance is equivalent to the significance of the blood in the body. Occultly, valerian is considered as the blood of the vegetable kingdom. It should be taken continuously as daily food. It can be taken in the form of a tincture, made with alcohol, but definitely without mixing with such additions as ether. Dose: ten to forty-five drops. But best of all is the valerian tea made from infusing the valerian roots in water—once or twice daily.

Pollution by decomposition and valerianLHR I, 18 June 1935

And now regarding other matters. Do not be disappointed that the signs become rarer and not so prominent; rather consider the threatening Armageddon and the consequent poisoning of the entire atmosphere. Indeed, not only the terrestrial layers which directly surround us, but even the distant spheres of the Subtle World (to say nothing of those nearest to Earth) are polluted by decomposition. Precisely, all the subtle manifestations during such a period may very seriously affect the organism. The Forces of Light are acting in complete conformity with existing conditions and with the forces of our own organism. Moreover, after each victory there comes a period of silence, a sort of rest, in order that the organism may the better assimilate all that which has been received and prepare for further perceptions and refinements. All the symptoms described by you are very characteristic of the partial opening of the centers. Therefore, I suggest that you be extremely careful with your health. First of all, do not overwork, and avoid colds. Then I suggest that you take bicarbonate of soda twice daily. Do not forget that there is no better remedy for pains in the lower part of the chest than bicarbonate of soda. And, in general bicarbonate of soda is a most healthful preparation. It is preventative against all sorts of diseases, including cancer. But you must make it a rule to take it daily and regularly. Especially does it help to relieve the pains and the movements in the solar plexus. Likewise, for sore and burning throats hot milk (but not boiled) with soda is most helpful. The usual dose is one coffee spoonful to a glass. You should recommend soda to everyone. Also, take care that the stomach is not overloaded and that the bowels are kept free. Twice daily take valerian tea or valerian tincture thirty to forty drops of the latter). Bicarbonate of soda is absolutely necessary during a conflagration of the centers. It discharges the fiery energies and prevents consuming fire.

Valerian in Ayurvedic medicineLHR II, 7 January 1937

As regards the accusation pertaining to valerian and musk—these remedies are used in Ayur-vedic medicine. And it is a revelation to me that Ayur-vedic medicine pertains to the Fourth Race! Once again, one may say-Learn more!

Valerian acts differently on different peopleLHR II, 23 April 1938

True, musk acts differently upon people. It is said that from the best curative remedy some people draw its highest qualities, whereas others get only the very lowest. All is individual. There are people who cannot stand either musk or valerian. Of course, musk primarily increases the psychic energy and thus raises the vitality of the entire organism. Psychic energy, as the primary energy, is the very elixir of life.

Veils

Veils will not prevent the preordainedFW III, 488

Likewise Our sacrificial offerings are not a chance occurrence but are as steps of the future. Indeed, unalterable are the dates of great knowledge. Learn to love creative conflict. Know how to put your ear to the Earth and to illumine your hearts in great expectancy. Let the ignorant desire evil, yet the dates weave the fabric of the World. Learn to discern. Learn to fly toward the ordained. Many are the garments and the veils, but the meaning is one. The pre-ordained year draws near.

Darkness veils the horizon before the dawnINF II, 177

Under the pressure of the Cosmic Magnet, all nations now show stress. With the approach of catastrophe people sense the force of the shifting. It is a very serious time; events are being generated. Thus, the tension of the time can create a new step. It is a very difficult time. Darkness always veils the horizon before the dawn.

Only when a shadow veils the vision can the spirit seek the LightINF II, 139

Only in spheres where a shadow veils the vision can the spirit seek the Light. Only where the shadow stands behind its back can the spirit display its strength. Only where the shadow conceals the far-off worlds can the spirit reveal its power of discrimination. Therefore, the growth of the spirit is quickened through obstacles. Hence, Agni Yoga is given as the loftiest and most direct path. The knowledge of transmutation will reveal all possibilities. Therefore, when the fiery experiment is confirmed for humanity, its offerings will be unlimited.

The Mother of the World veils her faceLMG II, 220

I have already told you that the Mother of the World conceals Her Name. I have already shown you how the Mother of the World veils Her Face.…

Indeed it is time to point out that the one Mother of both Lords is not a symbol but a Great Manifestation of the Feminine Origin, in which is revealed the spiritual Mother of Christ and Buddha.

Discern the veils of MayaSUP, 73

Urusvati knows how to discern the veils of Maya. When We speak about veils, it is because there is something being veiled, and that is Primal Energy. Wise is the one who can perceive in different manifestations where the eternal, indestructible foundation lies. Without this discernment everything will be Maya, a baseless mirage. It is impossible to live among such phantoms. The very foundation of eternal life requires a realization of where to find that steadfastness upon which the tired traveler can lean. Inevitably man will come to seek the eternal foundation.…

Development of consciousness is needed, and refinement of the Primal Energy is needed, otherwise the veils of Maya will prevent all access.

Earth's dark veils of malice and the myth of LightningFW II, 6

Let us recall the myth about the "Origin of Lightning." The Mother of the World said to the Creator, "When the Earth will be covered with dark veils of malice, how will the salutary drops of Bliss penetrate?" And the Creator answered, "Torrents of Fire may be gathered which can pierce the thickest layer of darkness." The Mother of the World said, "Verily, the sparks of Fire of Thy Spirit can give salvation, but who will collect and guard them for use when needed?" The Creator replied, "Trees and herbs will preserve My sparks, but when the leaves fall off, then let the deodar and its sisters preserve throughout the year their accumulations of Fire." Thus in various myths there has been reflected the link with the Higher World. Everywhere there has been stressed solicitude about humanity and all creatures. Likewise did the ancient priests carefully watch over the correct distribution of the creative Fire.

Courage needed to cleave harmful veilsNEC, 48

Take notice, there has been success only where there has been complete courage. Small doubts create a slavish timidity.

Precisely in the days of grave sickness of the planet it is important to be filled with courage. By groping one does not pass, but the sword can cleave the harmful veils. Very grave is the moment, and it is necessary to intensify all courage.

The veils of a sorcererAY, 180

A sorcerer veils in unusualness the most commonplace action. But the yogi brings even the most unusual manifestation within the boundaries of the ordinary, for he knows the goal-fitness of nature.

Victory

Striving leads to victoryLMG I, 87

Understand the soul of your brother;

Labor untiringly, show understanding, behold the power of My Shield.

There are many wonders in this world, and a pure and ardent striving leads to victory.

Achievement is a victoryLMG II, 315

Unexpectedness is the sister of mobility. Mobility is the sister of achievement. Achievement is the brother of victory. For each achievement contains within itself a victory; perhaps an invisible one but one moving profound expanses.

Enlightened knowledge is victoryNEC, 121

A childish materialism proves to be a narcotic for people, but enlightened knowledge will be a ladder of victory.

Experience assures attainmentAY, 160

Can we think about battle only in terms of victory? What seems like failure is the root of strength. Success is like multicolored blossoms. But tap the roots, because in them is found the sap of power. I suggest that power be understood as being gained from the accumulations of experience. We are again in the garden of life, where experience assures attainment.

Victory for those who are in step with the Cosmic MagnetINF II, 55

You are correct in speaking of humanity's lack of insight. When we approach the ominous hour, all forces must be strained for the mighty step. It has already been told that the Epoch of Maitreya is approaching, and the signs are strewn as fiery seeds; hence, the ominous hour will be one of Light for those who are in step with the Cosmic Magnet. Hence, the ominous hour will be as a future Light for those who battle for the significance of the Epoch of Maitreya. Hence, cooperation with Us brings the predestined victory. Therefore, the co-workers who walk in self-denial will be victors. Proceeding in step with the Cosmic Magnet, you affirm victory! Yes, yes, yes!

Transform failure into successINF II, 100

Much is affirmed by Us, and tension will bring the predestined. Those who have dedicated themselves to the cosmic tension must conquer. Hence, Our world-wide victory is irrevocable. Therefore, when that which is predestined by the Brotherhood is to be fulfilled, joy resounds. Therefore, I have said it—I vouch for it! I see victory! Yes, yes, yes! During ascent the difficult hours transform failure into success. Thus, let us remember--Victory and Joy! Thus, the new step is predestined by the Cosmic Magnet.

Higher the tension, the more powerful is victoryHIER, 39

The creativeness of Cosmos is always built through the tension of all energies. For all achievements the quality of energies should be affirmed. Therefore, the higher the tension, the more powerful is the manifestation of victory. Our creativeness is saturated with the quality of power. Therefore, having gathered all energies, we can rely upon success. Only the quality of energies gives the needed standard of labor. Therefore, it is so important to have an expanded consciousness and to embrace all that is needed for constructiveness.

Victory is gained by the principle of HierarchyHIER, 276

How many unnecessary manifestations people create for themselves! How many superfluous karmic impediments they create for themselves! And all this only because of unwillingness to admit the Hierarchy to their hearts. Thus, all affirmations can enter into life only when the consciousness can accept the Hierarchy. Each evil in the world is generated because of resistance to the great principle of Hierarchy. Each victory is gained only by the principle of Hierarchy. Therefore, one must be so strongly based upon the affirmed Hierarchy.

Going in the right direction is a victoryHEART, 103

How can one protect people if they themselves do not wish to hold on to the thread of salvation? To keep on going in the right direction is in itself a victory. Our help is ready to pour forth, but it must stream to someone and into something. Who, then, is able to aid Us with straight, simple striving? The heart will help seekers find this channel and discover the true path.

Victory of the heart is preordainedFW I, 651

How many unalterable truths have been rejected! They say eternal life does not exist. Yet it exists. They say the Subtle World does not exist. Yet it exists. They say no intercourse between the worlds exists. Yet it exists. They say no Higher Guidance exists. Yet it exists. Thus, dark deniers would screen the light from the heart. But no lock exists which can debar the heart from achievement. One should not only discuss and read, one should also sense the warmth of the heart. This warmth of the heart can be measured; this means it is accessible to simple apparatuses. Agni will point the way to that land where the victory of the heart is preordained. The Fiery World summons to victory.

Victory of good in all its magnitudeFW II, 359

Verily, Hiero-inspiration says—the somnolence of a conqueror is an aspect of most frightful destruction. To resound in rhythm and not to affirm it will be a violation of the law. Victory must bring a harmonious, lawful structure. Victory is not an outburst but construction in all lawfulness. Observe the equilibrium bestowed by true victory. Danger is the friend of victory. If you do not understand it today, you will apprehend it tomorrow. The fiery heart is reinforced by dangers. Thus, let us understand the victory of good in all its magnitude.

Preserve the consciousness of victory as a strong shieldAUM, 512

One must feel how great is the tension. One must acknowledge that there has never been such a time. Ordinary thoughts should not exist in an extraordinary time. To assimilate this is an approach to the front line of the battle. The manifestation of tension is already great, and it will be no less in the future. One also needs to preserve the consciousness of victory as a strong shield. One has to fill space with victorious thoughts, for in them is ozone and protection.

Victory is achieved upon the battlefieldsSUP, 825

Urusvati knows the power of victory. A victory should be kind, for then the fires of the heart are beautifully kindled. The less selfishness there is, the more luminous will be the fires.

It will be said, “Not everyone is destined to achieve a glorious victory.” No, friends, everyone can gain a glorious victory. Victory is achieved not only upon battlefields. Everyone can overcome his bad habits and thus ignite the fires of the heart. Overcoming one’s faults was called in antiquity the opening of the Supermundane Gates. Certainly, on supermundane paths, one’s earthly habits can be particularly harmful. Even seemingly harmless habits can enslave one.

Difficulties lead to future victoryLHR I, 1929

And I beg you, do not fear difficulties. Display readiness to meet all obstacles, for each obstacle strengthens you and leads you to the future victory. Try to love the difficulties, and say, “Blessed be the obstacles, through them we grow.” Courageously, inspired by striving, realizing the majesty of the endless perfecting of creative life, strive toward the calling Infinity—infinity of lives, infinity of achievements, infinity of knowledge, infinity of construction, infinity of beauty!

After each victoryLHR I, 17 December 1930

In the days of victory, I wish to greet you and prepare you for new and more strenuous battles! In the days of victory, I wish to remind you of the words of the Great Teacher:

“Know the thrill of the battle.” In the days of victory let us thoroughly examine our weapons and prepare our shields, for our enemy is ready, and with vigilant eye he watches our weak spots, so that he can strike through them. He knows how victory lulls the mind and lessens striving and watchfulness. Therefore, after each victory we must strive with redoubled force toward the next, still greater battle and victory. A slackening of striving results in defeat. Truly, only a broad consciousness will be aware of the danger of the lessened watchfulness that results from the first victories.

Great Guarantee of victoryLHR I, 6 June 1935

I beg of you to ponder more deeply over the events and to perceive the Leading Hand. Let us take part in the great promised resurrection of the spirit. Great assurance for the victory of Light over darkness has been given. The significant year of formidable Armageddon is at hand. Let all the warriors of Light unite under the indicated Banner! The Great Guarantee of victory is in our hands.

Victory is already hereLHR II, 18 November 1935

“Let us rejoice at the manifestation of victory. People will still not see it for some time, but it is already here. Wait, impatient ones, not the eye but the heart determines victory. When a fiery structure is already realized in the Subtle World; then may the hearts of the builders rejoice. Those who sleep do not feel it if they are carried out of the house, but space is already singing.”

Hierarchy of Light requires victoryLHR II, 8 June 1936

Let the new Cycle bring a new understanding. Let us not fear any assaults or battles, for the Hierarchy of Light requires victory, and is a victory possible without a battle? Is it not a victory to have published so many most essential books in this most difficult year? Indeed, such an accomplishment is a most serious defeat for the enemy.

Visions require pure surroundingsLMG I, 51

Follow the simplest path as you ascend the mountain. Powerful, exalted visions require pure surroundings, and prana. Christ’s deeds were consummated amidst the beauties of nature. Never did He dwell for long in cities.

Powerful visions need electrical atmosphereLMG I, 165

People see the visions they desire, because the current is often too weak and they see images made by their own brains.

For powerful visions is needed an atmosphere charged with electricity and a consciousness in repose.

People study of visionsLMG II, 125

I will say something of great importance: People study visions too little. It is precisely by following the character of the visions that the best history of the intellect may be written.…

When men began to visualize Christ as an inaccessible idol, there began a period of visions of Christ in most realistic forms. He appeared as very close to men, entering into their daily life. Briefly speaking, every popular error is corrected. In the day of woman's humiliation one may trace the appearance of the Divine Mother.

People frequently complain that they have no visions. These visions do indeed occur, but people do not pay attention to them. For example, the sight, in broad daylight, of human images, which then immediately disappear. Unfortunately, the human mind would rather fabricate all sorts of artificial explanations than find the true cause for such manifestations.

The time has come when it is necessary to bring the Subtle World closer to Earth, but it is impossible to do so without the cooperation of humanity. Even those who are ready to accept the existence of the Subtle World expect some tremendous shock that will immediately transform their entire life. Our help is in proportion to human cooperation.…

If one wants to see, one must have an open mind. Negation closes the keenest eye. On the other hand, one must beware of false, imagined visions. Thus, there remains only one way—the golden middle way, which We have already stressed. He who follows the middle way knows an all-embracingness that excludes or changes nothing. This is not an easy way, for it requires a refinement of consciousness.

The Thinker taught not to fear the middle way.

Spiritual vision unfoldsHEART, 416

However much the manifestations of the Subtle World are hidden, so many and such diverse people have witnessed them that their existence cannot be denied. And many people know about the existence of the Subtle World not through séances or invocations but through natural vision. Of course, it is very rare that someone sees the Fiery World, but a subtle being is not far from our earthly condition.… But one also should remember that even among the various natural manifestations, spiritual vision unfolds in accordance with the heart. The low consciousness will see the low, but spiritual purification will make higher vision possible. So it is the condition of the heart that will keep the consciousness above ordinary manifestations.

Visions whose heart can endure themFW III, 465

He can have visions who will admit them and whose heart can endure them. Fiery visions can be withstood only very rarely. Even the subtle bodies inspire terror. People should not complain at the absence of subtle visions. Even the beginning of their approach already fills one with terror. But none of the good beings will frighten one. On the contrary, they will guard against evil entities. Thus, the dense world is not accustomed to fiery perception.

Significance of dreams and visions of former livesHEART, 568

Dreams and visions of former lives always have significance. A page from the astral archive flares up, so to speak, reminding one of the very same frame of mind being experienced in the present time. Take, for example, the most recent vision. It arose during a time of fatigue from dealing with people, but the first need that came into view was that of extending aid immediately. This is the very path of the Bodhisattva, on which we forget ourselves in order to help out. Great, indeed, is the energy thus generated; everywhere it is spoken of as love for one's neighbor. Such love does not reckon or calculate, but acts without delay. And so from the depths of the Subtle World emerge the pictures of the past. There was a significant detail in the vision, when the servant of delight blocked the path of podvig but was unable to hinder your aspiration and striving. And once more the vision revealed the tolerance shown to many worldly people whom you have had to encounter again and again. Tolerance and patience are also the path of the Bodhisattva. This path is not in the clouds but here on Earth. The noxious fumes here are heavy, another reason the path of the Bodhisattva is necessary. From a human perspective, these fumes are insignificant, but they sting the heart as salt water stings a wound. Make good use of the mountain air.

Fiery visionsFW I, 108

Ask Urusvati to tell about the multiformity of the fires seen by her. Let all these rays, stars, fiery Lotuses, flowers, and all the other manifestations of the Fiery World live and be affirmed. It is impossible in earthly words to describe all the quality of these fiery visions. Beyond certain boundaries the Fiery Realm is disclosed like a vision. It cannot be defined by time, nor can the cause of its emergence be determined, for the Fiery Element is entirely beyond earthly dimensions. But if we can see it, both in its grosser manifestations and in its subtlest, it means that even our carnate being can anticipate the higher sphere. Fiery communion is unforgettable once it has been experienced. Thus let us gather courage for the ascent.

Sleep visionsFW II, 420

Sleep-visions acquire significance as soon as the connection with the Higher Worlds is realized. In fact, when a man has grasped the meaning of sleep as sojourn into the Subtle World, he knows that by means of this condition he can recall very important and lofty communions. Each book about the Subtle and Fiery Worlds should not omit mentioning associations through sleep-visions.

Vision of the Mother of the WorldINF I, 61

The far-off worlds are our manifested path. The far-off worlds are our enlightenment. The far-off worlds are our vistas of the mighty vision of the Mother of the World. The human spirit seeking expansion finds the manifested far-off worlds. Let us say that the unattainable may become attainable and that privation may become wealth. Therefore, let us direct our will to Infinity, in all its beauty.

The vision of humanityINF I, 195

The divergence of points of view in regard to the Universe reveals an approach to varied spheres. What kind of vision has humanity? The eye of an earth dweller does not penetrate beyond the physical plane. Naturally, the search for material manifestations results in the aspiration for that which is visible only by crude sight, and the manifestation of higher spheres is thereby excluded. The world vision encompasses the creativeness of the Cosmic Magnet, and man can penetrate into the higher planes. The truth predestined by Cosmos can be attained. When the world vision directs itself into Space, it is aware of all laws. But the world vision has its boundaries and goals pertaining to it; the periphery of its striving is within the closest sphere. Its quests reach into the spheres close to Earth. But the Spatial Fire can be encompassed by the vision of the Infinite. And to the spirit who has approached the Spatial Fire, the limitless vision is granted. The psycho-life of the Spatial Fire can encompass the spheres through the assimilation of psychic energy. The spirit who has embraced the Spatial Fire lives through the creative force of Materia Lucida.

The spiritual world is without bounds; and the physical mind cannot manifest the knowledge of Infinity. Only the psycho-dynamic power of spirit carries man into the higher spheres. The limitless vision verily opens the paths to the Heart of Cosmos.

World visionINF I, 196

When the vision discerns the significance of the Universe, the ways to endlessly manifested existence are revealed. World vision discloses that which exists in life, but the unlimited vision reveals the boundless Be-ness. The creativeness of Cosmos is incessant, and there where the world vision sees boundaries the unlimited vision perceives new horizons.

Instantaneousness of many visionsSUP, 208

Urusvati knows how instantaneous and unexpected some visions can be. Especially striking to us are the visions in which people appear whom we do not know. There are many reasons for this. These people may not really be strangers, but may have been known to us in the Subtle World. It is also possible that two people will have consonant vibrations that produce simultaneous visions of each other. If people were to write down their visions and share them with people they trust, so much would be clarified. But such observations are neglected, and human consciousness loses an opportunity for practical learning.

For example, someone was playing the piano somewhere and generated the vibrations that resounded in Urusvati's consciousness, forming a vision of the unknown player. Such consonance affects the fiery tissues. People make contact with each other through consonant sounds, and thus create collaborations.

The seeming instantaneousness of many visions can be explained by the laws of the Subtle World, where physical time does not exist. The brevity of the visions is only illusory, for man's perceptions are limited by the physical plane, and for him the subtle images come and go quickly. But in the conditions of the Subtle World we enter into the mental spheres, and the events appear to unfold naturally. Thus one can increase his experience in the Subtle World and learn to understand the earthly illusion of instantaneousness.

Be advised to write down visionsLHR II, 13 August 1936

You should advise that one's thinking should not be based on visions. There is nothing more deceptive than these illusions from the Subtle World, which are perceived through the lower manas. It is essential to have discipline, a firm control of all emotions, and years of the most refined observations before it is possible to correctly discriminate between visions of the Subtle World. One must investigate all such visions most objectively, honestly, and with keen observation, otherwise we will become playthings of the denizens of the lower strata of the Subtle World. That is why disciples are advised to write down their visions, so that eventually they can ascertain their correctness and significance. But there is a great difference between writing down and observing them, and unconditional acceptance of and guidance by them. The visions that are most deceptive are those which concern our personality and our immediate surroundings. In the normal development of spiritual perception, visions embrace seven circles, or planes, as indicated in the second volume of Leaves of Morya's Garden. Visions that concern the personal life become rare. It is true that the lower entities attack poorly protected auras; in addition, the lower manas of those attacked readily prompts the suggested image.

The Voice of the SpiritLMG I, 25

We lend Our Ears to pure thoughts.

You will receive the knowledge and will walk the pure path, but beware of anger and of doubt.

If you conquer, you will receive the light.

If you falter, the whirlwind will obscure your soul.

Perfect yourselves, my friends, unwearyingly.

Deny not the Voice of the Spirit, suppress only the earth-bound voices.

Be daring—I am with you.

DeedsLMG I, 305

The Teacher knows our path, and to His Mercy we leave the hindering voices.

Judge by deeds! I said it!

Avoid irritationsLMG II, 49

Vicious voices are trying to spread dust. But remember that irritations are no better than dust, and avoid them.

I teach through the manifestations of life. I give daily signs.

As rose petals are strewn the signs, for the time is near.

Think of the New World; think of the procession of peoples.

Affirming the Teaching!HEART, 214

The guarantee given by the Forces of Light is the most powerful foundation for the New Life. I can assure you, the dark ones have a dreary road ahead. I am affirming the Light of the future, which through various voices will kindle fires all over the world. I am affirming that the Teaching is a manifestation of the New World. I am affirming that the most precious concepts are steps on the path of life. I am affirming that there is no darkness that could extinguish Our signs. I am affirming that something beneficial can be obtained from the turmoil. I am affirming that the forces of the Subtle World are striving to approach the earthly plane. I am affirming that this difficult hour is a clarion call. I am affirming that everyone who follows Us will attain salvation. I am affirming that the many scattered members will be united. I am affirming the path to the sunrise, a path on which there is but a single decision. I am affirming the date of happiness, a date that brings a promise of salvation to the world.

Cries of the Subtle WorldFW I, 39

If we gather all the details of our life, we shall find innumerable evidences of the Subtle World. We will also find that in the majority of cases the voices of the Subtle World do not reach Earth, just as our voices do not reach deaf ears. Indeed, this comparison becomes precise when we realize that the cries of the Subtle World do not reach Earth. Nothing can equal the despair of the Subtle World when its warnings do not reach their destination. In its own way, the Subtle World greatly desires to help our world. But true cooperation can only be attained by cultivation of the heart and by understanding the quality of the nature of Fire.

Dissenting voicesFW I, 492

There are many events, but you must learn to discern amidst this multitude of dissenting voices the one plan for achieving the New World. A great many people prefer not to realize that they can take part in world construction. Let them carry stones for the Temple—invisible to them.

Quality of voicesAUM, 33

Correctly has it been observed that certain mantrams have lost their meaning and retain only their sound. Thus, we see how important is vibration. For this reason much was not written down, but was transmitted orally. Mere letters without sound produce no results. Moreover, the very quality of the voice has a special significance. A deep chest tone can give greater resonance than a high, flat, or nasal one. Thus, not only melody itself but quality of voice is important. I consider that at present the quality of voice is too little valued. Not volume, nor eloquence, but inner magnetism is important—the same is a fundamental requisite in singing. Many voices have been deprived of their natural qualities by methods of vocal training.

Radio waves, voices, and the Subtle WorldAUM, 520

Between radio waves it is sometimes possible to distinguish intruding voices. Of course, those are the voices of some people accidentally caught by the apparatus. So, too, among voices from the Subtle World are heard more and more often the voices of the living. Hostile ignoramuses wish to take advantage of this circumstance in order to deny communications from the Subtle World. But they forget that psychic energy is one and the same everywhere. It cannot be either dead or living, because it is fundamental. Thought is invincible, and it vibrates in space.

The ignorant deny the Subtle World and thus reject thought. All that exists serves not negation; on the contrary, all confirms the one Truth.

Wireless transmissions and antiquityBRO, 475

Spatial voices have been mentioned under various names in the Scriptures of all peoples. Let us not delve into why such voices have been attributed to the most diverse sources. Right now it merely needs to be kept in mind that knowledge of these voices goes back to remote antiquity…. Science has already mastered wireless transmission, which is being continually improved. Moreover, thoughts are being studied, and remarkable observations are already resulting, but for all that, ignorance has so greatly increased that it is necessary to reiterate even the simplest truths.

ClairaudienceSUP, 106

Urusvati knows that clairaudience is the most difficult of the subtle senses, because so many intrusions obscure subtle hearing. It is interesting that even strong voices or thoughts can be distorted by a single sound. Thought resounds, but people do not understand this, and do not perceive that a word that is emphasized mentally will resound more clearly.

The Ashram's quietness and the choir of NatureSUP, 280

Urusvati has heard the many sounds of Nature. Truly, Nature is never silent. Our Ashram has a reputation for stillness, but this should be understood relatively. It is quiet in comparison with earthly, human noise, but Nature continues to send forth Her sounds. The whispers of the mountains and the noises of the waterfalls and streams near the Ashram, merge into one intensified choir. But all these voices of Nature cannot prevent one from hearing the calls of the Supermundane.

Voices and human traitsSUP, 629

Fortunate are those who have learned to harken to the voices of the depths of the consciousness. They will find new ways in life's struggle. They will see life with a good and just eye. They will find a true understanding of human traits. They will gather courage. Let that voice be called subconscious, or small, or great–is it not all the same? What is important is that a great psychic work is taking place.

The Thinker said, "Listen to the forewarning and encouraging voice. Your judge–your friend–is always with you."

Subtle World and voices of entitiesLHR I, 29 August 1934

And now, I would like to warn you against psychism, as this condition is especially dangerous on the first steps of discipleship. Psychics have contact with the lower spheres of the Subtle World, and often they mistake the voices of entities from these spheres for the true Call and the Voice of the Great Teachers whom these entities are trying to impersonate.… Much more dangerous are those who approach under the mask of the Teaching of Light. We know many cases of such "guiding" voices and "luminous" visions. Therefore, the Teachers always warn against psychism, which can be acquired by those who practice pranayama.

The VoiceSF, 514

“The plan is proceeding successfully. And funds will come.” Then the Voice: “Important papers are to be kept close.

War and the Subtle WorldHEART, 181

The restriction and ossification of the consciousness are the main reasons for the disunity of the worlds. The course of the Great Battle is often impeded because of a complete lack of harmony between the consciousnesses of the earthly world and the Subtle. Those who have passed into the Subtle World with a consciousness imbued with monarchism cannot reconcile themselves to the present condition in their countries if the regime has changed. So even where a great deal of unity exists, differences regarding one matter may throw the forces into confusion and division. And when we recall how many spirits crossed into the Subtle World during the war and how many changes have taken place in recent years, it is easy to picture how little correspondence there is between the worlds. One can also imagine what significant work is presently being carried out by expanded hearts who strive selflessly to broaden consciousnesses in both worlds.

The Great War in comparison to ArmageddonHEART, 380

Of course, the battle of the past does not bear comparison with the battle of tomorrow. No one should think that Armageddon is just a commotion in the kitchen. No, the biggest guns are in action, and the swiftest cavalry is taking part. If we compare the recent Great War with Armageddon, it is like comparing Europe with the entire world, as it were. I offer this comparison just in case anyone is thinking that the present time is ordinary and easy. People need to summon all the imperturbability of the heart that they can, in order to find themselves among the ranks of Rigden’s forces. Nobody should forget the nature of the time that we are going through.

Right now, there is no one who can get by without courage. Only utter madness whispers that everything will fall into place of its own accord—that cannot happen! Being unable to govern by the basic principles, the dark forces have violated them; therefore, we must close ranks and go forward undivided in everything. The warriors should understand that the spiritual tension of the present time is no longer at the level of the Subtle World but is already approaching the Fiery World. The Teacher is reminding us: not terror but a sense of the majestic should fill the hearts of the warriors of Armageddon.

War and FireFW I, 80

The occurrences preceding war. People say that before a war or calamity forest fires and other conflagrations occur. Whether or not they always occur is of no importance; what is significant is that popular belief takes note of the fiery tension before world upheavals. Folk wisdom assigns to fire a remarkable place. The Lord visits people in Fire. The same fiery element was chosen as the Highest Judgment. The purging of evil is performed through Fire. Misfortunes are accompanied by burning. Thus, in the entire current of folk thought one can perceive these fiery paths. People like the shrine lamps and carried torches, displayed for the services. In the people's understanding the element of fire has a solemn meaning. Thus, let us draw not from superstition, but from the folk heart.

Caution to those who ignite warsSUP, 515

Those who ignite wars should think about the abyss into which they thrust the planet. Even a war that afflicts only a few countries promotes the destruction of the entire planet. No one thinks of war as a planetary sickness, yet one can see what improvements in life are cut short everywhere in the world by even local wars. Such convulsions are not needed when steady progress is possible.

War and its harmful effectsFW I, 229

Let us turn again to the harm of killing. Each explosion violates the equilibrium of many beings invisible to us. Not millions but incalculable billions are injured by war. One must not forget all the atmospheric turbulence from gases and explosions. This is not occultism, but scientifically sound common sense. Thus, let humanity not forget about the counterblow.

The signs of warAUM, 125

World events often occur, not because of actions themselves, but under the signs of the approach of the actions. People create a great deal under the sign of joy when as yet there is no apparent cause; and under the sign of terror or war when war has not yet broken out. Much is accomplished merely under the signs therefore such reflexes acquire a most important significance for the alteration of life. Many examples of this can be cited. What is the need of war itself with all its disasters, if a single mirage can intensify energy? Much is actually constructed under the impetus of a mirage. Maya can sometimes be a most powerful impellent.

Therefore, it is necessary to examine so attentively the guiding signs. The manifestation of improvement in understanding such signs actually hastens evolution.

Hence, let the most important be the guiding Principle.

The aspects of warBRO, 123

You see that the world is in a state of war. Diverse are its aspects! In one place they are concealed and in another they are obvious, but their meaning is one. Likewise, revolution takes on a peculiar meaning; it can also occur without this name. Some may think that the process is too slow, but in essence it is even hurried.

War made in hasteBRO, 154

The world is making haste—here under the sign of war, there under a grimace of light-mindedness, here under a manifestation of hatred, there at the word of the head of the state. Each one is bent on his own acceleration, forgetting the fate of the overdriven horse! Do not assume that it is possible to go on stratifying the energy endlessly when it is tensed.

Monarchs who rejected warnings of warSUP, 25

All over the world one can find established landmarks of Our Guidance. Some enlightened people accepted it, but some poor parodies of monarchs rejected Our Counsel and thereby plunged their countries into calamity. But even these situations We turned to good. You are acquainted with Tactica Adversa.

One may recall an arrogant monarch who, before the Great War [World War I.—Ed.], received Our warnings, but preferred to lose his throne by rejecting Our Advice. Likewise, another head of state did not want to listen to Our Ambassador and preferred to plunge his country into confusion.

It cannot be said that in ancient times Indications were given more often. Now also many such Counsels are given, but as usual the ear of humanity is deaf.

We stand vigil the world over.

War heroes and karmaSUP, 88

Urusvati grows indignant when she hears about war, Sister Oriole is terrified, and We are all saddened by the barbarism of humanity. The most negative manifestation of free will is seen in outbursts of war. People refuse to think about the terrible currents they evoke by mass murder and the consequences it will bring. The ancient Scriptures correctly warned that he who lives by the sword will perish by the sword.

There is a difference between the karma of aggression and that of defense. It can be shown how aggressors suffer the most grievous consequences and how terrible their condition is in the Subtle World. People delude themselves by thinking that great conquerors do not reap bad karma during their earthly lives. But karma has its own timely approach and does not show itself immediately. Life is continuous, and the wise ones understand their lives as a single necklace.

Aggressors burden their karma not only by killing but also by polluting the atmosphere, which occurs during war. The poisoning of Earth and of the other spheres is long-lasting. You who intrude into the lands of your neighbors, has no one told you the consequences of your fratricide?

Our Abode has witnessed many wars, and We can testify how this evil is increasing in the most unexpected ways. People know that explosions can cause rain, but what about poison gas and its possible effects? How sad We are to see free will, which was bestowed as the Highest Gift, manifested in this horrible, uncontrolled way.

War and peacemakersSUP, 319

Urusvati knows how We labor for peace. Why then do We not rejoice at the many organizations dedicated to the promotion of peace? Simply because very few of them are unselfish in their work and the majority harbor hidden motives that are worse even than the drive toward war.

War and help from HierarchyLetters of Helena Roerich I, (19 June 1933)

Therefore, every mother must bring up her children in the spirit of great deeds, heroism and self-denial for the General Good. This is not approval of war in its usual sense; but we cannot deceive ourselves—we do live in the midst of the most dreadful and ruinous wars of all kinds. But the spiritual war is far more exacting than any other war. That is why it is so important to cultivate courage and fearlessness, the qualities which the disciple of the Masters of Light should first of all develop. However, if there is a strong bond with the Hierarchy, courage and fearlessness come absolutely naturally, as the Hand of the Hierarch will always hold back the final danger and will point out the way to victory. But I repeat, this is only so when the Image of the Master is constantly kept in mind. More than once have we had the opportunity of experiencing this wonderful influence. In a moment of danger, we would become suddenly and amazingly serene and we knew that everything would be concluded perfectly.

Warning(s)

Warnings because of care and love for youLMG I, 417

I give to you the Teaching, karmic messages, Instructions.

The Teaching is intended for the whole world, for all beings.

The more broadly you comprehend, the more truly it is yours.

Karmic communications are sent because of care and love for you.

We issue warnings, and We enable you to meet the wave of karma with knowledge.

Be not surprised if signs about karma are not always clear to you.

The indications are always understandable,

And they must be carried out without delay.

Warnings against thinking about selfNEC, 111

Many warnings were given against selfhood. This deadly sister of ignorance smites and extinguishes the best fires. Do not consider a reminder about egoism out of place during the establishment of cooperatives. On the contrary, each statute must be written not for oneself but for others. Among various appellations the word friend will be a most hearty one. Indeed, the heart does not admit egoism. The heart lives in self-abnegation. Thus, strong is the heart when it is concerned about the future, not thinking about self.

Warnings at this cosmic periodHEART, 345

The opening of the heart is also important in that it discerns cosmic periods. Thus, without the heart, vague presentiments will never become the formulation of actual events. Likewise, unless the heart participates, it will be impossible to sense distant events. For example, right now the total destruction of entire structures in the Subtle World must be greatly affecting the heart. Such destruction is not without its usefulness, because piled up accumulations should not hamper the process of perfection. It should be no surprise that subtle forms may also be destroyed so that they might be replaced by their successors. For such tremendous changes to take place, however, fire must be applied. Such a fiery ablution establishes a new step, but in the physical world it is exceedingly difficult. This concept ought to be gradually expanded; otherwise, even experienced warriors may fall into confusion. And let us be aware of the unprecedented tension. Let us be sensitive to each other. Our warnings about this special time are not given casually.

Warnings from the heart about habitsHEART, 367

If someone were to collect in a single book all the forms of behavior harmful to perfectment, he could easily ascertain how simple it is to overcome them. He could see from what small actions this evil accumulates. Is it difficult to give up trivial habits in one's daily life? Is it difficult to suppress the small destructive acts that poison the body? Doesn't a child feel ashamed after his first feeble attempt to lie? Only by habit does a child harden his heart. That is why We call habits the calluses of the soul. Who is unaware of the warnings the heart gives every time an unworthy act is about to be performed? Such actions of the heart transmit the best calls, but often people force the heart to be silent. This is a grave crime, as serious as cutting off the current that is bringing salvation to someone near and dear.

The heart as judge of balance and warningsHEART, 532

People vainly imagine that acts of betrayal and malevolence do not call forth a return blow. Sometimes the return blow may not be immediate, and often it cuts off possibilities without causing any visible consequences. But the law of equilibrium is immutable. A heart should be engraved on the pointer of the scales, because the heart is the judge of balance. So, all the warnings against malevolence are not only ethical in nature, they are also valuable as medicine.

Warnings about remaining sluggishHEART, 526

We often send people strong warnings, but their deafness is astounding. Even what they hear they distort beyond recognition. No astonishment is too strong when one sees how people remain sluggish, even though their own salvation is at stake; it is as if they were only intent on outraging the Higher Forces. I ask that the detestable decisions of the Satanists not be forgotten. I ask that the warriors remember: to defeat evil, they must unite their forces. They should remember this as a Command of the Lords. They should harbor no regrets, for in time of battle warriors must strive only to the future.

Difficulties of warnings from the Subtle WorldFW I, 39

If we gather all the details of our life, we shall find innumerable evidences of the Subtle World. We will also find that in the majority of cases the voices of the Subtle World do not reach Earth, just as our voices do not reach deaf ears. Indeed, this comparison becomes precise when we realize that the cries of the Subtle World do not reach Earth. Nothing can equal the despair of the Subtle World when its warnings do not reach their destination. In its own way, the Subtle World greatly desires to help our world. But true cooperation can only be attained by cultivation of the heart and by understanding the quality of the nature of Fire.

Warnings and good healthFW II, 384

Warnings are useful in all cases. Earthly ailments ought to be anticipated. It is impossible to provide people with a panacea if the conditions of life are not purified. People dream about deliverance from cancer, that spiritual scorpion, but they do nothing to preclude its germination. You already know that the remedy given to you is one of the best against cancer, but it is also necessary to make use of vegetarian diet, and not to indulge in irritating smoking and drinking. Furthermore, one must expel imperil, and then the indicated remedy will be a good shield. But people usually do not wish to renounce all the destructive excesses, and they wait until the scorpion stings them. Likewise do other terrible diseases spread, as the dark gates are held open for them.

Warnings and the law of karmaFW III, 104

Forces manifested for the Service of Light do not invade Karma, as some who are not initiated into the power of Karma think. The Forces of Light observe human actions, giving the direction but not invading life. Many are the examples of this. Messengers appear, warnings are sent, the direction is given and the paths pointed out; but the choice of designated affirmation is determined by the human will. In this way appears the manifestation of cooperation between the two Worlds. Precisely, self-activity of the spirit can bring near a better Karma. Thus, it can be explained why the Forces of Light do not stop the spirit from certain actions which violate often that which has been ordained. Often people are perplexed as to why the other paths are not indicated. Likewise, they wonder why the Sendings are affirmed through various channels? They wonder why the Forces of Light do not ward off different currents. Let us reply, “The Forces of Light never invade human Karma.” This law must be remembered on the path to the Fiery World.

Warnings do not invade karmaLHR I, 5 May 1934

Forces manifested for the Service of Light do not invade karma, as some who are not initiated into the power of karma think. The Forces of Light observe human actions, giving the direction but not invading life. Many are the examples of this. Messengers appear, warnings are sent, the direction is given and the paths pointed out; but the choice of designated affirmations is determined by the human will. In this way appears the manifestation of cooperation between the two worlds.

Warnings as a brief explanation, word or sparkBRO, 26

Appeal to the Brotherhood does not remain without a response, but there are many ways of answering. People revolve so much within the circle of their own expressions that they do not perceive other signs. Besides, people are unable to understand the allusions and warnings that are sometimes contained in a single word and in a single spark. They do not wish to reflect about the reasons for such brevity. Scholars, even very erudite ones, do not remember the law of karma. Yet when people see a passer-by being exposed to danger, they warn him with a short outcry and do not read him lectures on the cause of his misfortune. So, too, in the matter of karmic reactions it is usually possible to caution with a brief exclamation without delving into the depths of karma.

Warnings of diseases met with ridiculeSUP, 405

People are straining the energies, ignoring the fact that every beginning has its end. A cannon’s fire can cause rain, but this is just a primitive example. Radio waves thicken the atmosphere, yet the number of radios increases without limit. Factory owners do not care what diseases they cause, and one can observe many resultant cases of irritation of the mucous membranes and malignant tumors. People do not regard their own willfulness as a likely cause, nor do they realize that new victims will appear who will pay with their lives.

We can say with certainty that all Our warnings will be met with ridicule. There are two kinds of ignorant people: some are ignorant because of their lack of learning, and others precisely because of their learning. The latter are the more dangerous for they allow no contradiction. One cannot talk with them about the Supermundane, but they should know that one drop may overfill the vessel.

The Thinker took care that His disciples should speak to people about past cataclysms.

Warnings from the Voice of ConsciousnessSUP, 457

One should know that the consciousness cannot be suppressed from without. On the contrary, it is nurtured from without by all the energies of space. Our Guidance is never imposed, and can nourish the best aspects of consciousness. He who knows the significance of cooperation can understand that one can help without imposing.

What do people do when the voice of consciousness begins to be heard? Usually they try to suppress it by every means; finding it disturbing, they reject it. Yet, if man does not recognize his own gift, how can he advance?

People often fear the so-called conscience, believing that it speaks only after bad deeds. What an error! Conscience, or consciousness, prompts one to good. But having committed a wrongdoing a person becomes tense and nervous, and can become so alert that the voice of conscience rings out for him.

One should never think that cooperation lies in mutual condemnation! If only people would listen to warnings, they could avoid many dangers. The voice of consciousness is neither small, nor muted, and takes no pride in its independence. The true collaborator cares not to notice the source of success, and gratefully accepts the gift of Good.

The Thinker accepted these gifts as food for the spirit.

Warnings that remained unacceptedLHR I, 25 March 1935

This Help, in the form of warnings or advice or even complete Teachings, was manifested under the most unexpected and diverse aspects. Such warnings mark history with a red letter. With a few exceptions, all such warnings remained unaccepted. Thus, let us recall the Swedish King Charles XII, who received a strong warning not to start war with Russia. But he did, and that ended for long the development of his country. The publishing of the diary of the Countess d'Ademar, a lady-in-waiting to the unfortunate Marie Antoinette, revealed the fact that many warnings had been given to the Queen. The warnings were transmitted either by letter or through personal meetings arranged by this same countess. The message always emphasized that the country, the royal family and many friends were in danger. And every one of these warnings came from Count Saint-Germain, an envoy of the Himalayan Brotherhood. But all his salutary admonitions and advices were considered insulting and fraudulent. Saint-Germain was persecuted, and more than once was in danger of the Bastille. The tragic consequences of these rejections are quite well known.

Warrior of Spirit, or Warrior

The warrior and the call to battleLMG I, 120

In the history of mankind is revealed the great battle at the change of races; at the call to battle each summoned warrior takes up his arms.

Providence leads nations by way of struggle; and you, My warriors, guard yourselves with the Shield of God's Will, and the Divine Song will ever find echo within you.

The warrior and unity of consciousness with the TeacherHEART, 311

The Teacher affirms that a warrior can expect complete victory if only unity in consciousness is maintained. On the other hand, he cannot expect success if he harbors the slightest suspicion of the Teacher. So we have to work together, knowing that everything allowed by the laws of the Universe will be done.…The warrior has to stand watch as if there were no one to replace him.

The will of the warrior spiritFW III, 254

The will of a warrior spirit can direct an entire army to the good. The will of the warrior spirit can direct an entire militant world. The will of the warrior spirit can affirm new channels by which constructiveness can proceed. Therefore any and every wall can be destroyed under pressure of the warrior spirit. The warrior spirit which discloses the fiery horizon is the spirit which affirms the Higher Power. The warrior spirit can saturate each manifestation proceeding along with the Cosmic Magnet. The warrior spirit can overcome many tensions. The warrior spirit creates and constructs new possibilities. Thus let all who are on the way to the Light apprehend the significance of the directing warrior Will, because those who follow the warrior Will are following Fire. Thus let us manifest understanding toward the fiery bearers of Our Will.

People on spiritual path are called warriorsLHR I, 19 June 1933

I personally am too fond of the concept of the warrior and cannot use it in a negative sense. In all religious Teachings the people who start upon the spiritual path are called warriors. All Bodhisattvas, and even the most sacred images of Buddha have in their hands, or by them, a sword—as an imprescriptible attribute.

That is why I am so fond of the word "warrior" and admire every heroic and courageous deed. By nature, I myself am quite courageous and militant. Nowhere is it said that we should practice non-resistance to evil. And did not Christ Himself drive away those who scoffed at and violated the sacredness of the Temple?

Warrior of spirit and the flaming swordHEART, 157

The flaming sword is a ray of the spiritual armor. The symbol of a sword-like ray, which has appeared in every Teaching, is an extremely challenging sign. Even the most peace-loving images have affirmed a sword. This does not express a desire to coerce, but it does indicate a readiness to defend the most sacred. So in the midst of the raging fire one can see a thin sword above the brow of a warrior of spirit.

Warrior and the flame of spiritAY, 309

Of all manifestations We value the absolute and dominant pervasiveness of spirit in one's life. Mistakes are as naught when the seed of fire has grown stronger. Action is like the unfurled banner of the warrior. Like a crown is his decisiveness. Like a pearl is the flame of his spirit. Flaming spirit, you burn away delusion and pierce the darkness! We value, above all, the fire of the spirit.

Warrior of spirit glows as a manifestation of lightINF I, 20

When the spirit is seduced by Maya and by the manifestations of self-satisfaction, then a hammer and the development of straight-knowledge are required. When the spirit is dazzled by the glamor of wealth, without realizing its impermanence and considering that a bar of gold leads to happiness, then let us recall all the menaces of sickness and disaster.

But the warrior of spirit glows as a manifestation of light; he is illumined by the rays of the fires of Infinity. The response must be understood, and one must strive to the Cosmos with all fires and all flowers.

The warrior aflame with cosmic fires here on Earth carries a brimming chaliceINF I, 36

Let us look at the one who consciously strives to the veil of the Mother of the World. We shall see that, of all the inexhaustible, numberless consciousnesses, this warrior, aflame with cosmic fires, is borne there where the power of Infinity glows. But here on Earth the warrior carries a brimming chalice. Wondrous is the transposition of our conception thitherward, into our true life! Verily, only the cognizance of Infinity will unite all elements.

The warrior and the fiery heart; the contempt of faint-heartednessFW III, 217

And in the Fiery World there is no place for faint-heartedness. And the crown of courage can be placed only on the brow which is bared in self-renunciation. Yes, let the lone warrior fight single-handed. Let the arrows of hypocrites pierce his breast. Let each manifest aspiration be met with rejection. Yet will his armor be studded with courage. Who, then, knows the fiery striving of the warrior? Who knows the truth of the aspiring heart? Only the manifested fiery heart. The subtle consciousness will illumine the manifestation of courage. Faint-heartedness is contempt for the higher Ego. Faint-heartedness is slavery of the spirit. Only the head which bows not in faint-heartedness will be adorned with the great crown. And the disdain from slaves of the spirit is an attainment for the warrior who walks the fiery path. And alone, the courageous warrior, scorned by faint-heartedness, finds the Fiery Gates to the Hierarchy of Light. Verily, faint-heartedness and self-deception are sisters of darkness!

The courage of the flaming heart of a warriorHIER, 314

Amidst the concepts of courage, the most invincible is the courage of the flaming heart when, with full decisiveness, with full realization of achievement, the warrior knows only the path of advance. To this achievement of courage only the extreme degree of the courage of desperation is comparable. With the same speed with which the courage of the flaming heart overcomes the future, desperation flees from the past. Thus, where the courage of the flaming heart is lacking, let there be the courage of desperation. Only thus can the warrior gain victory when the offensive is great. All other aspects of courage are of no significance, because in them will be halfwayness. This quality, next to cowardice and treason, must be avoided.

The warrior of spirit steadfastly meets the waves of life in beautyLMG II, 156

Know how to meet the waves of life in beauty. It is not the receiving of sweet pastry but the forging of a sword; not sugared fingers but the strong hand of a warrior of spirit. To encounter the enemy without acknowledging him as such, and to reach the Gates without looking back—is Our way! We know the gait of the destined conquerors. Chiefly, do not jump along the way. The main thing is that We should rejoice at the steadiness of your pace. It is more fitting for the ray to illumine the walking ones than to leap after the jumping ones. People have been able to do much, but seldom did they know how to end in beauty. At dawn, at eventide, in advance and retreat, flying or diving, think about Us, the Watching Ones. The beautiful will be also the worthy. Must one open the pages of history to show giants at a loss how to step over a stream? Easiness was then obscured by unsightliness, and the mind faltered, losing appreciation of beauty. But the manifestation of complicated problems means to the mathematician only joy. And there remains the power of silence, which has already been spoken about.

Warrior of Light accepts sufferingLHR II, 18 February 1936

Every warrior of Light courageously accepts the accelerated payment of old accounts. The sufferings of those who have entered the Path of Light are transformed into wonderful flowers of the spirit. Certainly it is not easy to achieve spiritual liberation from earthly attachments. But when ahead of us lies the great goal of Service, and when the heart is aflame with devotion to the Great Teacher, then the most burdensome is transmuted into the joy of self-renunciation.

A warrior receives help; the Teaching is our best weaponLHR I, 2 June 1934

Quite correctly, you write that “an overwhelmed warrior may hope to receive unexpected and miraculous help.” However, you should allow this very wondrous Power to judge when the help should come. So often, we ourselves have been in the most difficult circumstances and we thought we could bear it no longer. But then we learned that even more could be suffered, and only after having entirely exhausted our own resources did we receive help, and always in the most unexpected way.

And is it not joyous to realize that we are fulfilling our duty toward humanity? . . . And you, being a warrior, should particularly appreciate this idea of duty.… The Teaching, well understood and applied, is our best weapon.

The warrior’s fight with the dragon of chaosSUP, 803

Urusvati knows that the ancient Thinkers called their earthly life a duel with chaos. A lone, valiant warrior dons his heavy armor and sets out in search of the dragon of chaos. The warrior knows that the dragon lies in wait on all paths, but always in a different disguise. The warrior must draw on all his abilities to recognize the dragon of chaos. But sometimes the warrior falls into idleness and wanders aimlessly, unable to fulfill his destined podvig.

It will be asked, “Why did the warrior have to leave the Supermundane Fortress? Couldn’t he strike the enemy from its walls, didn’t he have a spear and arrows? Weren’t there dragons’ nests near the Fortress?” But the fact is that the warrior had to seek out the most hidden monsters, in the most distant mountain passes. The more difficult the achievement, the more luminous will it be, and the more victorious the warrior on his return to the Stronghold.

Man should remember that his true Stronghold is not on Earth, and that all his earthly labors should be performed for return to the Supermundane Stronghold.

Great Leaders become warriors when necessarySUP, 667

One can also point to the experiences of one of the Great Leaders, whom We call the Incomparable Singer.… But His dedication to the concept of Unity did not prevent Him from donning armor whenever His people were endangered.

Many will not understand why the renowned Singer can become a warrior. People thus reveal their own limitations. But each human being is a perfect microcosm, carrying lightnings within himself that, when the currents are over-tensed, can be discharged into space to relieve the tension. There is no need to restrain oneself when life demands active achievement. Thus one can trace how Leaders were able to contain within themselves the most diverse qualities. People, regrettably, paid no attention to the Leaders’ motives, and thus their deeds were misinterpreted, and they were often criticized.

The Thinker used to say, “I am not a warrior, but when the trumpet calls, I will find within Myself the strength to help the world.”

Creative patienceNEC, 163

Creativeness is the basis of evolution. With what then is it possible to strengthen the acts of creative power? Only with cheerfulness. Joy is a special wisdom. Cheerfulness is a special technique. This enhancement of vigor arises out of a conscious realization of the creativeness of elements. Truly, creative patience and cheerfulness are the two wings of the worker.

Vessel of WisdomAY, 122

Let us end with a legend: “Let us look at the stars. We were told that the vessel of Wisdom poured its contents from out of Tushita, and the drops of the miraculous draft became aglow in space. But the Teacher said, ‘Thus glow the tips of the arrows of thought, because thought pierces the radiant substance and creates worlds.”

Creative thought, do not cease to adorn space with thy flowers of light!

Wisdom of the far-off worldsAY, 148

Let us consider the contrast between the wisdom of Earth and that of the far-off worlds. Certainly, if the spirit has for long been striving toward the perfection of the far-off worlds, life on Earth will be but a gathering of fragments.

All experiments in the fields of subtlest energies best occur in those hours when you are easily separated from Earth, and are filled with an unrestrainable striving to the wisdom of the far-off worlds. Any earthly sensation appears as naught compared with this flight into the Infinite. Yet there are times when we must strengthen the pillars of earthly wisdom. We rejoice at the wisdom of the far-off worlds, but should not forget the earthly wisdom.

The mission is givenAY, 185

Help is ready for you who have entered, and your mission is given. You have realized that joy is a special wisdom. You will not return to the stream’s old banks. You have embraced in your consciousness the battles of space. Misleading evidence no longer has meaning for you. You are an attaining co-worker and brother!

The joy of spiritAY, 212

Rejoice! rejoice! rejoice! For the yogi must know the wisdom of joy. The teaching of the Blessed One is to safeguard the joy of spirit. He who feels the presence of the spirit already rejoices in recognition of his boundlessness.

StriveAY, 411

Each leaf safeguards the well-being of man. Each stone stands ready to ensure man's safety. Kindle the fires of unlimited knowledge. Find the wisdom to courageously strive.

The spiral of LightINF I, 10

The Era of Fire is approaching. Find courage and wisdom to accept it. The symbol of the serpent seizing its tail represents the circle of the events of evolution. The spiral is applied to the path of ascent.

You who fear the end, affirm yourself in the power of the spiral of Light and of the Fire of Space. Let us say, "Beautiful is the Breath of Cosmos!"

Law of unificationINF II, 500

A sensitive Agni Yogi knows all paths to the realization of Infinity. The spirit-knowledge reads the Book of Life, and the wisdom of ages is deposited as accumulations in the Chalice. Therefore, the law of unification is contained in the synthesis of the Chalice. Upon this knowledge We build Our wondrous step. We have molded Our life over millennia. The cosmic laws are beautiful. Thus, into the seed of the spirit is laid the beauty of Be-ness.

Adorn the intellect with wisdomHEART, 390

Whoever loves flowers is on the path of the heart. Whoever knows the striving to the heights is on the path of the heart. Whoever thinks with purity is on the path of the heart. Whoever knows of the higher worlds is on the path of the heart. Whoever is ready for Infinity is on the path of the heart. So let us summon these hearts to realization of the Source. It is right to understand the essence of the heart as something that belongs to both the Subtle and the Fiery Worlds. One can perceive worlds through the heart, but not through the intellect. So wisdom is contrary to the intellect, but there is no ban on adorning the intellect with wisdom.

The spark of wisdomFW I, 174

That transitional state which links us with Hierarchy is called the "spark of wisdom." This is not emptiness, nor apathy, nor coercion, but a completely conscious opening of the heart.

The Kalachakra TeachingFW I, 212

I approve of the Kalachakra, now being compiled. This fiery Teaching is covered with dust, but it should be proclaimed. Not reason but wisdom gave this Teaching. It should not be left in the hands of ignorant exponents. Many domains of knowledge are united in the Kalachakra; only the unprejudiced mind can find its way among these stratifications of all worlds.

Essence of the heartAUM, 114

Aum has been explained in detail in various writings. The subtlety of vibrations, the wisdom of the sounding, and the beauty of the structure have long been known, but if the heart be dead, even such a “sesame” will not open the lock.

Again it is necessary to remind one about co-measurement and the fortifying of the essence of the heart. Aum is not accessible to heartlessness.

Stubbornness is a paralysisBRO, 19

Let us not take obstinacy along with us. There is no more intolerable burden than stubbornness. People do not even choose a headstrong horse; they will not even take an obstinate dog on a journey. Stubbornness is a paralysis of the best centers. Experiments with psychic energy will be without results if the investigator be stubborn.

Reason and wisdom contain no restrictive stubbornness.

Medicine and special measuresBRO, 538

It is right to commend Ayurvedic medicine. It should be understood that many thousands of years left cumulations of experience and wisdom. But let us not, after the fashion of the ignorant, make a deadly separation between homeopathy and allopathy. Let us not forget the accumulated knowledge of China and Tibet. Each nation had to face particularly threatening dangers and took special measures to oppose them. Thus, he who collects the best blossoms will be a victorious physician.

Outlived ritualsSUP, 74

Urusvati is right to grieve over those rituals that although outlived, yet still persist. Eternal wisdom is one thing, but ragged, outdated formulas that impede advance are quite another. In all domains of life one can see harmful survivals. They nestle everywhere, under royal robes, togas, or any other attire. They have grown so distant from their original meaning that it is beyond imagining how such absurd conventions could ever have expressed high symbols. In antiquity many seemingly strange rituals had special meanings which have now been completely forgotten.

Nobility and thoughtlessnessSUP, 181

Urusvati knows that most people refuse to recognize the advantages of collaboration. The Thinker directed people in many different ways to this salutary concept. He said, “Not by beastly ways will man perfect himself. He is a social being and each thought, each word, is social property. Man cannot live without associating with other people, and he must learn to understand this most noble existence.
“Obscene words and evil talk pollute the atmosphere and are in defiance of the Divine Principle. One can sell his body into slavery, but not his soul. Love for humanity is the result of the development of the heart, which is achieved through thinking.
“Wisdom cannot survive in thoughtlessness.
“The consequences of discord, like the consequences of a terrible disease, come gradually. Fools think that, as long as they awake in the morning, they have avoided any consequences. The violators of collaboration must be judged as detrimental to the public welfare and expulsion will become their lot.”

Wisdom accepts and condemnsSUP, 290

Urusvati knows how much We value the many aspects of wisdom. Wisdom accepts goodness, regardless of its source. Wisdom condemns evil, regardless of its source. Do not take wisdom for granted; it is quite rare….
Broad-mindedness is based on tolerance. Wisdom will say, “Let justice be done,” yet will not dictate the verdict, for wisdom understands the complexity of the conditions required for justice. Wisdom will sense the right time and will not force events. Wisdom realizes that every event involves all nations.

From the Eternal SourceLHR I, 6 October 1932

I am sending you the first pages of the new book called Fiery World, with the hope that this inexhaustible source of wisdom will continually nourish your hearts. Take from this book all the power, all the protection, all the possibilities; all this and much more is in this Treasury, which comes from the Eternal Source.

Woman

The Mission of womenLMG II, 136

The lofty mission of women must be performed by the woman. And in the Temple of the Mother of the World should abide the woman.

The manifestation of the Mother of the World will create the unity of women. The task now is to create a spiritually sovereign position for the woman. And the transmission to woman of direct communication with the Highest Forces is necessary as a psychological impetus. Of course, through the new religion will come the necessary respect.

Maitreya and womanHIER, 13

Each Lord has his keynote. The Epoch of Maitreya proclaims woman. The manifestation of Maitreya is linked with the confirmation of the Mother of the World, in the past, present, and future. The “Book of Life” is so beautiful.

Feminine PrincipleFW III, 241

Hence it is so indispensable to affirm in the spirit the Feminine Principle. For the Banner of the great Equilibrium of the World has been given to woman to uplift. Thus, the time has come when woman must fight for the right that was taken away from her and that she did voluntarily give up. How many powerful records fill space with the attainments of the Feminine Principle! As the Teacher creates through the disciples, so does woman create through the masculine principle. Therefore, woman flamingly uplifts man. Hence also degeneration, because without true knighthood the spirit cannot rise.

Woman and the making of destinyFW III, 347

In the future reconstruction of the World, on the higher spheres there will not be access for those who do not understand equilibrium. Long incarnations will be necessary, to study how to create cosmic equilibrium. Indeed, empires have fallen, nations have fallen, countries have been destroyed, all because the greatest question, that of equilibrium, has been reduced to nothing. Therefore, it is so important to affirm the significance of the feminine principle. Precisely, not in the household measuring scale, but in that of the state. If the planet is retained, then future countries will flourish only through equilibrium. We will even admit a preponderance on the side of the feminine principle, because the conflict will be very intense. Indeed, Councils of Ministers will have to include women. Woman, who gives life to a people, must also have a voice in the making of its destiny. Woman must have the right of voice. If woman were accepted, as was ordained, the World would be quite differently impregnated. Thus, only affirmation of the law of Existence can restore the order of man.

Women will mold evolutionAUM, 416

Woman herself must set an example in unity. We know how seldom such harmony is attained. But if the one real motivation be emphasized, then it becomes impossible to remain deaf just by reason of absurd customs. Indeed, many of them have a historical basis, but these obstructions must be destroyed.

By their own hands, women of all races and beliefs will help to mold the steps of evolution. There should be no delay!

Woman and the legal fieldAUM, 421

Woman may be judge as well as legal adviser, for injustice will be diminished when tribunals will reject the unkind approach. Such a distinction will transform the whole way of life.

When I say, “You, women, can comprehend cooperation,” I thereby wish to evoke the slumbering fires from the depths of your hearts.

Woman and psychic energyAUM, 428

Why is the participation of woman so necessary in experiments with psychic energy? Why is woman’s care for flowers so beneficial? Why is woman’s touch so curative in cases of illness?

A great number of manifestations can be named wherein precisely woman can lend a special tension of psychic energy. But due attention has not been paid to such special qualities of women. It is rarely understood among physicians why the participation of a woman in operations can be particularly useful. The eternal Feminine Principle has not yet found its just interpretation.

Woman and leadershipBRO, 282

Over and above man’s work stands the manifestation of woman. She leads, she inspires, she guides on all paths, and she displays an example of synthesis. It is astonishing how quickly she enters any domain. From Earth up to the far-off worlds she succeeds in weaving wings of Light. She knows how to preserve the Chalice in different atmospheres. When We speak about cooperation, We always point to the achievement of woman. The domain of Brotherhood is the field of cooperation.

Woman’s participation in experimentsSUP, 458

In addition, keep in mind that the participation of a woman is particularly helpful in subtle experiments. It has been observed during attempts at photography that when a woman participated, either physically or from the subtle sphere, the results were more successful. We have already spoken about the desirability of participation by women in scientific experiments. Ancient alchemists understood the full value of the feminine contribution, but today many scientists reject it. Because of this, the participation of women is frequently indirect, rather than direct.

The Feminine OriginLMG II, 150

The Mother of the World appears as a symbol of the feminine Origin in the new epoch, and the masculine Origin voluntarily returns the treasure of the World to the feminine Origin. Amazons were the embodiment of the strength of the feminine Principle, and now it is necessary to show the aspect of spiritual perfection of woman.

The significance of a veiled faceAY, 64

Era of the Mother of the WorldSUP, 772

It will be asked, "Why is this time called the Era of the Mother of the World?" Truly, it must be so named. Woman will bring great help, not only by bringing enlightenment, but also by affirming equilibrium. At times of confusion, the magnet of equilibrium is disturbed, and free will is needed to reunite the broken whole. Maitreya, the Compassionate One, needs co-workers. He who sacrifices himself for the Great Era will reap an abundant harvest.

New discoveries and loftier, more refined tasks at the hands of womenSUP, 458

Nevertheless, the fundamental nature of things will attract women, and they will leave their mark in new discoveries. For this reason, it is essential to change the status of women. The subtlety and refinement of women's nature must be understood, so that they may achieve equal rights and the desired balance. It would be a sad mistake for women to replace soldiers on the battlefield or perform heavy labor. When we are aware of the presence of valuable subtle energy, we ought to be able to apply it accordingly. Thus, we once again come to the notion of true cooperation.

We must find the right use for every ability. The era of the Mother of the World is not a return of the age of Amazons. A far greater, loftier, and more refined task is before us. One can observe that machines often function better, and plants can live longer, in the hands of women. Of course, I do not speak of all women, but of those exceptional ones who manifest the subtlest energy. Their abilities glorify the age of the Mother of the World and relate closely to the realm of healing.

Effects of the debasement of womanLetters of Helena Roerich I, (1 March 1929)

The approaching great epoch is closely connected with the ascendancy of woman. As in the best days of humanity, the future epoch will again offer woman her rightful place alongside her eternal fellow traveler and co-worker, man. You must remember that the grandeur of the Cosmos is built by the dual Origin. Is it possible, therefore, to belittle one Element of It?

All the present and coming miseries and the cosmic cataclysms to a great degree result from the subjugation and abasement of woman. The dreadful decline of morality, the diseases and degeneration of some nations are also the results of the slavish dependence of woman. Woman is deprived of the greatest human privilege—complete participation in creative thought and constructive work. She is deprived not only of equal rights but, in many countries, of equal education with man. She is not allowed to express her abilities in the building of social and government life, of which, by Cosmic Law and Right, she is a full-fledged member. But a woman slave can give to the world slaves only. The proverb “great mother, great son” has a cosmic, scientific foundation. As sons mostly take after their mothers, and daughters after fathers, great is cosmic justice! By humiliating woman, man humiliates himself! This explains today the paucity of man’s genius.

Could the terrors and crimes of today be possible if both Origins had been balanced? In the hands of woman lies the salvation of humanity and of our planet.

Woman links the two worldsLHR I, 1 March 1929

All the present and coming miseries and the cosmic cataclysms to a great degree result from the subjugation and abasement of woman.…

And woman is the one who should know and proclaim this leading Principle because from the very beginning she was chosen to link the two worlds, visible and invisible. Woman possesses the power of the sacred life energy. The coming epoch brings knowledge about this great omnipresent energy, which is manifested in all immortal creations of human genius.

Western woman is awake and realizes her powers. Her cultural contributions are already evident. However, the majority of Western women—as with all beginners—start with imitation; whereas, it is in original self-expression that real beauty and harmony are found. Would we like to see man losing the beauty of manhood? The same is true about a man who has a sense of beauty. He certainly does not wish to see a woman imitating his habits and competing with his vices. Imitation always starts with the easiest. But we hope that this first step will soon be outlived, and that woman will deepen her knowledge of Mother-Nature and will find true, original ways of self-expression.

Given images and wordsLMG II, 35

I shall explain why it is important to heed the words and the given images. Our pupils have an exercise of thought in which out of a whole message a part or a single word is given and, perceiving the direction of the thought, each one adds to it according to his understanding, sensing that which is closest to himself. But in time the personal is superseded by a united consciousness, and upon a single word there is built a complex structure. Thus, is attained the code of spirit.

No purpose to worship dead wordsNEC, 141

We approve an abridgment of language. Combinations of new definitives are desirable. Such a new language releases from immobility of speech. It is of no purpose to worship dead words. It is far more joyful to see how the meaning of a sound effect penetrates and convinces. Everyone understands that not words convince but the sendings of the brain center. Sugary speech can attain its goal because of its impression upon the listener. One is more likely to conquer by a silent gesture than by cold rhetoric.

When people say, “This is the language of my father,” ask them: “Are the worn-out shoes of your father still usable?”

Words and the significance of thoughtAY, 50

When will people understand the significance of thought and word? People still lend greater importance to the spilling of a sack of ordinary seeds than to the spilling of destructive words. Any rodent can pick up the seeds, but even an Arhat may not be able to clear away the consequences of thought and word. When people depart for a sea voyage they take with them only carefully chosen things; but in their speech they are unwilling to pay attention to its meaning, and to the consequences of their words. We do not threaten, but We do point out the first signs of smoke curling from under your shirt.

The real meaning of words and receptivity of the inner centerAY, 248

The ability to penetrate to the real meaning of words lies in the receptivity of the inner center, not in analyzing the structure of speech. Submit the simplest idea to a thousand people for discussion, and you might receive only one correct interpretation. One should train oneself to a true understanding of speech. Yoga will aid in approaching the true understanding of thought. The understanding of different languages originates from the receptivity of one center—the larynx.

It is useful to read to children in the schools some texts in unfamiliar languages, observing how an unknown tongue is grasped. The hand easily adapts itself to familiar objects. The consciousness will easily grasp sounds familiar from the past. How many useful observations could be readily made! Yoga constantly teaches this joyous alertness.

Words pollute spaceAY, 367

Dogs, as we know, will quarrel; do not emulate them. Consciousness obliges one to understand the consequences of a quarrel. Unwise words rise like black whirlwinds. It is dangerous to pollute space. It is dangerous to provoke a return blow upon oneself and one’s near ones.

Words of the heart and spaceHIER, 105

The word that issues from the heart saturates space. Hence, thoughts that flow in an impetuous torrent form a sphere which becomes a defense against the poisonous gases of the planet. Thoughts become a defensive net for humanity. Only these luminous emanations give the strength to withstand the darkness. Hence it is so important to stratify space with words of the heart, they contain light. Thus, humanity is uplifted upon the wings of thought. Thus, evolution is being built.

The effects of words in SpaceBRO, 394

The sound of words should be beautiful, such harmony also produces exalted thinking. It is inadmissible to disregard any means of uplifting the consciousness. Foul language, as an infection of space, brings debasement of the whole intellect. Ugliness in all its aspects is a dangerous malady. For humanity's sake, one must understand where is cure and where dissolution. It is time to cognize the purification of earthly existence. It is inadmissible to disturb space with curses that unexpectedly smite innocent beings. An arrow loosed in a moving crowd can strike a blameless one. Likewise, during thinking one can strike where karma has prepared a weak spot. Perhaps, without such a blow, karma could have somehow been altered, yet the misfortune of the blow can smite undeservedly. Therefore, people must understand their responsibility for each word let loose.

Spoken words but no actionAY, 646

Many words are spoken about the Teaching of Life, but few are put into action. There is little value in those who repeat the Teaching without applying it. We are not speaking about those who lack understanding, but those who have approached the Teaching are responsible for their thoughts and actions.

Higher energy of words turned into actionHIER, 41

The quality of action is forged by striving. When words are turned into action, the higher energy is affirmed. Only in life can one manifest the higher energies. Not words but actions are considered to be the affirmation of the higher energies. Only when the potential of the spirit is manifested in action can concordance with the Highest be affirmed.

Thus, a striving quest provides the key to the Infinite.

Words of blasphemy and slanderHIER, 376

I shall say of treason to the fanatics and bigots. They assume that treason is only a matter of thirty pieces of silver, but they forget that it is contained in each blasphemy and slander. One should not think that a malicious word is not also treason. It is precisely malice that is often inseparable from treason and slander. One and the same black tree nurtures these loathsome branches, and their fruits are as black as the roots of shame. One must speedily liberate oneself from the horror of malicious words.

The Fiery World and wordsFW I, 171

The need for fiery knowledge will, like the imagination, lie in the domain of accumulated life experiences. Indeed, remembrance of the Fiery World is incomparably rarer than subtle impressions. Often people have no words to express fiery impressions. People usually do not think with their minds, but limit their thinking by the conventional words of others, thus introducing dead words into the vast domain of thought.

Humanity responsible for uttered wordsFW I, 426

The ability to draw a circle around the area covered by the dark and crawling ones can help in affirming one's dauntless outlook. One can stave off the approach of the dark ones by repeating My Name as a Mantram. Thus, we can understand why humanity is responsible for uttered words. If the utterance of a benign concept results in a calm state, the opposite will irritate, worry, and demean that which exists. People saturate the world with the most malicious words; will not rivers of evil flow from them? One must have lost respect for human dignity not to acknowledge that the consequences of evil speech are terrible. It is said continuously that malevolence bears fruit after a century. The historian can verify the harvest from such black seeds.

Words and their effectsBRO, 395

Many think it not worth-while to be concerned about words and thoughts, for the world goes on in spite of curses. But such fools are blind, precisely, they do not see all the afflictions and misfortunes attracted by humanity. Let us not threaten, but advise purifying the atmosphere. Again, large areas have been encompassed by violent commotions. Shocks may be expected. Not for long can people put off the results of their sowings.

Words from lofty GuidanceSUP, 145

People complain that they are deprived of lofty Guidance, but such a strong statement is unreasonable. We give much, and it is they who perceive little! Therefore, We remind people to pay more heed to words that spring forth suddenly in the conscious mind. Such words should not be dismissed, but should be carefully applied in life. Many other useful ideas come in a flash, like flying butterflies, but people only brush them aside.

We never tire of disseminating useful information, and We advise you to treat it with care, for it will be of use in the Subtle World. Thus, one should develop the particular ability to catch the thoughts of space.

Words used as liesSUP, 942

Urusvati does not tolerate lies. Only the smallest part of humanity struggles against the lie. Some fight against it for moral reasons, whereas others already understand the cosmic harm of the lie. Indeed, since thoughts and words live in space and emit vibrations over immeasurable distances, how many dark and false inventions appear and poison the planet!

The Supermundane World, too, suffers from human lies. And the liars themselves will have to face their own poisonous sendings. They will then understand how gravely they infect space. The cosmic harm of the lie should be taught in schools. The moral teaching will penetrate deeply into the consciousness of students, and the scientific demonstration of its irreparable harm will change their thinking.

Words spoken by the heartLHR II, 3 September 1935

I do not agree with you that eloquence is so essential. It is not a bad asset, but that is all. Of most importance is the quality of one’s aura. Often, an eloquent speaker leaves just a fleeting impression, that is, if the spiritual tension of his aura was insignificant. Whereas two or three words spoken from the heart by a bearer of a luminous aura may transform the one who comes into touch with him. Thus, the main influence comes not from words, but rather from the quality and the tension of our inner fire. The very presence of such fiery aura in a large and mixed gathering brings soothing accord. It can happen that a mediocre lecturer, for some reason, singularly kindles his audience, and he gives himself the credit for it; but in reality, there may have been in the crowd one or two intense harmonious auras, which, by their powerful vibrations, created the atmosphere favorable for perception. Arhip Ivanovich Kuinji, the teacher of N.K. [Prof. Nicholas Roerich.], was quite devoid of the gift of words. With difficulty, and between lengthy pauses, he could combine only a few words, but by the power of his inner fire, he could make such a tremendous impression with those few words. This abrupt speech suited his powerful spirit—like the heavy blows of a sculptor’s hammer, it could bring forth sparks from blocks of stone!

Abhidharma – (Sk.). From Buddhist metaphysics. The light of Abhidharma signifies the highest consciousness, Buddhi-manas. (LHR I, p 496)

The light of Abhidharma is the combination of the fire of higher spheres with the radiation of the consciousness. (AY, 498)

Abodes of the Brotherhood – Let the heights of the Caucasus, Altai, and Himalayas be the abodes of the Beautiful Brotherhood. (BR, 361)
see also Brotherhood, Hierarchy

Abramram – When you hear the word Abramram, it will be a reminder about the center of the Chalice, where is concentrated the straight-knowledge predestined for the future evolution. (AY, 596)
see also Chalice

Absentation – Amidst deeply engrossing occupations you have more than once felt a sudden expenditure of energy. Even during the most absorbing labors you might have sensed an inexplicable absentation. A perceptive disciple values these flights of consciousness. (BR, 603)
see also Cloud of Cognition

Absent-mindedness – May be due to the tension of the cosmic currents absorbing one's psychic energy. (BR, 517)

Absolute – see Parabrahman

Abyss of Vortices – There could have been noticed extraordinary spatial currents of such tension that they overpowered mental sendings. This manifestation is rare, and the more should it be noted. Raging spatial currents do not continue for long, therefore it is very instructive to observe them. They cannot be prolonged, or they would produce a catastrophe. Equilibrium in itself can resist them, yet each such moment is dangerous. We call this the abyss of vortices. (BR, 313)

Acceleration – Acceleration, as well as retardation, proceeds in waves. Therefore, when perceiving a wave of acceleration one must succeed in casting into it as many seeds as possible. (LMG II, p 128)

Accumulations – The principle of cumulation lies in spirit-creativeness. (INF II, 114)

A sensitive Agni Yogi knows all paths to the realization of Infinity. The spirit-knowledge reads the Book of Life, and the wisdom of ages is deposited as accumulations in the Chalice. (INF II, 500)

The magnet of the spirit, this propellent aggregator of the life energies, is nurtured by the manifestation of the cosmic energy. The accumulations in the Chalice gather around the seed of the spirit, enveloping it in their colors. The very striving seed of the spirit responds to the fiery impulsion. Thus, the magnet of the spirit of an Agni Yogi is the creative sower of the affirmed fires. Verily, the sower of cosmic fires into the consciousness of men is a true co-worker of Cosmos. (INF II, 35)

see also Chalice

Achievement – Achievement is not renunciation; it is containment and movement. (LMG II, p 176)

The Golden Path, the combining path, affirms both qualities—achievement and caution. Otherwise all would be driven to suicide. Achievement is created in full consciousness and responsibility. (BR, 155)

Action – If an action is small, it needs the help of various handmade objects. But when the action becomes great it can dispense with earthly objects. This is the first touchstone of action. ...

The second quality of action is its mobility. Like a whirlwind of primary matter, a true action must vibrate with possibilities. Only a flight can crown a luminous manifested thought.

The third quality of action is its unexpectedness. Every action which has astounded the minds of the people was the result of an unexpected way of thinking.

The fourth quality of action is its elusiveness. Only this quality protects the action against destructiveness.

The fifth quality of action is its convincingness. As every lightning flash connects our consciousness with the Cosmos, so each action should strike like a flashing sword.

The sixth quality of action is its lawfulness. Only the consciousness of the fundamentals of the world evolution can advance the action immutably.

The seventh quality of action is its pure motive. By this path one can move weighty loads without fatigue. (LMG II, p 197)

Adaptability – Adaptability is the best means for conservation of forces… The development of adaptability actually takes place in the current of life. To all is known the sensation of the boundaries of spheres… Sternly accustom yourselves to reception of contrasting sensations, to the grasping of unexpectedness. All is expected, because all is realized. (COM, 245)

Aditi – (Sk.). The Vedic name for the Mulaprakriti of the Vedantists; the abstract aspect of Parabrahman, though both unmanifested and unknowable. In the Vedas Aditi is the "Mother-Goddess", her terrestrial symbol being infinite and shoreless space. (TG)

The first differentiation in the periodic manifestations of eternal Nature, sexless and infinite, is Aditi in "That", or the potential space inside the abstract Space. In its next manifestation it appears as the divine immaculate Mother-Nature within the all-embracing absolute Infinity. Thus, Space is called "Mother" until its cosmic activity begins, and Father-Mother in its first stage of awakening. (LHR I, pp 487-488)

Age – Honored is old age in a body with a clear consciousness; for in the essential nature there is then no old age. (COM, 144)

Agni – (Sk.). The God of Fire in the Veda; the oldest and the most revered of Gods in India. (TG)

It is astonishing to what a degree some remember instances from their past lives, whereas others have completely lost all memories of their former accumulations. A karmic cause does not completely explain such a marked difference in the understanding of life. Truly, the deciding factor in such understanding lies not in the circumstances of former lives, but in the acceptance of Agni. People call such wisdom a talent, but it is no special talent to keep Agni alight. Only the kindling of the centers produces uninterrupted vigilance of consciousness. Even a partial manifestation of Agni already preserves the accumulations inviolate. Agni is no violator, but our friend. It must be explained that the ascent of the spirit is indeed a manifestation of Agni. (FW I, 516)

Fire is at the very threshold! One must call to mind how it is to be encountered, and one must understand that only Agni, psychic energy, can be the interpreter at the approach of Fire. (FW I, 567)
see also Agni Yoga, Psychic Energy

Agni Yoga – Deals with the highest fiery transmutations of all centers which cannot be achieved by any mechanical methods but requires the direct controlling influence of the Great Teacher. The high attainment of Agni Yoga can be reached only by a spirit which possesses age-long spiritual accumulations, collected in the center of the Chalice. Another thing that is characteristic of Agni Yoga is that its achievement must be attained during everyday life, while all the other Yogas (except Karma Yoga) demand isolation from ordinary life and thus are not sufficient for the present and future evolution.

Agni Yoga is a synthesis of all Yogas. In all the ancient Hindu scriptures the approaching Fiery Epoch has been predicted. It is said that Agni—the Fire that is found in varying degrees at the foundation of all Yogas will saturate the atmosphere of our planet tremendously, and all the branches of Yoga will be fused into a fiery synthesis. Verily, Agni Yoga is a fiery baptism. (LHR I, p 411)

At first you were shown the crudely material laws. You participated in levitation and in experiments of materialization and transmission of objects. This was performed not for attraction, but for austere knowledge. After that you were shown the astral world, but not for immersion in it. Expanding the consciousness, you received the possibility of knowing the auras and images of incarnations. Finishing with the semi-material world, we have approached cosmic clairvoyance and clairaudience. Using the opened centers of Sister Urusvati, rays of different properties and the structure of finest substances could be shown. Thus we approached the realization of far-off worlds, which is close to the element of fire and therefore dangerous. Hence the regime of cold was needed. The results were brilliant. Without specific shocks to the organism, it was possible to demonstrate the granulation of Fohat, in other words, to receive the so-called prismatic sight.

Why is it important to sense the manifestation of Fohat? The granulation of this finest energy is laid in the foundation of cosmic coagulations. It means that precisely Fohat will be the father that gives the impetus to the formation of new spatial bodies. He who attains the knowledge of far-off worlds will feel the strength and beauty of the crystals of Fohat. This is a difficult experiment, and We rejoice, because the physical body rarely assimilates the finest energies. (AY, 145)

Ahamkara – (Sk.). The high condition of consciousness during the opening and unification of the higher centers. This concept is the opposite of that of the lower condition of selfhood which is also sometimes called "Ahamkara". (LHR I, p 401)

The high state of the fiery seed when it can already affirm itself without egoism. Thus the Fiery Gates are opened when not only is egoism burned away but a worthy evaluation of self is achieved. Only then can the spirit verily bring its sole heritage to the altar of Light. (FW I, 602)

The conception of "I", Self-consciousness or Self-identity; the "I", egotistical and mayavic principle in man, due to our ignorance which separates our "I" from the Universal ONE-SELF Personality, Egoism. (TG)

Akasa – (Sk.). The subtle, supersensuous spiritual essence which pervades all space; the primordial substance erroneously identified with Ether. But it is to Ether what Spirit is to Matter, or Atma to Kama-rupa. It is, in fact, the Universal Space in which lies inherent the eternal Ideation of the Universe in its ever-changing aspects on the planes of matter and objectivity, and from which radiates the First Logos, or expressed thought. This is why it is stated in the Puranas that Akasa has but one attribute, namely sound, for sound is but the translated symbol of Logos — "Speech" in its mystic sense. (TG)

My Teaching can disclose the waves of the tested Akasa. (AY, 9)

Akbar – The great Mogul Emperor of India, the famous patron of religions, arts, and sciences, the most liberal of all the Mussulman sovereigns. There has never been a more tolerant or enlightened ruler than the Emperor Akbar, either in India or in any other Mahometan country. (TG)

A-lal-Ming – When Tibet's spiritual teacher, A-lal Ming, was striving towards the mountains where first the Lord appeared to Him,
He still remained in the valley and accepted the chalice. (LMG I, 353)

Amrita – The ambrosial drink or food of the gods; the food giving immortality. The elixir of life churned out of the ocean of milk in the Puranic allegory. An old Vedic term applied to the sacred Soma juice in the Temple Mysteries. (TG)

see also Chalice of Amrita

Anemia – Is a result of an outflow of psychic energy. (BR, 473)

Anguish – How can a sensitive spirit avoid the onset of world anguish? There has never been a case of a man being able to detach himself in spirit from the earthly plane without contraction of his nerve centers, exactly like that of the daring aviator who feels a singular tremor in his heart upon detaching himself from the Earth. (LMG II, 160)

In the achievements of the future, special attention must be paid to the coordination of the development of the spirit and the bodily condition. The body has difficulty in overtaking the spirit; attacks of anguish occur when the spirit is raised to heights. (AY, 383)

The growth of consciousness is accompanied by spasms of anguish, and this is verily unavoidable. The non-conformity of Infinity with earthly reality can but call forth the feeling of a just realization. There is no way to Infinity without sensing all surroundings. Be assured that the greater the consciousness, the greater the anguish. (AY, 568)

Dissatisfaction and anguish often are a response to the call of Space. (INF I, 78)

Do not be disturbed by anguish, it comes from fire. (HIER, 305)

The heart is a temple, but not an abode of idols. Thus We are not against the construction of a temple, but We object to fetishism and to bazaars. Likewise, when We speak of constructing a temple like a heart, We do not mean that it be of heart-shaped design. We speak of its inner significance. A temple cannot exist without realization of the infinite chain; so, too, the heart contacts all the sensations of the Cosmos. The heart's anguish or joy interresounds with the far-off spheres. Why, then, is anguish sensed more often than joy? Of course, the constant cosmic perturbations agitate the heart that adheres to them. Therefore is the service of such a heart so great upon the scales of the world. Help the structure of the world! There is neither a day nor an hour when the world is not in danger! Two eyes alone cannot foresee these dangers, but only three, as upon the Banner of the Lords! One must comprehend the temple of the heart as an imminent sensation. Not without cause was the heart marked by the sign of the cross. Thus, the sign of the cross eternally accompanied the temple of the heart. (H, 4)

The heart anguish comes ... from straining for luminous desires. Heart-anguish primarily fills our being with the substance of power. Naturally, the sculpture of Akasa is not always connected with heart pangs, but a feeling of anguish reveals, in any case, tension and cooperation with the Primary Thought-Frame. (H, 51)

the subtle currents. Among the subtle manifestations of such reverberations of the spirit must be especially noticed those which are audible to the fiery spirit. How vital it is to hearken to that apparently inaudible tone which can transmit to the spirit spatial joy or anguish. The manifestation of inexplicable anguish can derive from the sounding of a spatial tone. The subtle organism of this bearer of Fires shudders from these notes of space. The physical ear cannot hear it, but the subtle hearing detects that which is inaudible to the ear and receives it in the heart. Therefore, the striving spirit is a creator in unison with the Cosmos, and knows the cosmic soundings which intensify space. In them is contained summons or call; in them is victory or battle; in them is sorrow or joy. Verily, he who knows these soundings and experiences the joy and anguish of communion with space, may be called a great fire-bearer. To this the fiery heart of the Mother of Agni Yoga bears witness. Thus let us remember the great unified Heart. (FW III, 187)

Often community members ask whence come the assaults of anguish which they sometimes experience. One must know that without these spasms of anguish no progress is possible. After crossing over a precipice you feel a weakening of the leg muscles. During the expansion of consciousness you cross over many invisible precipices. Nodal growths of the consciousness result in leaps and psychic spasms contract the nerve centers. One should not be afraid of these spasms, a brief rest will right these contractions. Growth of the consciousness is more difficult to trace than the growth of a hair. The consciousness conquers and eradicates. The burning of crossed bridges does not reveal the progressive sign-posts, but it leaves open the one possibility of assault. It is valuable not only to strive forward but also to destroy the rubbish behind one. Just now you perceive how the majority of people could have advanced, but they cling to age-old rubbish. Guard both My signs—the sign of Service and the sign of Community. One is breaking away from the old, the other is evolution.
see also Heart

Anonymity – Anonymity remains the ideal of true evolution. This is one of the conditions of realization of the brevity of earthly existence, and it is the best way to successful cooperation. (COM, 176)

Antakarana – (Sk.). In the East, the technique of communication between the lower and the higher Manas is called Antakarana, or bridge, or path. By this, the lower ego, in its turn, extends to the higher Ego all those impressions and thoughts which can be assimilated (due to their high quality) with our eternal beings, thus becoming immortal accumulations of our Chalice. (LHR I, p 473)

Anura – The manifestation of Anura—in other words, charm of the heart—is very highly valued. It belongs among the cumulative and undefinable qualities. Anura is charm of the heart, or regal heart. It can be seen how from one's childhood this charm unfolds, sometimes even as a burden to oneself, because people of differing tensions confuse the rhythm. (H, 489)

Appollonius of Tyana – (Gr.). A wonderful philosopher born in Cappadocia about the beginning of the first century; an ardent Pythagorean, who studied the Phoenician sciences under Euthydemus; and Pythagorean philosophy and other studies under Euxenus of Heraclea. According to the tenets of this school he remained a vegetarian the whole of his long life, fed only on fruit and herbs, drank no wine, wore vestments made only of plant-fibres, walked barefooted, and let his hair grow to its full length, as all the Initiates before and after him. He was initiated by the priests of the temple of Asclepios at Aegae, and learnt many of the "miracles" for healing the sick wrought by the god of medicine. Having prepared himself for a higher initiation by a silence of five years, and by travel, visiting Antioch, Ephesus, Pamphylia and other parts, he journeyed via Babylon to India. ... At Babylon he was initiated by the Chaldees and Magi. After his return from India, he shewed himself a true Initiate, in that the pestilences and earthquakes, deaths of kings and other events, which he prophesied duly happened. At Lesbos, the priests of Orpheus, being jealous of him, refused to initiate him into their peculiar mysteries, though they did so several years later. He preached to the people of Athens and other cities the purest and noblest ethics, and the phenomena he produced were as wonderful as they were numerous and well attested. ... After crossing the Hindu Kush, Appollonius had been directed by a king to the abode of the Sages, ... by whom he was taught unsurpassed knowledge. His dialogues with the Corinthian Menippus indeed give us the esoteric catechism and disclose many an important mystery of nature. Appollonius was the friend, correspondent and guest of kings and queens, and no marvelous or "magic" powers are better attested than his. At the end of his long and wonderful life he opened an esoteric school at Ephesus, and died aged almost one hundred years. (TG)

Arhat – (Sk.). "The worthy one", lit., "deserving divine honours". This was the name first given to the Jain and subsequently to the Buddhist holy men initiated into the esoteric mysteries. The Arhat is one who has entered the best and highest path, and is thus emancipated from re-birth. (TG)

For the achievement of true immortality, in other words, for the maintaining of consciousness on all the four planes of existence, and for becoming an Arhat, it is essential to connect, precisely in the physical body, the fourth, fifth, and seventh principles and fuse them in the sixth—Buddhi. All the qualities of the basic energy, being separately transmuted by its fire, must be harmonized and expressed in the highest quality of psychic energy. (LHR I, p 473)

Armageddon – The great decisive Battle between the Forces of Light and darkness. It was predicted in all the ancient scriptures, and the name, "Armageddon" as well as the description of it, can be found in the Apocalypse. The year 1936 is indicated as most significant. It is interesting to note that these calculations are also found in the pyramid of Cheops. Thus, today we find ourselves in the midst of this Battle, which will increase. This Battle is still more fearful in the Subtle World, but eventually its reflections will be intensified on the earthly plane. Great is the tension of space, and the tensed fiery energies are surging in the subterranean and superterranean spheres, threatening an explosion. Verily, the planet is in convulsion. The time is most ominous. Verily, we are facing an incredible world catastrophe. As it is said, "The hostile elements of the race refuse to submit to destiny. The departing race seeks to destroy the chosen successors, but we must save them. Destiny may be eased and the Battle ended sooner." So far, there are no signs of easement. But the ark of the sixth race is already being built. Let us trust that it will be larger than that of Noah. (LHR I, p 325)

The essence of Armageddon lies not only in the exhaustion of old causes but also in the establishment of new ones. (BR, 146)

Armor of Light – Investigators of psychic energy can bear witness that the evidences of the energy are infallible. ... The primary energy cannot show the negative to be positive. Such purely scientific evidence protects people against an evil approach. Not without foundation is such discrimination called the armor of Light. (BR, 28)

That same salutary energy which purifies the consciousness also creates an armor. (BR, 240)
see also Protective Net, Shield

Arrows – In all Teachings the dark forces are represented as shooting their fiery arrows at the Illumined One. This battle is depicted in beautiful symbols. No less beautifully is it indicated that the malevolent arrows do not reach their target but form a protective net. Let us not regard this heedlessly; this symbol is entirely realistic, even from the viewpoint of modern science. The malevolent flame encounters the great fire of the heart and becomes subservient, only augmenting the Agni of the Great Spirit. Thus, the heart which manifests all its power is invincible. (FW I, 650)

Aryavarta – (Sk.). The northern part of India. Valleys in the Himalayas where the emigrants of Central Asia established their homes after the disaster of Atlantis. Translated, it means "The Country of the Aryans." (LHR I, p 427)

Ashrams – (Sk.). If we look on our planet from above, we will observe, besides the evident volcanoes, particular vortices of light and darkness. The human spirit can create powerful manifestations of energy. One may state that the vortices of Light are saviors of the equilibrium of the planet. Nor is it far from the truth to state that the vortices of darkness contain a destructive gas, which is not only deadly to the crust of the planet but can alter the climate and even significantly effect a shifting of the poles. Thus powerful is the significance of the human spirit. Hence We treasure the Ashrams where purified Agni is gathered. Many teachings have pointed out the importance of pure places where psychic energy can be affirmed. References to the importance of pure places are found in the Sacred Writings, in the Bible, and in the Rig-Veda; the Tao likewise contains knowledge of these treasure-places of Earth. We rejoice when We notice the rise of new Ashrams, for people so seldom think of the power of their spirits! (FW I, 664)

Verily, Ashrams have a great importance for the earthly and for the Subtle World. Ashrams may be defined as magnets and ozonators. Being filled with heart energy provides a conduit for many things. (FW II, 203)

Assistance – Is it possible to imagine how diversely is assistance given? It should not be thought that the means of assistance are limited only to the methods of charitable institutions. The best help arrives unexpectedly, but one must accept it. There are many meetings; there are many unknown letters; many unexpected books are sent, as if by chance. Over many years, he who possesses a searching mind will compare these strange incidents, and if he is not devoid of a sense of gratitude, he will send his thankfulness to the unknown Guardians. (BR, 572)

People talk much about the aid that should issue from Our Dwelling. Let us analyze the capacity of people to accept this help. Each person who dreams of assistance has already defined selfishly the direction and measure of it. Can an elephant find room in a low cellar? But the seeker of help considers neither the proportion nor the suitability of it. Lilies should flower during wintertime, and in the desert a spring must burst forth; otherwise the Teacher's merit is small.

"But, maker of the desert and lord of the cold, you created your own thirst and shudder from the cold of your own heart. My spring remained beyond your vision and you did not turn to regard My flowers. You encrusted your way with selfishness and found time only to guard your cherished soles from the thorns which you yourself grew. My help took flight like a startled bird. My messenger hastens back, and white Lobnor bays mournfully. My help is rejected."

But the traveler continues dully to call for help, and directs his attention to the site of his future destruction. Therefore We always advise alertness, flexibility, open-mindedness. Otherwise one cannot keep in step with reality. (AY, 164)

Astral Qualities – They (astral qualities) exactly correspond to the five senses which function in the earthly body plus the sixth (the straight-knowledge, or so-called intuition, which is still rare), and then the seventh (synthesis, or spirituality). The astral feelings exist in the same way as the physical but as their subtle counterparts. It is impossible to separate them; unity manifests its harmony. There is a complete correspondence between the subtle and the physical bodies. Therefore, the axiom "as above, so below" must always be borne in mind.

But indeed, just as the outward feelings are manifested only when there are conditions suitable for them, even so, the inner spiritual abilities are manifested when the astral or spiritual conditions are created on the inner plane. The outer world is only a reflection of the inner one. (LHR I, pp 253-254)

Atlantis – (Gr.). The continent that was submerged in the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans according to the secret teachings and Plato. (TG)

Atma, Atman – (Sk.) Are often mentioned as synonomous. Exoterically, they manifest the seventh principle which is the eternal vital force spread throughout the whole Cosmos. But esoterically Atma often means The World Soul. (LHR I, p 439)

Atma must be understood as the energy of space purified by unceasing rotation, like a great churning. One must understand how the spirit and Atma cooperate like electron and proton. (HIER, 241)

The Universal Spirit, the divine Monad, the 7th Principle, so-called, in the septenary constitution of man. The Supreme Soul. (TG)

Augoeides – (Gr.). Bulwer Lytton calls it the "Luminous Self", or our Higher Ego. But Occultism makes of it something distinct from this. It is a mystery. The Augoeides is the luminous divine radiation of the Ego which, when incarnated, is but its shadow—pure as it is yet. This is explained in the Amshaspends and their Ferouers. (TG)

AUM – (Sk.). The sacred syllable, the triple-lettered unit; hence the trinity in one. (TG)

Why say Aum, when it is possible to say prayer? In substance they are the same, but because of its antiquity and refinement the sound Aum will be the stronger in its vibration. (AUM, 25)

Besides the many definitions of the word AUM let us recollect that: A is Thought—the Basis; U is Light—the Primary Cause; M is Mystery—the Sacred. (AUM, 132)

Aura – (Gr. & Lat.). A subtle invisible essence or fluid that emanates from human and animal bodies and even from things. ... It is called in Theosophy the akasic or magnetic aura. (TG).

Many qualities are inherent in the aura. They are measured not only according to the size of the aura, but also by its inner tension. Indeed, the highly tensed aura is both the best shield and the most potent influence on its surroundings or environment. Sometimes radiations are good in color, but are not sufficiently intense. Strengthening of the aura occurs through communion with the Higher World, as egoism falls away and selflessness is kindled. Thus, each communion with the Higher World will induce a strengthening of radiations. (AUM, 121)

Let us speak of the auras.
The egg-shaped aura is natural to the astral body. The most usual, the narrow aura, which emanates from the entire body, extends outward about two inches. In accordance with the degree of spirituality, it begins to expand from the upper nerve centers. Starting from the solar plexus, it afterwards rises toward the brain centers, forming the so-called solar aura. Influxes of blood are characteristic of the transposition of the aura, when the current of tension shifts its pressure. Even fainting spells are possible. Finally, the radiation leaves the lower extremities and forms a surrounding ring. The organism while yet in the midst of life becomes acutely sensitive, especially to sounds and colors. The utmost tranquility is needed during this transitory period. The solar aura may be of ten or fifteen inches, and of course its dimensions may increase.

In spite of the discomfort of transposition of the aura, one may congratulate him who has acquired the upper radiation. The opportunity for repose should be cautiously created. Later on a seeming new armor grows, as the nerves of the skin become strengthened. One cannot exactly divide the physical and the spiritual. The balance fluctuates and the waves travel over the organism. This must not be called a malady, but the organism must be assisted every moment to fortify itself in its new condition. (LMG II, pp 50-51)

Small as well as important events strike upon the aura, as upon musical strings. The growing aura has its advantages, and these Aeolian wings multifariously resound. The burden of the world plays its symphonies upon them. One cannot say that a man illumined by the aura is motionless. The outer shell of the aura is like a surging sea. What a task for the scientist—to trace the nourishment of the aura from within and the reflection from without. Verily, a world battle!

The symbol of the burden of the world is a man carrying a sphere. All complex sensations are increased to the point of pain. An impression can be received as being between the hammer and an anvil. Therefore, the attainment of the rainbow aura is so practical, because it carries within itself the means of assimilation of all that exists. Even the best monochromatic auras must quench the conflagrations by themselves, drawing from their own ocean. Whereas a rainbow aura easily repels and takes in the rays. (LMG II, pp 77-78)

The vulnerability resulting from injury to the aura is terrible. One can imagine how one breach in the aura leads to the mutilation of its entire structure. Drowsiness, which can be noted when the aura is rent, originates from the consistently increased activity of the fiery energy when directed toward external radiations. During the process of restoration, the organism, and especially the heart action, is in a state of depression. For this reason I deem caution necessary in one's actions as well as during the counterblows. During the battle why should one burden the hearts of friends? One could perform numerous experiments revealing how the violation of the radiations has actually been reflected upon the heart. People accept with reluctance advice about observing caution in regard to their own radiations; but even prior to their being photographed, science is already aware of the existence of these radiations from every object. One should have full respect for the human organism and understand that each shock harms the astral body primarily. Besides, if organisms have worked together for a long time in unity, they can injure each other even more severely. And such injury will be not only of each other, but also will be reflected upon others near to them. One should therefore most assiduously eliminate all conflicts. One can visualize a dark legion which makes an onslaught upon each break in the aura. It is dreadful to feed such vermin with the inner layers of radiations. The protective net alone blocks the attack of the dark forces. Each breach in the aura also threatens one with obsession. Let us therefore be even more cautious. (FW I, 520)

see also Auric Egg, Protective Net

Auric Egg – The seventh and sixth principles form the so-called magnetic field or auric egg. Thus by the width and emanations of the aura it is possible to determine the high standing or quality of the spirit. (LHR I, p 485)

Austerity of Labor – The very austerity of labor can acquire a beautiful meaning by the elimination of all coarsening effects and the introduction of the concept of cooperation. (BR, 58)

Austerity of labor has nothing in common with a censorious attitude. Only limited people condemn. Not out of condemnation is perfection born. (BR, 41)

Authenticity – Authenticity creates power, authenticity does not fear. Following authenticity one may be assured as to timeliness of decision and amplitude of means. (COM, 194)

Avakara – (Sk.). You know and understand the lofty concept "Avatar", but in order to attain it, it is needful to become "Avakara"—the fierily inspired. (COM, 180)

Avalokiteshvara – (Sk.). "The on-looking Lord". In the exoteric interpretation, he is Padmapani (the lotus bearer and the lotus born) in Tibet, the first divine ancestor of the Tibetans, the complete incarnation or Avatar of Avalokiteswara; but in esoteric philosophy Avaloki, the "on-looker", is the Higher Self, while Padmapani is the Higher Ego or Manas. The mystic formula "Om mani padme hum" is specially used to invoke their joint help. While popular fancy claims for Avalokiteswara many incarnations on earth, and sees in him, not very wrongly, the spiritual guide of every believer, the esoteric interpretation sees in him the LOGOS, both celestial and human. Avalon, Arthur – Translator of Indian Yogic Writings.

Avatara – (Sk.). A divine incarnation. The descent of a god or some exalted Being, who has progressed beyond the necessity of Rebirths, into the body of a simple mortal. (TG) Avidya – (Sk.). Ignorance opposed to Vidya, Knowledge. ... which proceeds from, and is produced by the illusion of the Senses or Viparyaya. (TG)

Militant darkness is familiar to all peoples under different designations. In the last analysis, darkness remains the most frightful aspect of Avidya. But it is very dangerous when it begins to act. One must courageously meet its attacks in action sustained up to the point of its destruction. It has been said—darkness is as a carpet to the Fiery World. But in order to pass more quickly over the dark terrain, one should become kindled in heart. Thus the Fiery World will be the goal of victory over darkness. If darkness is perilous, then the goal must be great. (FW II, 364)

Avitchi – (Sk.). A state; not necessarily after death only or between two births, for it can take place on earth as well. Lit., "uninterrupted hell". The last of the eight hells, we are told, "where the culprits die and are reborn without interruption —yet not without hope of final redemption". This is because Avitchi is another name for Myalba (our earth) and also a state to which some soulless men are condemned on this physical plane. (TG)

Ayur Veda – (Sk.). The Veda of Life. The Teaching of Life. (TG)

Balsam – An aromatic, resinous substance flowing from certain trees and very valuable for its medicinal properties.

Balsam Of The Mother Of The World – A wonderful medicine based on a most ancient prescription. It is irreplaceable in the treatment of old, malignant wounds. (LHR I, 260) Baltrushaitis – Russian poet who translated the Bhagavad-Gita into Russian.

Balu – see Moru

Banner of Light – The Standard is a symbol of the leadership of the Hierarch and carried by the warrior into the Great Battle.

Banner of Peace and Culture – see Roerich Pact and Banner of Peace

Bardo – Is the period between death and re-birth—and may last from a few years to a Kalpa. It is divided into three sub-periods (1) when the EGO delivered of its mortal coil enters into Kama-loka (the abode of Elementaries); (2) when it enters into its 'Gestation State'; (3) when it is reborn in the Rupa Toka of Deva-Chan. (ML, p 105)

Bardo Thodol – Tibetan Book of the Dead.

Battle – We call to calmness and at the same time constantly speak of battle. One should understand this struggle as an accumulation of strength through work. It is impossible to intensify energy without labor, and each labor is a battle with chaos. (BR, 542)

The rhythm of battle lies not in a desire to kill. I affirm the manifested forces do not go out to fight; they stand on the defensive against chaos. Thus it is not easy for many to understand that the battle is continuous, only its rhythm changes. Timid ones tremble at a single mention of the battle and ask, When will it end? But they become completely crestfallen when told that the battle will come to an end only with the termination of chaos. (BR, 490)

Baume Bengue – (Fr.). A medicinal baume, which contains a large amount of menthol, useful in the treatment of painful nerve centers. A popular remedy. (LHR I, 146)

Bearer of the Chalice – Corresponds to the Vedic state Ahamkara. One who carries within himself all the highest fires and through striving and achievement becomes thus a great and forceful leader.

Beauty – Throughout the history of humanity one may find convincing proofs of beauty having been a shield. (BR, 498)

According to our method, beauty is born of tension. (H, 447)

Beauty is contained in each participation in the construction of the New World. This is the true realm of the heart. This desired purification of life gives that solemnity which is like an inextinguishable Light. (H, 593)

Bekhterev, Vladimir Mikhailovich – (1857-1927) A Russian neuropathologist from the province of Viatka. He promoted the first psycho-physiological laboratory, founded in 1907, the St. Petersburg Psycho-neurological Institute, and was the author of papers on "The Nerve Currents in Brain and Spinal Cord" (1882), "The Functions of the Nervous Centers" (1909), "Psychology Objectively Demonstrated" (1910) and others. (EB)

Bell, The – The Center of Cosmic Foundation. (LHR I, p 427)

Brahmarandra-chakra, or the Bell, on the top of the head. (LHR I, 427)

There is a center in the brain which is called the bell. Like a resonator it gathers the symphony of the world, and it can transform the deepest silence into a thundering chord. It is said: "He who hath ears, let him hear." (LMG II, p 63)

Be-ness – A term coined by the Theosophists to render more accurately the essential meaning of the untranslatable word Sat. It is absolute Be-ness, not Being, the one secondless, undivided, and indivisible All—the root of all Nature visible and invisible, objective and subjective, to be sensed by the highest spiritual intuition, but never to be fully comprehended. (TG)

The symbol of Be-ness may be defined as attraction. Be-ness in its boundlessness may be affirmed as Infinity. The entire essence of Be-ness is contained in this law of communion with the Fire of Space and in the principle interchange of energies. Root of ideation is the profound basis of Be-ness. (H, 128)

Since Be-ness is Fire, all is permeated with it. Since Be-ness is Fiery Expanse, our life is filled with cosmic energy. (INF I, 56)

To know the significance of Be-ness means to be convinced of the goal-fitness of existence. (INF II, 282)

An opinion exists that prayer is something apart from daily life, whereas it is the foundation of life. Without a link with the Higher World humanity would be unthinkable, it would be worse than the beasts! Thus, one may regard this bond with the Higher World as the foundation of Be-ness. It matters not in what language the invocation is uttered. Thought has no tongue, yet it is all-pervading. (AUM, 42)

History shows how the nests of true thoughts have been put together, therefore the science of thought is the science of Be-ness. It is inadmissible to complicate the study of thought with any restrictions. Besides, this science must be forever alive, for thought continually vibrates and lives in space. Thus, an aspiring study of thought leads to an understanding of so-called phenomena, which are nothing but unrealized psychic energy in its various manifestations.
(AUM, 287)

Benevolence – An aspect of the magnet of the Heart of Hierarchy and the Teachings of Light. Exoterically, kindness and charity.

The heart that has consecrated itself to righteousness radiates benevolence continuously, independently of the volitional sendings. Similarly, the sun's rays are not sent with premeditation. The heart that has pledged itself to evil will thrust out arrows consciously, unconsciously, and continuously. The heart of goodness sows about itself health, smiles, and spiritual bliss. The heart of evil destroys warmth and, like a vampire, sucks out the vital strength. Thus, the activity of hearts, good and evil, is unceasing. (H, 63)

Each righteous attempt helps the cause.
It is necessary to send the arrows through Me or directly,
but the aim must be benevolent.
Arrows may be aimed even at a rogue.
For the sake of My Cause thou mayest be insistent,
but without anger,
spreading the creative force of benevolence.
Wrath begets wrath, but My children can extinguish the red flame with the blue ray.
With the power of the blue ray canst thou erect a temple, but the red cloud will blight the noblest tendrils of thy soul. (LMG I, 132)

In human hands benevolence is like the evening lamp. Darkness falls, but the lamp is ready and an experienced hand is there to light it. But again I say—praise each good deed, it is a manifestation of generosity. Let each spark of good be blown into a flame. Though good be accidental to a great extent, it still is good. It would be too much to demand always a conscious good action; let the darkness be dispersed, even by dim lights. Even with one spark of light, absolute darkness will no longer be such. Behind the thought, word, or deed, Light is already standing. Thus, he who knows how to find a spark of Light is already an illumined co-worker. (FW I, 193)

Bergmann, Ernest von – (1836 – 1907) A great German surgeon of Russian birth. In 1886 he introduced steam sterilization and in 1886 began to use aseptic methods. One of his specialties was cranial surgery. (EB)

The lines you quoted from the book of Ernest Bergman definitely reflect the ideas of the future, and correspond with the nearest problems. (LHR I, 182)

Bhagavan – (Sk.). The Victorious Buddha.

Bhakti-Yoga – (Sk.). The path of selfless love. A Bhakti Yogi has been called a "Lord of the Cosmic Magnet of the all embracing heart."

Birth – The spirit is connected with the embryo at the moment of conception. It begins to enter in the beginning of the fourth month when the first nerve and brain channels are being formed. The formation of the vetebral column brings in the next degree of possession of the body. Wonderful is the moment of birth when the consciousness of the spirit flashes up brightly and then binds with matter. There are even cases when words are pronounced at birth. The final possession of the body takes place at the seventh year of a child's life. (LHR I, p 167)

Black Age – The passing materialistic era of darkness. Kali-Yuga.

With justice they ask, "What distinguishes the significance of thought in the New Age? If thought is affirmed so persistently does it mean that a special designation is given to it in the regeneration of life?" This is entirely correct. If during the Black Age thought was centered around man and magnetism was spread across small distances, in the New Age thought is Space! Therefore, one must not think personally but spatially. (H, 54)

The year 1942 marks the end of the Black Age; our planet will enter a new, better epoch. Although the effects of the Black Age will still tag along, the bright sowings already begin to produce sprouts under the beneficial rays of new combinations of the luminaries; and the sowers of darkness will begin to suffer defeat. (LHR II, p 444)

Black Brotherhood – The dark forces or enemies of Light.

One should observe not only Ours but also the Black Brotherhood. It is erroneous to minimize the strength of the dark forces. Very often their victory is due to such neglect. People very often say, "They are not worth thinking about." But one ought to think about everything existing. If people justifiably protect themselves against thieves and murderers, so much the more should they guard against the assassins of the spirit. One should appraise their strength in order to better withstand them. ... But those who think that visions and dreams are caused by indigestion, can easily sleep through the most valuable signs of reality. Only those who know the strength of their adversaries can hope for victory. (FW II, 13)

Lucifer is now at the head of the Black Brotherhood, which is very powerful, for it has co-workers among the masses over the entire span of the planet. Indeed, the dark forces always act through masses; in single combat they are not strong. Likewise, they are distinquished by greater unity than the co-workers of the Forces of Light, for the realization of danger is at times the best unifier.
(LHR II, p 419)

Black Fire – The result of energies misused in irritability.

Each receptivity is already an acceptance of Fire. Tension of energy is the transformation of an undifferentiated element into active vibrations. True receptivity is always positive, because the fiery energy then acts directly. Each unlawful deviation and destruction arouses the so-called black fire. It has a peculiar analogy to venous blood. Phlebotomy had its reason. The black fire could be discharged by it. Fortunately the luminous Fire does not call for such coarse measures. The more naturally the Fire is kindled, the more beneficial it is. Hence the conclusion that the fire of love is the most perfect. You wish to protect the Hierarch, and you do so not from fear, not for gain, but from love. The substitution of fear or covetousness for love results in black fire. The result is the same in the case of any other unworthy substitutions. Every fire is magnetic; therefore one should so cautiously avoid the magnetism of the black fire. It does not transmute the particles of dense emanations, but acts just reversely, thus encumbering space. This can be especially harmful in the case of blood relationships when the dense unconsumed particles are so easily attracted and can overstrain already weakened organs. Thus, it is impractical to kindle the black fire. (FW I, 272)

In humanity's conception the Fiery World is growing together with the achievement of thought. But do not try to convince of the Fiery World a heart that is ignorant of Fire. Such coercion will only lead to the black fire. If we could count the number of servants of darkness created by various coercions, we would be terrified by the enormous total. (FW I, 276)

The enemy does not lose time and uses the black fire which, of course, is so easily ignited and fanned whenever the magnet of irritability is evident. The black fire is nothing else but irritability, so beloved by the dark ones.
(LHR I, 138)

The mechanical methods so broadly recommended for the development of psychic energy cannot give the higher quality of this energy; they only develop the black fire, which leads to disastrous results. (LHR II, p 288)

Blasphemy – Irreverence. Blasphemy results in the rending of the protective net and eventual sickness.

Our Communions are not merely for information, but are to be accepted with the heart. Soon you will finish the first part of the writings about the Fiery World. They should not be given only to the curious, for this may give birth to blasphemy. The meaning of blasphemy must be understood and full attention paid to it. Blasphemy not only repels Light; it inherently carries an actual infection. The blasphemer is not quite the same after his utterances, for he has rent a part of his protective net. One may then expect various sicknesses, for the protective net is not only a spiritual protection but also a physical one. Therefore blasphemous utterances should be forbidden, even in childhood. It is deplorable that people have lost the sense of responsibility to the extent of forgetting the significance of words. At the Fiery Gates blasphemous words will not come to one's mind, but if we consciously let them take root, they will burn the heart like red-hot knives. (FW I, 658)

Blavatasky, Helena Petrovna – (1831-1891) The greatest Occultist in the history of Western civilization, a direct agent of the Trans-Himalayan Brotherhood of Adepts.

Born August 12, 1831, at Ekaterinoslav, Ukraine, Russia, Daughter of Col. Peter Alexeyevich von Hahn, and Helena Andreyevna, nee de Fadeyev, renowned novelist who died young. ...

September 8, 1875, founded The Theosophical Society, together with Col. Olcott, William Q. Judge, and others. Published her first great work, Isis Unveiled, Fall of 1877. Became American citizen, July 8, 1878. Published The Secret Doctrine late Fall, 1888. Founded the Esoteric School the same year, and wrote her Instructions. Published The Key to Theosophy and The Voice of the Silence, 1889. She died in the midst of arduous labors, May, 8, 1891. (SD – jacket cover)

Bliss – The state of the highest tension of energies. It is analogous with what is called Nirvana, and with "Divine Nearness". The Heart might be termed the "Organ of Bliss" since it acts as a Magnet and draws its essence into itself.

Bliss, Nirvana, Divine Nearness and all analogous terms for the higher state are usually understood in an earthly sense. Thus, Bliss is always understood as an ecstatic oblivion and the rapture of some kind of indolent rest; but oblivion may be understood only as the erasure of all earthly means and examples. Truly, why such limited earthly ways, when one can already act through the higher energies? Is it possible to identify Divine Nearness with indolence and immersion in oblivion? Such a correlation is contrary to the very meaning of approach to the Highest Principle. This conjoining with the Highest, this transformation through the higher energies, primarily impels one to an increased tension of all forces. Even in extreme tension a man must not lose hold of himself. But amidst the contacts with fiery radiances, the seed of the spirit will be kindled the more, and its striving toward thought-creativeness, unrestrainable. One may wonder why people try to limit and disparage the significance of the Fiery World. They wish to clothe it in earthly limitations and also stipulate that the inhabitants of other worlds must exist in earthly bodies and dwell in earthly conditions. Only an undeveloped imagination can limit the Universe to such a degree. Therefore I so greatly emphasize the development of imagination as the basis of striving toward the Higher Worlds.

(FW I, 644)

Forgotten and eliminated from daily life is the moral perfectment and refining of our senses, so essential for the perception of Bliss, which is sent to us from Above. (LHR II, p 375)

Blood – Any food containing blood is harmful for the development of subtle energy. If humanity would only refrain from devouring dead bodies, then evolution could be accelerated. Meat lovers have tried to remove the blood, but they have not been able to obtain the desired results. Meat, even with the blood removed cannot be fully freed from the emanations of this powerful substance. The sun's rays to a certain extent remove these emanations, but their dispersion into space also causes no small harm. Try to carry out a psychic energy experiment near a slaughterhouse and you will receive signs of acute madness, not to mention the entities which attach themselves to the exposed blood. Not without foundation has blood been called sacred. (BR, 21)

Bodi, Sambodhi – (Sk.). Receptive intelligence in contradistinction to Buddhi, which is the potentiality of Intelligence. (TG)

Bodhisattva – (Sk.). Comprises two concepts: Bodhi—enlightenment or awakening, and Sattva—the essence. Bodhisattvas were the disciples of Buddhas, who voluntarily renounced their personal liberation and, following the example of their Teacher, entered upon a long, weary, thorny path of help to humanity. Such Boddhisattvas appear on earth in the midst of the most varying conditions of life. They possess the qualities of the maximum development of energy, courage, patience, constancy of striving and fearlessness. There are three joys of Bodhisattvas: the joy of giving, the joy of helping and the joy of eternal perception. Patience, always, in all, and everywhere. The Sons of Budda, the Sons of Conquerors, Bodhisattvas in their active compassion are the Mothers to the all-existing. From among their number came the founders of the great kingdoms, great religions and philosophies, many alchemists and several saints. (LHR I, pp 365-366)

A self-sacrificing, compassionate helper of humanity. ... Physically indistinguishable in any way from the rest of humanity, they nevertheless differ completely in their psychology, constantly being the heralds of the principle of the common welfare ... What qualities must a Bodhisattva possess? In the Teaching of Gotama Buddha and in the Teaching of Bodhisattva Maitreya, given by Him to Asanga, according to tradition in the fourth century, the maximum development of energy, courage, patience, constancy of striving and fearlessness were first of all underlined. Energy is the basis of everything, as it alone contains all possibilities. Buddhas are eternally in action; immobility is unknown to Them. Like the eternal motion in space, the actions of the Sons of Conquerors manifest in the worlds. (LHR I, pp 365-366)

Body – see Subtle Body

Boehme, Jacob – A great philosopher, one of the prominent mystics of the medieval ages. He was born about 1575 at Old Seidenburg, some two miles from Gorliz (Silesia), and died in 1624, at nearly fifty years of age. In his boyhood he was a common shepherd, and, after learning to read and write in a village school, became an apprentice to a poor shoemaker at Gorlitz. He was a natural clairvoyant of most wonderful powers. With no education or acquaintance with science, he wrote works which are now proved to be full of scientific truths; but then, as he says himself, what he wrote upon, he "saw it as in a great Deep in the "eternal". He had "a thorough view of the universe, as in a chaos", which yet "opened" itself in him, from time to time, as in a young plant". He was a thorough-born Mystic, and evidently of a constitution which is most rare; one of those fine natures whose material envelope impedes in no way the direct, even if only occasional, inter-communion between the intellectual and the spiritual Ego. (TG)

Pythagoras and Plato and Boehme and Paracelsus and Thomas Vaughan were men who bore their lamps amidst their fellowmen in life under a hail of nonunderstanding and abuse. Anyone could approach them, but only a few were able to discern the superearthly radiance behind the earthly face. (BR, 175)

Book of Life – In the Book of Life is contained the saturated stream of creative fire. Only upon the higher law can the page of Sublime Be-ness be affirmed. Valiantly must the spirit strive to the realization of all the subtle principles in order to attain higher knowledge. The Book of Life contains every aspiring action. The Book of Life contains the manifestation of all vital fires. The heart carries in itself all imprints of the Book of Life. (INF II, 507)

The entire Book of Life is concerned with the qualities of motives. (INF II, 506)

Boredom – Listeners must not be bored, for boredom is stagnation. (BR, 89)

Brahma – (Sk.). The student must distinguish between Brahma the neuter, and Brahma, the male creator of the Indian Pantheon. The former, Brahma or Brahman, is the impersonal, supreme and uncognizable Principle in the Universe from the essence of which all emanates, and into which all returns, which is incorporeal, immaterial, unborn, eternal, beginningless and endless. It is all-pervading, animating the highest god as well as the smallest mineral atom. Brahma, on the other hand, the male and the alleged Creator, exists periodically in his manifestation only, and then again goes into pralaya, i.e., disappears and is annihilated. (TG) Brahma-Randhra, Center of – (Sk.). A very important center located physically by a position in the crown of the head. It is connected with the heart by a spinal nerve known by the Sanskrit name of Sushumna (which is another name also for the solar ray). This center has an important function as the link between our psychic energy and the fires of space and is sort of the funnel through which the Fires of Space gain access to the Fires of all the Centers. Striving toward the heights is the best task for the Center of Brahma-Randhra. Everything heard and seen throughout the Brahma-Randhra deserves especially sensitive attention. (AY, 470-471)

see also Bell, The Brahma Vidya – (Sk.). A high form of knowledge and discrimination enabling one to discern the real nature of things and to penetrate into the mysteries of the Cosmos.

The knowledge, the esoteric science, about the two Brahmas and their true nature. (TG) Brahmavidya, Fire of – The fire of Brahmavidya is perceptible only in the eyes. A word does not contain it. Script cannot express it. Because its flame is within that thought which is not expressed in the physical shell. Only the mirror of the eye emits the sparks of highest thought. Such eyes discern the sparks of the cosmic rays which crude sight will term simply the light of the sun. In order to split the cosmic ray into the sparks of Fohat with the naked eye, the fire of Brahmavidya is needed.

The human word is futile in expressing the nature of Brahmavidya. One may partially penetrate it with the spiritual sight by peering into the shattering rays with closed eyes. But the growth of the fire of Brahmavidya will permit the perception openly of those component parts of the rays which are imperceptible to the mechanical apparatus. This possibility is already akin to the domain of communion with far-off worlds. It flashes up as unexpectedly as each illumination of consciousness. It does not respond to enforced development, but it comes at the moment of the development of the sensitiveness of the organism. The Teacher cannot force this possibility, but He rejoices when this sight is carried from darkness to light.

The same process occurs with the sounds of the far-off worlds. At first they appear undeniably in the depths of the consciousness and then unexpectedly they fly into the open, exultant ear. Those who do not understand enlightenment will not understand whereof I speak. (AY,139)

Breath of Be-ness – We shall term the cosmic energy the Breath of Be-ness. The force impelling life is comprised in each atom as inherent to each element, in which the predestined impulse in turn creates a direction. The impelling force magnetizes by its attraction that sphere which surrounds it. As a continuity of action, there will be a generation of other seeds in the spheres. These spheres fill the space, and humanity has its own affirmed combination of spheres. The spirit itself determines its sphere and upon entering it, acts as a magnetic force. The cosmic spheres and the human spheres are subject to the law of Cosmic Breath. (INF II, 15)

see also Cosmic Breath

Breath of Cosmos – see Cosmic Breath

Breath of the Mother of the World – The Knowledge and Illumination "from above" which feeds a growing consciousness.

Bromine – Among the minor narcotics beware especially of Bromine. It is an extinquisher of the fires ... (FW I, 381)

Brotherhood – In the Brotherhood each one works as much as he can. Each one helps in accordance with the measure of his forces; each one does not condemn in his heart; each one affirms knowledge according to his experience; each one lets no time escape, for it is irrecoverable; each one is ready to lend his strength to a Brother; each one displays his best quality; each one rejoices at the success of a Brother. (BR, 282)

The Brotherhood was sometimes called a salutary Community. This definition has a dual significance. Actually, the Brotherhood is primarily concerned with curative principles and establishes them among its fellow members. Each brotherhood, as a true unit, will be in itself a carrier of health. (BR, 539)

The concept of Brotherhood stands on steadfast pillars. In it there can be no restrictions of age, race, or of occasional moods. Indeed, above all else there is the primary energy. If it is manifest, and if contacts through it can be harmonized, then there will be affirmed a lasting bond. (BR, 40)

Brotherhood is conceived in the depths of the consciousness. Co-workers may differ in the degree of consciousness attained, whereas brothers will sense each other precisely according to consciousness. Brothers may not be working together outwardly, but their thinking will be strongly knit together. This will be united freely; their unity will not be a burdensome yoke or a bondage. But precisely these brothers will understand unity as a powerful motive force for the good of the world. It is impossible to place limits upon such unity, for the basis will be love. (BR, 166)

Brothers – Few there are who know how to await messages in complete magnanimity, while working, and amidst difficulties—such co-workers are the ones who become brothers. (BR, 68)

Brothers so respect each other that they do not suspect unworthy action on the part of a brother; they comprehend any situation and ponder how to render assistance. (BR, 436)

Brothers of Humanity – A group of Adepts, Arhats, and highly advanced individuals dedicated to persistent and unselfish striving to uplift humanity and save the planet.

Buddha – (Sk.). Literally, "The Enlightened". The highest degree of knowledge. To become a Buddha one has to break through the bondage of sense and personality; to acquire a complete perception of the REAL SELF and learn not to separate it from all other selves; to learn by experience the utter unreality of all phenomena of the visible Kosmos foremost of all; to reach a complete detachment from all that is evanescent and finite, and live while yet on Earth in the immortal and the everlasting alone, in a supreme state of holiness. (TG)

Means "The Illumined". In Principle, the process of perfecting is perpetual; therefore, when talking of perfection one must remember the many gradations of perfection meant for particular cycles of the planet and planets, etc. In the case of Buddha, this perfection is immeasurably high as He, together with several other Spirits, came to Earth from the highest planet in the Third Race of our cycle for the acceleration of the evolution of humanity. Therefore, He will not incarnate again on our Earth but only in the last race of the cycle of the highest planet of our solar system. (LHR I, pp 441-442)

Buddha Siddharta – (Sk.). The name given to Gautama, the Prince of Kapilavastu, at his birth. It is an abbreviation of Sarvartthasiddha and means, the "realization of all desires". Gautama, which means, "on earth (gau) the most victorious (tama)" was the sacerdotal name of the Sakya family, the kingly patronymic of the dynasty to which the father of Gautama, the King Suddhodhana of Kapilavastu, belonged. Kapilavastu was an ancient city, the birth-place of the Great Reformer and was destroyed during his life time. In the title Sakyamuni, the last component, muni, is rendered as meaning one "mighty in charity, isolation and silence", and the former Sakya is the family name. Every Orientalist or Pundit knows by heart the story of Gautama, the Buddha, the most perfect of mortal men that the world has ever seen, but none of them seem to suspect the esoteric meaning underlying his prenatal biography, i.e., the significance of the popular story. The Lalitavistara tells the tale, but abstains from hinting at the truth. The 5,000 Jatakas, or the events of former births (re-incarnations) are taken literally instead of esoterically. Gautama, the Buddha, would not have been a mortal man, had he not passed through hundreds and thousands of births previous to his last. Yet the detailed account of these, and the statement that during them he worked his way up through every stage of transmigration from the lowest animate and inanimate atom and insect, up to the highest—or man, contains simply the well-known occult aphorism: "a stone becomes a plant, a plant an animal, and an animal a man". Every human being who has ever existed, has passed through the same evolution. But the hidden symbolism in the sequence of these re-births (jataka) contains a perfect history of the evolution of this earth, pre and post human, and is a scientific exposition of natural facts. One truth not veiled but bare and open is found in their nomenclature, viz., that as soon as Gautama had reached the human form he began exhibiting in every personality the utmost unselfishness, self-sacrifice and charity. Buddha Gautama, the fourth of the Sapta (Seven) Buddhas and Sapta Tathagatas, was born according to Chinese Chronology in 1024 B.C.; but according to the Singhalese chronicles, on the 8th day of the second (or fourth) moon in the year 621 before our era. He fled from his father's palace to become an ascetic on the night of the 8th day of the second moon, 597 B.C., and having passed six years in ascetic meditation at Gaya, and perceiving that physical self-torture was useless to bring enlightenment, he decided upon striking out a new path, until he reached the state of Bodhi. He became a full Buddha on the night of the 8th day of the twelth moon, in the year 592, and finally entered Nirvana in the year 543, according to Southern Buddhism. The Orientalists, however, have decided upon several other dates. All the rest is allegorical. He attained the state of Bodhisattva on earth when in the personality called Prabhapala. Tushita stands for a place on this globe, not for a paradise in the invisible regions. The selection of the Sakya family and his mother Maya, as "the purest on earth", is in accordance with the model of the nativity for every Savior, God or deified Reformer. The tale about his entering his mother's bosom in the shape of a white elephant is an allusion to his innate wisdom, the elephant of that color being a symbol of every Bodhisattva. The statements that at Gautama's birth, the newly born babe walked seven steps in four directions, that an Udumbara flower bloomed in all its rare beauty and that the Naga kings forthwith proceeded "to baptise him", are all so many allegories in the phraseology of the Initiates and well-understood by every Eastern Occultist. The whole events of his noble life are given in occult numbers, and every so-called miraculous event—so deplored by Orientalists as confusing the narrative and making it impossible to extricate truth from fiction—is simply the allegorical veiling of the truth. It is as comprehensible to an Occultist learned in symbolism, as it is difficult to understand for a European scholar ignorant of Occultism. Every detail of the narrative after his death and before cremation is a chapter of facts written in a language which must be studied before it is understood, otherwise its dead letter will lead one into absurd contradictions. For instance, having reminded his disciples of the immortality of Dharmakaya, Buddha is said to have passed into Samadhi, and lost himself in Nirvana —from which none can return. And yet, notwithstanding this, the Buddha is shown bursting open the lid of the coffin, and stepping out of it; saluting with folded hands his mother Maya who had suddenly appeared in the air, though she had died seven days after his birth, etc., etc. As Buddha was a Chakravartti (he who turns the wheel of the Law), his body at its cremation could not be consumed by common fire. What happens? Suddenly a jet of flame burst out of the Svastica on his breast, and reduced his body to ashes. Space prevents giving more instances. As to his being one of the true and undeniable SAVIORS of the World, suffice it to say that the most rabid orthodox missionary, unless he is hopelessly insane, or has not the least regard even for historical truth, cannot find one smallest accusation against the life and personal character of Gautama, the "Buddha". Without any claim to divinity, allowing his followers to fall into atheism, rather than into the degrading superstition of deva or idol-worship, his walk in life is from the beginning to the end, holy and divine. During the 45 years of his mission it is blameless and pure as that of a god—or as the latter should be. He is a perfect example of a divine, godly man. He reached Buddhaship—i.e., complete enlightenment—entirely by his own merit and owing to his own individual exertions, no god being supposed to have any personal merit in the exercise of goodness and holiness. Esoteric teachings claim that he renounced Nirvana and gave up the Dharmakaya vesture to remain a "Buddha of compassion" within the reach of the miseries of this world. And the religious philosophy he left to it has produced for over 2,000 years generations of good and unselfish men. His is the only absolutely bloodless religion among all the existing religions: tolerant and liberal, teaching universal compassion and charity, love and self-sacrifice, poverty and contentment with one's lot, whatever it may be. No persecutions, and enforcement of faith by fire and sword, have ever disgraced it. No thunder-and-lightning-vomiting god has interfered with its chaste commandments; and if the simple, humane and philosophical code of daily life left to us by the greatest Man-Reformer ever known, should ever come to be adopted by mankind at large, then indeed an era of bliss and peace would dawn on Humanity. (TG)

Buddhi – (Sk.). The sixth principle, (i.e. Buddhi), in its highest aspect, is manifested in the heart. (LHR I, p 240)

The sixth principle, or Buddhi (often called the "spiritual soul" as distinct from the human-animal soul). (LHR I, p 472)

Kama, in connection with Manas (the higher) and Buddhi, forms the higher Subtle Body (the astral body, in order that it be not confused with its etheric double, is often called "the lower astral"), or the spiritual soul of the spiritually developed man. (LHR I, p 473)

We can say the Trinity is Atma, Buddhi and Manas; or Spirit, Soul and Intelligence; or Spirit, Substance and Light; or Spirit, Matter and Force, etc., etc. (LHR I, p 490)

The Monad becomes a personal ego when it incarnates; and something remains of that (incarnate) personality through Manas, when the latter is perfect enough to assimilate Buddhi. (LHR II, p 14)

Buddhism – The religion based upon the doctrine originally taught by Gautama Buddha. The Great Enlightenment consisted in a perception of causes of suffering and of the way of salvation from suffering. Buddhism teaches that nirvana, release from liability to suffering, from mortality, is the highest goal attainable, now or hereafter. All beings, gods and men alike, are in need of such salvation. The teaching (dharma) as to the way of salvation is embodied in the "Four Aryan (or Noble) Truths": (1) that all life is subject to suffering; (2) that desire or the will to live is the cause of repeated existences, in which sorrow is inevitable; (3) that only the annihilation of desire (that is, yearning, craving, ambition, as distinct from will) can give release; (4) that the way of escape is the "Eightfold Path" of right belief, right resolve, right word, right act, right life, right effort, right thinking, right meditation. Buddha denied the special virtue of caste, ritualism, and asceticism, and insisted upon the necessity of pity, kindliness, and patience, for salvation. Buddhism has developed and still embraces many sects. The two main divisions are Hinayana (literally, small vehicle, known as Early, Pali, or less correctly, Southern, Buddhism) and Mahayana (great vehicle, known also as Northern, or Later, Buddhism) In the latter the Buddha is deified, and an elaborate pantheon of Bodhisattvas and other divinities is found. The greater part of Buddhist art is Mahayana. (WD)

Bull's Heart – see Cor Bovis

Burden of Atlas – One may feel that the upper part of the spinal column fairly groans under pressure, but this is the bearing of the earthly burden called the Burden of Atlas. (FW II, 82)

Burden of the World – The Burden of this World. Two disciples were discussing the most expressive symbol for this concept. One proposed gold, but the other suggested that white marble might be better. Both agreed that a burden, meaning something weighty, would be best expressed by a stone. But the Teacher observed, "The smallest seed corresponds to the concept of the burden of the world." (BR, 88)

The symbol of the burden of the world is a man carrying a sphere. (LMG II, p 78)

Cabbala or Kabalah or Qabbalah – (Heb.). The esoteric wisdom of the Jews derived from the Secret Doctrine of the Chaldeans, the Egyptians, Assyrians, etc., and ultimately from the Teachings of the East. The Cabbala was traditionally handed down by oral transmission.

Cagliostro, Allessandro, Count – A famous Adept, whose real name is claimed (by his enemies) to have been Joseph Balsamo. He was a native of Palermo, and studied under some mysterious foreigner of whom little has been ascertained. His accepted history is too well known to need repetition, and his real history has never been told. His fate was that of every human being who proves that he knows more than do his fellow-creatures; he was "stoned to death" by persecutions, lies, and infamous accusations, and yet he was the friend and adviser of the highest and and mightiest of every land he visited. He was finally tried and sentenced in Rome as a heretic, and was said to have died during his confinement in a State prison. Yet his end was not utterly undeserved, as he had been untrue to his vows in some respects, had fallen from his state of chastity and yielded to ambition and selfishness. (TG) Callicratus – (Gr.) A disciple of Apollonius of Tyana.

Calls – People frequently hear voices that seem to be calling to them. Sometimes such calls are so strong that they force one to start and look around, though others present do not hear them. Can one possibly doubt that such spatial sendings do occur? (BR, 186)

Attentive observation is the more needed, for it is impossible to picture to oneself how an important manifestation can take place. Only a very refined organism can sense, as it were, a call; it will be desirous of making sudden observations. It is necessary to be prepared to respond to such a call. (BR, 314)

Spatial calls reach Earth through the most unexpected receptions. An imperative call about altruism and mutual understanding reaches certain people. But pay attention to the unexpectedness of such arrivals. If, on a map of the world, the places be marked where Our call is perceived, a very unexpected pattern will result. (BR, 478)

Precisely, grave and beautiful is our time, when the Hierarchy of Light for the first time pours so many signs on Earth; when so many Calls resound in space, and so much Light and Knowledge are given. (LHR II, p 93)

Calmness – The equilibrium of tension.

The manifestation of calmness will be a sign of Service. (BR, 30)

In an hour of consternation one must know how to evoke even a momentary calm. Such calmness and but one breath of prana will provide a strong shield. (BR, 74)

A reflection is clear on a calm surface. Each agitation distorts the clarity. Likewise, the primary energy requires calmness in order to reflect Truth. It should not be assumed that calmness is decline and enfeeblement. Only disorderly agitation can distort the mirror of energy.

People talk much about the tranquility of wise men, but it is really a great tension, so great that the surface of the energy becomes mirror-like. Thus, calmness must not be taken for inaction. (BR, 132)

We call to calmness and at the same time constantly speak of battle. One should understand this struggle as an accumulation of strength through work. It is impossible to intensify energy without labor, and each labor is a battle with chaos. Thus, knowledge of the meaning of battle will bestow calmness. (BR, 542)

Carriers of Fire – The Enlighteners and Teachers of humanity.

The sower of cosmic fires into the consciousness of men is a true co-worker of Cosmos. (INF II, 35)

The Carrier of Fire imparts to his desires a tense striving. Hence each fiery thought conforms to the tensed Magnet. Therefore, the thought of the Carrier of Fires is in itself of cosmic creativeness, and wishes of the Carrier of Fires powerfully advance evolution. (INF II, 397)

Causal Body – The spiritual Soul of man, formed by the triad of the seventh, sixth and fifth principles, where lies the true individuality of man, as distinguished from his lower soul or his personality.

This "body is no body either objective or subjective, but Buddhi, the Spiritual Soul, is so called because it is the direct cause of the Sushupti condition, leading to the Turya state, the highest state of Samadhi. It is called Karanopadhi, "the basis of the Cause", by the Taraka Raja Yogis; and in the Vedanta system it corresponds to both the Vignanamaya and Anandamaya Kosha, the latter coming next to Atma, and therefore being the vehicle of the universal Spirit. Buddhi alone could not be called a "Causal Body", but becomes so in conjunction with Manas, the incarnating Entity or Ego. (TG)

The true individuality of man is in his causal body, or spiritual soul, whereas his lower soul is his personality, i.e., the changing earthly manifestations. (LHR I, p 473)

Causality, The Law of – The law of cause and effect. The precept that every origin shall have its consequence, and every happening its cause.

Unification is affirmation of the Cosmic law of Causality. (FW III, 48)

How sublime is the law of Causality! In it is contained the answer to every question. The human mind is confused by the problem of misfortunes, but the law of Causality brings one to the law of Karma. Man is exasperated at calamities, but the law of Causality points out to him the sources of same. Man is bewildered by strange disturbances of equilibrium, but the Cosmic law invokes Higher Justice. He who is aligned with the law of Causality in his spirit, is already allied with Truth. If schools and churches would proclaim the law of Causality, the consciousness would be then on a higher level, as that which is separated from the foundations of Existence, cannot advance. It is right to affirm that a primary cause cannot exist without the one Fire of Being; and Cosmic Construction proceeds in like manner, uniting those things which by right belong together. Thus, everything is unified in the Cosmos. The law of Causality must be accepted in all its might. (FW III, 47)

see also Cause and Effect

Cause and Effect – Each manifestation is multiform. It is especially erroneous to think of a manifestation as having one single effect. Around each action there can be observed many different realms which exert an influence and on which an influence is exerted. One must assimilate the fact that the sphere of each action is far broader than can be defined according to earthly reasoning. Thus, by each action and each thought people contact several spheres. ... One must accustom oneself to the complexity of effects. (BR, 95)

When people begin to distinguish causes from effects, much is perceived, but up to the present people recognize only effects, and this only in the crudest degree. No one wishes to understand that a certain time must elapse between cause and effect. (BR, 268)

see also Causality, The Law of

Cause of Causes – The sowing of Armageddon is sprouting, in it is to be found the cause of causes. (BR, 565)

Caution – What we mean by caution must be definitely understood. The ignorant may assume that caution is inaction or the gloom of fear. On the contrary, caution is a strengthening of action, watchfulness and courage. Caution is very necessary when fiery waves are provoked. One can resist such tensions by means of the magnet of Hierarchy. When I indicate caution, it is necessary to direct the heart, aflame to Hierarchy. (FW II, 450)

Caution was ordained because it is but a quality of valor. (FW I, 287)

I continually speak about cautiousness, but I do not wish to inspire timidity in you. A cloud impels a gardener to take measures for protection, but he is not afraid of every whirlwind. (BR, 234)

Cedar – One of the family of coniferous trees. One of the "lifegivers" which store the heart energy of nature and nourish all the nerve centers with fiery energy.

Plants will indicate the better possibilities. Look for cedars and pines, heather and oak, grass and flowers of vivid color. Natural electrification in a locality is necessary. Large, long needles of evergreen are the best condensers of electricity. (COM, 182)

The ancients advised the placing of one's hand upon the needles of the young cedars, in order that the condensed prana might penetrate through the fingertips. (H, 14)

A chalice of cedar resin figured in the rituals of the consecration of the kings of the ancient Khorassan. Druids also called the chalice of cedar resin the chalice of life. And only later, with the loss of the realization of the spirit, was it replaced by blood.
The fire of Zoroaster was the result of burning of the cedar resin in the chalice. (LMG II, 72)

Center of the Shoulders – You have already experienced the two sharp points piercing the region of the shoulder blades, and with the same piercing the centers of the lungs may be opened. These centers control prana. (INF I, 12)

The centers of the shoulders also are called wings, because during a self-sacrificing achievement rays extend from them. The legend concerning wings is highly symbolic. Likewise, it was a favorite custom of the ancients to wear a round metal plate upon their breasts. (LMG II, p 63)

Centers – There are seven main centers and they correspond to the seven principles in man. But for complete crowning, man must kindle all the forty-nine fires which include all the fires of all the centers and their branches. All spiritual centers depend on the heart. The heart is the great accumulator and transmuter of all the energies; it may be called the sun of the organism because of the role it plays. Sometimes the nerve centers are not consciously realized and, being partly opened, often show the symptoms of tuberculosis, asthma, rheumatism, and other diseases. (LHR I, p 240)

In spiritual development, the opening of the centers comes quite normally. The opening of and acting of these centers should first be manifested in their psychic or spiritual aspects. With a constant inner striving toward the Highest, and a broadening of the consciousness, the acceleration of the opening of the centers is quite possible. It comes either with the help and guidance of the Great Teacher of Light, or sometimes from contact with the purified fiery aura of a high disciple. Everything must come from higher to lower, from spiritual to physical, but not vice versa. (LHR I, pp 399-400)

In general, during the opening of the centers one should avoid direct contact with the sun's rays. Excessive physical exercises, such as sports, are also quite harmful. (LHR I, p 146)

see also Chakra, Perfect Heart

Chain of Hierarchy – There is one chain of the Hierarchy of Light, which continues into Infinity and all true Carriers of Light who appear and who are still on our Earth are links of it. (LHR II, p 81)

Only the understanding of Service gives one the right to a manifested link of the Chain. (LHR II, p 61)

Breaking from the Chain is terrifying, for it throws us into space and casts us into chaotic rambling. How many centuries must pass before the spirit that broke away can again grasp a new link! (LHR II, p 246)

Every Hindu knows what devotion to the Guru means. And we know that all the majestic concepts and the whole beauty of Eastern thought evolved precisely from the sequence and succession in the infinite Hierarchic Chain, which consists of links formed by the limitless devotion of a disciple to his Guru. Thus, the East looks upon a Teacher who rejects the Hierarchic principle as upon a dry, rootless tree. To deprive the spirit of reverence for the great concept of the Teacher is equivalent to spiritual suicide. The Great Teachers provide our nurture; without it, not only would we die but so would the whole planet.

(LHR II, p 130)

Through the heart one can transport one's consciousness along the Chain of Hierarchy, thus multiplying one's strength and becoming invulnerable. (H, 582)

Chain of the White Forces – The Hierarchy of Light.

The Chain of the White Forces should be constantly in one's thoughts. ... Effulgent is the White Chain from the Mountains of Light. These are significant times, when even the humblest discern the magnificence of the White Chain. All Indications should be fulfilled so that the specks of imperil may not impede the might of the White Forces. (H, 466)

Chain of the Planets – This expression used in The Secret Doctrine and The Mahatma Letters refers to different stages of the same planets as they might appear in a "space-time continuum"—visible and invisible.

Chakra – (Sk.). Translated means "wheel" or "disc". There are forty-nine chakras or centers altogether. In Agni Yoga twenty-one are mentioned and it is the opening and transmuting of these 21 centers that causes the kindling of the rest. The seven main chakras and their locations are: I. Muladhara-Kundalini, located at the bottom of the spine; 2. Svadhisthana-chakra, in the abdomen between the base of the spine and the navel; 3. Manipura-chakra, or the solar-plexus;

4. Anahata-chakra, or the Chalice; 5. Vishuddha-chakra or the center of the throat; 6. Ajna-chakra, or the Third Eye; 7. Brahamarandra-chakra, or the Bell, on the top of the head. There are also seldom mentioned centers in the shoulders, cheeks, lungs, wrists, knees, kidneys, etc.

All these chakras have important functions peculiar to them and are important in their own right, but for the most important chakra, and the one that none of the others can survive without is the Center of the Heart, or the Anahata-chakra. It is through this center that the Fiery Energy is disseminated throughout the organism and by means of the action of this center that the other centers are kindled. The Heart Center, the center of the Larynx, and the center in the Solar Plexus form an important triad and seem to "work together", as it were. The throat center is closely connected with striving and with synthesis. All the centers react strongly to various reactions of the individual, indeed they mirror his every mood and the fluctuations of his emotions, usually to their own detriment, for it is the calm and placid nature in the world of contrasts that allows his centers to develop. The greatest enemy of the centers is irritation, which causes the blocking up of the nerve channels and the starving off of the centers from their sustenance that comes in the form of Vital Energy. "The centers vibrate like most sensitive strings. Upon them all things play; upon them, all things resound; upon them, all is transmuted." (LHR I, pp, 426-427)

The kindling of the centers is based upon this responding vibration. When the force of the cosmic ray is intensified, the responding vibration attracts the corresponding fire. Creation always strains the centers. When the force of vibration reestablishes the correlation of the centers, coordination is attained. It is impossible to establish correlation without the responding vibration.

The creativeness of an Agni Yogi is based upon the striving toward vibration. The centers vibrate like most sensitive strings. Upon them, all things play; upon them, all things resound; upon them, all is transmuted.

When We, Brothers of Humanity, had to immerse into human emanations, We encountered powerful currents. The manifestation of fires strain so greatly all centers. The subtle energies are locked within the center of the Chalice, and therefore all changes are felt quite keenly. One may assert that all occurrences, manifest and unmanifest, play upon the currents of the fires of an Agni Yogi. (INF I, 259)

A wise host does not light all fires without special purpose. Thus, in ancient legends there is mentioned the mountain surrounded by flame, but it is not stated anywhere that the fire burnt continuously; it rose according to the need. Thus also your fires glow

according to necessity—the Eye of Brahma, or the wings, or the rays from the larynx, or the other principal twenty-one fires—it is necessary to permit them to be kindled according to their natures. It is necessary to point out that the fires act according to their power of contact with the Hierarchy. Conflagration or unbridled burning is not permissible. In the Great Service, care and caution are the first principles of the highest cooperation. We protect each particle of the energy of the Elohim and each Uruci, from the Fire of Space. This accountability is demanded especially during the time of the battle's tension. (H, 56)

Chaldeans, or Kasdim – At first a tribe, then a caste of learned Kabbalists. They were "savants", the magicians of Babylonia, astrologers and diviners. The famous Hillel, the precursor of Jesus in philosophy and in ethics, was a Chaldean. (TG)

Chalice – The Anahata Chakra or the Heart of the Subtle Body, where the accumulations of many lives are stored—deposited there in the form of Fiery Matter.

Since times immemorial the Chalice has been a symbol of Service. The gifts of Higher Forces are gathered in the Chalice and given from the Chalice. The symbol of the Chalice has always stood for self-sacrifice. Whoever bears the Chalice bears Achievement. Each lofty deed can be marked by the symbol of the Chalice. Everything most lofty, everything for the good of humanity, should bear this symbol. The Chalice of the Grail, and the Chalice of the Heart which has dedicated itself to the Greater Service, is a most Cosmic Magnet. The Heart of the Cosmos is reflected in this great symbol. All images of Heroes of the Spirit may be represented as bearing the Chalice. The whole universe is reflected in the Chalice of the fiery spirit. The Chalice contains the accumulations of centuries which are gathered around the seed of the spirit. It is necessary to accept the affirmation of the Chalice as a great symbol in everyday life. Small children, and all youth, should be taught to think about the Chalice. One should understand the entire diversity of forms of the great symbol, the Chalice. (FW III, 49)

The fire of the Chalice represents the psychodynamics which ignites around it all energies. (INF I, 251)

The center of the Chalice is located near the heart, amidst the knots of nerves. The Chalice is the focal point of all emanations. This is the focus in which and through which all emanations of the seed of the spirit are refracted and spread. The Chalice forms a triangle between the center of the heart and the solar plexus. It is (the Chalice) above the solar plexus at the level of the heart. (LHR II, p 371) see also Containment, Law of Chalice of Amrita – The "Chalice of Immortality", wherein is stored, through the action of the Chalice, the highest energies, the highest knowledge, to become an integral part of the spirit's make-up during its Infinite Journey.

Let us see how the Agni Yogi creates and transmutes. The fire of the Chalice represents the psycho-dynamics which ignites around it all energies. Through the synthesis of the Chalice, all fires, at different degrees, are directed by summons toward the cumulation of the Chalice of Amrita. (INF I, 251)

We approach life as to the chalice of a wondrous remedy. To drink the poison of the world in order to be reborn with full power! This symbol comes from ancient legends. We see it in Egypt, in Greece; Shiva himself recalls it; a whole chain of Redeemers bears the chalice of poison, transforming it into Amrita. (AY, 304)

Chalice of the Archangel – A divine repository of Truth and the Treasury of the Teachings.

Four guardians, protect the Chalice of the Archangel! (LMG I, 243)

One may expect supernal manifestations in the life of the planet. Unprecedented is the time when events are poured cosmically into the Chalice of the Archangel! (FW I, 611)

Chalice of Attainment – Refers to part of an ancient mystery in which juice of the pomegranite was poured from four sides of a container, to symbolize the readiness to serve the General Good without end.

Chaos – Cosmic dissonance. The result of discord and disunity. The antithesis of the aims of the Brotherhood and the benign influence of the Cosmic Magnet.

Evolution is the antipode of Chaos. Evil should be opposed as a manifestation of chaos. (AUM, 283)

It is futile to think that chaos is somewhere faraway; it is admitted by humanity during all disorderly thinking. Only a steadfast consciousness can be a protection against chaos. (BR, 129)

Chaos is jealous and raging. It overwhelms wherever the least vacillation is found. Chaos loses no opportunity of breaking through a weak barrier. (BR, 269)

It is advisable to observe the methods of the invasion of chaos. Many suppose that the very concept of chaos excludes any system. A representation of chaos as completely formless will be untrue. Even in each life it can be observed how subtly chaos creeps in. It intrudes as an actual decomposing force. (BR, 474)

Cheerfulness – Creativeness is the basis of evolution. With what then is it possible to strengthen the acts of creative power? Only with cheerfulness. Joy is a special wisdom. Cheerfulness is a special technique. This enhancement of vigor arises out of a conscious realization of the creativeness of elements. Truly, creative patience and cheerfulness are the two wings of the worker. (COM, 163)

Chela – (Sk.). Literally means "child". A disciple, the pupil of a Guru or Sage. The follower of an adept of a school of philosophy. (TG) Chiaroscuro – (It.). Literally, "light and dark". Esoterically refers to the building with Light, the light of knowledge which throws happenings into the sharp, defining light of reality and truth, enabling the individual to discern the true state of things.

Chotavan – (Sk.). Literally means "small rhythm" while Mahavan means "large rhythm". These refer to the rhythms of the Fire of Space, the rhythm of Cosmos. (LHR I, p 250)

At a certain degree of achievement of the Fiery Yoga our organism begins to perceive these rhythms (which come from space) and to resound to them. (LHR I, p 499)

Christ – This term was taken from the pagan dictionary and originally meant "Initiate" or "Hierophant". The Christ is our highest and most purified ego. The word meant the highest divine principle in man. The Krestos, or neophyte, went through the sufferings and passed the tests of initiation and after being anointed, emerged as Christ, "the purified". "His finite personality was fused with his infinite individuality, and he then became an immortal Ego."

Chun, Tower of – An Abode of the Brotherhood.

Perhaps Brotherhood does exist? Perhaps, as an earthly anchor, it maintains equilibrium? Perhaps in the dreams of humanity it has remained as an unalterable reality? Let us recall certain dreams and visions, so clearly engraved upon the memory, visions of walls and towers of the Brotherhood. The imagination is but a memory of that which exists.

Perhaps someone will remember also in reality the Tower of Chun? (BR, 7)

One should not speak or even think about the Brotherhood if dissension, disturbance, and unbelief are felt. As delicate blossoms droop in a smoky atmosphere, so also the Images of the Brotherhood fly away amid irritation and falsehood. That which was still convincing yesterday can be distorted in the confusion of the heart. The clearest reflection of the Tower of Chun can be shattered by a crude touch. (BR, 577)

Circle – Occultly, the circle appears as an impersonation of the human organism broadened by possibilities. ... The best number for the circle is seven. (LMG II, pp 18-19)
see also Manvantara

Circles of Receptivity – Now about the circles of receptivity. The circles of keen sight proceed centrifugally and those of receptivity proceed centripetally. From symbols and dim outlines they advance spirally to sharp fact, to clair-call, clair-audience, clair-voyance, clair-understanding, clair-achievement, clair-knowledge. (LMG II, pp 129-130)

Circles of Sight and Hearing – About the circles of keen sight and hearing. The first circle concerns the near ones and future events. The second is confined to current matters and to the near future. The third embraces the past which concerns the near ones. The fourth encompasses past events. The fifth is within the limits of the contemporary world. The sixth reveals the future of the world currents. The seventh contains all signs.

One can be strong in the first circle without being able to grasp the next one. Therefore, it is better to develop the seventh circle, because all manifestations are accessible to it but without personal gravitative influence— without limitation by the personal, narrower, sphere. It is better when, following a personal sign, one can receive signs about coming events of nations, or glimpses of a cosmic order. (LMG II, p 117)

City of Knowledge – A planned center of study high in the Himalayas made up of scientists from all over the world working in cooperation toward a synthesis of scientific and spiritual achievements. Important among the studies would be that of the cosmic rays, which can more easily be observed in the higher altitudes. (LHR I, p 45)

Clairaudience – The faculty, whether innate or acquired by occult training, of hearing all that is said at whatever distance. (TG)

I will grant thee power to see and hear.
The first essentials are purity of air and calmness of spirit. (LMG I, 142)

Today you heard the music of the spheres, that rhythm which strengthens the realization of evolution. It is not the theme precisely, but the rhythm that forms the essence of the music of the spheres. It is indeed the degree of purity of the sounds which determines the interplanetary conduit. These sounds are heard on many far-off worlds, but on Earth they can be heard only at high altitudes, and it is necessary to have a musical ear. But the ear that has heard the music of the spheres must be protected from the wind. (AY, 149)

The centers revolving at the back of the head strengthen clairaudience. They are located at the crossing of the two main channels of the surging currents of life. The centers are affirmed as the carriers of energies needed for communions with the far-off worlds. These centers tense the center of the ear and for this reason are most important. (INF I, 305)

In the cooperation of all spheres the creativeness of Fire is laid as the foundation. The currents of the spheres are transmitted by the Fire of Space. Those who affirm the creativeness of Fire may say that they serve evolution. Hence, the centers of hearing are connected so closely with Fire. Each manifestation of the striving center discloses clairaudience. In turn, clairaudience affords to humanity an evolutionary move. (INF I,

People notice that clair-audience is better at dawn. The reason advanced for this is far from the truth. They suppose that after the night the organism is rested; they think that the currents just before dawn lend assistance, but they overlook the simplest and most natural solution. Actually, the most obvious cause lies in the fact that during sleep man has contacted the Subtle World, and therein has enhanced his subtle qualities. (AUM, 212)

It is often observed that clairaudience and clairvoyance usually yield fragmentary information. But it is necessary to recall many principles in order to understand what is taking place. Frequently the fragmentary character results from the earthly point of view. People do not grasp the subtle connection of what has been seen. Perhaps the bond is quite logical, but earthly logic differs from that of the Subtle World.

Also it should not be forgotten that the Higher World watches over the laws of karma. Very slightly understood is the boundary between that which is permitted and the sacred karma. It is impossible in earthly language to define the gates of karma. It is likewise difficult to indicate how man himself influences his clairaudience. He can stop up his ears with a thousand moods. It is first necessary to broaden the consciousness in order that all channels be clear. (AUM, 457)
see also Circles of Sight and Hearing

Clairvoyance – The faculty of seeing with the inner eye or spiritual sight ... Real clairvoyance means the faculty of seeing through the densest matter (the latter disappearing at the will and before the spiritual eye of the Seer), and irrespective of time (past, present and future) or distance. (TG)

Verily, only in the case of the Man-God, or Arhat, when union of the mind with spiritual consciousness is achieved, is it possible to use the terms "Straight- knowledge", "clairaudience", and "clairvoyance". Therefore speaking of the spirituality of primordial man, it is better to apply such expression as, "spiritual consciousness", "spiritual hearing", "spiritual sight." (LHR I, p 194)

The time will come when clairvoyance, scientifically treated, will help to piece together the fragments of shattered vessels of ancient knowledge. (BR, 231)

Cleanliness – On certain steps a clean place is indispensable. Our Ashrams are distinguished by cleanliness. The hygiene of spirit presupposes the hygiene of the body. (LMG II, p 147)

The approach of Light demands from us not only moral purity but also physical cleanliness. Precisely, on certain spiritual steps physical hygiene is absolutely essential. (LHR II, p 85)

Cloud of Cognition – Yogis are acquainted with attacks, as it were, of sudden drowsiness and fatigue, called the cloud of cognition. Indeed, the Yogi knows that at this time his energy is ebbing, attracted by the powerful flow of a spatial current. The Yogi knows that he has taken part in Great Service for the good of humanity. It is possible to distinguish many aspects of such services. Sometimes only drowsiness is felt, but sometimes the subtle body strives to take part in an undeferrable action. Then one can see such a subtle body as a vision, or sense an invisible presence. The manifestation of such actions at a distance will be instantaneous. No earthly time is required for prolonged discourses and reactions. When a Yogi feels the approach of a moment of drowsiness, he yields to such an imperative call, otherwise he may let pass an opportunity for cooperation in something great. It is especially indicative that those communions take place at remote distances and with persons absolutely unknown. (BR, 396)
see also Drowsiness

Collective Labor – The Teacher rejoices when collective labor is possible. Rejection of collective labor is ignorance. Only a lofty individuality finds within itself the measure of collective concepts. So long as the personality fears collective work, it is not yet individualized; it still remains in the stifling atmosphere of selfhood. Only true discernment of the indestructibility of freedom permits adherence to collective labor. Only through such true mutual respect can we attain the realization of harmonious labor —in other words, attain active good. In this good is kindled the fire of the heart; hence each manifestation of harmonious labor is so joyous. Such labor augments the psychic energy unusually. Let the work be carried out at least in short united labor; even if for brief periods at first, it must be in complete accord and intent upon success. In the beginning, fatigue because of disunity is unavoidable, but later the coordinated collective force will multiply the energy tenfold. Thus, even in small nuclei one can thrust forward the prototype of world progress. (FW I, 288) see also Individuality

Co-Measurement – Commensurability. One of the qualities of true Spirituality.

One should be neither less nor more. (FB, p 86)

The condition of the Brotherhood is full co-measurement of thought and expression —this is the bulwark of the truth of beauty. To go through life with neither reticence nor exaggeration is easy. We sharply observe Our coworkers, for they should express themselves in conformity with the true meaning. Only thus can different beings cooperate.

The best judgment will be founded upon beauty. It is ugly to say, "I shall put the giant into a little box," or, "The eagle soars like a hen."

How often are the best apparati destroyed by non-comeasurement, which, with a little attentiveness, is easy to avoid. (LMG II, p 123)

There is no worse act of non-comeasurement than to defer an urgent action. There is no worse act of non-comeasurement than to show offense like a petty huckster. There is no worse act of non-comeasurement than to renounce responsibility. There is no worse act of non-comeasurement than to cease thinking about beauty. Co-measurement is like the pillar that supports the house. When we take into consideration the painting of the dwelling, are we to destroy the pillar under the archway? Thoroughly assimilate co-measurement. (LMG II, p 193)

Common Good – General Welfare or General Good. This is, in a sense, the higher law of Cosmos, the direction in which the Cosmic Magnet draws us and to which we must strive.

Each possibility in step with the Cosmic Magnet reaches toward the Common Good. (INF II, 492)

I shall specify the qualities distinctive of seeking the Common Good. First—constancy of striving. Second—ability of containment, for poor is he who denies but the seeker of truth is worthy to work for General Good. Third—ability to labor, because the majority do not know the value of time. Fourth—the desire to help without prejudices and without usurpation. Fifth—renouncement of personal property and the acceptance for safekeeping of the fruit of the creativeness of others. Sixth—expulsion of fear. Seventh—display of vigilance amidst darkness. (LMG II, p 189)

Communion – Communion, like fragrance, spreads far. If it is beautiful, the quality of broad dispersion is a blessed one. Let space be saturated with the best thoughts; many of them will join harmonious radiations. Though not all can absorb the full expression of thoughts, yet the beneficent substance formed by them will be a healing one. One should offer gratitude to the unknown Senders, who impregnate space with beneficial substance. Thoughts manifested in lofty communion are as a spring in the midst of a desert. Pursuing the direction of such springs one may find the Brotherhood. (BR, 556)

People have only two real joys—thinking and ecstacy over beauty. The path to the Fiery World has been affirmed by these two manifestations. Only through them can man advance to the lofty spheres. Every higher communion will contain these two fundamentals. (BR, 85)

Let us not be in doubt as to what to do in moments between labors. Let us not forget that each particle of time can be used for higher communion. There is joy in that the thread of the heart can be in constant communion with the most Beloved. I affirm that the voice of love requires no length of time. As a field of grass is filled with different flowers, so, too, the calls of the heart are radiant amid labors; they signify the approach to Brotherhood. (BR, 555)

Communities – Since Our Central Community does have significance for world structures, then, too, communities established by Us have an influence upon the evolution of the world. Let us examine the principal kinds of these widely scattered communities.

The first are the unconscious communities whose members work out a mutually acceptable way of co-existence. These can be found among workmen, farmers, students, and, less frequently, in families.

The second kind of community knows about the plan of earthly evolution, but does not connect this plan with definite action and date. These are circles of political idealists; certain occult organizations; some learned societies; and—rarest of all—clerical bodies.

The third kind of community knows not only the plan of evolution but also the dates and the action. Of course these communities are rare, and they receive Our Indications.

He who has come in close touch with Us learns silence. Likewise, it is difficult to distinguish the participants of a community of the third kind. More talkative is the second kind of community; already they speak much about the Common Good.

Verily, the dark age will terminate with the proclaiming of the Community! Sergius hewed it out with his axe. Boehme worked on it with his boot hammer. The Teacher Buddha built it with His hands. Christ prepared a bridge to it. A most ancient Teacher said: "I do not see any objects that I own!" (LMG II, pp 228-229)

It will be pointed out that many Communities and Brotherhoods have fallen into ruin, but they are not the ones We speak about. Moreover, they could have been moved elsewhere, but to a stranger's eye it might seem that they disintegrated. Do people know much about the life in a neighboring house, much less about that which they are not supposed to know? Each one can recall from his own life the most significant events about which no one has known. Especially if transmitted by thought at a distance, who could learn about them? True, thought can be intercepted, but for this special conditions are necessary. If a thought has been directed with especial clarity to a definite person, it will unfailingly contact his aura. Thus communities can be kept together by the force of thought. But some are so afraid of thought that they decline everything relating to this domain. Such people should not be attracted, their approach ends in treachery. More than once Communities have been moved away in order to free them from undesirable people. It is easier to announce the dissolution of a Community than to disclose those who can do harm. From such a situation one can more easily comprehend why the Brotherhood is to be found in an inaccessible place. (BR, 463)

Community – What more nearly compares with Our Community—a choir of psalm-singers or an armed camp? Rather the second. One can imagine how it must conform to the rules of military organization and leadership. Is it possible to establish the paths of advancement of the Community without repulse and attack? Is it possible to take a fortress by assault without knowing its situation? The conditions of defense and attack must be weighed. Needed is experienced knowledge and keen vigilence. They are wrong who consider the Community a house of prayer. They are wrong who call the Community a workshop. They are wrong who regard the Community as an exclusive laboratory. The Community is a hundred-eyed guard. The Community is the hurricane of the messenger. The Community is the banner of the conqueror. (COM, 183)

In a conscious community there is a place for every labor. Each one may select his task at will, for every labor is sharpened by new attainments. There is not the tedium of mechanical performance, for the worker is at the same time an experimenter. He understands the significance of the problem of introducing perfectionment of work without disturbing the general complex of rhythm. ...

Each one decisively finds work to suit Himself and can change it at will. Thus, necessary is both the desire to work and the open consciousness through which each labor becomes attractive. For labor is performed for the future, and each one carries his best stone. (COM, 202)

Our Community does not use force, it practices voluntary cooperation. (BR, 388)

I should add that the Community is the lighthouse and the sole anchor of humanity. Thus, the best people are under obligation to ease their unbearable burden. And how immense should be our gratitude to these High Spirits who for centuries have sacrificed Themselves and who continue to sacrifice Their well-deserved higher happiness so that They may ease the destiny of humanity and save the planet from destruction! (LHR I, p 460)

Community of the Heroine Sisters – This unique Community was a dream of Helena Roerich, cherished by her since early youth. It was planned as a Community of Women built on striving and dedicated to the study of medicine, agriculture, social problems, with special groups investigating the various significances of color, sound, and scent.

The function of the Living Ethics would be to beautify the whole benevolent movement of the Heroine Sisters. (LHR I, p 446)

Compassion – Mercy.

Knowing how to bring one's consciousness down to another's level is already compassion. (FW III, 558)

Compassion does not weep, but helps. (COM, 134)

Personal experience, personal trials and sufferings teach us great patience and compassion, those qualities which lie at the basis of all achievements.
(LHR II, p 468)

Compassion, Lord of – "The Lord of Compassion" is a title of the coming Maitreya, but it could be equally applied to all the great Sons of Light. (LHR II, p 190)

Competition – Competition is one of the difficult concepts. Only the fiery heart understands how many measures may be placed upon the light and upon the dark side. A pure understanding of self-perfection will not evoke competition. Where the consciousness is wild and unrestricted, there competition leads to mutual destruction. Envy nests around competition. It leads to the most subtle crimes. Cooperation must bring balance to the misunderstood competition. It is not easy to fix oneself the boundary of a reasonable competition. The word competition itself is already dangerous; in it is expressed jealousy, in other words, a corrupt devotion. Therefore, it is best wherever possible to replace the concept of competition with that of perfectionment. (INF II, 134)

Compulsion – All compulsion is condemned. Compulsory slavery, compulsory marriage, compulsory labor, incite rebellion and condemnation. But of all the forms of compulsion the most culpable and ugly is the compulsory community. Each compulsion is doomed to a reaction, and the worst form of compulsion is doomed to the worst reaction. (COM, 219)

Truly, the path of compulsion is like the path of narcosis. He who has been taking narcotics must increase the quantity of the poison taken. In the same way compulsion must be constantly increased, reaching the point of madness. Interruption of a compulsion carries the threat of domination by the dark forces. Therefore, compulsion is worthless for evolution. A conscious awareness contradicts compulsion. (BR, 159)

Compulsion upon thought is a grave offense. It cannot be justified. It serves only to provoke new violations, and where then will there be an end to outrage? It is a mistake to think that something created in the name of hatred can remain firm. Only construction, not subversion, can gather power for free thought.

Thought must be safeguarded. The very process of thinking must be loved. (BR, 151)

The ability not to coerce another's will is one of the most difficult tests. Compulsion does not produce a good harvest, and yet it is necessary to guide and protect on dangerous paths. (BR, 533)

Concordance – Concordance of the cosmic processes is revealed in the lower spheres as well as in the higher ones. Cosmic power can be reflected in the planetary life, and the planetary life may be transmuted in the process of higher tension. When people will understand the ceaselessness of manifestation consists in changes of existence, the principle of concordance may become close to man. The laws of transmutation and cosmic bestowal coalesce. Great help may result from the realization of this principle.

If humanity strives toward concordance it will perceive all the best possibilities. By straining the will toward Infinity one may reach concordance on every step. Concordance is the unifying principle which affirms the sacred intercourse between spirit and spirit, between spirit and planet, between spirit and Cosmos, between Cosmos and the power of the Infinite. (INF I, 94)

Condemnation – Only limited people condemn. Not out of condemnation is perfectment born. (BR, 41)

Confucius, K'ung Fu-tze – (Ch.). (550 or 551-479 B.C.) Famous sage of China. At an early age he showed a great desire for learning and in his 22nd year established a school where he taught the principles of right conduct and government. He soon became the Teacher of noble and influential people and wherever possible coached them in the proper administration of their states. One of his great interests seems to have been the concept of Community with its roots in the individual member of the community from laborer to King. He gave important lessons for the formation of individual character, and the manner in which the duties in the relations of society should be discharged. It is said in the ancient chronicles, "He strengthened the ruler and repressed the barons. A trans-forming Government went abroad. Dishonesty and dissoluteness hid their heads. Loyalty and good faith became the characteristics of the men, and chastity and docility those of the women. He was the idol of the people, and flew in songs through their mouths." (EB)

Let us not link ourselves with the vilifiers of Plato and the persecutors of Confucius. They were oppressed by citizens who were considered the pride of the country. Thus has the world raised its hand against the great Servitors. (BR, 175)

Confusion – In the hour of confusion silence is the best friend. But let this quiet be not the stillness of malice. Though only momentarily, let the rhythm of the heart calm down. Let there be found again the quiet of psychic energy; thus will be strengthened the work of the centers—alight, but without inflammation. (BR, 73)

"The city has been fully fortified, its walls and towers are strong, at each gate stands a sentry—no enemy can penetrate into the stronghold. However, sentinels, be wary, be not confounded by the arrows of the enemy. The arrows have been devised with special inscriptions for the purpose of distracting the attention of those on watch. The inscriptions are to allure the sentries, so that their minds will be confused and the gates will be left defenseless." Thus was described in a certain Mystery the state of psychic energy during the confusion of the spirit. ...

Often in the Mysteries, symbols cautioning against harmful confusion were employed. One may augment strongly the psychic energy, but even the small confusion can open the gates to the most dangerous enemy. In an hour of consternation one must know how to evoke even a momentary calm. Such calmness and but one breath of prana will provide a strong shield. (BR, 74)

Conscience – The heart must be the supreme judge. Being the conscience of peoples, it will produce equilibrium. Reason is not equilibrium. (BR, 385)

Consciousness – The fundamental energy and the psychic energy is its highest quality. (LHR I, p 499)

The astral plane is still full of earthly possibilities, but further on the knowledge of the spirit predominates; so earthly consciousness exists only in the earthly shell. In the astral body, however, there is still the remnant of a personal consciousness. But this consciousness is not the knowledge of the spirit. Consciousness is only one combination of skandhas. It is a confined knowledge of the spirit. The knowledge of the spirit possesses clarity of conception but it can be actively manifested only when entering into a combination of skandhas and fecundating the consciousness of the given combination. (LMG II, p 155)

Since memory is for the past, consciousness is for the future. Therefore We replace memory by consciousness. By means of memory I cannot penetrate within the boundaries of the sun, but consciousness opens the gates. For Us, the museum and library replace the memory; therefore, disciples should not grieve over the loss of the old memory. It is simply that a small thing is replaced by a great one. Consciousness is akin to the spirit understanding; it grows until one's whole being is engulfed as in a flame. During this process the chips of memory, like dross, impede the burning. To know does not mean to remember. He who attains hastens on without looking back. Humanity must remember the transmutation of consciousness. (LMG II, p 43)

Consonance – Harmony or sympathetic vibrations. In the Teachings this word also refers to the harmony that exists between an individual's vibrations and the cosmic vibrations which results in a great creative tension and an activity known as psycho-spirituality which draws one onward in the direction of evolution and the Cosmic Magnet. see also Dissonance

Construction – Construction built upon falsehood degenerates into hideousness. (BR, 111)

Even during most tense days, think about construction. It is a mistake to strive tensely toward a narrowed goal; let construction proceed out of strivings toward the Most High. (BR, 174)

There may be conditions that do not permit putting into practice that for which the heart is ready. Let us not expose innocent workers to danger; they can apply their abilities under other conditions. For a time let them construct Brotherhood in their thoughts. With such construction they can purify the surrounding space, and such thoughts will be salutary. But let them not fall into conceit, believing that it is sufficient to build mentally. No, the wayfarer will affirm the manifestation of achievement by human feet and human hands. (BR, 582)

Constructive Cross – The Constructive Cross is built when invincible striving and realization of right are impelled to meet. (H, 370)
see also Cosmic Construction, Cosmic Reconstruction

Consummation – Life attains consummation in creativity, and the Book of Life is filled with heterogeneous energies. In fiery striving the spirit finds response. In fiery striving the heart receives a responding vibration. In the beauty of the spirit there lies the realization of the entire might of cosmic consummation. Thus, the joy of Be-ness attracts the spirit to consummation. It is inscribed in the Book of Life that the direct path to consummation leads through the heart. Thus, the cosmic law intensifies the spiritual impulses, and the life of space resounds in beauty. (INF II, 514)

Contact – Each one has a great many relations with completely unknown people. Also, his name is pronounced somewhere. Let us not forget that such distant contacts often have a greater significance than contact with our near ones. It may be noticed to what an extent remote information is reflected upon all the inner centers. But such an unquestionable circumstance almost fails to be taken into consideration. People assume that bodily contact is especially important. Let us not deny that the physical handclasp also has significance. But a thought, remote, unharmonized, can exert a very strong influence. No one can see these distant threads, but a refined consciousness feels them. (BR, 421)

Man cooperates oftener than he supposes. He is constantly lending psychic energy. During each materialization there is a discharge of ectoplasm, but aside from this substantial discharge, people give off energy at each contact and through this are joined together, as it were. (BR, 589)

Contact, Highest – Each arch has its apex. Disturbing it causes the downfall of the entire arch. Similarly there is in life the Highest Contact without which life turns into chaos. Is it easy to sense this point of Infinity? Few have sensed it, but because of this the manifestation of Infinity has forever illumined their consciousness. Great is the concept of the subtlest energies that uplift the consciousness. (BR, 412)

Contact with Brothers – see Brothers

Containment – This concept has an affinity with a combination of Goal-fitness and Universal Understanding.

Achievement is not renunciation; it is containment and movement. Thus, when I say, "he who has renounced," it should be understood as, "he who has contained." It is impossible to present the substance of renunciation, because beside it nestles prohibition. But containment emphasizes conscious understanding.

And how did the Great Mother renounce the worlds? In that She contained the greatness of the structure of the future, and henceforth nothing could hinder the growth of the spirit.

Loyalty is a quality of the spirit of high tension, and the evincing of containment makes true achievement a joyous acquisition. (LMG II, p 176)

Someone will say: "Is vigilance, or co-measurement, or mobility, or devotion difficult? Here, I feel that I can contain all these conditions; will you not take me on the distant journey into the Community?" But has this hasty traveler thought about a certain requisite in the qualities mentioned by him? Steadfastness was forgotten. Little fires flickering only for an instant contain all the qualities of flame, but darkness engulfs them as swiftly as a brazier does a snowflake. One cannot trust an isolated moment of containment; only steadfastness, tempered by toil and by obstacles, results in a trustworthy containment. (COM, 153)

The suffering of privations is unknown to Us, for containment excludes privation. Our Teaching represents the world as rich, joyous and attractive. Like a ship filled with treasures does the indicated community rush along. Realization of the innumerable properties of matter brightly illuminates all. The matter of yesterday is clothed in a radiant fabric of energy, which is not in need of a new name but which penetrates all space and palpitates with the rainbow of human rejoicing. (COM, 263)

We speak of containment, but where is the ocean of containment outside of the heart? We recall the far-off worlds, but it is the heart, not the brain, that can remember Infinity. Thus, let us not disparage that which is bestowed upon us as the receptacle of Bliss. (H, 277)

The affirmed guide knows all the joys, all the containments of synthesis, but at the same time he knows the burden of all the manifested and unmanifested fires. This heritage of the ages is precipitated in the "chalice" as fiery strata; therefore those who bear the fire of synthesis are manifested as bearing the burden of centuries. (FW III, 74)
see also Containement, Law of Containment, Law of – The law of containment is affirmed by all beginnings. When the cosmic creativeness is brought into strain by aspirations, the law of containment brings forth manifold formulae. In cosmic creativeness the treasury contains all manifestations of energies. In spiritual creativeness the Chalice becomes filled with the very same energies. Hence, the treasury of the spirit has to contain all energies. Thus, the law of containment governs the essential creative impulse. From the Chalice issue all creative laws and in the Chalice are gathered all cosmic manifestations. Therefore, the enrichment of the Chalice affords realization of all cosmic plans. The foundations are gathered in the Chalice, and each energy can be a creator. Thus, creativeness is molded by the law of containment. (INF II, 192)

Here the Blessed One transmits: "All is for all and forever. Note the four laws: The Law of Containment; The Law of Fearlessness; The Law of Nearness; the Law of Righteousness." (LMG II, p 56)

Contentment – Destructive is the feeling of contentment. It leads to satiation and to paralysis of energy. (BR, 78)

Continuity – Continuity is one of the basic qualities of the subtlest energies. People can take example from the higher worlds for earthly existence also. If it is difficult to maintain continuity in work, it can be fully realized in spiritual strivings. We, wayfarers of Earth, can form a link with the higher worlds in spirit; such a bond will permit us to dwell in close union with the invisible worlds. Such unity will teach also earthly unity. Beginning with the higher, let us also be affirmed in the lower. It is not easy to maintain earthly unity. Many petty circumstances intrude and blot out good intentions. Only the testing of forces in a higher application can create continuity of intercourse with the Higher World. Even in sleep it is possible to maintain the bond with the source of knowledge. Thus, even in the earthly aspect one may conform to a quality of the Higher World—continuity. (BR, 149)

Contradiction – There are many contradictions contained in man. Only the perfecting of psychic energy can promote the harmonization of life. Contradiction is nothing but disorder. (BR, 22)

One must have enormous patience and observation in order to be discriminating in the jungles of contradictions due to chaos. (BR, 140)

Each one has noticed with surprise that in the best Teachings schism has taken place. Certain leaders have even considered such occurrences useful for arousing discussion. But it must be contemplated that around the Truth there can be no contradictions. Only the blind do not see what stands before them. Will not the cause of such blindness be one's own disunity? (BR, 454)

The difference lies in the fact that the Western mind can hardly, if at all, accept contradictions, whereas this acceptance is considered by the East as precisely the foundation of its philosophical system, beginning with Cosmogony and Cosmology and ending with the moral code. (LHR II, p 20)

Cooperation – Verily, cooperation opens all possibilities, but one needs the understanding of what this cooperation comprises. Often people relegate it to the province of certain state matters whereas cooperation is the condition of the entire life. Precisely, even in each small mutual assistance is comprised cooperation which has a cosmic significance. Each glance, each handshake, each thought is a sign of cooperation, if consciously utilized. How valuable it is for people to feel that they are constantly generating consequences! Like titans, they shake the world. But where are the people who will apply the cooperation of their forces to the Subtle World? Where is courage, where is the solicitude about the Invisible; where is the decision to succor there, also, where earthly ties are not completely forgotten, where monsters also menace, as they do here? Hence, great is the achievement of cooperation in the Subtle World. As on Earth, one must summon the people and lead them on, valiantly defending them from wild boars and savage dogs. Such cooperation is verily selfless. One can gradually train oneself to bring usefulness to all worlds. (H, 204)

Cor Bovis – Cor bovinum, in other words, ox heart, is the familiar condition of an enlarged heart. There are many causes for this, but only the chief cause concerns us. The enlarged heart may be caused by an overflow of unutilized heart energy. It can be said that people who suffer from an enlarged heart did not begin the education of the heart in time. The potentiality of their organ was good but the heart energy was not applied. (H, 428)

Corpses, Living or Walking – People in whom the primary energy has ceased its movement have been called walking corpses. One can recall not a few people who continue to display the physical functions but whose energy has already become moribund. From such people one may receive the same impression as from corpses—for in essence they are indeed corpses. They no longer belong to Earth. They still move about and sleep and utter sounds. But the astral body, the husk, also moves and may be visible! Highly developed people can sense such corpses, forgotten on Earth. (BR, 153)

It will be asked, Can so-called living corpses wander about on Earth for a long time? For long periods, depending upon their animal attraction to the physical world. Psychic energy will leave them, their radiations will become negligible, and a small apparatus will reveal the signs of death. These walking corpses easily fall under the influence of strangers. They repeat empty words of their bygone days, convincing no one. These corpses are sometimes sensed by certain animals. Often these corpses remain as heads of big enterprises, nevertheless their dead husks permeate everything therein. The walking dead are strongly attached to life, for they do not understand the change of condition. They fear death. (BR, 561)

Correspondence – see Cosmic Correspondence

Cosmic Breath – The psycho-dynamic power which calls to life. (INF I, 245)

The Cosmic Breath is the Fire of Space. (INF I, 372)

The Breath of Cosmos compels human creativity to advance in the direction of Evolution. (INF II, 16)
see also Breath of Be-ness

Cosmic Churn – Cosmic Creation which creates matter from vast whirling vortices of energy much in the same way butter is churned out of milk.

The housewife who has churned from milk a morsel of butter has already become initiated into a very important aspect of cosmogony. Thus she can understand the generation of the heavenly bodies. Before beginning her churning the housewife thought about it, and only from a combination of thought and churning was the useful matter produced.

Subsequently cheese may be produced, already with the embryos of a population. Let us not smile at such a microcosm, the same energy evolves also the systems of worlds. It is necessary only steadfastly to realize the significance of thought, the significance of great energy. Is it not marvelous that this same energy glows in the heart of each man? (AUM, 193)

Cosmic Consciousness – A state of consciousness in which the individual vibrates in consonance with the Cosmic vibration and is "in tune with it" so to speak. At this stage he is an Arhat, and can assimilate the Fires of Space. (He is what is called a "Carrier of Fire"—a high initiate.)

Cosmic Construction – It is right to affirm that a primary cause cannot exist without the one Fire of Being; and Cosmic Construction proceeds in like manner, uniting those things which by right belong together. Thus, everything is unified in the Cosmos. The law of Causality must be accepted in all its might. (FW III, 47)

Cosmic Correspondence – In life everything is built up from the principles of containment and correspondence, and the qualities of correspondence are boundless. (INF II, 460)

Cosmic Creativeness – The universal principle ... manifested as the quality called necessity. (AY, 667)

In the eternal creativeness of life, the law of Oneness holds. The cosmic creativeness goes forth as a fiery command; a command pre-ordaining destiny; a command preordaining the replacement of one by another; a command preordaining consummation; a command preordaining immortality; a command preordaining life for each atom; a command preordaining the approach of new energy; a command preordaining the New Era. Thus is the cosmic creation accomplished by the magnet of life. (INF II, 50)

When the spirit is striving to the subtle spheres, the entire vastness of Cosmos unfolds before him. Therefore, the imperceptible cosmic fires are attracted to the creative spirit who perceives all the subtle energies. Thus, the principle of great creativity is built upon mutual attraction. The spatial fires are attracted into the orbit of cosmic strivings; hence, only the spirit who knows of the might of invisible forces can attract the cosmic fires. Thus is conformity effected. Thus is set up the cosmic creativity, with the highest coordination between the spirit and Cosmos. (INF II, 451)

The Heart of the World can manifest its forms in each conjunction of energies. Each new combination of forms affirmed with a new energy is actually an expression of the Heart of the World. Indeed, cosmic creativeness can be used to define the action of the Heart of the World. In fact, to all the manifestations of the cosmos, in which the magnet intensifies all attractions, one can apply this concept. For indeed, the power which collects all suitable energies acts consciously. Spatial fires are subject to the law of attraction of the Heart of the World. Subtle is the world of manifested attractions, and each wave of attraction assembles new combinations from the energies propelled toward union. Therefore the Heart of the World creates quick conjunctions. There are so many fiery attractions in the Cosmos! (FW III, 281)

Cosmic Dross or Cosmic Refuse – Cosmic striving encompasses all cosmic manifestations but the spirit limited by the idea of isolation cannot create in step with the pulse of Cosmos. Hence, when a step of evolution is being built cosmic dross acts like dams. Certainly, each dam creates a heavy karma. (INF II, 392)

These are failures of nature whose divine monad separated itself from the five principles during their lifetime and who have lived as human beings without a spiritual soul. This matter, divorced from spirit is Cosmic Dross, and proceeds into the 6th "Gate" or "way of rebirth" of the vegetable and mineral world, and of the primitive animal forms. (LHR I)

Cosmic Dust – Particles from outer space.

Cosmic Eye – While humanity generally is only cognizant of the effectual and "visible" part of reality, the Cosmic Eye is that all-pervading, eternal witness to it.

Only a minor part of reality is cognized by humanity. The Cosmic Eye is tensed in contemplation of reality. (INF II,37)

Cosmic Heart – The Cosmic Magnet is the Cosmic Heart, or the consciousness of the Crown of the Cosmic Intelligence—the Hierarchy of Light. Precisely, the Cosmic Magnet is the bond with the higher worlds in the order of Be-ness. The bond of our heart with the Heart and Consciousness of the Highest Hierarch of our planet leads us into the majestic current of the Cosmic Magnet. (LHR I, p 340)

Cosmic Intelligence – The Cosmic Intelligence is the Crown of Hierarchy, Hierarchy of Light or the Ladder of Jacob. In addition, the Crown of this Hierarchy consists of the Spirits or Intelligences who have completed their human evolution in this or another solar system, the so-called Planetary Spirits, the Creators of the Worlds. (LHR I, p 339)

Cosmic Laboratory – Strata in the Fiery World in which are preserved earthly spheres in their evolutionary growth.

In these strata are marked out all the currents of evolution. They are not only the Treasury of the records of space but are also the Cosmic Laboratory. Such strata (of the Fiery World) occupy the loftiest spheres. The ascent of man depends upon his attraction to these spheres. (FW III, 319)

Cosmic Magnet – The Cosmic Magnet can be seen as the power drawing humanity, indeed, all Primary Matter along the path of spiritual evolution.

The Cosmic Magnet is the Cosmic Heart, or the Consciousness of the Crown of the Cosmic Intelligence—the Hierarchy of Light. Precisely, the Cosmic Magnet is the bond with the higher worlds in the order of Be-ness. The bond of our heart with the Heart of Consciousness of the Highest Hierarch of our planet leads us into the majestic current of the Cosmic Magnet. (LHR I, p 340)

When We, Brothers of Humanity, speak about the Cosmic Magnet, We perceive therein all manifestations of the higher laws. Verily, all that is most beautiful and most pure is contained in this law. Therefore, when We said that the Cosmic Magnet brings into strain all manifestations that contain the whole beauty of Be-ness, We had in mind the saturated, the manifested Cosmic Magnet. (INF II, 63)

The circle drawn by the Cosmic Magnet establishes life upon the principle of General Good. (INF II, 149)

Only the realization of the Cosmic Magnet will reveal the path to Infinity.
(INF II, 149)

The orbit of the Cosmic Magnet comprises the entire Cosmic evolution.
(INF II, 489)

The orbit of human actions strives to conformity with the cosmic course. Each spark of the spirit can be kindled by adherence to the Fire of Space. Why do men thus lock themselves within their own orbits? In the orbit of actions are contained all the impulses needed to reach the Cosmic Magnet. The creativeness of the Cosmic Magnet impels humanity toward Truth, and the sensitiveness of the spirit gives knowledge of the direction. (INF II, 518)

The Sacred Action of the Cosmic Magnet pre-ordains all creative moves in the name of Maitreya. (INF II, 129)
see also Cosmic Mind

Cosmic Mind – Cosmic Mind is the manifested Mind or the collective Mind or Reason of the Hierarchy of Light. (LHR I, p 376)

It is necessary to establish the difference between the Cosmic Foundation, or the Potential Mind, infinite in its absoluteness, and the Manifested Cosmic Mind. Thus, the Highest Reason and the Great Heart, mentioned in Chalice of the East and in the books of the Teaching, is precisely the Collective Mind and the Heart of the Great Hierarchy of Light. (LHR I, p 390)

The Cosmic Magnet is the Cosmic Heart, or the Consciousness of the Cosmic Mind of the Hierarchy of Light. The Cosmic Magnet is the bond with the Higher Worlds in the plan of Be-ness. Our inner bond with the Heart and Consciousness of the Great Teachers of Humanity brings us into the powerful current of the Cosmic Magnet. (LHR I, p 447)
see also Cosmic Magnet

Cosmic Pulse – The cosmic pulse governs all manifestations of life. The failure to adhere to the rhythm of this pulsation acts as a diversion of striving. The cosmic pulsation governs the generating of energies as well as their shifting., The cosmic pulsation governs the destinies of nations and precipitates the fate of the planet. Cosmic pulsation designates the path of evolution and the dates of the shiftings. A magnetized spiral asserts itself in streams of Cosmic Fire. The manifestation of imbalance results from the action of the Fire of Space. When the spiral in its motion meets a counteraction, the cosmic pulsation is violated. How greatly does humanity interrupt the cosmic pulsation by its course, which is seemingly toward evolution but is not true progress! The cosmic pulsation creates as a straining spiral. Humanity created as a flattened spiral. Can one then expect progress toward evolution when there is such a great disparity between these manifestations! Only the thought which is saturated with the emanations of pure Fire produces an intense spiral. Though is the seed of spirit and of action. The labor which expands with the pulsation of Cosmos is affirmed as progress into evolution. (INF II, 40)

The cosmic pulsation that is sensed by the heart is the most wonderful vibration. All complex problems of Cosmos can be solved by the heart. When the rhythm of Mahavan is sensed by the heart of an Agni Yogi, the union with the cosmic pulsation follows. (INF II, 41)

Cosmic Reason – The potential consciousness or the basis of Cosmic Mind or of the Hierarchy.

Indeed, the whole summun bonum of Reason in its convoluted or involuted state in the Unmanifested Universe, we may call God. (LHR I, p 390)
see also Cosmic Mind

Cosmic Reconstruction – Response to the Cosmic Magnet is called Cosmic Reconstruction and manifests among men as striving.

Cosmic Reconstruction contains in itself all human strivings. When cosmic reconstruction saturates the planet, a cosmic stimulus toward cosmic reconstruction is evoked by conscious striving. Thus, each force proceeding in step with the Cosmic Magnet must imbue the space with Cosmic reconstruction. (INF II, 463)

Cosmic Refuse – see Cosmic Dross

Cosmic Right – Cosmic Right, like all the laws of Being, has several aspects. Truly, man, primarily, is the carrier of this Right. One of the aspects of Cosmic Right is affirmed from the moment of birth of the human monad under the influence of this or that luminary. It seems to me that I already wrote you about the cosmic fatherhood and sonship, or about each monad belonging to a definite planet for the duration of an entire Manvantara. Thus, each Logos will be the father of all the monads that were born under the rays of his luminary. Also, we must not forget another aspect, namely, that the seed of the spirit belongs to one of the elements, which gives a pre-eminent mastery over a certain element. Of course, all the achievements of man are recorded upon the electro-magnetic space which he occupies, or his aura, and this, too, comprises his inalienable cosmic right to a definite step or place in the scale of the evolution of Cosmos. Similarly, a verdict of karma may also be called a cosmic right. The actions of the Cosmic Magnet are always conditioned by Cosmic Right.

But the most sacred, the most beautiful concept connected with Cosmic Right is transmitted by the Teacher to a disciple, orally and face to face. (LHR II, pp 289-290)

Cosmic Right is asserted in the realization of the affirmation of cosmic law and the joy of Be-ness fills the space. (INF II, 106)

Cosmic Seed – see Seed of the Spirit

Cosmic Thought-Frame – Akasa; Primordial Substance.

In what, then, does happiness consist? Is it in being able to sit still without daring to arouse the Primary Substance with thought? Or is it in directing the thought to a new construction of life? I first spoke to you of action, but now we shall affirm thought. Action, even the most exalted, touches comparatively low strata; only thought, in its nature, can act upon the Primary Substance. First I spoke of action as the attainable evidence, but with a sufficiently broadened consciousness it is time to affirm the significance of thought. Multitudes of thoughtless actions remain at the surface of existence, undifferentiable from the actions of the animal world. But if we speak of straight-knowledge and the heart, it is necessary to affirm thought as the power and co-creator of Existence. Notice that I do not speak of discussions, nor of pondering, but of thought, which sweeps through the surface of Substance with its individual rhythm, and thus creates infinitely! (H, 47)

Before him the weaver has his warp, without which the most skilled craftsman cannot reveal his creative thought. For creativeness of thought, the Cosmic Thought-Frame is also necessary; for thus We name the Primary Substance from which fiery thought strikes the spark of creation. This same work can be performed by experienced thinkers and also by a child if it is kindled by an unalterable desire. Without knowing the degree and quality of their thoughts one can judge neither hermit nor ascetic. Nor can one judge the singer or poet without knowing what thought-creativeness they emanate. Gradually we are becoming accustomed not to condemn, because only thought-creativeness is the Creator's co-worker. Thus, let us cautiously assemble all existing thoughts that can benignly penetrate Akasa and reach the essence of Existence. The greatest consolation is that no one is deprived of thought, and, aware of its significance, all can exercise this inherent bliss. (H, 50)

Sometimes people say, "I was so moved by my dream that my heart is even in anguish." The heart-anguish comes not from evil dreams but from straining for luminous desires. Heart-anguish primarily fills our being with the substance of power. Naturally, the sculpture of Akasa is not always connected with heart pangs, but a feeling of anguish reveals, in any case, tension and cooperation with the Primary Thought-Frame. Thus, one need not fear anguish as an evil sign. (H, 51)

see also Akasa

Cosmic Truth – The world of Reality or Effect and Cause, unhampered by apparent duality, beheld as the Cosmic Eye might behold it.

Humanity's conception of the world is quite far from the truth. Only when the conception will correspond to Cosmic Truth can a proper striving be expected. (INF II, 387)

Cosmic Will – The power of the Cosmic Magnet.

When the spirit can complete the round of life, rising above the point of its beginning (as in a spiral), then verily the spirit has attained the striving which will affirm it in the direction of the Cosmic Will. Thus, Cosmic Will governs each progress into the Infinite. (INF II, 107)

Cosmos – The Universe, as distinguished from the world, which may mean our globe or earth. (TG)

Exists only through the interpenetration and reciprocal action of the energies of space which emanate from the countless billions of focuses or centers which fill it and are perpetually formed in it. (LHR I, p 440)

Council of Constantinople – A sixth century conclave of "Holy Men" who passed judgment on the dogma and religious beliefs of the church of the time. The second Council of Constantinople (AD 553) condemned Origen for his belief in Rebirth and Karma. (LHR I, p 224)

Courage – Commonly defined as that quality of mind (or spirit) which enables one to meet danger and difficulties with firmness, but it is not generally known that courage is increased by proper development of psychic energy.

Courage can be acquired only in the heart. In the cerebral sinuosity of the brain, one can find an intelligent distribution of forces, but the courage that proceeds by the straightest and most luminous path cannot exist outside the heart; judge it by the antipode of courage—fear. First of all, fear reacts upon the heart and from there proceeds to the extremities. Verily, all qualities are measured by the heart. (H, 201)

Verily courage is created through the indissoluble link with the Hierarchy. Courage can be contained in the seed and never reveal itself as armor of Light. But when our consciousness is completely transported into the domain where there is no fear and depression, then we are invulnerable to any filth. One should understand where lies one's strength and should hasten thither without any evasiveness. Thus can courage be made firm. (FW II, 72)

Readiness is true courage. (BR, 376)

The Covenants – The Teachings.

We are easily able to substitute the Torah for the Hymns of the Vedas, and to merge the Covenants of Buddha with the words of Christ, for We do not discern differences between Teachings emanating from the One Source. (AY, 90)

The New Teaching respects the Bearers of the earlier Covenants, but it proceeds without the baggage of times which have been ended. (COM, 40)

"Labor, create good, reverence the Hierarchy of Light"—this, Our Covenant, can be inscribed even upon the palm of a new-born. Thus simple is the Covenant leading to Light. In order to adopt it one must only be pure in heart. (HIER, 373)

Simplicity, beauty, and fearlessness—Christ and Buddha spoke of nothing more. And it is a blessing if the spirit vibrates to these covenants. (LMG II, p 5)

Co-worker – Our co-workers, in action, are distinguished from others by their mobile striving and their broad encompassment. The cosmic life consists of movements of attraction and repulsion, in other words, of rhythmic explosions and accumulations. The activity of Our co-workers is not detached from the law of nature. It can be observed how activity stores the consciousness and does not fear destruction by an explosion. One thing is unknown to Us—rest in inaction. Our co-workers like Ourselves, generously lay the foundations. (AY, 311)

Passing through a meadow, do not pluck flowers needlessly. Departing, consider that even the most clumsy co-worker can offer his stone for the structure. It is not necessary to reject until the line of treason is crossed. Judge by this black sign. (AY, 310)

One must distinguish precisely with whom one can work, but if a choice of co-workers has been made one should not remind them about the past. Who knows what may have happened in the past! Usually people are obscured in the snares of the past. Indeed, it completely prevents one's being turned wholly toward the future. And what small earthly stones of the past prevent one's proceeding rapidly on the path! But one should become accustomed to the hurried path, no other exists. A great number of unfortunates and sufferers are counting the moments, waiting for help. Indeed, ought we not hasten? (FW II, 150)

If the reactions of the Subtle World are so frequent, deep and lengthy relations should be established between co-workers of the two worlds. And so it is. Besides, the relationships are not so much a matter of blood kinship as of spiritual kinship. Often such co-workers meet also on the earthly plane; though they may be separated by differences of nationality and circumstance, yet an inner feeling will draw them together. Between them a confidence will be established very easily, though there may also be reverse exceptions. (AUM, 156)

Open to those who knock; give help to the sick; set aright the one in error; but be careful with the scratching ones. Especially when you are striving for unity, leave behind every trouble-making thing, for it is not suitable to higher communions.

Protect the co-workers sailing in the same boat, some of them are unaccustomed to distant sailing. Of course, all have not passed the same dates. Whoever has succeeded better also knows magnanimity. He is already experienced in patience, without which no quest is successful.

One who realizes the significance of psychic energy will forever be an investigator. He will always be perfecting himself, that is, he will be freeing himself from old age. (AUM, 598)

Is it possible to name a man who would be satisfied at receiving only half a garment instead of the whole one expected by him? And so it is in cooperation. If instead of a full brotherly collaboration half of what is offered is suspicion and doubt, then what kind of success can be achieved? It is needful to cultivate one's capacity for cooperation, beginning with the most routine tasks. It is a mistake to assume that cooperation is manifest in great deeds if it has not been present even in everyday ones. One should look deeply into the depths of one's consciousness and ask oneself whether the spirit is prepared for cooperation.

It is impossible for a man even to think about Brotherhood if he is not happy to take part in a common work. Each common work contains many aspects which correspond to different capabilities. Is the field of labor narrow? Is it not joyous to perceive true co-workers around oneself? The joy We feel at each co-worker is not small. It is necessary to encourage discreetly each one who draws near. But one need not lament those who fall by the wayside, if their spirit cannot understand true joy. (BR, 108)

Each true worker sometimes experiences, as it were, the fall of all his work into an abyss, moreover an abyss which is unfathomable. Thus the spirit of the worker suffers a most dangerous predetermination. A weak one senses the abyss and falls into despondency, but a strong one recognizes the touch of Infinity. Many observations and experiments confront a man before he can encounter joyfully the face of Infinity. Gone will be regret for human creations which have been dissolved. They, even the most sublime ones, will be dispersed in Infinity. The earthly mind does not realize where its accumulated treasures can be made manifest. A man wishes to bring good to humanity, but instead of the fruits of his labor there lies before him an unfathomable abyss. A formidable mind may shudder at that, but the tempered, manifested warrior of labor sees before him, not a chasm but the radiance of Infinity.

Brotherhood is needed in all its mutual assistance. Who, then, if not a Brother, shows the Light of indestructible toil? In space grows each sprig of labor. That which is created does not disintegrate, but sows around itself divisible, innumerable forms. True blessing is in the ever-presence of Infinity. It is possible to populate it with beautiful forms. (BR, 277)

Always remember about the young co-workers. Remember that it is always possible to find them. Remember that they await you, even under diverse garments. Under a vague aspiration they are still ready to receive a word about new attainment. Through all the domains of science let a call be heard to the spacious truth. Let each one, though it be through physical culture, begin to think about culture of the spirit. Let biology remind one about unending life. If someone likes outlandish words, make no objections, for the paths are infinite. If someone is bewildered, encourage him, because not seldom is perplexity a sign of a secret thought. When someone views things with gloom is this not a sign of frustrated hope? One word about Infinity can bestow wings. When someone is silent, perhaps he is searching for the most expressive word—encourage him with a look. Many bridges can be enumerated by which young friends can cross over the stream. But the main thing remains that the readiness of young forces is great. This must be remembered by all who shake their heads in unbelief.

Co-worker of the Creative Principles – see Degrees of Attainment

Creation – Creation through the integrated heart attracts all power. Creation through the integrated spirit attracts all the best energies. Even countless inventions are concerned with the power of unification. Why, then, not accept that the creativity of the Great Plan is saturated with the impulse of unification. Thus, all the mighty energies are created through the attraction of concordance with the Cosmic Magnet. The striving spirit finds it s way to concordance. (INF II, 513)

Each creation requires the participation of the energies of man, since man is the bearer of the highest principles of Cosmos. (LHR II, p 286)

One may call creation a state of magnetic consciousness. (INF I, 339)

Creativeness – Through what is the spirit transformed? Through the creativeness of the impulse. Through what does the spirit ascend? By the creativeness of striving. How, then, shall the spirit not be saturated by fire, if only thus can one adhere to the Cosmic Magnet? The consciousness of the Higher Spirit is fierily saturated, therefore only the realization of the Higher Will can lead the spirit toward its destination. Thus each conscious measure lends beauty to action. Creativeness that adheres to the affirmed fire is magnetized consciously by fulfillment of the Higher Will. (HIER, 43)

The Chalice is the source of creativeness, but psychic energy gives a concrete form to creative ideas. (LHR II, p 373)
see also Cosmic Creativeness

Creative Power – A tensed psychic thought, in conjunction with the subtle feelings, gives the highest creative power. The creativeness of refined feelings is impelled by subtle energies. Only when thought is lawfully propelled into higher spheres do these strivings produce creative tensions. Therefore, the refinement of feelings and sensations is kindred to the tensed seeker of Fire. Cosmic though can penetrate into a psychically refin ed consciousness. The realization of both subtle and crude assimilations will mark the first step in the progress of humanity. (INF II, 359)

Creator – see Degrees of Attainment

Creators of the Worlds – see Crown of Hierarchy

Crippled Souls – This is a term found in ancient treatises, and refers to a state brought on by despair as when a man imagines that no further path remains for him. This results in a "shackling" of the primary energy and actually injures the health of the spirit. (BR, 105)

Crossroad, The – Another name for the heart, so-called because it is the focus of physical as well as the highest laws. In ancient times it was represented by an equilateral cross. (H, 261)

Crown of Be-ness – A creative action is vividly experienced by the Agni Yogi when the Crown of Be-ness is close. (INFI, 167)
see Be-ness , Crown of Cosmos

Crown of Cosmos or Crown of Creation – The life of the atom is many-sided, and the aspects of its paths are quite varied. The courses sometimes describe a circle, manifesting conscious combinations; but at times, becoming disunited, they evince spatial striving, and the obtuse angle increases with each manifestion. The very highest path of unification is called the Crown of Cosmos, when a circle of interrelated lives is complete. The most high and fiery Path! (INF I, 77)

A great Oneness reigns in Cosmos as a powerful law. Only those who adhere to this law can verily take part in cosmic cooperation. The Oneness of substance in everything urges humanity to creativity. When the consciousness draws from the treasury of Space, the Cosmic Magnet is under tension. The manifested treasury contains the expression of the energy imbued by the Oneness. Therefore each seed of the spirit must feel this Oneness. Each seed of the spirit belongs to the Cosmic Oneness in which all cosmic creativeness is comprised. Humanity deprives itself in departing from this truth by setting up a law of separateness. Immutable is the law of the Oneness in infinite diversity!

Only by this law can one build, because when attraction is creating, the power that lies in the action is Oneness. The creativity of Cosmos is boundless through this Oneness!

Upon Oneness stands the entire affirmed Be-ness. The operating law is so stupendous that all cosmic construction rests upon this principle. In every manifestation this law assembles the parts, uniting those which belong to each other. This great law is the Crown of Cosmos.

In the eternal creativeness of life, the law of Oneness holds. The cosmic creativeness goes forth as a fiery command; a command preordaining fusion; a command preordaining destiny; a command preordaining the replacement of one by another; a command preordaining consummation; a command preordaining immortality; a command preordaining life for each atom; a command preordaining the approach of new energy; a command preordaining the New Era. Thus is the cosmic creation accomplished by the magnet of life. How then is it possible to split the creation of the Cosmos? How then can those things which belong to one another be separated? How then can those things which verily issue one from another be separated? Indeed, in its saturation Cosmos is strained for the fiery fusion! Only Cosmic Reason can give to humanity the Image of Oneness. Reason gives to humanity the supreme Image of the creation of the most fiery Heart. Reason assembles in sacredness; therefore, in Cosmos this law is created by life. Where then is the end, when all cosmic manifestations evolve upon two Origins? When a spirit contacts the higher spheres, cosmic creativeness is revealed to it as the law of infinite unity. When the spirit reaches the highest Oneness, it may be said verily that it draws from the vessel of cosmic joy. Yes, yes, yes!

The spirit shudders at the thought of death. But when consciousness penetrates the essence of Be-ness, the conception of Oneness is confirmed. When the spirit understands how ceaselessly the manifestations of life flow, the continuity of all chains may be indicated. The chain of thought, the chain of action, the chain of effects, the chain of strivings, the chain of lives—each chain predetermines the succeeding one. The creativeness of the magnet of life lies in these chains. The spirit must shudder not at the thought of death and change but at the thought of sundering the chain. If one could observe the records of disrupted chains borne in space, the spirit verily would shudder. When the great shifting is brought about, only he will succeed who has adhered to the oneness of evolution. (INF II, 48-51)

Great unity in Cosmos holds sway like a powerful law. Only those who accept this law may truly participate in the cosmic cooperation. The unity of essence in everything directs humanity toward creation. When the consciousness draws from the treasury of space, then the Cosmic Magnet exerts its influence. The manifested treasury contains the affirmation of energy saturated with unity. Therefore, each seed of spirit must feel similar unity. Each seed of spirit belongs to the cosmic Unity, in which all cosmic creation is contained. Man deprives himself of this truth by adopting the way of isolation. The law of Unity is immutable in all its variety. Only by this law is it possible to construct because when the attraction creates, then in the power of action lies unity. All affirmed Be-ness is founded on unity. The administering law is so powerful that cosmic construction is upheld by this principle. In all its manifestations this law gathers its particles, unifying all which belong together. This great law is the Crown of Cosmos! (LHR I, p 28)

The sacred Teaching says that the hermaphrodite never existed in reality. There were some individual, unsuccessful cases, which soon ceased to exist. But the theory of twin souls has a real basis, and in a way completes the symbol of the Androgyne. All symbols of the Androgyne have as their aim the showing of the necessity of the twin Elements in the Cosmos in all their manifestations, for the maintenance of life and equilibrium. All legends about the affinity of souls are based on a great truth because, in primary law, the union of the two Elements is basically meant... Fire is dual in its nature; hence, all the chalices in the ancient mysteries had a dual flame above them. All the gods of antiquity had with them their consorts, who personified the cosmic energy. All scriptures and sacred images point out this fundamental cosmic law. Differentiation results in separation of the Elements and the separated Elements are driven into distant spheres. The magnet which has existed in the Elements during aeons of time will, after the complete transmutation and purification of the Elements, collect and unite them again. This is called the Great Crowning, or the Crown of Cosmos. (LHR I, p 195)

see also Oneness, Law of Crown of Hierarchy – Consists of the Spirits or Intelligences who have completed their human evolution in this or another solar system, the so-called Planetary Spirits, the Creators of the worlds. These Creators of worlds or planets are the Master Builders of the present and the future Universe. In the days of the Pralaya They are in charge of the great Vigil of Brahma and They mark the next cosmic evolution. Therefore, the Crown of Cosmic Intelligence does not depend on the Manvantaras; verily, They exist in the dimension of Infinity. Thus, the Highest Hierarch of our planet is one of the most resplendent Gems in the Crown of Cosmic Intelligence. (LHR I, p 339)

Cruelty – Cruelty is misanthropy. From cruelty there is no path leading to Brotherhood. ... Cruelty is the sign of madness. One should not understand cruelty as a disease, like foul speech, it is merely the expression of a base nature. (BR, 65)

Do not think that there was formerly less cruelty among people than at present; but nowadays it is justified by the most shameless hypocrisy. (BR, 192)

Culture or Cult-Ur – Not a single specialist regardless of how high his professional skill can be considered a cultural leader. Culture is synthesis; culture understands and knows the foundation of life and creativeness because it is the cult or worship, or reverence of creative fire, which is life. (LHR I, p 77)

People talk much about culture, but this fundamental too must not be made complicated. It is necessary to understand more simply the betterment of life and the raising of morality. Each one who is aware of a better life will regard with care everything beautiful. It is necessary to be more good. (BR, 137)

As for a state of culture, this is an exception, because it is the sign of a true aristocracy —aristocracy of spirit and soul. (LHR II, p 527)

Cumulations – see Accumulations

Cycles – see Periods

Daltonism – Color blindness, so named after chemist John Dalton (1766-1844) who in his first paper on "Extraordinary Facts Relating to the Vision of Colors", gave the earliest account of this optical peculiarity. (EB)

Danger – Danger is a concentration of the vibrations of tension. A great number of perils surround people, but only a few of them are noticed. When the Leader says, "live in danger", he might well say instead, "observe the dangers and thus succeed." One cannot live outside of dangers, but it is beautiful to make out of dangers a carpet of achievement. The Leader knows that he bears a mission, and dangers are only propelling forces; therefore the Leader does not even think about dangers. The very thought of peril is harmful. Thinking about dangers, we strengthen their vibrations, and thus disturb our equilibrium. Conservation of forces must not be disrupted by fear and confusion. We are watchful and careful for the best execution of the commission. But dangers cannot overburden our attention. The Teacher should, first of all, insist upon the disciple's liberation from the phantom of perils. The disciple should always remember not to expend a drop of the higher energy uselessly. Thought of danger agitates many of our centers and in disorderly fashion consumes the precious energy. Thought of danger reflects even upon the pulse; but the heart is strengthened by the desire to carry out well the mission. Thus, let us act in the most efficient manner. (FW II, 190)

Real danger can be conquered only with the help of complete knowledge.

Dangma, Eye of – see Eye of Dangma

Daring – Daring of the spirit is the beginning of ascent. The manifestation of true daring indicates to the spirit how to affirm the measuring scale of all actions, as well as the direction, because daring admits no faint-heartedness. Daring eradicates all tendency toward betrayal. Whoever has realized in spirit true daring knows the beauty of Service. The daring one knows the path of attainment and fears nothing. His life is filled with devotion to Hierarchy. Each co-worker can reflect upon the beauty of fiery daring, for it frees the spirit from all worldly chains. The daring one is not afraid of solitude, for in spirit he feels a bond with the Hierarchy of Light. The daring one knows that the joy of the spirit is contained only in achievement. The daring one is in need of no human recognition, for his achievement is a crown self-woven by labor and striving. Only the heroes of spirit know true attainment. Thus, the daring one will be freed from selfhood. He knows true Service for the good of mankind. On the path to the Fiery World let us remember daring. (FW III, 55)

Dark Forces or Dark Ones – The pattern of work of the dark ones is first to sow disbelief, then to saturate it with desires, then to inflate these into crimes and reap a double harvest. (LMG II, p 119)

One should understand that the forces of darkness are battling constantly against Brotherhood. Each reminder, even a small one, about Brotherhood will be violently assailed. Everything that can lead to Brotherhood will be condemned and defamed. (BR, 176)

Under the disguise of Light, the Dark Forces try with all their might to penetrate to the spiritual hearths, so that they can disturb and corrupt them. (LHR II, p 274)

The biggest centers of population are usually chosen by the main dark forces and are used as their centers. And their best weapon is the ignorant masses.
(LHR II, p 6)
see also Obsession

Darkness – Hypocrisy, bigotry, and superstition are three of the dark qualities which must be rejected on the path to Brotherhood. (BR, 24)

"The stronger the light, the denser the darkness"—and this saying is also not understood, whereas one must accept it simply. It should not be thought that darkness increases from the light. Light reveals the darkness and then disperses it. The bearer of light also sees the dark shadows, which vanish at the approach of light. The timid assume that darkness will fall upon them; thus thinks timorousness, and the light trembles in their hands, and because of this tremor of fear the shadows come to life and play antics. (BR, 580)

Dates – The law of karma and the law of dates are like the double-faced Janus—one gives birth to the other. Karma bears the fruit of actions and calls forth the date of manifestation.

Take note that personal karma, group karma, and cosmic karma must be combined—then will the date be correct. Often the development of a personal karma draws after it the group karma. Some spirits are ruled entirely by karma, which means that the knowledge of the spirit is at a minimum and karma is the sole possibility of evolution. (LMG II, pp 156-157)

Let us have courage to meet dates; let us understand the chain of events; and in a threatening hour let us smile at news about achievement. (BR, 391)

Dates, Law of – The law of dates is as important as the law of karma. The law of dates controls the combination of skandhas. (LMG II, p 155)

see also Dates

Days of the Mother of the World – In the history of the Earth there have been great epochs during which there was knowledge of the Fiery World and Fiery Thinking was in the ascendancy. These days have been called the Days of the Mother of the World and when people "will realize the uselessness of evil," these Days of Light will come again. (LHR I)

Death – Death is no more than the shearing of the hair, for in the same way is matter cast off. (LMG II, p 39)

Decrees – It is well to point out: "Read again, and better, the old Decrees." I teach the new when the old has been put into practice. I teach the useful when the indicated and cognized cooperation has been accepted and entered into. (LMG II, p 113)

Degrees of Attainment – The degrees of attainment are: alarmed; inquiring; knocking; hearkening; reminiscing; transmitting; sword carrier; puissant; lamp of the desert; lion of the desert; co-worker of the creative principles; creator.

Each degree is subdivided thrice; the order must be passed gradually. (AY, 107)

Denarius – A Roman silver coin. (WD)

Densification of the Astral – This is the densification of the subtle body almost up to a physical state. For centuries the White Brotherhood has experimented along these lines and it is the state of most of the Great Adepts of the Himalayas. (LHR I, p 498)

Deodar – Also known as the "god tree", "gift of the gods", the Deodar is a kind of coniferous evergreen closely allied to the cedar. It is found extensively in the Himalayas at elevations of from 7,000 feet which could also account in part for its strong medicinal qualities. It is also mentioned in the Teaching as a "life-giver", and is a strong source of the precipitations of Fiery Energy.

Design of the Lords – This refers to the plan of the Masters of Hierarchy as it coincides with the design of Cosmos.

Despair – Despair may be the forerunner of recovery of vision. (BR, 6)

As soon as a man imagines that no further path remains for him, he shackles his own primary energy. In such fetters there can be no advance. But cutting short the path, the man takes upon himself a grave responsibility. This cannot be justified by despair, for of course this dark phantom is engendered by one's own weak will. Having lodged in the spirit, this specter actually injures the health. The phantom has nothing in it of reality. (BR, 105)

The worm of despondency is conquered through labor. (LHR II, 406)

Deva – (Sk.). A Deva is a celestial being whether good or bad, or indifferent. Devas inhabit the "three worlds" which are the three planes above us. (TG)

We shall recall the conditions of perfectment. If we began with the Asuras, let us conclude with the Devas. (H, 224)

Devachan – (Sk.). One of the states between two earth-lives into which the Ego (made up of the 3 highest principles) enters after leaving Kama-Rupa. It is a state during which the person's finest earth desires are at last realized in a time of perfect subjective bliss. ... no sensual, material, or unholy recollection can follow the purified memory of the Ego to the region of Bliss. The Karma for these recollections of evil deeds and thoughts will reach the Ego when it changes its personality in the following world of causes. The Monad or the "Spiritual Individuality", remains untainted in all cases. No sorrow or pain for those born there (in the Rupa Loka or Deva-chan); for this is the Pureland. All the regions in Space possess such lands (Sakwala), but the land of Bliss is the most pure. (ML, p 105)

Devachan is a place of pleasant realizations. But at the same time it is dangerous, because a weak spirit is reluctant to leave so pleasant a situation. This station yields the greatest unwillingness to return for more labor. And when the time comes to leave this Valhalla, while the mental body impels one to achievement, the astral body finds the place most comfortable. (LMG II, p 82-83)

Devachan is not an obligatory state. Devachan is like a reservoir of forces. The renewal of the spirit is achieved there. But many souls have a large store of strength and do not need it. They await the date for a new manifestation. (LMG II, pp 154-155)

Devadatta – One of Gotama Buddha's cousins, who was a member of His community for fifteen years and then amid great treachery split away and formed a group of his own. According to legend he was swallowed up by the earth when on his way to ask pardon of the Buddha. (EB)

Devotion – Let us turn to devotion. This concept is also subject to many distortions. Devotion does not resemble a windmill, or a hired singer of praises. Rather, it resembles a firm tower upon a summit, which the enemies avoid in awe, but in whose chambers a shelter is ever prepared for a friend. Devotion is the opposite of doubt, which is nothing but ignorance. It means that devotion rests upon enlightenment. Thus, validity of learning is akin to devotion. It is not credulity, not levity, but firmness and steadfastness. Truly, the tower of devotion is not constructed by haphazard toil or by petty decisiveness; and devotion can be violated only by perfidy, which is the same as betrayal. But valuable are the towers of devotion! Such ashrams, like magnets, attract powerful hearts; they are nurseries of spirituality. Even material nature is transformed in the proximity of these towers. (HIER, 287)

One must distinguish between absolute devotion and conditional devotion. (AY 87)

Complete devotion is the projection of consciousness along the line of Hierarchy. As a taut sail bears along the precious load, so the intensified consciousness carries one beyond the boundaries of danger. (H, 166)

There is no salvation surer than that through devotion. One can forgive much where there is unswerving devotion. The man who is devoted in heart can be relied upon. It is cause for rejoicing when Hierarchy is upheld by devotion. (FW I, 605)

Only devotion together with constant striving leads us to the Abode.
(LHR II, p 166)

The infinite Hierarchic Chain consists of links formed by the limitless devotion of a disciple to his Guru. (LHR II, p 130)

Dew – see Snow

Dharma – (Sk.). The sacred Law; the Buddhist Canon. (TG)

One must emphasize the significance of an active and as perfect as possible fulfillment of the earthly tasks, or as it is said, of "one's dharma to the end." Only in this way is it possible to achieve the true progress of the inner man. "Man comes to perfection by the constant fulfillment of his dharma," says Krishna in the Bhagavad-Gita. (LHR I, p 329)

As color, form and sound are to the eye and ear, so dharmas are to the consciousness. They exist for us by their effects. The blue color exists only as we receive the sensation of blue.

It is customary to call the Teaching of Buddha itself Dharma, since dharma also signifies law. Subjective and objective phenomena are continuously changing. They are real; but their reality is momentary because all that exists is but part of an eternally unfolding development—dharmas appear one moment in order to change the next. This doctrine of the eternal flux of all things was so fundamental a characteristic of the Teaching that it was named "The Theory of Instantaneous Destruction."

Dharmas (transcendental bearers of definite qualities) are drawn into the stream of eternal change. Their combinations define the specifications of objects and individuals. Only that which is beyond combinations is unchangeable. The ancient teaching knew only one concept which was integral, unconditioned and eternal—Nirvana.

Every dharma is a cause, for every dharma is energy. If this energy is inherent in each conscious being; it manifests itself in a two-fold way: outwardly, as the immediate cause of phenomena; inwardly, by transmuting the one who has engendered it and by containing in itself the consequences revealed in the near or distant future. (FB, pp 103-104)

Dhyan Chohan – (Sk.). Lit., "The Lords of Light". The highest gods, answering to the Roman Catholic Archangels. The Divine Intelligences charged with the supervision of Kosmos. (TG)

Diet – We advise not to use meat for reasons of simple goal-fitness. Indeed, anyone understands that to make use of decomposing cells is harmful. But when does this decomposition begin? At the moment of cessation of the functions of life the body loses its protective radiation and decomposition sets in immediately. … We recommend farinaceous food, dairy products and vegetables, where there is less decomposition.

True, the life process of plants resembles that of animals, but one can see that the decomposition of plants begins much later. Vegetables are better used either fresh or dried in great heat. It is better to use unleavened bread made without fats. There are enough fatty substances in butter and vegetable oil. … On the path let us remember that eating twice a day is sufficient. Let us not sit too long at table. (COM, 148)

Diplodocus – (Lat.). A very large amphibious dinosaur of the Jurassic period, found in the Rocky Mountain region. (WD)

Disciples – Disciples are of four types. Some follow the indications of the Teacher and ascend in lawful order. Others, behind the Teacher's back, overstress the indications and thereby often harm themselves. Others, in the Teacher's absence, take occasion to prattle and thereby destroy their way. Others, behind the corner, condemn the Teacher and betray Him. Fearful is the destiny of the latter. (AY, 105)

Many persons claim to be disciples of the Mahatmas. But, the number of true disciples is very limited. Once a Great Teacher was asked whether he had many close disciples, and he answered, "Less than the number of fingers on one hand."
(LHR II, p 60)
see also Discipleship

Discipleship – There are two main categories of discipleship. The first is called Preparatory Discipleship and includes all those who have started the journey and who, by following the Teachings and the indications of their higher selves, are endeavoring to transform themselves for the ultimate acceptance by a Great Teacher as a full disciple.

Full Discipleship is the second category and has two main conditions of acceptance. The first is the Karma of the aspirant. To be accepted, his Karma must be almost completed for as a full disciple he will share a most intimate spiritual connection with the Teacher which would make such a relationship unbearable for the Teacher if certain karmic traits were not outlived.

The second condition is dedicated striving and a readiness to sacrifice oneself to the Service of the General Good. This last requirement contains many of the qualities that can be worked on and developed during the preparatory stage.

A common misconception is that the Teacher is eager and willing to take any and all people as disciples. This is not so. As the individual treads the preparatory path he must begin to fulfill the requirements of full discipleship and must find the Teacher who will ultimately become his Teacher and, having done so, must not waiver from that selected path in the hopes of finding a quicker one. This results in losing one's way.

When self-renunciation and striving are affirmed in the heart they will become as second nature. The application of the Teaching to oneself and in the life of every day will become joyous, and then progress and even achievement of the sacred aim is assured.

But one must ask oneself, and answer with full sincerity, whether there is really such fiery striving and self-denial, or whether there is some secret selfish desire to achieve greater knowledge for covetous purposes. The slightest signs of such hidden desire will be the greatest obstacle on the path of spiritual progress. For success one must have understanding, as well as readiness to practice podvig—the great self-denial—in life.

One must seriously ponder the concept of podvig as the necessary condition. The profound understanding of all the qualities that are included in podvig is extremely important. Therefore, it is useful to write down from the books of the Teaching all the necessary qualities enumerated there, as well as all the vices which are obstacles to the path. Verily, it is most difficult for people to realize that the foundation of discipleship and of all spiritual achievement is the striving toward the Highest Ideal and the fiery purification of all one's feelings and of one's whole character. (LHR I, p 286)
see also Disciples

Discipline – The being who is filled with doubt is not fit for even a primitive form of cooperation. He cannot even understand all the beautiful discipline of Brotherhood. Precisely, discipline, as not otherwise can be named that voluntary harmony which lies in the foundation of the Brotherhood's labors. (BR, 13)

One must persistently strive toward broadening and disciplining one's own consciousness, which alone can aid the refinement and fiery transmutation of our nerve receptors, or centers. (LMG II, p 400)

The discipline of freedom distinguishes Our communities. Not only is the spirit disciplined, but also the qualities of external actions. (COM, 91)

Without evidencing austere discipline of the spirit, initiative will result in wavering and spasmodic attempts which lead nowhere. (LHR II, p 398)

Discontent – The corroding worm of discontent must be ejected from each cooperative. Some will call it striving for perfectment, others will call it doubt. One may name many strategems, but they all will merely conceal the unbearable feeling of discontent. It is terrifying to think how many undertakings are destroyed because of discontent. One should investigate whence it arises. (BR, 544)

Discontent is only the knowledge of possibilities. Conentment is the death of the spirit. (LMG II, p 93)

Discrimination – Discrimination has been called "the affirmation of causality in each action" and is one of the first demands on the path of true discipleship. It is the discernment of actions, their causes, and the knowledge of "which forces are admissable for construction and which can bring harm".

Discrimination is one of the most pronounced fiery qualities. It is not straight-knowledge, but a glimmer, as it were, of the language of the Fiery World. (FW I, 660)

Disease – Diseases are divided as sacred, karmic, and those that are admitted. The first two concepts are easily understood, but precisely in the book Hierarchy, one should mention the admitted ones; Who or what permits these diseases? Certainly ignorance and the horror of non-realization. It is not enough not to think about them. Children likewise do not think of them, yet become infected. One should protect oneself in consciousness and create an invulnerable armor of nerve emanations. Even severe epidemics cannot develop if people master their consciousnesses. An experiment with the substance of psychic energy would indicate what powerful antiseptics people carry within themselves. For this, two conditions are necessary: the first—realization of Hierarchy as the sole path for the increase of psychic energy. One should not look upon Hierarchy as something abstract. One should realize firmly that it is the most powerful life-giver. We call it the primary remedy. But even a pill must be swallowed and an ointment applied. There is no effect from a remedy that is in a trunk. Likewise, the Benefaction of Hierarchy must be taken by striving. Thus, an irrevocable striving will afford a healing result. (HIER, 418)

Dissonance – Dissonance is more audible than consonance. When one listens to the lower superearthly sphere, one may be staggered by the tortured groans, wails, and cries of terror. After these moans the succeeding spheres seem silent, but this impression is a relative one. The music of the spheres is sublime, but it does not harrow the nerve centers. So, too, in all that exists people are attracted by dissonance, but only a few know how to recognize concordance. On the paths to Brotherhood one must cognize the power of concordance. (BR, 480)

see also consonance

Disparagement – Can you indicate any disparagement in the Decrees of the Teacher? You cannot, for then the Teacher would not be worthy of this title. But can you vouch for your own actions, since disparaging is contrary to the Brotherhood? Disparagement is involution, whereas upliftment is evolution. We serve evolution. One can find Commands, warnings, and even indignation, but there is no disparagement in Our Works. Even Our adversaries are not belittled. (HIER, 403)

Each disparagement, even an unconscious one, nevertheless brings its bad karma. (LHR II, p 301)

Dispassionateness – Dispassionateness is not heartlessness or indifference. When people read historical chronicles, they are not irritated, because these writings belong to the distant past; and the experience of life teaches that almost all received communications also refer to the past. Likewise, experience whispers that the future can direct thoughts above and beyond irritation and disturbance. Thus, only the future is liberated from passion. From it is born dispas-sionateness. Usually people upbraid one for this concept, confusing it with selfhood; but it is better to attribute it to justice. Only the future, not littered by the confusion of the recent past, can enable one to think rationally. (BR, 285)

Divine Fire – Agni—the all pervading Fiery Energy.

Divine Love – What else can it be but the Great Principle, or the beginning of attraction, or affinity, or that very Fohat in its differentiation as Divine Love (Eros), the electric power of affinity and sympathy, allegorically manifested in the attempt to combine the pure spirit, which is a ray inseparable from the One or Absolute, with the soul. These two form the monad in man, whereas in nature it is the first link between the eternally unconditional and the manifested. (LHR II, p 15)

Divine Nearness – Bliss, Nirvana, Divine Nearness and all analagous terms for the higher state are usually understood in an earthly sense ... a conjuring with the Highest, this transformation through the highest energies, primarily impels one to an increased tension of all forces. Amidst the contacts with fiery radiances, the seed of the spirit will be kindled the more, and its striving toward thought-creativeness, unrestrainable. (FW I, 644)

Djinn – (Arabic). Also spelled Genii or Jinn, this is a kind of elemental or nature sprite. They can often help humans on the earthly plane, but the spiritual plane is inaccessible to them. (LHR I, p 230)

One may follow how the jinn helped to build temples. They did not suspect how their work was utilizable. (BR, 133)

According to a legend, Solomon's Temple was built by Jinn. (LHR II, p 405)

Dodecahedron – (Gr.). A solid having 12 plane faces.

According to Plato, the Universe is built by "the first begotten" on the geometrical figure of the Dodecahedron. (TG)

The dodecahedron is one of the most perfect formations; such a dynamic figure can resist many assaults. A group of twelve men, systematically united, can master even cosmic events. (AY, 137)

None shall witness the Effulgence of the Dodecahedron, the sign of Her Power. (EC, p 61)

It has been possible to demonstrate the dodecahedron, but this is not easy. Let us observe all the signs of Fire and of psychic energy. Thus we shall affirm the understanding of the similarity of these supreme concepts. And thus, gropingly, we shall discover the evidences of the subtle energies in everyday life. (AY, 378)

Dokyood – I shall reply to the question about light in the Subtle World. Indeed, the transcendental nature of the condition communicates a corresponding aspect to the whole world-content. When you visited Dokyood, you saw sufficient light. But certain regions of the Subtle World are striking because of their twilight. The Light is within ourselves and we open up the way to it. So, too, the inhabitants of the Subtle World who desire light have no scarcity of it. The inhabitants to whom the need of Light is alien dwell in twilight. This refers to unlimited thought-creativeness. That sun which we on Earth perceive under one aspect, can be transformed into many conditions under the power of thought-creativeness. He who desires Light gives access to it, but he who sinks into a twilight of thought receives that to which he has limited himself. This is why we repeat so often about clarity of consciousness, about boundlessness of thought, and about containment. Such an adaptation of the organism to the future produces the most desirable results. How many inhabitants of the Subtle World look about themselves in the Fiery Mist and dimly regret something that has been lost! (FW I, 153)

Doubt – The being who is filled with doubt is not fit for even a primitive form of cooperation. (BR, 13)

There is no boundary that would impede the ascent of a spirit not harboring doubt. Doubt is like a fear in a balloon. ... Doubt is nothing but a pocket full of holes—no diamonds can be kept in them. Doubt does not dwell in our Ashram. (LHR II, pp 405-406)

Dorje – (Tib.). This is the name given to the sign of the equilateral cross which symbolizes as does the swastika, the fire of the heart. Dorje and Doijeshang are also titles of the Buddha in his highest aspect. (H, 261)

Double Pulse – The Invisible World participates in earthly life much more than is supposed. Advise that attention be directed to many small manifestations, which are usually not even noticed. Not striking and blinding manifestations, but those which the limited mind calls coincidence or accident, these construct unforgettable results. If we take all the inexplicable manifestations of the heart, even unprepared minds will notice unusualness which contradicts the deductions of medicine. Let us take for instance the so-called double pulse, when an external influence seemingly creates two focal points for the organism. Yet, the manifestation of cosmic energy explains with perfect simplicity how closely we are united with the external forces, and the external fires and lights will remind us of the same thing, if our minds will permit them to be seen. (H, 40)

Dragon of the Threshold – One must live through the hour that is called "The Dragon of the Threshold." We call that hour "the tearing of the veil." Thus We define when darkness plans to tear the veil but instead only discloses the distances. (H, 61)

Regard wealthy prophets with special caution—in reality they do not exist. True, We cannot let a messenger starve; but let not earthly wealth with all its burdens be "The Dragon of the Threshold." (H, 588)

Dreams – Composite dreams and recollections represent in themselves a whole science. Sometimes they are interwoven with fiction, but upon dissection they manifest a whole series of separate episodes which are quite real. (BR, 82)

Do not think that one's thoughts can have a preponderant influence upon dreams. Remote spatial thoughts can also produce such influences. The perception of distant thoughts is very easy during sleep. (BR, 494)

In dreams there sometimes appear clearly defined faces of complete strangers, whom one meets later on in life. There are many explanations for such prevision, but first of all, it becomes clear that by some sort of sight man perceives that which he will see later in the physical aspect. Indeed, these encounters bear witness to the Subtle World and to activity during sleep. (BR, 507)

Drowsiness – It is unthinkable not to sense the tension of the cosmic currents which absorb the psychic energy. There may be apparent a certain drowsiness, ... (BR, 517)

Drowsiness may occur due to several reasons, and one should discern them. Drowsiness often occurs because of cosmic causes, and also because of a contact with a sick, vampiric aura, which can suck out energy even to complete exhaustion of strength. Also, there are frequent cases when our psychic energy is suddenly needed by someone close to us, and because of the law of the spiritual magnet, our energy hastens to help immediately; and, indeed, during its outflow we feel drowsiness or even dizziness, and as it were, a temporary brief absentation. (LHR II, pp 453-454)

Druids – A sacerdotal caste which flourished in Britain and Gaul. They were initiates who admitted females into their sacred order, and initiated them into the mysteries of their religion. They never entrusted their sacred verses and scriptures to writing, but, like the Brahmans of old, committed them to memory; a feat which, according to the statement of Ceasar, took twenty years to accomplish. Like the Parsis they had no images or statues of their gods. The Celtic religion considered it blasphemy to represent any god, even of a minor character, under a human figure. ... The three chief commandments of their religion were:—Obedience to divine laws; concern for the welfare of mankind; suffering with fortitude all the evils of life. (TG)

The Druids were the Masons of very ancient times ... At the head of the Druids was a woman, who bore the title of Mother of the Druids. (LHR II, p 356)

The Druids had a ritual in which all those who were present had to move around the sacrificial place or altar, exactly in the direction of the sun, whereas the Hierophant himself was moving against the sun, symbolizing his superior knowledge. (LHR II, p 384)

Duad, The – Consisting of the seventh and sixth principles, does not act as a conscious entity on the physical plane of existence. Thus, in order to reach true immortality and to achieve a conscious manifestation on all planes, i.e. to become an Arhat, a Buddha, or a Dhyan Chohan, man must connect the three principles (the fourth, fifth and seventh) here on earth and merge them together in the sixth principle. (The sixth principle in its highest aspect is manifested in the heart and in the brain center.) (LHR I, p 240)

Dukkar or Dukka – (Sk.). The many-eyed and many-armed, is a Tibetan Divinity of the Feminine Element. She is the equivalent of the Hindu Kali and Lakshami, the symbol of The Mother of the World. Usually, on Tibetan tankas, She is represented under an umbrella, which symbolizes the gathered drops of highest bliss. (LHR I, p 496)

In the ancient pictures of the Mother of the World (in the Tibetan language, Dukkar the Many-Eyed), her aura consists of eyes. Each ray terminates with an eye ... Likewise, among the Great Teachers, the manifestation of the Eye of Dangma is especially valued. This is not clairvoyance, as generally understood, but the straight-knowledge accumulated in the Chalice during the thousands of lives and self-sacrificing experiences. The goal of this accumulation is to achieve a great destiny and become a full Arhat, or Man-God. (LHR I, p 427)

Realize how useful it is to follow Our Counsel without grievance, knowing that the emanations of the storm intensify the centers. But under the umbrella of Dukkar we shall endure. The Teacher has many sentinels. (AY, 497)

Duty – The conscious realization of duty prompts the right use of energy. (BR, 155)

Dzyan, The Book of – Containing the Stanzas of Dzyan, this is a most ancient Teaching from the Great Source and is the basic source for Helena Blavatsky's Secret Doctrine. (LHR I, p 488)

Eagle Eye – The Eye of the Master.

Earth – It must be known that the earthly matter is very dense. On the planets of lower level than Earth the matter is very coarse; upon those higher than Earth, matter harmonizes with the spirit. Hence, the Earth appears as a turning point. (LMG II, p 84)

Earthly Dragon, Year of – The Tibetan designation for the year corresponding to 1925. (LHR I, p 337)

It is correctly said that the invisible forces are stronger than the visible ones. Also correct is the realization that the closeness of the Teacher is indefeasible.

Indisputably true is the feeling about the currents of space, which influence the entire life. Is it possible that people have not remarked the densification of the currents since the year of the Earthly Dragon? The tail of the Dragon is like a magnet, but its hopes are in vain. One cannot receive salutary energy while creeping upon the earth. Precisely to this year is the sign of the Dragon sent. One should beware of the hands of Earth-dwellers. For ten years one can expect subtle betrayals.

The New Era begins in the midst of thunder and lightning. What will evoke the manifestation of storm? The usual torpor. How tediously does this ten-year span drag itself out when the advent of the new energies is already at hand! (AY, 277)

Ectoplasm – The luminous substance believed to emanate from a spiritualistic medium which effects telekinesis and other phenomena; exteriorized protoplasm. (WD)

And in the constitution of races, ectoplasm has its significance. It is linked with the rays of the far-off worlds. Indeed, it can be of lofty or low quality. Like- wise, it depends upon the burning of the heart. One can observe in the case of lymphatic people a low quality of ectoplasm, and this makes possible the strange dwarf-like formations. (FW III, 612)

Ectoplasm is the storehouse of psychic energy. Actually, the substance of ectoplasm is midway between the earthly and the subtle being. (AUM, 465)

Ecotoplasm should be preserved in purity ... giving out ectoplasm for casual comers the medium is subject to great danger. It is inadmissable to place such a valuable substance at the disposal of uninvited visitors ... all the phenomena that take place in spiritualistic seances are performed by means of ectoplasm, which is exuded by the medium and all those who are present. And you can well imagine the polluted condition of the ectoplasm when it returns to its owner after it has been used by visitors from the lower and middle spheres!
(LHR II, pp 240-241)

Ego – (Lat.). "Self"; The consciousness in man "I am I"—or the feeling of "I-am-ship". Esoteric philosophy takes the existence of two Egos in man, the mortal or personal, and the Higher, the Divine and the Impersonal, calling the former "personality", and the latter "Individuality". (TG)

Thus the highest or fundamental principle, which contains potentiality and synthesis of all the others, is the fiery energy of life or spirit, which is spread throughout the entire Cosmos. For its focus it requires the sixth principle, or Buddhi (often called ‘the spiritual soul’ as distinct from the human-animal soul). Thus the monad is formed, which is the primary, unconscious, incarnated Ego. Then follows the fifth principle—the Manas, self-consciousness, ‘the Thinker’ (higher intelligence). These three principles form the higher triad, or the conscious, immortal Ego. In Devachan, this Ego survives after the dissolution of the other principles which form man’s earthly personality or, as the Easterners would put it, man’s lower ego, or self. (LHR I, p 472)

Thus, the personal or lower ego, or human soul, consists of five principles; whereas the spirit, or higher Ego, the true individuality, or spiritual soul, forms a triad of the seventh, sixth, and fifth principles. (LHR I, p 473)

The Monad corresponds to the idea of spirit. But when it is spoken of as spirituality and the spirit in life, in manifestation, it is always meant as the highest Ego. (LHR I, p 428)

see also Individuality

Egoism – Indeed, one must free oneself from egoism in order to transmute and affirm the radiant Ego. One may carry the transformed Ego to the altar of Light without fear of being burned. What, then, is subject to scorching if not egoism with all its appendages? Egoism, like a cancerous swelling is engendered by lack of Agni. Let us not forget that egoism attracts and fills itself with carnal lusts and begets evil. Around the bait of egoism flock the influences of family, clan, and nation. The very sediments of the physical and of the Subtle World seek to wind themselves about egoism; such a bristly ball is unsuitable for the Fiery World. But the tempered and conscious fiery Ego enters the Fiery World as a welcome guest. Thus, let us distinguish all that befits the Higher World. Let us not regard this attraction to the Higher World as an achievement. Let it be only a luminous duty. It is not fitting to consider the predestined assignment as a unique achievement. People should accustom themselves to the transmutation of the heart as a manifest path, known long ago. (FW I, 606)

Elementals – These are the spirits of the Elements, evolved in the four kingdoms or Elements of earth, air, fire, and water and have been called Gnomes (of the Earth), Sylphs (of the air), Salamanders (of the fire), and Undines (of water).

Except a few of the higher kinds, and their rulers, they are rather forces of nature than ethereal men and women ... All the lower invisible beings generated on the 5th, 6th, and 7th planes of our terrestrial atmosphere, are called Elementals: Peris, Devas, Djinns, Sylvans, Satyrs, Fauns, Elves, Dwarfs, Trolls, Kobolds, Brownies, Pixies, Goblins, Pinkies, Banshies, Moss People ... etc. (TG)

I consider that the miracle of the nature-spirits can be explained. Their main property is elasticity. Their form depends on the aspiratory conditions. Falling into the focus of human sight, they are sucked into human form. Men will see them in human shape and animals will see them as animals, because they have no shell.

I attest that whether the forms are fearful or beautiful depends upon the reflex of the nerves. The potentiality of the elements is such that it is always ready to respond to nerve reflexion and thus to doubly reinforce Our sending in a definite direction.

One should not think that the elemental spirits are Our brood ...

The spirits of elements strive toward union with man. They undergo the development of consciousness in lower forms of elements, and rarely possible are cases of their growth up to the consciousness of man ...

The elements are spatial substance, imponderable and immeasurable—semi-amorphous crystals in the aspect of the so-called elemental manifestations. The essence of the unmanifested spirit permeates the substance of space.

It is said of man that he is born and he dies. About the elemental spirit it can be said that it flashes and becomes extinct. Like an arrow, the consciousness of the manifested spirit pierces into the substance of the elements, and like a magnet it gathers the molten substance. The birth of an elemental spirit is conditioned by the contact of a manifested consciousness.

The quality, appearance and dynamic force of the spirit depends upon the spirit of the creator. Therefore, evil thinking is condemned as the begetter of monstrosity. The force of the consciousness produces a corresponding reflex in the substance of space. (LMG II, pp 137-142)

Elementaries – The disembodied souls of the depraved; souls that have separated from their divine spirits prior to death and are thus deprived of their chance for immortality. (TG)

Elements – The elements are spacial substance, imponderable and immeasureable — semi-amorphous crystals in the aspect of the so-called elemental manifestations. The essence of the unmanifested spirit permeated the substance of space. The spheres of the elements are of dazzling beauty, and besmirching them is like destroying a wonderful flower. I feel that the teaching of pure thoughts will permeate into people's consciousness. The sower of thought gathers the harvest. Therefore, with the Mother of the World all-seeing cooperation is unavoidable. The state of substance of the space, pierced by the combinations of new rays, permits the beginning of the New Era. All Good should be gathered. (LMG II, pp 141-142)

Elements, Male and Female – In the Ancient Teachings, the first manifestation out of the Infinite at the birth of Cosmos is the Androgyne—a synthesis of the Male and Female Elements, or, as they are called in the Sacred Teachings—the Origins.

It is the Father-Mother, or Aditi of Hindu Cosmogony and the Sacred Teaching. Thus Darkness is Father-Mother; Light is Their Son. Darkness is the eternal womb in which the source of Light appears and disappears ...

Father and Mother are the masculine and feminine principles in the Root of Nature, or the opposite polarities in all things, in each plane of the Cosmos. They are Spirit and Substance, whose result is the Son ... (SD)

And so, there is only one Substance, one Element—whether you call it God, Spirit, Fire, That, etc. or Para-brahmin, Ain-Soph, Space, Absolute, etc.—which in potentiality has both polarities, or is the Androgyne. (LHR I, p 489)

Elgario, the Tree – The Tree (in Shambhala) the dew from which reveals the future.

As King in the Land of whirlwinds, I can send them a drop of dew from the tree Elgario, which reveals the life of the future. (LMG II, p 174)

Elohim – (Bib.). A term meaning ‘‘Gods" and actually referring to 7 "Gods"—the 7 Dhyan Chohans who came to earth and through their progeny enlightened mankind with the spark of Intelligence during the second half of the Third Race of this planet. (LHR I, p 458)

The impetus for its (intellect) development was given by the Great Spirits, the Sons and Daughters of Wisdom (Elohims) who came from the higher worlds and were incarnated at the end of the third race. (LHR I, p 484)

Elusive Decrees – A term, taken from an old Chinese fable and used to describe the Highest Ordainments or Indications. The fable makes the point clear that great tension and attentiveness are necessary "To catch the Elusive Decrees", whatever one's spiritual accomplishments may be. (FW I, 654)
see also Decrees

Emanations – The physicians of antiquity determined the quality of emanations by the application of plants and metals. They also used certain breeds of dogs which were very sensitive to the emanations of man. (BR, 516)

The greatest benefit that we can contribute consists in the broadening of consciousness, and the improvement and enrichment of our thinking, together with the purification of the heart, in order to strengthen our emanations; and by thus raising our vibrations, we restore the health of all that surrounds us.
(LHR II, p 256)

Emissary – In the Agni Yoga Teachings, this term is often used to describe a Representative of the White Lodge.
see also Envoy

Encounters – Wise joy will be manifested also at ordained encounters. Not often do people sense when their encounters have deep roots. Vivid recollections sparkle like instantaneous flashes. At times they produce an unpleasant confusion, as if they were not to be admitted into the ways of everyday life. Therefore, it is necessary to analyze one's impressions cautiously. Besides the veracity of one's first impressions there may be various recollections. Sometimes, even good people may not appear in their higher aspect. (BR, 506)

Enemies – Do not make enemies. This is an enjoinment to all. Know your enemies, beware of them, stop their actions, but bear no malice. And if the enemy comes of his own accord under your roof, give him warmth, because large is your roof and the newcomer shall not take your place. But if it is difficult to overcome a deep feeling, then cover it with the smile of Light. (LMG II, pp 125-126)

The reason humanity so well remembers Buddha and Christ is because they were both very fortunate in having powerful enemies. (LHR II, p 196)

Energy – One should distinguish three groups of medicines—life-givers, preservers, and restorers. Let us leave for our enemies the fourth group—the destroyers. Let us first turn to the life-givers, because they act first of all upon the nervous system. The nerve centers and secretions of the glands indicate the future trend of medicine. Through these domains humanity will discover the finest energy, which for simplification we still call spirit. The discovery of the emanations of this energy will be the next step in the development of culture. (AY, 42)

> The unification of consciousness is, first of all, the preservation of energy. (H, 315)
> see also Epoch

Enthusiasm – (Gr. enthousiamos, fr. enthousiazein to be inspired or possessed by agod, fr. entheos, enthous, inspired.) (WD)

Let us affirm the enthusiasm of the spirit. To be filled with the spirit means to place oneself in direct communion with Hierarchy. (FW II, 22)

The embryo of enthusiasm grows into a beautiful inspiration. (BR, 220)

In our threatening times we need spiritual, self-sacrificing workers, we need enthusiasts, we need heroes! (LHR I, p 449)

Envoy – Like Emissary, this term is used in the Agni Yoga Teachings to describe a Representative of the White Lodge.

Epoch – Each Epoch leaves its impress in Eternity. These manifested remains of time are just as vital as life itself. Each Epoch leaves its echo, as a repetition of spatial records. But never do the records manifest a repetition, because to them are added always new energies and new decisions. An identicalness of time can be affirmed, but the reconstruction of the planet has its own new levers, and into the change go new energies. Thus Babylon fell, thus Rome fell, thus sands have covered civilizations, and waters engulfed empires. But for the change of our Cycle there approaches the most fiery, and the greatest, destruction and construction. Space is saturated with fiery energies for reorganization. Extraordinary is the time; the Fire is raging! On the path to the Fiery World let us manifest understanding of the approaching Fiery Cycle. (FW III, 175)

The different Epochs enter as succeeding steps in the evolutionary ascent of humanity, and it is necessary to understand how each Epoch has developed. A determination of the subtle currents which saturated the Epoch will give the key to understanding of its essential nature. If spiritual achievement has imbued the national spirit, it means the ascent of that Epoch was affirmed. But never before has the World been so in need of the sword of the spirit! Always, at the time when energies have manifested their potentialities in movement, the wavering magnetic needle has indicated the agitation of the cosmic magnetic poles. Thus, the Epoch of the Sword of the Spirit brings out flamingly the Highest Principle. Therefore, the Cosmic scales are weighing the very highest Fiery Right. The Epoch of the Sword of the Spirit will affirm that Principle which has been proclaimed for evolution to the Higher Worlds. Space is saturated with the fire of the Cosmic Magnet. Thus, at the threshold of the Epoch of Fiery Right, the Sword of the Spirit stands on guard. (FW III, 191)

Epoch of Fire – A period when Agni—the Fire that is found in varying degree as the foundation of all yogas—will saturate the atmosphere of our planet tremendously, and all the branches of Yoga will be fused into fiery synthesis. (LHR I, p 411)
see also Epoch

Epoch of Maitreya – The New Era when the Influence of Good will rise to ascendancy.

They will ask, "Can the time of Maitreya create an epoch?"
Answer, "If the Crusades created a complete epoch, then truly the Epoch of Maitreya is a thousandfold more significant." (AY, 1)

Maitreya's is the Age of the Heart! (H, 74)

According to the prophecy of the most ancient Teachers, when humanity loses the foundation of the Teaching and sinks into obscurity, the Epoch of Maitreya will take place. (HIER, 1)

Each Lord has his keynote. The Epoch of Maitreya proclaims woman. The manifestation of Maitreya is linked with the confirmation of the Mother of the World, in the past, present, and future. (HIER, 13)

Those who do not comprehend the new ways are greatly in need of understanding the Epoch of Maitreya. (HIER, 390)

Our flaming Mother of Agni Yoga must manifest Fire to humanity in the Epoch of Maitreya during the great period of shifting. (INF II, 290)

The coming epoch will be under the Rays of three Lords—Maitreya, Buddha, and Christ. (LHR II, p 353)

The Epoch of Maitreya proclaims woman. The manifestation of Maitreya is linked with the confirmation of the Mother of the World, in the past, present and future. (HIER, 13)

The Great Spirit who is at the head of the New Cycle must contain within Himself all synthesis, all the greatest Images of the past Cycle. That is why the Synthesis of Maitreya includes all the Rays. (LHR I, p 266)

Epoch of the Sword of the Spirit – The different Epochs enter as succeeding steps in the evolutionary ascent of humanity, and it is necessary to understand how each Epoch has developed. A determination of the subtle currents which saturated the Epoch will give the key to understanding of its essential nature. If spiritual achievement has imbued the national spirit, it means the ascent of that Epoch was affirmed. But never before has the World been so in need of the sword of the spirit! Always, at the time when energies have manifested their potentialities in movement, the wavering magnetic needle has indicated the agitation of the cosmic magnetic poles. Thus, the Epoch of the Sword of the Spirit brings out flamingly the Highest Principle. Therefore, the Cosmic scales are weighing the very highest Fiery Right. The Epoch of the Sword of the Spirit will affirm that Principle which has been proclaimed for evolution to the Higher Worlds. Space is saturated with the fire of the Cosmic Magnet. Thus, at the threshold of the Epoch of Fiery Right, the Sword of the Spirit stands on guard. (FW III, 191)

Epoch of Women – Therefore, the great Epoch of Women will be distinguished by greater refinement of feelings and consciousness. (FW III, 116)
see also Epoch of Maitreya

Equality – Some may be unable to reconcile the existence of equality and the Hierarchy. Equality is contained in the potentiality of spirit. (AY, 94)

The great ideas of liberty, equality and brotherhood—ideas which alone keep humanity alive! But if these leading ideas were to be put aside because they seem utopian ... then it would be better for humanity to cease to exist as soon as possible. (LHR II, p 505)

Equilibrium – Weakness and collapse result from a violation of equilibrium. Thus, rest is nothing but equilibrium. But equilibrium is a proportionate tension of energy. Only thus is it possible to restore and strengthen one's forces. (BR, 44)
see also Rest, Rhythm

Esoteric Buddhism – Secret wisdom or intelligence from the Greek esotericos "inner", and the Sanskrit Bodhi "knowledge", or intelligence—in contradistinction to Buddhi, "the faculty of knowledge or intelligence", and Buddhism, the philosophy or Law of Buddha (the Enlightened). Also written "Budhism", from Budha (Intelligence and Wisdom) the Son of Soma. (TG) Essence – The noumenon of things. The true, essential nature of things. The nature of things in the causal world.

In essence, each action in the world has a meaning. In essence, every object has a meaning. But if the thought which colors the objects and actions springs from nullity it does not touch the cosmic current. Upon the essence of each manifestation life is built. Therefore, when Service calls for the creation of evolution, then there exists only the principle of Essence. Little do people know about discriminating in the Essence; little does the coloring by humanity correspond to the principle of Essence. Is every human thought affirmed in goal-fitness? Cosmic creativity is built upon the orbits of Essence. Thus, the ever-living is saturated by the subtle fires of the Essence.

Verily, when the essential constructiveness is impelled through the higher fires to give to the world a new step, there are no earthly standards for measuring it. Only that which has identity can produce the identical. That which is affirmed by the highest can be measured only by the highest, and all earthly colorings cannot measure Essence.

The consciousness embracing the measure of life can approach cosmic cooperation by affirmation of the existing. But when the application of vital principles impels the spirit to the law of higher dimensions the meaning of Be-ness is colored by the striving spirit. Thus, the Universe is cognized by each spirit individually, but the essence is cognized by him who has adopted a higher measurement. Every striving thought leads toward higher dimensions.

Each striving thought directed to cognizance of the Universe leads humanity into the higher dimension. Hence, each thought saturated by the fire of a striving Agni Yogi leads to the affirmation of evolution. Therefore, as the purpose of Existence points to the expansion of consciousness, each substance in the Universe points to the law of cooperation. Thus, each fiery thought leads to the affirmation of Essence in Cosmos.

The essence of construction is contained in consciousness. Only when the meaning of cosmic construction is understood can one apply the highest dimensions. Therefore, when the consciousness does not encompass the essence of cosmic construction it constitutes only a partial cognition. But a partial consciousness can grasp only a partial construction. Every integrated striving to cosmic construction is therefore most important, for in it there is evolution and evolutionary creativity. (INF II, 400-404)

Eternity – Many fear to understand Eternity, but how beautiful is the realized grandeur of Eternity! Only the spirit that has contacted the Fire knows the full beauty of its radiance. The definition of Eternity lives only in consciousness. The broader the consciousness, the more vividly glows the ray of consciousness. The more clearly, then, resounds Our call to him who has realized the beauty of evolution. (INF I, 8)

Ethereal Body – The ethereal body, or the subtle fluids (emanated by the physical body), are emanations of the physical centers. The ethereal body affirms the physical one, and strengthens the astral, being a link between these two bodies. (LHR I, p 259)

Ethics – People do not want to observe the manifestations of the Subtle World, which are scattered everywhere. So, also, they cannot imagine that ethics is a practical pharmacopoeia for attracting the spatial energies by the simplest method. You will not tire of repeating about the necessity of realizing the application of the heart for the attraction of the highest possibilities. (H, 104)

Evolution – Doubtless, many will disparage an indication about the continuous evolutionary process of all that exists. Yet even from the point of view of all scientists this process of perfectment is undeniable. Only the ignorant can attempt to hold everything back in a motionless state. (BR, 535)
see also Involution and Evolution

Evolutionary Spiral – As the words imply, the evolutionary spiral expands and the involutionary spiral contracts. The very same may be observed not only in personal aspects but also in ideas. It is very instructive to discern how ideas are generated and how they complete their circle. Often they seem to disappear completely, but if they are of an evolutionary nature they appear again in an expanded form. For evolutionary thinking, one should study the spiral of the root of an idea. The task of the gradual containment of an idea can afford a progression toward a higher understanding. One may take for instance the idea of religions and examine it spirally; precisely, not comparatively, but evolutionally, spirally. Thus one can see the one root. Likewise one can study how the ideas of religions expanded through evolution. Thus, the prognosis of the future will not be diminished. Positive signs must be gathered. (HIER, 356)

Expectation – There are different kinds of expectation: there is revealing expectancy, and there is also obstructive expectancy. In the first the heart awaits, but in the second the I—self—awaits. A thought, even the loftiest, flies with difficulty through a wall of egoism. (BR, 306)

The highest expectancy is that of the evolution of the world. The usual expectations are divided into the dark, the sluggish, and the vigilant. The chaos of the dark ones brings only harm to space. The sluggish expectations are like smouldering coals. The vigilant expectations manifest readiness to accept the new at every hour...

The inner quality of expectancy is its growth in tensity. With what could one best correlate this sign, if not with the evolution of the World? Such expectancy should penetrate your whole life and fill your work with the throbbing of action. For in this union is the best and most beautiful. (LMG II, pp 197-198)

Explosions – Among the universal manifestations, incessant explosions have a special significance. Likewise in man are there compressions and explosions of energy. But why are universal explosions beneficial, whereas the human ones can destroy the organism? The difference lies in the fact that universal explosions are balanced in a great rhythm, but the human ones often are devoid precisely of rhythm. (BR, 45)

Excess – In any experiments one should not give way to excess. In general, excesses are inadmissable, they are contrary to equilibrium. (BR, 438)

Eye of Brahma – see Chakras, Fires

Eyes, Center of – Thus not without reason may it be asked why of all the human organism stands out the image of the eyes? It is simple, for the centers of the eyes are a conduit of fiery energy. The very structure of the eyes appears to be the subtlest among the structures of the dense World. Thus it preserves also the singularities of the Higher World. When a single eye is seen, it will not be merely a symbol but a concrete manifestation which has been seen by others. (FW III, 611)

Eye of Dangma – The manifestation of the Eye of Dangma is especially valued. This is not clairvoyance, as generally understood, but the straight-knowledge accumulated in the Chalice during thousands of lives and self-sacrificing experiences. The goal of this accumulation is to achieve a great destiny and become a full Arhat, or Man-God. (LHR I, p 427)

The highest achievement of a Yogi is the opening of the Eye of Dangma, and it is not what we call clairvoyance. It is the awakening of perceptions which never can be developed by any mechanical means but which comes as the result of accumulations of uninterrupted spiritual aspirations and self-sacrifices over thousands of years; and these results are manifestsed in the most subtle energies, which are stored and preserved in the Chalice. (LHR I, p 204)

Fabric of the Mother of the World – A fluid network of psychic energy woven by co-workers throughout the world. (FW II, 309)

Faint-Heartedness – There is no evil equal the offense of faint-heartedness. In it is hidden treachery; in it is concealed a fraudulent magnanimity; in it is secreted a ruinous halfwayness; its master is Satan; its motive power is selfhood; its actions include construction with the one hand and destruction with the other; its face displays aspiration but its reality manifests egoism; its domain is a manifestation of selfhood; its affirmation is selfhood; its evidence is compromise, and each of its manifestations for good is a self-affirmation and justification of obvious destruction. The pledge of selfhood lies in the foundation of faint-heartedness. (FW III, 279)

Faith – Faith is the realization of the Truth, tempered in the Fire of the Heart. (FW I, 433)

Faith is the presentiment of knowledge. In the multiformity of the All-Existent, faith has an actual foundation. Like a motive force, faith intensifies the energy and through this increases the working capability of space. One can welcome the tensity of energy when it is connected with the manifestation of the substance of Bliss. Thus We can point out the most evident path of faith together with an uplifted and refined consciousness. Certainly, Hierarchy is that megaphone which will stir the heavens to thunder. (HIER, 426)

Man should not affirm that his faith has limits. Love has no limits, and likewise faith. (BR, 540)

Powerful faith attracts all possibilities. Only if the lever of the heart intensifies the flow of creativity, only if the current is intensified, is the link with the Magnet established. Therefore, faith to the end will give all possibilities.
(INF II, 272)

Why do all Teachings insist so much upon the necessity of faith, or on complete understanding of a given task? Just because the intuitive knowledge or faith makes a giant out of a man. By destroying doubt, such faith creates an invincible persistency which inevitably leads to the goal. We, being limited by our physical bodies, cannot see through the accumulating events. Therefore, we cannot by ourselves fulfil the preordination. And, thus, if we are lacking in faith, we withdraw from the direction indicated by the Teacher, or by misunderstanding the terms we break the outlined combinations in which we are a needed ingredient and eventually were supposed to act. Faith is great knowledge and wisdom. A person who lacks faith or knowledge is like a weathercock. He depends on conditions which are constantly changing and which, in his blindness, he cannot foresee and cannot avoid. (LHR I, p 105)

Fanaticism – Fanaticism is inadmissible. It contains neither devotion, nor love, nor magnanimity, but is only a reversion to the animal state. Fanaticism begets treason, hostility, and cruelty. The fanatic does not reach the Fiery World, because love is the key to it. Fanaticism is like a neglected ailment, if not immediately attended to it becomes incurable. Such a consciousness must encounter great shocks in order to understand true devotion. By repulsion alone one cannot acquire the quality of the magnet. Therefore, I am so concerned that you should not lose a single opportunity for manifesting friendliness. The best fuel should be preserved for the fire of the heart. The store of friendliness generates true compassion, which is directly opposed to the cruelty of fanaticism. Fanaticism knows only the egoism which presumptuously says, "All or nothing." and since all is impossible, there remains nothing. Therefore, take notice of even the slightest signs of fanaticism. Cure them with the greatest patience as you would a contagious disease. It is precisely fanaticism which has shaken the most beautiful Teachings and corroded the seeds of love. One should carefully prepare everything that can facilitate the access of Agni to one's heart. (FW I, 661)

Far Off Worlds – These terms refer on the one hand to higher dimensions and realms of existence and on the other to the material bodies of the Cosmos. (INF I, 120)

When We summon to the far-off worlds, it is not for a detachment from life but for a discovery of new ways. Only in realizing participation in Infinity may one reach the upper spheres. If we trace the development of the human spirit from the very primitive forms, we will perceive that the variety of forms of the primary spirits branch out into corresponding manifestations. One may call the forms of the present day forms aspiring toward perfection. The forms of the future correspond to the far-off worlds. Having deprived itself of the knowledge of cosmic vistas, humanity has dissociated itself from the manifestations of Infinity and has lost the thread of unity with the beauty of life and with cosmic energy. This cleavage is cruel, and the lost thread turns into a thin cobweb of reality.

We, the Brothers of Humanity, know that there exists a great unembellished and indestructible Reality. Affirm yourselves in the acceptance of the great beauty of Infinity!

Let the far-off worlds live in the consciousness of men as a wondrous kingdom. This is just as indisputable and just as real as the fact that a growing seed gives birth to a flower. The far-off worlds are interpreted only as something illustrative of the concept of distance. But let us regard the far-off worlds—the life there is affirmed in beauty and in striving for achievement; there are the fires of spirit; there is the fire of love; there the seeming excrescences of Earth are transformed into creations of Fire. The fires of the spirit carry knowledge that the passing of the present and the striving into the better future will be the ladder upon which we shall ascend. (INF I, 44)

Fatigue – Can a yogi feel fatigue? Of course he can; he can even become ill. But he will know that a new store of energy must be gathered. He will know where energy was overspent and will calmly take valerian and musk.

It is a joy to know that our apparatus needs restoration of energy. The fatigue from the past is happiness for the future. The new reinforcement of energy is always an advance over the past. This means that fatigue is our friend. In knowledge of this the wise serpent changes his skin; but the serpent does not sting during the new growth. The serpent knows that the success of this regeneration depends on rest. Therefore, the man who knows the cause of fatigue will wisely prescribe rest for himself, summoning to the work completely different centers. (AY, 241)

Fear – The neophytes of the Brotherhood are tested upon fear. A most hopeless situation is shown to them, and one waits to see what solution will be chosen by the tested one. Very few will think, What is there to be afraid of since the Brotherhood stands behind us? Precisely such a premise liberates one from fear and brings to light a free, beneficial decision. (BR, 580)

Fear and irritation are called the gates of darkness. The servants of darkness dispatch fear first of all, in order to confound the spirit. Each conjuration may comprise danger in so much as during the conjuration terror may penetrate—thus the most precise magic may be turned into the utmost danger. Hence one must lean upon a more certain means. An educated heart will firstly eradicate fear and recognize the harm of irritation. Thus the heart is that armor of Light which will put to shame the cunning of darkness. (H, 558)

Female Element – see Elements, Male and Female, Origins

Fetish – Object believed to embody a spirit and exert magical power, or an idea regarded with excessive or irrational reverence.

Fetishism – Attachment to fixed ideas.

Fetishism by its very nature is limited ... Hasten to discard worn-out things! (COM, 196)

Fiat Rex – Enlightenment from above.

You may meet people hastening with their attainments, and they may think that We are slow. But lead them under the night sky and point out the radiance of the countless worlds. Say, the Lord leads you toward this creativeness. Is it possible to be slow on this great path? We must prepare ourselves to be co-creators. It is necessary to preserve and multiply the seeds of consciousness, because the entire world is sustained by the power of consciousness. There is no power to withstand a consciousness purified of egoism. One can prepare oneself to cross all bridges with a fiery consciousness which is atremor with the pulse of Cosmos, and which, in the seed of its spirit, responds to all tremors of Earth and knows the truth of the peoples. One can apply all sacred powers of the heart to becoming co-creators of the flaming Logoi by conquering death. But so long as such daring is not instilled in the heart, the consciousness cannot grow infinitely in this direction. We call it Via Reale. Therefore, Fiat Rex is where the spirit, reverencing Hierarchy, dares! (HIER, 203)

Fierily – When We say "fierily" it means ardently; it means by the higher ways; it means in pure spirit; it means through beauty; it means through the understanding of the Common Good and, having understood the Common Good, it means without self-interest, without egotism; it means by applying the Teaching. (INF II, 189)

Fiery Aid – The state of lucidity is called "Fiery Aid". This state of consciousness should be approached with all the senses refined. (FW I, 123)

Fiery Baptism – The receiving of the Fires of Space.

It was said long ago that selfhood is extinguished by Fire. As long as they are not conscious of fiery baptism, people will think about themselves only; and as long as the most powerful element is not understood, the very concept of Brotherhood will be a barren skeleton. (BR, 203)

Fiery Book – Refers to the book Fiery World in particular and also to the Teachings in general.

Fiery Decrees – see Elusive Decrees

Fiery Element – Those who seek the Brotherhood belong to the fiery element. From Fire is born exaltation and inspiration. (BR, 497)

Fiery Emblem, Degree of – A Degree of Spiritual Attainment.

The boundary line between the higher and lower spheres must demonstrate that it is possible for their unification to take place. There are many paths for unifying the Worlds. First of all, it is important to accustom the consciousness to the thought that all is possible. Once accepted that all is possible, the spirit can attain the degree of the Fiery Emblem, which bestows an impetuous constructiveness. When the spirit of man becomes accustomed to thought about the Subtle World, the manifestation of many laws of Existence becomes intelligible. (FW III, 130)

Fiery Epoch – see Epoch of Fire

Fiery Mist – The light of the Fiery World as it is perceived in the Subtle World. (FW I, 134)

Fiery Right – The workings of the Cosmic Magnet. Fiery Necessity.

If humanity would understand evolution, then indeed it would arrive at the comprehension of the Fiery Right ... only the Fiery Right can create cosmically. Thus can be accomplished the steps of a mighty evolution. (FW III, 45)

The fiery kindling of all the vital fires of the Heart. (FW III, 208)

Fiery Seed – see Seed of the Spirit

Fiery Serpent – The Kundalini.

The Fiery Serpent rising above the "chalice" in the form of the serpent of Moses, the Arabic number eight, indicates the tension of the "chalice" because the "chalice" is full of Fire. (FW I, 26)
see also Kundalini

Fiery Sphere – Synonymous with the Fiery World. One of the planes of existence above the physical. One of the Supermundane Worlds.
see also Fiery World

Fiery Substance – Fiery Matter such as the precipitations collected in the Chalice. ... The accumulations and precipitations in the Chalice constitute the fiery substance. Thus, primarily we are fiery beings. (FW I, 26)

Fiery Viceroys – Advanced souls working with and bringing fire to the world.

Fiery Wall – The Fiery Wall, the Fiery Mist, the Fiery Baptism affirm the fiery reality. For example, people do not wish to understand that the quality of the fire borne by them depends upon themselves. They do not imagine that they themselves can kindle both the salutary and the destructive fires. Perseverance in various directions inevitably imparts to the fire its power and color; therefore it is so difficult to extinguish the consuming fire, which is kindled by the nature of habits. But the Yogi understands the great need of kindling the fire connected with Good. The thought of Good is the measure of consciousness. He who attains begins the ascent in self-abnegation and measures his steps by the criterion of Good. He knows that no mask of Good can disguise him, for deceit is only the illusion of an instant. (FW I, 665)

Fiery World – One of the highest gradations of the worlds of spheres in the chain of our planet. (LHR I, p 428)

It is wrong to think that the Fiery World is merely a reflection of the Earthly World. For, while the strata of the Subtle World represent the reflections of the earthly strata, in the Fiery World there are strata which preserve earthly spheres in their evolutionary growth. In these strata are marked out all the currents of evolution. They are not only the Treasury of the records of space but are also the Cosmic Laboratory. Such strata occupy the loftiest spheres. The ascent of man depends upon his attraction to these spheres. (FW III, 319)

Sparks and other manifestations of light produce much of the connective tissue with the Subtle World. One can even notice streams of sparks issuing from the mouth and eyes when the fiery tension is strong. It can be asked whether these are electrical phenomena. In answer one must say they are rather phenomena of Fohat, which are related to the energy of the Fiery World. Thus, those who have eyes and ears not clogged with the dross of ignorance can observe much not only of the Subtle but also of the Fiery World. One must not, in self-depreciation, think that for us on Earth the Fiery World is inaccessible. The Covenants relate that certain persons of no especial learning instantaneously and directly approached the most Fiery Summits. Every religion speaks of such assertions. (FW I, 420)

Can human language express that which is beyond earthly expression? Notwithstanding, people must think about the Fiery World. They should picture it as the most vital and most guiding; otherwise, in confused dreams, they will be unable to approach it as has been ordained. Reverence for the One Light is as natural as the idea of the One Father. People are alike in their fiery seed, but physical atavism places them at varying distances from Truth. But the higher fires stand above all divisions. Read about the most diverse visions of Fiery Beings in all countries of the world, and you will find in them the same signs and results. Verily, all distinctions between peoples fall away before the Higher World. People sense equally the breath of the Higher World. They are set equally atremor in heart and body. They understand the Voice of the Envoy of Light. With difficulty they return to the common earthly state. Such manifestations, and the ecstasy of the spirit at contact with a Higher Being, are unforgettable to all alike. One should not forget that the most diverse peoples have beheld the Higher Beings in identical Images. Is this not a sign of the oneness of Light and of the Hierarchy of Good? Thus, one should accept the Fiery World with heart and mind. One must feel that all inspirations emanate therefrom. Honest creators and workers can bear witness that the best solutions come from without. Like a powerful dynamo the Fiery World emits a shower of the best formulas. One should not only make use of them but also testify about them in the highest terms. Thus one can be united by the fires of the heart with the Supreme Light. This is not conceit, for Light knows no obstacles. (FW I, 604)

The Fiery World is primarily within ourselves—if only we discern its abode! Thus in a moment of doubt as to whether communion with the Fiery World is possible, one should remember its presence everywhere. (FW I, 354)

The Fiery World has its expression under the name of psychic energy. (FW III, 440)

Fire – The symbol of Fire is found in all Teachings, and in Cosmos Fire is affirmed as the manifestation of life. The substance of Fire is so radiant that it is impossible to define and describe it. The Cosmic Breath is the Fire of Space. All cosmic manifestations are permeated with Fire and human thought is Fire. Thought gives form; thought gives direction; thought gives life; thought imparts creativeness; thought imparts the attraction of a drawing magnet.

When the spirit kindles its fires, thought creates through the accretion of Materia Lucida. Cosmic thought is comprised in the fiery communion. The Spatial Fire contains the striving energies. Cosmic Fire is boundless in its saturations and its manifestations. Thus, the Cosmic Fire strives with the Cosmic Magnet! (INF I, 372)

When we say "fierily" it means ardently; it means by the higher ways; it means in pure spirit; it means through beauty; it means through the understanding of the Common Good; it means without self-interest, without egotism; it means by applying the Teaching. (INF II, 189)

Fire is the highest element and the approach towards it must be by way of the highest consciousness. One can understand and learn to love the Fire only through this highest consciousness. (FW I, 13)

No one will approach Fire with Fear. No one will approach it with hatred, because Fire is love. (FW I, 49)

You already know about the significance of the thirtieth year for fiery manifestations, but one should especially guard the organism up to the seventh year. In children, even in the most highly developed, one should never force nature—Fire will not tolerate compulsion. One should know how to open the door, but each coercion may cause irreparable harm. On the other hand, one should not inordinately facilitate the child's striving, since excessive help creates weaklings. Therefore, the Golden Path is ordained. Thus, Fire demands cautious handling in all its manifestations. Clairvoyance and clairaudience are essentially fire-voyance and fire-audience. Fire is needed as the intermediary for all exalted actions. Six hundred times did We speak of the heart; so are We ready to speak six hundred and sixty-six times of the significance of Fire, if only to affirm the definition of Fire as a triumphal ladder. People cannot exist without turning to Fire; in the earthly world or in the Subtle World, they turn to the higher Meditation. But We do not speak of fire worship, for there will be ignoramuses and fanatics who will try to raise this absurd accusation. I speak of the highest attainment, which will bring our subtle body to the Fiery World. (FW I, 19)

Fire-Carrier – The spirit who has assimilated the Fires of Space. The adept Agni Yogi.

These Fire Carriers impart to humanity subtlety of knowledge.
(INF II, 385)

Fire of Space – The Fire of Space is the Source of Life. Consequently it is the potential consciousness or the basis of mind ... the Fire of Space is an arouser, a kindler, but also an exploder and a burner of useless refuse. (LHR)

The Fire of Space is the binding element between all the worlds in the entire manifested Space; therefore, each manifestation, each battle, regardless of where it takes place, in one way or another affects all the worlds, or all Space. (LHR II, p 405)

Space presents in itself an ocean of Fire, and its fiery sparks form numberless monads. (LHR II, p 440)

Is not the fire of the heart the very Fire of Space? (H, 73)

The Cosmic Breath is the Fire of Space. (INF I, 372)

The substance of the Fire of Space directs the human consciousness. Since it is acknowledged that even the rays of the moon help the growth of plants and affect inanimate objects, one may go a step further and admit the creativeness of the rays. Certainly the sun—the life giver—saturates the entire Universe; but the realization that the streaming rays impart a conscious force of energy will afford the most fiery attainments. Cosmos demands uniformity of striving in all things. Sensing the vibrations of the currents, humanity will discover the multifold creative transmissions of the rays. Thus does Cosmos bestow its treasures. The substantiation of these treasures is inevitable. Spiritual application should be accepted equally with the wondrous powerful impulse. Cosmic creation is built upon the foundation of spirit. A discovery comes in a harmonious fusion with a cosmic ray. The rays from heterogeneous elements bring immeasurable revelations to humanity. (INF II, 11)

Fires – Centers of Energy.

A wise host does not light all fires without special purpose. Thus, in ancient legends there is mentioned the mountain surrounded by flame, but it is not stated anywhere that the fire burnt continuously; it rose according to the need. Thus also your fires glow according to necessity—the Eye of Brahma, or the wings, or the rays from the larynx, or the other principal twenty-one fires—it is necessary to permit them to be kindled according to their natures. It is necessary to point out that the fires act according to their power of contact with the Hierarchy. Conflagration or unbridled burning is not permissible. In the Great Service, care and caution are the first principles of the highest cooperation. We protect each particle of the energy of the Elohim and each Uruci, from the Fire of Space. This accountability is demanded especially during the time of the battle's tension. (H, 56)

Fire, Spatial – The Spatial Fire purifies the earthly crust. Pure emanations approaching the earthly sphere rarify the dense emanations. The acceptance of Agni Yoga will confirm humanity in its conscious communion with the Cosmic Magnet. The communion with the Fire of Space will afford possibility for amelioration of earthly conditions. The creativeness of Cosmos affirms the cooperation of all spheres. The Spatial Fire decreases the pressure of the gases upon the earthly sphere. Therefore, it is affirmed that the attraction of the Fire of Space will bestow a better step upon Humanity. The conditions will improve when the centers will awaken. (INF II, 134)

He who serves Cosmic Fire sacrifices himself ... Cosmic vibration impels humanity toward the Spatial Fire. When the thought undergoes shifting, then the Fire of Space contacts this thought. One must understand the tension of that thought which, as a driving fire, penetrates everywhere. The evidence of Spatial Fire should be discerned in all manifestations. All records of Spatial Fire carry Cosmic vibrations with them. Hence, when humanity will understand the might of Fire the responsive vibrations will be easily affirmed, and human creativeness will develop in fiery construction. Thus, cosmic creativeness is strained limitlessly by the Fire of Space. (INF II, 197)

The creativeness of the centers reacts to all manifestations of the higher aspects of self-sacrifice. When the transmutation of Fire will enter life, it will be possible to say, "Verily, the Cosmic Ordinance is realized!" Cosmos imbues all lives with Fire, and for a new manifestation one should develop in oneself identical energies. In this identity are comprised all worlds. In the identity is comprised the mission of an Agni Yogi. Hence, the vibrations which the centers of an Agni Yogi assimilate are identical with the fires of space. Thus, I see the invisible creativeness of the centers. By the records of the creative fires one may determine the spirit creativeness. (INF II, 14)

The Spatial Fire, impelled to action, transmits currents to the heart. (INF II, 41)

The Spatial Fire that is attracted to a destined element is directed by spirit. Why, then, not apply to human activity the creativeness of spirit? (INF II, 44)

Verily, the new energies are directed toward the perfection of life. When humanity will accept the concept of Spatial Fire, it will understand how the generation of new energies proceeds. When We speak of Spatial Fire, We have in mind those seeds which affirm life and which strain all forms toward manifestation. That is why the receptivity of the Agni Yogi is so fiery, That is why the striving toward the cosmic current is so manifest. Hence, I affirm that the higher receptivity of the centers is manifested for the assimilation of the highest. (INF II, 57)

To the inner fire can be added the vibrations of Spatial Fire. Under such Fire is understood magnetic force and electricity. (FW III, 614)

You have seen dark spatial spots. Likewise you know the turbid formations resulting, as it seems, from spatial combustion. Also, you know the radiant spatial formations.

Everything becomes alive and is flamingly transformed, likewise do one's senses vibrate. (FW II, 459)

Fire of Aryavarta – Aryavarta means the country of the Aryans. This is the ancient name of northern India where, after the destruction of Atlantis, the first newcomers from Central Asia settled. This name applies principally to the mountain valleys of the Himalayan ridges, but not to all the plains of India. Our Ashram is located in the most ancient and the most sacred Aryavarta. The Fire of Aryavarta signifies the great spirit and potentiality of this nation. The Indo-Aryan people also call themselves Aryavartas. (LHR I, p 260)

First Causes – see Elements, Male and Female, Origins, The Five Summits of Treasures – The "five summits of treasures" will be the centers of Brahmarandhra, the wrists and the knees. (AY, 596)

Flaming Dome – The concept of Shambhala is actually linked inseparably with fiery manifestations. Without the application of purified Fire it is impossible to approach the higher concepts. Throughout the entire world people are divided into those who are conscious of Shambhala as the Highest Measure and those who deny the future. Let the word Shambhala be known to but a few; each has a different tongue, but the heart is one. One must manifest solicitous attention to each one who is ready to proceed toward Light. The heart must embrace each manifestation that reverberates to the Good. But only under the Flaming Dome are all equal. (FW I, 41)

Flattery – We should not accept flattery. Great is the contempt of a flatterer when he sees how easily we fall for his sometimes rather crude strategems. Let us not be as bribed slaves, but let us develop the pride and independence of lords of spirit, for whom flattery does not exist. Nothing lowers and destroys a person so much as his acceptance of flattery. Certainly, one who loves flattery is a slave of yesterday. A person guilty of flattery, or one who accepts it, can never become a close co-worker. (LHR I, p 102)

Flowers – see Plants

Fohat – You know that so-called electricity represents the most coarse form of the visible energy of Fohat. But when the accumulator—the purified heart—permits passage of the manifestation of the subtle Fohat, then light of a special quality emanates from any surface. Fohat is accumulating everywhere, it is only necessary to reveal it by a sufficiently sensitive apparatus. Only the heart can be such an accumulator. Of course, this cannot be easy when, from a tiger to Fohat, it is necessary to assimilate a multitude of energies. (H, 291)

Sparks and other manifestations of light produce much of the connective tissue with the Subtle World. One can even notice streams of sparks issuing from the mouth and eyes when the fiery tension is strong. It can be asked whether these are electrical phenomena. In answer one must say they are rather phenomena of Fohat, which are related to the energy of the Fiery World. (FW I, 420)

The Light of the Fiery World acts as a great disinfectant. The crystals of Fohat are so greatly concentrated in this radiance that each approach to this power purifies our psychic energy. (FW I, 443)

Fohat, as actually omnipresent Fire, is hardly understood ... The ignorant are astonished that the Subtle World can be chaotic; but one should ponder as to how sparks of Fohat remain not fecundated, and how many forces remain either unapplied or distorted. (FW III, 268)

Why is it important to sense the manifestation of Fohat? The granulation of this finest energy is laid in the foundation of cosmic coagulations. It means that precisely Fohat will be the father that gives the impetus to the formation of new spatial bodies. He who attains the knowledge of far-off worlds will feel the strength and beauty of crystals of Fohat. This is a difficult experiment, and We rejoice, because the physical body rarely assimilates the finest energies. (AY, 145)

You know how difficult it is to see Fohat, how the cumulative effects of many years are required for the evidence of this energy. But what will a weak spirit say when he learns that beyond Fohat is Para-Fohat, which is nurtured by Pan-Fohat. These energies can fill only the strong consciousness with rejoicing and with love. (AY, 403)

Fohat is the subtlest fiery energy, and if it contacts an unprepared organism it may burn and cause tortuous fiery death. I myself saw Fohat with my physical eyes, and was full of wonder at the splitting of the sun's rays into millions of luminous sparks of Fohat. Afterwards I suffered a slight singeing of the centers. (LHR I, pp 436-437)

Food – It has been pointed out that in the mountains one may sleep and eat much less, as the necessity for both depreciably decreases there. But in the polluted atmosphere of the city it is strongly advised to take a sufficient amount of food, and it is of course to be understood that it is not the quantity of food itself that is important but the quality and amount of nutritive elements and vitamins. Even so, vegetarianism is preferable, mainly because meat-eating is the cause of many serious poisonings and diseases. (LHR I, p 236)

Forgiveness – Around the concept of forgiveness there is a great lack of understanding. One who has forgiven someone assumes that he has accomplished something out of the ordinary, whereas he has merely preserved his own karma from complications. The forgiven one thinks that all has been ended, but, of course, karma remains ahead of him. True, the forgiving one did not intervene in the karma of the forgiven one and thus has not made it more burdensome, but the very law of karma remains with both participants. (BR, 445)

Freedom – The loftiest freedom can be realized in the Supermundane World, where laws are understood as a beautiful and immutable reality. (BR, 3)

Freedom is the adornment of wisdom. (BR, 569)

Free Will – Free will is a solemn bidding to the wayfarer. Before reaching the far-off paths, it is essential to give him the precious gift of free will. Each one may act according to his ability, he will not be constrained. But the wise one will realize what a responsibility he bears for the use of the treasure of free will. It is as if a purse of gold were given to him; it can be spent at his discretion, but an account would have to be rendered. And the Brotherhood teaches not to spend the entrusted treasure without usefulness. (BR, 570)

One should in no way violate the free will of people. The Teaching of Light transforms life when the spirit voluntarily recognizes the necessity of ascent. Therefore, do not burden others with admonitions. People will improve and attain by themselves. In the history of mankind one can see how the spirit of people finds its way toward Light. By its light each spirit finds the path in its own way. Many are unwilling to accept everything proffered, seeking by themselves some secret approach to Truth. One must exercise the greatest care with such independent aspirants; not everyone likes the principle of a chorus. Observation will prompt the most appropriate measures. However, one must calmly accept human peculiarities. Even grains of sand differ from one another. But who should revere individuality if not the servants of Light! Thus, one should establish nothing by force. It is said, "Though today a man may not search for Light, tomorrow he may weep for it." (FW I, 622)

Friendliness – I am so concerned that you should not lose a single opportunity for manifesting friendliness. The best fuel should be preserved for the fire of the heart. The store of friendliness generates true compassion, which is directly opposed to the cruelty of fanaticism. (FW I, 661)

Let us value the good that is brought us and let us escort the messenger with friendliness. Precisely in this friendliness is found the key to success. (BR, 205)

Fundamentals of Existence – The Teaching of Light.

The fundamentals of Life can be affirmed through resurrection of the spirit. Purification of the foundations must be affirmed, for without this it is impossible to manifest the New World. The degeneration of the foundations is ruinous; and pure energies cannot be attracted to the earthly plane without transmutation of the accumulations which are stifling the planet. How, then, to affirm the New World? As has been said—with fire and sword! To abolish the old there will be a new purification, which will give the great Fundamentals of Existence. The fiery sword of the spirit will smite the corruption of the planet. Those who are looking into the future are not afraid of the fiery sword, for the tempered spirit knows the true creativeness of the sword of the spirit. Fiery creativeness can be affirmed as the great transmutation of darkness into Light. On the path to the Fiery World let us manifest understanding of the Fiery Sword of the Spirit. (FW III, 193)

Fury – Fury—thus is called that horrible state into which fall those possessed by egoism, and who approach the higher Teachings for the sake of gain. (BR, 503)

Future Epoch – The New Era, the coming Age of Light.

Gates of Ascent – Throughout the Great Teachings the symbol of the gate is used to indicate the stage of progress along the path of attainment. It particularly refers to opportunities which come to us in life, many times as so-called misfortunes and failures though in reality as the "physical threshold of ascent."

Let Agni Yoga lead by way of a design of flame that manifests the likeness of the eternal conception of cosmic formations. This most unifying Yoga exacts an obligation to construct the entire life in conformity with a discipline externally imperceptible. If this irreplaceable discipline is not regarded as chains, but turns into the joy of responsibility, we can consider the first Gates open. When cooperation with the far-off worlds is realized, then will the second Gates be unbarred. And when the foundations of evolution are understood, the bolts will fall from the third Gates. And, finally, when the supremacy of the densified astral body is realized, then will the locks of the fourth Gates be unbolted. Parallel with this ascent the fires of the centers of knowledge are kindled, and amidst the lightnings of the subtlest energies, straight-knowledge unfolds. Thus, cherish the fire of knowledge and guard the growing power. (AY, 163)

Gates to the Spirit – All the Great Teachers, who have appeared in various nations and countries under different Images, are the Gates to the Spirit. (LHR I, p 414)

Gautama – (Sk.). The Prince of Kapilavastu, son of Sudhodana, the Sakya king of a small realm on the border of Nepal, born in the seventh century B.C., now called the "Saviour of the World". Gautama or Gotama was the sacerdotal name of the Sakya family, and Siddhartha was the Buddha's name before he became a Buddha. Sakya Muni, means the Saint of the Sakya family. Born a simple mortal he rose to Buddhaship through his own personal and unaided merit. "A man verily greater than any god!" (TG)

Gaya – (Sk.). Ancient city of Magadha, a little north-west of the modern Gayah. It is at the former that Sakyamuni reached his Buddhaship, under the famous Bodhi-tree, Bodhidruma. (TG)

Gehenna – No hell at all, but a valley near Jerusalem, where Israelites immolated their children to Moloch. In that valley a place name Tophet was situated, where a fire was perpetually preserved for sanitary purposes. The prophet Jeremiah informs us that his countrymen, the Jews, used to sacrifice their children on that spot. (TG)

In times long past a debtor was cast into a pit called gehenna. Why crawl there of one's own free will? (LMG II, p 122)

General Good – That which is in the evolutionary stream of the Cosmic Magnet. It is the ultimate destiny of mankind for which the Brotherhood works and to which all Their helpers should strive.

Genghis-Khan – (c. 1162-1227) Mongol conqueror and emperor. (WD)

It is related that the Envoys from the Sage of the Mountain came to Genghis Khan. In the coffer lay a golden chalice, and multicolored vestures. An inscription read; "Drink from one chalice, but garb thyself with the garments of all nations." Thus was the Hierarchy indicated, and the tolerance worthy of a leader. (H, 295)

Gentleness – Gentleness is one of the fiery qualities. But what have people made of this quality? Not flabbiness but full justice is included in kindness. (FW I, 224)

Ginseng – The root of a species of plant native to Manchuria and Korea and used in China as a medicine. (EB)

The Teaching of Old China also contained the process of healing by means of heightening the vitality. Precisely China has valued ginseng and a prolonged use of musk. Therefore, it is not to be wondered at if the latest medical research discovers aspects of the higher vitality. Likewise, one can notice the fieriness of the manifestations of vitality. May the best of physicians learn how to discern the fiery origin of the vegetable and animal lifegivers. (FW I, 315)

Giving – Giving is the fundamental principle of the fiery divinity of the spirit. The analogy with fire is astounding in all stages of development. From the crudest forms of life up to the highest, giving is manifest. One should not protest if a savage, not cognizant of the value of spiritual gifts, offers his Deity his household treasures. By such devious ways, man attains the highest giving. Beings of lofty degree understand giving as a joyful duty. One should strive towards such degree of fieriness, for then we enter into balance with the Fiery Principle, and giving becomes receiving. Then, already void of selfhood, one's being accepts the highest gifts. And in such accelerated exchange an inflow of energy takes place. This constant regeneration renews the consciousness and spares one the cutting off of consciousness during the transition into the Subtle World. Thus one can remember the exchange of substances in both the lowest and the highest. The unceasing interchange erases the boundaries between lowest and highest. In other words, it raises the general level. Such work will benefit one's near ones, because it draws them into the orbit of striving of consciousness. Manifest understanding of the interchange of substances. (FW I, 626)

Giving Hand – The Teacher in the role of Bestower of knowledge and enlightenment.

> My Hands bring aid to thee — I send the Miracle of Love. (LMG I, p 42)
> see also Hand

Gnosis – Positive knowledge and spiritual truth.

Goalfitness – Rightness, aptness, appropriateness to the path and striving. An understanding of the application of human action in life.

There where the power of the Cosmic Magnet functions, goal-fitness is at work. (INF II, 494)

Wherein wilt thou affirm the measure of thy works? If thy deeds be useful to the world, then is their measure great.

Wherein wilt though affirm the quality of thy works? If thy deeds benefit humanity then is their essence good. (LMG I, 410)

God – Is limitless, boundless and intangible, otherwise He would not be God. (LHR I, p 306)

Without God there is no path. Call Him as one will, the Highest Hierarchical Principle must be observed; otherwise there is nothing to which to cling. Thus one must understand how the upward aspiration of people's wills surrounds the planet like a protective net. (FW I, 626)

The realization of God as the One Impersonal Element of Be-ness. (LHR I, p 333)

Gog – Army of the "hordes of the Prince of this World", or Satan and his followers.

We are approaching the Great Day of Judgment, when the whole army of Gog must be exterminated. (LHR I, p 268)

Golden Mean – Equilibrium.

Golden Network – One must manifest the highest respect for the complexity of the apparatus that forms the contact with Fire. The most delicate golden networks of nerves are almost imperceptible to the eye. (FW I, 91)

The golden network, seen by Urusvati, forms the foundation of the Chalice; one can judge the delicacy of the inner apparatus. (FW I, 92)

Golden Path – The Golden Path, the combining Path, affirms both qualities—achievement and caution. (BR, 155)

Golem – A legend from the middle ages. (This legend has much in common with the famous novel, "Frankenstein.") There was a learned rabbi who was an alchemist in Germany during a time of persecution of the Jews. In his revengefulness, he wished to punish the persecutors of his people. So, he decided to create artificially a giant possessing enormous strength who would be under his complete control and would do his bidding. With his unusual knowledge he succeeded in creating such a giant, implanting in him a spark of animal life. After many magic rituals, the great mystery of the formula of life was discovered by the rabbi. It took the emblematic form of the star and the rabbi placed this upon the chest of the giant, who immediately came to life and was dispatched by his creator to fulfill his destructive mission.

Golem stalked along, heedless of obstacles, obedient to the will of his maker alone, destroying everything in his way. Many calamities and deaths were caused by Golem among the persecutors of the Jews. Finally, after destroying one whole village, he marched from there out into a field, where he saw a little girl plucking flowers. The animal life had given animal instincts to the giant and he was attracted to the child. He lifted the little one but was hesitating to kill her. At that moment, the child noticed the star on his breast and plucked it off, and at once the vital spark left the giant. According to the legend, only a pure hand could remove the star, the symbol of the great formula of life. (LHR I, p 402)

Golgotha – The name of the spot where Christ was crucified, outside Jerusalem. (EB)

Golgotha is erected by lack of understanding and ignorance. (FW I, 140)

Good – The quality of good is a great saturation of action by justice and by the heart. The quality of good must be understood in all the higher measurements. Let us strive for the improvement of the concept of the quality of good. (FW III, 317)

Let everything be done for the sake of Good. Let each action unfold new achievements. Let the thought of service accompany each deed. Let the command of Good react upon everything, like the most vivid image of the Teacher; the Teaching of the Heart is indivisible from Good. Who, and what, then, besides the heart, can vindicate or indict one's motives? The purity of the heart is disclosed by Fire. How often it has been necessary to speak of this vital application of Fire; nevertheless, neither in the home nor at school is the fiery purifier spoken about. And could a teacher who has never even thought about reality, speak of Fire? Attestation does not yet mean firmness of consciousness. Hence, how assiduously one must observe and re-examine the events of one's own life. Frequently, important signs surround us and disclose the significance of our future, but undeveloped attentiveness prevents one from discerning the convincing reality. (H, 211)

Putting on the earthly envelope man has to create good, thus perfecting himself—so speaks the wisdom from times immemorial. And over the Gates of Brotherhood constantly shines this Covenant. It will not be contradictory to those who understand the unmanifested, endless evil of imperfection. Though imperfection be inevitable, nevertheless there do exist branches of labor which embody good in its full signficance. Is not the work of the husbandman good? Is not beautiful creativity good? Is not craftmanship of lofty quality good? Is not knowledge good? Is not service for humanity good? It can be affirmed that the essence of life is good, yet man in his unwillingness for perfectment prefers to remain in ignorance, that is to say, in evil. (BR, 261)

Gotama, Lord – (Sk.). see Gautama, Buddha Siddharta

Gratitude – When I indicate the beneficialness of Gratitude, I do not mean that someone is in need of it but that it contains in itself the chemism of bliss. One must analyze the chemism of various emotions; such observations will help in finding the psychic energy. (FW I, 396)

When We speak of gratitude it is certainly not because We are in need of it, but by this We try to strengthen the bond once more. (HIER, 388)

Gratitude is one of the main qualities of justice. Without justice one cannot reach the path of Great Service. Therefore, in pointing out the necessity for the realization of gratitude, We only assist the Great Service. How beautiful is gratitude! It so easily kindles the fire of the heart, and, as if in the presence of the Image of the Lord, it fills the spirit with nobility. The ingrate is, first of all, ignoble... One should especially develop gratitude, because gratitude is the sister of loyalty. (HIER, 182)

Great Advent – The Great Advent predicted by all the ancient scriptures means the ending of Armageddon and the arrival of the epoch of the regeneration of the spirit, which is linked with the formation of the 6th race. (LHR I, p 33)

Great Battle – Armageddon.

One must not understand the great decisive battle as just a war. The manifestation of that Battle is far deeper. It will proceed along the entire Subtle and Earthly Worlds. It will express itself not only in battles, but also in unusual clashes of peoples. The boundaries between the belligerent ones will be as deflected as those between good and evil. Many decisive battles will be inaccessible to the earthly eye. The threatening clashes of the Subtle World will be manifested as catastrophies on the earthly path. Likewise will the earthly courage be reflected upon the Subtle and Fiery Worlds. The Great Battle will be the first link of connection of the Worlds. Thus, one can expect swift actions along all directions. (H, 180)

Great Crowning – The magnet which has existed in the Elements during aeons of time will, after complete transmutation and purification of the Elements, collect and unite them again. This is called the Great Crowning, or the Crown of Cosmos. (LHR I, p 195)

Great Gates – The portals of Illumination to Greater Knowledge and Esoteric Understanding. "When the disciple realizes in his heart the joy of the path, a path which knows no friction because all is transformed in the joy of Service, then it is possible to open before him the Great Gates. Amidst higher concepts the disciple must remember in his heart the records of Light. Amidst the frightening manifestations the disciple must remember about the records of darkness." (LHR I, p 190)

Great Image – see Image in the Heart, Image of the One Great Luminaries – Universal bodies—planets and suns.

Great Mystery – It is very important to assimilate the fact that the so-called Great Mystery is not an obstacle, but only the guarding of the path. (AUM, 149)

Great Service – The path of selfless labor; striving and devotion to the Hierarch.

Great Service can be the lot of every man. New life is poured into him who dares to toil in Great Service. The measures of his entrance will be determined by each one himself. Each one may pledge himself, not to small but to Great Service, and thus irrevocably dedicate himself to the Higher World. Thus, Great Service is a duty and an honor. (AUM, 81)

Great Service has all humanity in view. Neither nationality nor any other divisions should place limits on Service for the Good. (AUM, 116)

Great Silence – Silence of the spirit, or prayer.

The Great Silence is like the roaring of an ocean and the quietude of an empty house. (LMG I, 314)

Grimoires – (Fr.). Tricks of Magic.

Various grimoires anticipate raps of invocation. Truly, even in such low formulas the truth remains that elementals respond more readily to summoning raps. Yet the law is the same everywhere. You know how much We oppose all magic. (FW I, 268)

Group Soul – see Soul, Group

Guardian Angels – It is true that every human being has his or her own Guardian Angel. And we must understand them not only as concrete Beings from higher spheres but, more often, as our own spirit, our higher triad, or our true individual Ego, which, unfortunately, is very rarely able to make a person listen to its voice. Sometimes this voice is known as our conscience.

It is also quite true that many people have friends and relatives who, having passed on before them, sometimes intervene in their lives, trying to direct and help them.

The real Guardian Angels are the Great Spirits, the Hierarchy of Light, the Great Sacred Fraternity, which is always guarding the human needs and evolution. Some of these Guardian Angels (but of course in the rarest cases) become the Guides of exceptional individuals. Their Ray continuously searches for nearly awakened consciousnesses and those of flaming hearts, in order to support and direct them. But in our age, unfortunately, the guardian angels of the vast majority are dark obsessors from the lower spheres, whose voices are much more easily assimilated, as they never disagree with our earthly desires. But woe to those who allow such to approach! (LHR I, p 214)

Humanity has given great emphasis to the concept of Guardian Angels. When thought can sense the proximity of a spirit from other spheres, why not accept the Image of the One who guides the destiny? When humanity will realize His power, it will cognize the significance of the true Guardians. The Guardian of Spirit, the Guardian of Truth, is the One who directs our steps into the Cosmic Space. Man can think about Guardians. Thus, a spirit close to Us can sense the Guardians in the Cosmic Space. Hence, creativeness of the spirit brings one to the close Guardians. Thus, let the strivings to the Guardians be maintained upon all paths. Sensitive receptivity affords striving to the Guardians. (INF II, 116)

Guardian Hand – The influence of the Master—the Guardian Angel.

The Guardian Hand rests upon the spirit,
And like a pilot steers it over waves and seasons and elements.
Therefore must Our disciples be able to hearken to the breath of life of every day. (LMG I, 281)

My Hand will not tire to lead, but you do have to walk, each one with full strength. (LMG II, p 185)

Guarisankar – A mountain in the Himalayan chain.

Shamballa is the indispensible site where the spiritual world unites with the material one. As in a magnet there exists the point of utmost attraction, so the gates of the spiritual world open into the Mountain Dwelling. The manifested height of Guarisankar helps the magnetic current. Jacob's Ladder is the symbol of Our Abode. (LMG II, p 32)

Guidance – Wherein is Guidance? Precisely in the indications of what is most needed and in protection against what is most dangerous. (AUM, 489)

In everything there is movement, just so does Guidance vibrate. The higher qualities of Guidance are responsiveness, keen-sightedness, and containment. Poor is the Guide who is fixed upon one command! Higher Guidance is both invisible and inaudible. It is a special science to give not less nor more, taking into consideration the planetary conditions...

The living current of psychic energy works in such combinations of Teacher with disciple.

Guidance is a many-stringed harp. (AUM, 490)

Guidance must be recognized in spirit and heart, for the acceptance of the Hand of the Lord is alone insufficient without devoting the heart to the Lord. One must understand that law which unites the Teacher with the disciple, because without the manifestation of complete attachment to the Lord there can be no bond. A full acceptance of Guidance means a conscious relationship, for one must understand and feel in the heart the warmth which arises from the depths of the spirit. It is especially necessary to feel and to learn to discern that by which the nature of the Lord is linked with that of the disciple. Thus, one must remember that vibrations and Karma are as connecting links on the path to the Fiery World. (FW III, 106)

Guide – A Being of the Higher Spheres who watches over humanity and frequently aids and guides humans in their trips into the Subtle World.

The Teaching about Guides has a great importance in all faiths. People must realize that to them is given the possibility of passing through the melee and through all straits with the help of the Higher Guides, but that they must not reject the Helping Hand. One must come to love the Guide with all one's heart. Not by earthly means does the Guide bring help—therefore one must be sensitively conscious of this fiery thread. Throughout one's entire life can be seen the wonderful protection, if one's eyes are opened. (FW III, 569)

Guiding Hand – The hand of the Hierarch.

Humanity must develop sensitiveness if it desires to avoid a catastrophe. How is it possible that it does not understand that help can come only if the Guiding Hand is accepted! (INF II, 116)

Where can the spirit direct itself without the Guiding Hand? Where can the eye and heart be directed without Hierarchy, when the bestowing Hand of the Hierarch affirms the direction of destiny, when the Hand of the Hierarch determines the most propitious date and the higher energies manifest in familiar Images? Therefore, the seed of the spirit is imbued by the cosmic ray of the Hierarch. (INF II, 148)

The union with Hierarchy means that one is not left to advance alone. ... When our hearts are linked to Hierarchy we shall not be abandoned. We can advance in the Subtle World when the Guiding Hand is not rejected. (FW II, 334)

Guiding Ones – The spiritual Leaders among the Hierarchy.

Guiding Star – The Guiding Star is Karma, affirmed by actions of many lives. Each traveller knows how difficult it is to swim across an ocean and to leap over an abyss. The Guiding Star will be that skiff which conveys one to the other shore amid the raging elements. One can investigate how the Guiding Star leads, and where is that shore which will receive the wayfarer. Apparent comfort is not the boat; amid the whirlwinds of life comfort cannot endure, for the affirmation of the Guiding Star takes in all the bases of Karma. The Karmic foundations of life will be affirmed on impregnable principles, and all creative accumulations will manifest their saturated currents. The Guiding Star is kindled by each radiation which is manifested by life. The Guiding Star contains within itself the radiations of the seed of the spirit. The Guiding Star is alive every instant; in it, as it were, is the reflection of all vital energies. The spirit of man reflects in itself its own Guiding Star. On the path to the Fiery World let us remember the path manifested by the Forces of Light. Thus let us remember the Guiding Star.
(FW III, 82)

Gupta – (Sk.). From Gupta Vidya meaning esoteric knowledge or science. (TG)

I send the blessed token of Gupta. (LMG I, 22)

Guru – (Sk.). In the East, the bond between the disciple and the Guru is considered even now to be the most sacred, and above all blood relationships. And occultly, it is quite correct because the Guru creates the consciousness of the real man, the inner man who is the carrier of his karma; and by so doing the Guru takes responsibility even for a part of the karma of his disciple. Therefore, the selecting of disciples as well as of a Teacher must be done with great thoughtfulness and care. (LHR I, p 269)

Habits – Habit is second nature—a wise proverb indicating to what an extent habit dominates man. Precisely, habits render a man immobile and unreceptive. One can suppress habits, but it is not easy to eradicate them ... Under habits We have in mind not the service for good, but the petty habits of selfhood. (BR, 529)

The chief enemies of cooperation will be the small habits of selfishness. (BR, 530)

Each deliverance from a petty habit requires tension of the will. Furthermore, it may happen that a seemingly abandoned habit comes back again, and in a stronger degree; this means that this defect has continued to exist in the depths of the consciousness.

It may be asked, "Do habits linger on for several incarnations?" They can remain, and even grow, if the sojourn in the Subtle World has not been passed in the higher spheres. (BR, 64)

Among one's customs one must retain all those that contribute to the elevation of spirit. Let us not uproot feelings which can yield most precious branches. Let us not cut away healthy shoots, for it is impossible to create in an instant something new and more beautiful. (BR, 447)

Halfwayness – Among the manifestations which are particularly harmful for ascent may be noted halfway service. It is impossible to advance without casting away this dreadful halfwayness. It must be remembered that, having once chosen the Teacher, the disciple must always act with an understanding of all harmful effects of halfwayness. Not only is an obvious betrayal dangerous (against which one can openly fight with a sword), but these pernicious burrowings of halfwayness are so harmful. (FW III, 8)

Of little use are those who work in halfwayness. They are easily disappointed and obtain no results. Labor must be built upon complete devotion. (BR, 125)

Hammer – The mighty fire of the spirit is the smiting hammer. The fire of the striving spirit can transform the Universe. Therefore, the symbol of the hammer means the development of new tensions. Earth's girders are crumbling and a new foundation is laid. Verily, the power of Fire can build the striving of humanity. (INF I, 271)

Hand – The sensation of a protecting hand can be extremely real. It is not a symbol, but a manifestation of the precious energy. (BR, 387)

You can struggle in life, you can discern when is the hour to invoke My Hand. (LMG II, p 24)

I bring the joy of spirit.
My Hand is above thy pure thoughts.
M. teaches thee to beseech the Holy Brothers to show thee the steps of the mountain path.
Through the hand can the best current be transmitted.
The hand can arrest the waters.
An obscure consciousness transmits not the current.
It were wise to feel thy strength at the moment of contact. (LMG I, 162)

Harmony – Harmony in the physical and mathematical world of sense, is justice in the spiritual one. Justice produces harmony, and injustice, discord; and discord, on a cosmical scale, means chaos—annihilation. (IU I, pp 329-331)

People have distorted the meaning of the word "harmony". Into this concept there has been inserted something clerical, a fold of the chiton, the immortelle of non-existent love, and even a knitted stocking. It were better, without any harps, to replace this withered concept with a more energetic one: let us say ‘sensitiveness of cooperation’. Without it the Community cannot exist. Violation of it provokes resentment; resentment begets dullness and stupidity.
(LMG II, 225)

Harmony is not always attainable, even if it is proclaimed verbally. It is a common error to think that harmony can be established by reason. Few realize that the heart is the abode of harmony. (BR, 193)

Hatha-Yoga – Exercises in Hatha-Yoga should not go beyond a slight and very careful pranayama, which strengthens health, as otherwise they might be dangerous and could lead to mediumship, obsession and insanity. (LHR I, p 204)

Heart – The physical heart is the physical manifestation of the Anahata Chakra or the center of the Chalice—the heart of the Subtle Body.

Surya-Vidya—thus was the Teaching of the Heart sometimes called. In this definition was indicated the fieriness, the sunlike quality, the centrality of the heart. Verily, anyone who wishes to cognize the heart cannot approach it as only a part of the organism. First of all, one should recognize the centrifugal aspect of the heart and study outward from it, not inward toward it. The solar plexus is the antechamber of the temple of the heart. The Kundalini is the laboratory of the heart. The brain and all the centers are the estates of the heart, because nothing can exist without the heart. Even the brain can be supplemented to a certain degree. Even the Kundalini can be somewhat nourished by a manifestation of electricity, and the solar plexus can be strengthened by blue light. But the heart stands as the temple of humanity. One cannot conceive of the unity of humanity by way of the brain or the Kundalini, but the radiance of the heart can bring together the most seemingly varied organisms, even across remote distances. This experiment, of the unification of hearts across distance, awaits its workers. (H, 339)

The heart in its full significance is a transmuter and a condenser. Often these processes happen to be so strong that human strength cannot suffice to contain and endure the tension. From antiquity has come the prayer about resigning one's spirit to God. One should understand truly this surrender of the spirit. If you feel an unbearable anguish of the heart, transfer it mentally to the Lord. Thus you may join your heart with the Inexhaustible Source—Hierarchy. Such action may be particularly needed when the tension of the entire planet is great. One must be prepared for the most diversified influences, both cosmic and human. The adherence of the heart to Hierarchy is a continuous action, but at present We are pointing out particular instances when it becomes necessary to strengthen the heart with the manifestation of Hierarchy with especial clarity of consciousness. Many will not understand how one can strengthen the heart by thought, because for them the heart is but a physical organ. But whoever has felt Our currents will understand the meaning of this bond. The World is living through such a tension that it is timely to remind about the necessity of readiness for such communions. The Fiery World must be evoked in full consciousness. In case of need one may even orally address the Lord. Upon all steps of Hierarchy there is the same transmission and communion. And how majestic is this Ladder of Immeasurable Help. (FW II, 94)

Lacking straight-knowledge, who can imagine the reality of the Fiery World? But this quality must be cultivated with all devotion; and this devotion must be precisely in the heart, not on paper. Also, acceptance of the Fiery World proves courage, for any ignorant thought primarily rebels against the fires of the heart. (FW I, 209)

A hardened heart will not ascend to the Tower. It will not give strength to the subtle body. Such a stony heart will remain within the confines of Earth.

Not many realize that the development of the heart means, first of all, the broadening of the consciousness. Verily, the heart is the throne of the consciousness, but not sentimentality, this surrogate of benevolence. (LHR I, p 397)

The cry of the heart is generally understood as an abstract concept, but Ur. says not so, for she has known and heard the resounding of the heart in its great tension. Such sounding actually occurs, and in it is expressed a powerful energy. The most dangerous assaults of darkness are shattered against this tension of energy. But not often is it possible to attain such a striking aspiratory state. The fiery heart knows when the invocation of the entire psychic energy will be demanded. From the solar plexus, from the chalice, there is concentrated a current of powerful force. The most evil sendings will fall apart under such a discharge. We always rejoice at seeing such a vigilant heart, since the attack is always sudden and the accumulation of force is only possible through great watchfulness. Often this keen vigilance becomes clouded by a kind of faintness which is very indicative of the presence of dark forces. But a flaming heart does not give in to such poisonous chemisms. But remember that evil forces do send double, repeated blows, knowing their effect upon unprepared organisms.

(FW II, 169)

It is asked—What center is particularly important just now? The present is a time of synthesis, therefore let us begin everything from the heart itself. Precisely the heart stands above all. Therefore, let the throat and the chalice and the solar plexus not be isolated from the guidance of the heart. (FW II, 210)

The heart is the highest manifestation of the sixth principle. The heart is the abode of Brahma. (LHR I, p 323)

Heart Rx – The majority of remedies, with the exception of strophantis, leaves harmful sediments and if used for a long time, may poison the organism. (LHR I, p 256)

Heart of the World – The Heart of the World raises all manifested energies toward constructiveness, which rules the Universe. Cosmic striving holds in its tension each energy of spatial Fire. But the cohesion of all cosmic creative forces, as well as the directing of them, is subject to the Heart of the World. The unification of Worlds also depends upon this supreme Principle which kindles all lives. Thus, the cause of all primary causes is the Heart of the World. Each torch of life is set aflame by the Heart of the World. The consciousness which acquires the fiery vibration of the Cosmic Ray, senses the vibration of the Heart of the World. (FW III, 290)

The Heart of the World can manifest its forms in each conjunction of energies. Each new combination of forms affirmed with a new energy is actually an expression of the Heart of the World. Indeed, cosmic creativeness can be used to define the action of the Heart of the World. In fact, to all the manifestations of the cosmos, in which the magnet intensifies all attractions, one can apply this concept. For indeed, the power which collects all suitable energies, acts consciously. Spatial fires are subject to the law of attraction of the Heart of the World. Subtle is the world of manifested attractions, and each wave of attraction assembles new combinations from the energies propelled toward union. Therefore the Heart of the World creates quick conjunctions. There are so many fiery attractions in the Cosmos! (FW III, 281)

The Heart of the World contains all the properties of cosmic energies. Each force of attraction acts according to the law of the Heart of the World. Each form and the process of concerted actions create according to the great fiery command of the Heart of the World. A manifestation of fiery conjunctions has its own power of unification which gathers together cosmic energies. Verily all human actions can be saturated by the Heart of the World. But for this great action it is necessary to feel the pulse of the Fiery World. In this fiery creative power it is verily possible to regenerate the consciousness of humanity. On the path to the Fiery World let us strive for creativeness in unison with the Heart of the World. (FW III, 282)

Each cosmic combination leads into a succeeding action; becoming, as it were, a nucleus for a new regeneration. Out of this movement grows a spiral, and the Heart of the World attracts all the spirals of creativeness. Thus, the spiral refers to the sphere of activity of man, to group Karma, to the formation of states, to the conceptions of epochs, to the attraction of particles of atoms, and to all the creations of the Cosmos. Therefore each thing born in the Cosmos brings its own spiral movement, which, in its turn tenses the adjacent spheres. Thus, currents of cosmic fire are distributed by the Heart of the World. The Fiery World consists of these fiery spirals. (FW III, 283)

Heavenly Stones – People who take upon themselves Great Service may be called "Heavenly Stones." In their striving they fill themselves with light. They pierce through the lower strata and contain within themselves diamond-adamant. But it is not easy to be a diamond, and it is necessary to be affirmed in light in order to conquer darkness. Great Service knows no repose; by incessant vigilance is the spirit strengthened. A heap made up of small earthly truths must be covered with the dome of magnanimity. One must be under the cover of Light issuing from Hierarchy, and must assimilate the Subtle and Fiery Worlds as in the nature of things. From a pit one may not notice the sun; yet people study the stars from a well. The most unexpected may happen on the path of Service, but the experienced Leader will not forget that each worldly loss is made up for in space. (FW II, 201)

Hell – see Purgatory

Herb of Truth – A combination of seven plants which open controlling centers and was used by doctors in ancient times much as the so-called truth serum is used today. (FW I, 37)

Hermes Trismegistus – (Gr.). The generic name given to many ancient Greek writers and having its origin in the Egyptian God Thot or Thos, associated with wisdom and knowledge. Most of the Hermetic writings have their origin deep in antiquity and represent true Ancient Wisdom upon which most of our present knowledge (esoteric and exoteric) has its basis.

Hermetism – Pertaining to the study of Hermetic knowledge.
see also Hermes Trismegistus

Hero – That man is called hero who acts selflessly, but this definition is not complete. He is a hero who acts self-sacrificingly, unwaveringly, consciously, and who, acting in the name of the Common Good, thus brings nearer the current of cosmic evolution. (COM, 147)

How differently is the manifestation of heroism commonly understood. One should remember that a hero is not always proclaimed by a trumpet blast. Not in universal glamour does a hero of the spirit proceed, but in a true draining of the chalice of poison. To those who demand more, more is often given, to meet their requirement, but earthly gifts are no affirmation of higher gifts. Verily, a hero of the spirit proceeds by another path. His burden will be the Burden of the World. And how wonderful is the countenance of the hero of the spirit, proceeding impetuously onward in silence and in solitude. (FW III, 42)

Heroine Sisters – The idea of a mission for women was my dream from early youth; I called it "The Community of the Heroine Sisters" and I imagined them bringing light and joy into the hard conditions of the life of our country. The various fields of action in life could be covered by this Community. That is, some sisters could devote themselves to medicine, others to agriculture, and still others could be teachers and lecturers in the various branches of knowledge, also covering social problems in a popular vein. Of course, the study and teaching of the arts would be most important in such a community, together with the investigation into the significance of color, sound, and scent, and their influence on man's general living conditions. The function of the Living Ethics would be to beautify the whole benevolent movement of the Heroine Sisters. Such were my dreams, which of course grew with the growth of my consciousness. Now is the time to think of the near future and to strive to recruit pure souls who would be ready to undertake selflessly this task. A whole army of such sisters and workers will be necessary to satisfy the spiritual hunger of the people. It is time now to fill the ranks of capable women teachers. Therefore, if something like this program could materialize in your group it would be beneficial in many respects. In the books of the Teaching it is said very beautifully, referring to such sisters: "Let them endear themselves to people. Let people say, 'A dear one came to our village.'" (LHR I, pp 291-292)

Hierarch – In the earthly scale, an Adept.

If one combines the complete responsibility of the physician, judge, priest, teacher, architect, lawmaker, a part of the reponsibility of an Hierarch will be evinced. But just a part. For besides the earthly responsibility he also belongs to the subtle and mental worlds. We never summon anyone to don the armor of a Hierarch, because only the spirit itself can choose such a responsibility. The seed of the Hierarch is generated according to a certain ray. Verily, the might of ascent has no fear of responsibility before the three worlds; as the pillar of the Covenant; as the Light all-penetrating. Thus, facing the throne of responsibility the wings of achievement radiate. (HIER, 330)

Hierarchy – In the broadest sense, this is symbolized by the Biblical "Ladder of Jacob" and includes all degrees of aspirants to the Path of Light, conscious and unconscious. The principle of Hierarchy is the most powerful of all principles leading to the broadening of consciousness. Each manifested shifting is created by the principle of the concept of Hierarchy. Where can the spirit direct itself without the Guiding Hand? Where can the eye and heart be directed without Hierarchy, when the bestowing Hand of the Hierarch affirms the direction of destiny, when the Hand of the Hierarch determines the most propitious date and the higher energies manifest in familiar images. Wherefore, the seed of the spirit is imbued by the cosmic ray of the Hierarch. Since the highest principle contains in itself the potentiality of Fire, the pure fiery spirit of the Hierarch is asserted as the highest priniciple. Therefore, let us remember our spiritual Leaders. Thus we shall revere the law of Hierarchy. (INF II,148)

The idea of Hierarchy is a cosmic concept, a cosmic law. The Whole Universe exists, is nourished, and is supported solely by this principle.
(LHR I, p 319)

Hiero-Inspiration – Inspiration from, or communion with, the Masters of Wisdom of Hierarchy.

A high spirit who is karmically close to a newly incarnating bearer of a definite mission can send to him His Ray, so that this Ray can accompany this soul throughout its entire life. The new-born soul assimilates this Ray, and in the course of its spiritual development the soul assimilates this Ray completely. Then occurs what is called an "incarnation of the Ray" or "Hiero-inspiration". Sri Shankara-Charya, the founder of Vedanta philosophy, was an incarnation of the Ray of one of the Great Teachers of the White Brotherhood. (LHR I, p 443)

Hiero-Inspiration descends through a single basic condition. Neither concentration, nor command of the will, but love for Hierarchy produces direct Communion. We do not know how better or more precisely to express the guiding law than as a flow of love. Therefore, it is so opportune to put aside compulsive magic, in order to become imbued with love in one's entire being. As a result, one can easily approach the principle of Existence by a sense of beauty. Precisely, amidst the dissolution of the planet, one must turn to the most health-giving principle. And what can more strongly unify than the mantram 'I love Thee, O Lord!' In such a call it is easy to receive a ray of cognition. Observe this! (FW II, 296)

The singular expression which you observed on the portraits pertains to the domain of Hiero-inspiration. Already in remote antiquity this spiritual penetration was understood. In ancient Egypt portrait images were used as a means of communion at a distance. Sacred Images likewise respond to spiritual communion. But this natural manifestation should be understood simply, as one more grain of knowledge, and not as magic or sorcery. No one can draft a boundary line to limit the knowledge of the spirit. No one has such an imagination as to be able to realize where the magnitude of energy could be cut short. Hence, one should conscientiously note all the understood details of various manifestations. One must rejoice at all such realizations, because these fiery beacons lead to the Fiery World. Consequently, on such paths one should apply great vigilance. One must accept reality as it is. Not distrust nor sleepiness, but the good eye and the opened heart lead to understanding of the new manifestations of the Fiery World. Observe how much the expression of the image becomes changed, and in the course of time you can compare this with events. It is needful, of course, to carry out observations upon people who have for you a special significance, and whom you know. The manifestation of such alterations of expression was called by the Egyptians the mirror of the soul.

(FW II, 269)

You have seen rings which changed their color, depending upon the condition of the wearer and upon surrounding circumstances. One could see that this changing coloration did not depend upon the quality of the metal itself. This means that an external chemism was precipitated upon the ring; but even so, such a phenomenon could not have been produced without fiery energy. Naturally, when it became possible to transfer this external reaction to the heart, the ancient phenomenon became unnecessary. It could be demonstrated, as mentioned in the most ancient literature, but energy need not be expended where the heart has already entered upon the fiery path of Hiero-inspiration. So too, in all the other manifestations of energy, one must immediately turn to Higher Communion as soon as the conditions of the organism permit. The task of the Teacher consists first of all in the speediest elevation to the degree of Hiero-inspiration. (FW II, 272)

Useful for Hiero-inspiration is the current which is called the Seal of the Hierarch. It can be sensed upon the nape, it shines as a white ray. Through knowledge of Hiero-inspiration it is possible to remember this sensation.

When Hiero-inspiration draws one's thought to a definite region or place, it means that circumstances of great cosmic significance are already being molded. Perhaps having such perception of a place is unexplainable by the earthly state of affairs. Perhaps from the earthly point of view such a country is found to be in a most unattractive state, but the higher law is already determining the place of special tension. Earthly eyes do not yet see, but Hiero-inspiration directs the consciousness thither, where the radiance of Higher Light has been ordained, thus, above your straight-knowledge shines Hiero-inspiration. Often it appears to contradict the obvious, but it speaks the word of the Fiery World. So too with the sensations spoken about today. Hiero-inspiration directs thither where already the summit is alight. (FW II, 337)

Hiero-inspiration must fill all life. This does not mean any breaking away from earthly existence, but Hiero-inspiration should become the sole expression of life. When the Hierarch indicates the approach of a fiery consciousness, then each issued word and thought will conform to the higher solution. It must be observed in life how one's judgment becomes truer and the understanding is unmistakably and correspondingly strengthened. (FW II, 358)

When we touch upon the true path, we sense the power of joy. Our heart rejoices, feeling that our striving is the right one. One can be much grieved, wandering about outside of applicable reflections. But when the consciousness pictures truth, it is filled with joy. Such joy will be wise, for it is based on Hiero-inspiration. And such meditation will be useful on the pathways to the Fiery World. (FW II, 371)

Precisely like an anchor cast forward, the feeling of Hiero-inspiration leads by the right path. (FW II, 372)

Amidst the fiery path man mentally strives for acceleration. Many earthly obstacles, attractions and allurements are arranged by the dark forces, yet once he has plunged into Hiero-inspiration and exclaimed— "Let's go faster!", his strength is renewed and, without turning back, he hastens impetuously toward the Fiery World. And such meditation is useful on the pathways to the Fiery World. (FW II, 373)

Highest Reason – Highest Reason and the Great Heart, mentioned in Chalice of the East and in the books of the Teachings, is precisely the Collective Mind and the Heart of the Great Hierarchy of Light. (LHR I, p 390)

Himalayan Lights – The Himalayan Lights have been observed by many scholars, none the less, for the ignorant they remain doubtful. The non-searing flame of the Himalayas, though people have observed and touched it, likewise remains as before within the limits of the fantastic. Each manifestation of light has energy in its basis. (BR, 327)

Holy Brothers – The White Brotherhood.

Holy Ghost – Psychic energy is the Holy Ghost. (LHR II, p 332)

Calling it psychic energy, we speak of the same Sophia of the Hellenic world or Sarasvati of the Hindus. The Holy Ghost of the Christians manifests signs of psychic energy, just as do the creative Adonai of Israel, and Mithra, full of solar power. Certainly, no one doubts that the Fire of Zoroaster is the Fire of Space which you study. (AY, 416)

The Mother of the Universe, or of the manifested Cosmos, can be accepted as one of the Figures of the Holy Trinity. Indeed, there is no religion, except later ecclesiastical Christianity, in which the Feminine Element is not included among the Primates of Be-ness. Thus, the Gnostics also considered the Holy Ghost as a Feminine Element. In the most ancient Teachings, the manifested Trinity of Father, Mother, and Son was considered an emanation of the highest, eternally hidden Cause; and the latter, in turn, as that of the Causeless Cause.

Homeopathy – A science of medicine based on the theory that disease is cured by remedies which produce on a healthy person effects similar to the symptoms of the complaint of the patient, the remedies being usually administered in minute doses. (WD)

Honesty – On the path to Service it is important to remember the necessity for honesty, for this is the first requirement in building. Distortion of facts is distortion of the structure. Only self-deceit impels the spirit to distortion. The Karmic mirror reflects these distortions, and the spirit which manifests a Karmic evil-interpretation, inflicts injury to the entire structure. Why, then, has humanity so enwrapped the planet with false emanations? Distortion of truth, distortion of the Teaching, distortion of principles leads to destruction. In this blind alley dwells the spirit of man who lives by egoism. One is obliged to sweep away the dust, and crevices yawn in the littered structure. Verily, ulcers of the spirit hinder the erection of the building. One must sensitively distinguish tolerance and movability from those qualities which are so chaotically revealed in experimentation with people who turn about where neither conscience nor honesty nor truth call to the spirit. On the path to the Fiery World the first requirement is honesty. (FW III, 379)

Humility – The worst of all is to understand humility as mediocrity. Humility is the worthy carrying out of Service. Is standing guard before the trusted gates insignificant? Not insignificant is a resolution to perform better labor. Reverence of the Fiery World cannot be of no account. But true Service lies in the toil of patient endurance and perfectionment. Such quality pertains to the Fiery Path. (FW III, 500)

One of the great concepts, often incorrectly interpreted, is precisely the great concept of humility. It has been interpreted as non-resistance to evil; it has been interpreted as good-heartedness, as compassion, but very few accepted it as self-denial. For only self-denial and self-sacrifice can give understanding of humility. Truly, We see the giants of spirit and the heroes who devote themselves fully to the humble tasks for the good of humanity. We know of great experiments being humbly carried out in the earthly laboratories for the benefit of humanity. We know the great fiery experiments of those who dedicate their lives wholly and humbly to the benefit of mankind. We know manifestations on the path to the Fiery World which inspire all surroundings. Truly manifold is humility manifested through self-sacrifice and self-renunciation. Heroism is a manifestation of various aspects of humility. Thus the records of space are filled with great deeds of humility. Invaluable are these fiery flights of the spirit. Thus, verily, the heroes of humility drain the cup of poison for the good of mankind. (FW III, 24)

As the highest humility and the highest self-renunciation, should one accept the Image of Those bearing the full Chalice of self-sacrifice. They carry a heavy burden in the heart. They bear the brunt of the tension manifested by humanity. They carry the burden of the entire discrepancy. Such humility is redemption. Who will give himself wholly to the achievement of drinking the cup of poison? Who will take upon himself the Fiery Shield for the good of humanity? Who will resolve to accept the fiery energies? Who will manifest the understanding of the entire Cosmic tension? Verily, he who is in consonance with the Higher Forces. Mankind is accustomed to demand Good, but very rarely does man think of giving. Hence the humility of a saint who carries a fiery chalice is regarded as the highest humility. The fiery chalice holds the essence of the saving of the spirit of mankind and the atonement. Thus, let us remember and manifest understanding. (FW III, 25)

Hypnotism – see Mesmer, Friedrich Anton

Hypochondria – What is hypochondria? Many confuse it with auto-suggestion, but the latter is only an effect of the former. Hypochondria in its essence is very infectious and destructive. It can be defined physiologically as the dissolution of heart energy. Such a process interrupts the protective work of the nerve centers. The enemy's entrance into the stronghold is not a matter of auto-suggestion, but far worse; the defenders of the stronghold, instead of resisting, open the gates to the enemy. It is difficult to cure, for hypochondria is not always subject to suggestion. The process of dissolution cannot be replaced by suggestion. It is necessary to heal the wounded nerve tissue. Here strength can be built up only by nerve exercise. Consequently, hypochondriac people must be confronted with the most unexpected, in order to produce the most acute reactions and to create an indirect tension of the nerve tissue. Such tension is like gymnastics for the nerve centers. Rest and disuse of the nerve centers is not always beneficial, notwithstanding the usual counsel of ordinary physicians. On the contrary, the ancient wisdom says, "You are afraid, therefore you will be doubly frightened." "You have ceased being afraid, consequently you can behold the Fiery Gates." Hypochondria must not be confused with doubt. True, these two are sisters, whose mother is ignorance. Hypochondria is a certain established mode of thinking, whereas doubt is a dark obstacle. It is difficult to say which of the vipers is the more harmful. One should free oneself from hypochondria as from an obstruction before the Fiery World. Many things are erroneously thought to be synonymous. Ponder over them, over different facets of definition. Who knows which of these will open the broadest vista in realization of cause and effect? (FW II, 156)

Hypocrisy – There are many examples when hypocrites turned away from the concept of Brotherhood, yet bowed humbly down before it for the sake of display. (BR, 277)

Hypocrisy, bigotry, and superstition are three of the dark qualities which must be rejected on the path to Brotherhood. (BR, 24)

Icarus – The son of Daedalus of ancient Greek Mythology. According to legend, he and his father, wishing to fly, fashioned for themselves wings of feathers and fastened them on with wax. They flew into the sky but Icarus flew too near the sun, which melted the wax and he fell into the sea and was destroyed.

Easily, lightly, upwards and verily unnoticed, dost thou bear up the burdens of life,
as the pollen of the flowers.
Let the crossing be easy again.
Easily, upwards, joyously.
Concern not thyselves with soles when wings are growing upon thy shoulders.
But beware lest thou emulate Icarus. (LMG I, 297)

Ideation – The root of Ideation exists in the profound basis of Be-ness. Without visualization there cannot be any striving to knowledge and creation. How can a spirit create if it is not convinced by ideation? How could it speak about the Highest Principle if there were no ideation inherent in Be-ness? Spiritual values are distinguished according to this criterion. Without ideation this would be the dance of a skeleton. But, as you see, a balm is now necessary for the decaying portions of humanity. (H, 128)

Idiosyncrasies – Idiosyncrasies are inexplicable attractions or repulsions, and they appear as trustworthy evidences of reincarnation. (BR, 163)

Illness – Often through illness the achievements become intensified. St. Francis and St. Theresa were often ill. Pythagorus had heart disease. The best zurnas often lacked some strings. (LMG II, p 13)

Iluminacio Regale or Royal Illumimination – A term found in ancient treatises on magic. In these instances Illumination has been called Royal or Regale because, having gained it, the Initiate symbolizes the harmony between that above and that on earth, just as in ancient times a king was meant to symbolize the appointed mediator between heaven and earth.

In the ancient magic books can be found the term, "Illuminacio Regale," which means the Royal Illumination. It is such an important principle that Hermes ends his treatise with the words, "Blessed are those who have chosen the path of Illumination."

The symbol of the anointing of kings has the same basis. Absolutely all initiates into the power of the Mysteries agree in the assertion that the highest harmony is in the manifestations of the power of Illumination. Therefore, the king is symbolically the anointed one, because without estranging himself from the earthly he expresses the will of Heaven. Above the conventional formulae that are congealed in the crust of prejudices there is knowledge, diffused, as it were, in the air.

Erect a lightning-rod and attract the heavenly arrow. For one it is dangerous, for another it is the best armor. And the whole future is based on attainment of Illumination. A most difficult telephone will be in the hands of man. (LMG II, pp 56-57)

Illumination – Illumination, in essence, is the bliss of striving. (H, 503)

Image in the Heart – Think courageously about the Images of the Great Ones; thus will you follow the line of unity. (LMG II, p 179)

All religions have introduced special movements and positions of the body that aid the accumulation of the energy and impel one to the Highest. When following Us, achievement may be arrived at through the saturation of one's heart, without fatiguing movements. He who succeeds through this means has an advantage, because the source of the heart is inexhaustible. The Image of the Lord, impressed upon the heart, will not grow dim and at any hour will be ready to help. This way of the heart is the most ancient, but it requires a considerable expansion of consciousness. One should not speak of the heart from the very first conversation, for then one may over-burden it aimlessly. It is likewise aimless to speak of love if the heart does not yet contain the Image of the Lord. But the hour strikes when one must indicate the power of the heart. I advise addressing oneself to the heart, not only because the Image of the Lord is already close but for cosmic reasons. It is easier to cross an abyss if the link with the Lord is strong. (HIER, 85)

Through the heart one can transport one's consciousness along the Chain of Hierarchy, thus multiplying one's strength and becoming invulnerable. This means that for such essential achievements three elements are necessary: heart, Hierarchy, and the realization of non-separateness. Let us accustom ourselves to constantly feel the heart. Then let us not forget to retain the Image of the Teacher in the third eye, and let us understand the meaning of indivisibility of aspiration. (H, 582)

One must absorb into one's consciousness an attractive constructive image. One should admit it as one's own possession which will lead to the heights.
(FW I, 513)

Let the Sacred Image, guarded in the heart, serve as a guidepost. Thus, let friends realize the might and beauty of the Fiery World. Let them not be merely curious, but let them find within themselves a steadfast bond with the World of Beauty. (FW I, 666)

For the quickest self-perfecting and development of spirituality the most essential is a constant thought about the Highest Hierarch; this is the sacred concentration about which so much is written and which so often is misunderstood. Remembering the Luminous Image every moment of the day and night and doing all our work in His Name, we are gradually establishing the sacred union, which will finally give us the great power of Hiero-inspiration. (LHR I, p 187)

Image of Man – Try to study the higher manifestations of value to mankind.
The image of man is created by the energy of mankind. (LMG I, 16)

Image of the One – The Image of the Master that each disciple will guard in his heart. Also the Guardian Angel who guides the destiny of man.

Imagination – The "consequence of former experience" in previous lives. (AY, 296)

How can the imagination be properly defined? Usually people take the imagination to be their own invention of forms, but the imagination itself has its roots and distinctions. One may find the core of the imagination in the 'chalice', as the precipitation of many lives. However, the imagination is nourished not only by remembrances of past lives, but also by the action of the present. When the spirit participates in the life of the far-off Worlds, or in the Subtle World, or in the Astral World, then frequently the memories of these experiences are reflected as imagination. Often scholars obtain formulas, or direction, precisely through a communion with the Subtle World. Thought and striving are also kindled by the Subtle Spheres. But a spirit possessing the synthesis not only takes from the treasury of the 'chalice', but also is a true co-worker of Cosmic Forces. How many inexplicable causes of unquenchable imagination there are, and how many unexplainable manifestations of heart anguish! (FW III, 62)

Imagination is insufficiently developed in people. They are unable to imagine causes and effects. They do not know how to picture to themselves the most beautiful possibilities ... Those who know not how to think have no imagination. Loss of imagination is renunciation of joy. (BR, 609)

Even the imagination is created by a lengthy experience of accumulations through the centuries, and all qualities of the spirit pertain to the same law.
(HIER, 438)

Through will power one can alter one's pulse. One can virtually stop the heart. One can perform many psychophysiological acts. But if you ask how to act now, I will say, Let your heart ascend. Imagine your heart as if it were within a chalice with an ascending flame. Thus, above physiological functions, let us set the upward striving of the heart to Hierarchy. (H, 233)

Immortality, Chalice of – Through struggle comes the great power of spirit and the great gift of immortality. (LHR I, p 71)

Immunity – A little understood facet of medicine, immunity is linked to a condition of the entire nervous system, the harmony of which depends largely on the balance in the organism of the primary energy. (BR,177)

Immutability – Steadfastness, unchangeability, unwaverability.

Imperil – The poison resulting from irritability is called 'imperil', which commands danger.

This poison, a quite substantial one, is precipitated against the walls of the nerve channels and thus spreads through the entire organism.

If modern science would try impartially to examine the nerve channels, giving heed to the astral currents, it would encounter a strange decomposition of the astral substance during its passage through the nerve channels—this is the reaction to 'imperil.' Only rest can help the nervous system to overcome the dangerous enemy which can call forth the most diverse irritations and painful contractions of the organism.

He who is afflicted with 'imperil' must repeat, "How beautiful is everything!" And he will be right; because the flow of evolution is rational, in other words, beautiful. The more subtle the nervous system, the more painful is the precipitation of 'imperil'. This same poison, by the addition of one ingredient, may contribute to the dissolution of matter. (AY, 15)

Study of the physical traces of 'imperil' may compel the understanding of the precipitations of psychic energy. One can observe the traces of 'imperil' in any nerve channel. But it can be remarked that around the granulations of this poison is gathered some sort of substance which absorbs this virulent viper. The precipitates of psychic energy will be discovered, because each energy has its physical crystal. (AY, 220)

The precipitate of 'imperil' has been shown to you. Precisely that poison gives so much anxiety to people. Do not forget that the grossest ignorance is not equal to a drop of 'imperil'. For 'imperil' is not a personal product; evaporating, it permeates space, for the purity of which we are all responsible. (AY, 221)

You are right in observing that precisely a lack of inner well-being is especially ruinous. One may win all lawsuits, one may meet new friends, but inner dissolution can drive away the very best friend. When pepper dust is in the air, all begin to sneeze. Thus can imperil be spread. You have seen more than once how new circumstances have appeared, but they have to be met. Thus, it is necessary once and for all to understand about the infection of imperil! It is inadmissible to refer light-mindedly to decomposition! This process is transmitted like leprosy. There can be either an increase of strength or disintegration, there can be no third condition. One should not advise strengthening by force. It is impossible to save anyone from leprosy by coercion. It is impossible to keep anyone from imperil by violence. Friend-liness is not violence. Growth of the heart comes not from a whip, and a beautiful garden can be grown only by beautiful actions. Offense to Hierarchy is irreparable. (FW I, 161)

Incarnation – In each new incarnation we receive an organism limited by the general level of human development and the hereditary influence of ancestors, in addition to the conditions dependent upon our own karma. We are attracted to that environment which is accessible to us, precisely, through our karma. Therefore, the seed of the spirit, in spite of its numerous accumulations can be only partially manifested in each new earthly sheath. It can be observed how a former musical virtuoso will maintain in his new body the understanding of and more or less inclination to this art, but not having the necessary coordination of the centers for particular musical abilities, he could not be a virtuoso. (LHR II, p 315)

Frequently you hear absurd tales of how there occur simultaneous incarnations of one and the same person—a conclusion both ignorant and harmful. Deniers of incarnation make use of such fictions to dispute the possibility of reincarnation. Besides, they forget the reason—which somewhat lessens the guilt—namely imaginative invention. Certain people remember the details of a definite epoch; when they dream of being a well-known person, their remembrance of the dream molds the imagining of an incarnation. The resulting error is in the person, but not in the epoch. A child imagines himself a field marshal, and such a representation already sinks into his Chalice.
(AUM, 491)

see also Reincarnation

Incense – In hoary antiquity incense was used to determine the aura of objects. It was supposed that objects with good auras became imbued with incense, whereas bad emanations did not absorb the effusions of the plant. Afterwards, incense was used in the temples in order to strengthen the Subtle World and bring it nearer. Verily, incense has the property of increasing the vitality of the Subtle World. When used at funerals, its purpose is to safeguard the one who has passed the borderline of consciousness and to liberate him from the state of slumber that is usual for those who are unprepared. (H, 153)

Indications – Hints and advice from the Teacher and Hierarchy.

Individuality – The Human Higher Ego, which is the product of accumulations of past lives.

It is most essential to learn to discriminate between these entirely opposite conceptions: selfishness and individuality. Selfishness is the most terrible scourge of humanity, the source of destruction, and, first of all, self-destruction. Selfishness is a dead separatism. The old truth about the unity of Cosmos and its humanity being an integral whole is very poorly realized, but it should finally reach the consciousness of the people. What would happen if someone tried to separate or isolate one organ of the body from the whole organism? Individuality is a life-holding receptacle. Individuality is beauty, is the crown of man, the synthesis of all his accumulations. But how can he accumulate if he separates himself from all other life-holders? Individuality is as honey, gathered by the man-bee from the best flowers, and of different meadows. But what kind of honey can a person gather who locks himself in the darkness of selfishness? (LHR I, p 156)

There is thought which leads inwardly, leaving the surface of the spirit unruffled, and there is also thought which flies into space as a projectile, carrying an explosive charge. A ray accompanies the flying bullet. Every spirit knows when thought flies like a boomerang. It is especially desirable that the thought be tinted by one's own color. But it is only opened nerve centers that do not give color to the thought, leaving it enwrapped in the color of the person; and then true individuality has begun. Instead of the thoughts being colored by its contents, the whole sending is permeated by the color of the individuality. Thus is the ray physically formed. (LMG II, p 59)

It is possible to preserve the whole potential of individuality and to attune the consciousness harmoniously. (COM, 173)

Often the community is accused of doing violence to the freedom of individuality. This charge is applicable to any compromise state but not to the community. In a conscious community there is a place for every labor. Each one may select his task at will, for every labor is sharpened by new attainments. There is not the tedium of mechanical performance, for the worker is at the same time an experimenter. He understands the significance of the problem of introducing perfectionment of work without disturbing the general complex of rhythm. (COM, 202)

Your heart is the only judge, accumulator and guardian of the acquired precious energies. The structure of these acquired and accumulated energies is our individuality and destiny. (LHR I, p 49)

Individuality and egoism are like birth and death. The building of individuality manifests the conception of a New World, whereas egoism can mirror itself in the dead volcanoes of the moon. Not only does egoism deaden itself, it strikes the surroundings with sterility, whereas individuality kindles fires in all adjacent camps. Cooperation is the crown of individuality, but the scourge of egoism is like the sting of a scorpion. Can one rely upon egoism? No more than upon a viper! But true individuality contains in itself the foundation of universal justice. We must gather individualities; for a new diamond is in need of cutting, but egoism must pass through many incarnations. Indeed, this law may also be changed by the fire of the heart. Therefore, we can advise those adhering to egoism to be kindled by the proximity of a fiery heart. (HIER, 342)

Individuality and Personality – You protest against my affirmation of the significance of personality. But how can we ignore personality, when precisely it builds individuality? I assert that it is very useful to express one's personality as intensely as possible, but not in its negative aspects. Certainly, the true conception of personality and individuality is possible only to a matured consciousness. But in a small consciousness this conception can take the following complacent, hypocritical, conceited form: "My individuality is so great that it can hardly be expressed through my present personality, inherited from my physical forebears. Therefore, I would rather concentrate on my real individuality, regardless of my present outward semblance." ... We must each strive to make our present personality more beautiful than the preceding one. We must think about the beauty of our present life and look upon it as the cutting of the finest diamond for the necklace of life wrought by our spirit. Hence, let everyone affirm his personality, as how else can he express his individuality? (LHR I, p 407)

Indra – (Sk.). The chief god in the Hindu pantheon, and is equivalent to the Greek Zeus. According to the oral tradition, with the coming of the new cycle of Indra's manifestations, the heat of his throne rises until he has to leap off and send down the purifying lightnings (i.e., there is an accumulation of Psychic Energy and new manifestations of it are required.). (LHR I, p 337)

Infinity – Symbolizes the boundlessness and great mystery of all creation to which we are linked by the Master and Hierarchy.

Thus, even if we do not understand the meanings of Infinity, we are able to realize it as something unavoidable and therefore, meriting special attention. (INF I, Intro)

The human spirit is raised by Us to the level of the highest understanding of the manifestations of Cosmos. When We call toward Infinity, it is in accord with the highest principle. Did the first man think about such attainment? The Cosmic Magnet of evolution is predestined as an eternal attraction, indicating the way toward perfection. The abolishment of the understanding of a boundless manifestation is unjustified. Each new day offers new possibilities for approaching the limitless growth. The absence of finiteness assures a direct consequence designating the beginning of each completion. The succession of gates which lead to new spheres We shall call Infinity. Creativeness of spirit increases with each new current of evolution. Verily the human spirit is unaware of its treasury, the expression of which spirals upward during an affirmed striving. Find application for each of the fires of Space. (INF I, 113)

Let us glance at the entire immensity of the night sky. In our thoughts let us fly over the innumerable worlds and the hidden depths of infinite space. Thought in its substance is infinite, and only our consciousness attempts to limit it. Therefore, without delay, let us start the next step—broadening of consciousness. (LHR I, p 3)

Courageously inspired by striving, realizing the majesty of the endless perfecting of creative life, strive toward the calling Infinity—infinity of lives, infinity of achievements, infinity of knowledge, infinity of construction, infinity of beauty!

My young friends, hearken to the Call of Creative Infinity! (LHR I, p 5)

Initiation – A practice of admission into the Mysteries of Life as practiced in Ancient times. Since most of the mysteries have long since been forgotten by mankind in general, the term has evolved a new meaning for the Occultist and student of Truth and now refers to gradations or degrees of attainment or advancement into the World of Higher Truths, each new entry or Initiation being marked by an actual Ray of Illumination sent by Hierarchy, and corresponding with the degree of purification that has been reached by the Initiate. Of course, initiations do not take place on the physical plane, but within the individual, on the 'inner' planes, and each successive one is accompanied by a broadening of consciousness and the fiery transmutation of the centers. (LHR I, p 384)

Instead of initiated and uninitiated, let us say knowing and unknowing, or cognizant and ignorant. But it is better to express initiation itself by the word education. (BR, 10)

Inoculations – Inoculations are good if the vitality is equal to them, otherwise they are like a destructive plaster. A being who possesses full vitality is in no need of inoculations; he has the so-called solar-immunity. (LMG II, p 72)

Inquiring – see Degrees of Attainment

Inspiration – An inbreathing of energies from space.

It means that someone or something was inspired from somewhere. The word quite clearly implies that something came from outside, yet people, irresponsibly speak repeatedly about this manifestation which pertains precisely to the Subtle World. Just think how many signs are present in the world, and something blinds the eyes! Is it not darkness? (H, 192)

The creativeness of the Agni Yogi, in his tension, thus directs the psychic seeds. What people term inspiration is often the outgrowth of an impelled psychic seed (seed of thought) directed by a carrier of Fire. (INF I, 273)

How does the Brotherhood live? How does the Brotherhood act? From Our Abode the threads of Our creativeness are stretched to the hearts, as inspirations to humanity. (HIER, 29)

Insincerity – The least insincerity in devotion and in the acceptance of the foundations of renovation can especially affect the condition of health. Such insincerity can nest deeply in the crevices of the consciousness. Virulent is the contagion of insincerity, affecting the neighboring emanations.

If people could only realize the injury they bring on themselves and others by halfway decisions! They may cleave the consciousness, bringing on death. As often happens, illness begins unnoticed and later a fatally dangerous operation becomes inevitable. Thus does human downfall result from the sting of the tiniest adder of insincerity. One must warn, but one cannot coerce. A steed jumping the precipice cannot be halted. (AY, 116)

Intellect – The stage of development that largely differentiates man from the animals. Intellect corresponds to the 4th principle or Kama-Manas. (LHR I, pp 484-485)

Intelligence – Of course, what the Mahatmas call "an active Power, an immutable, therefore an unthinking Principle" (Mahatma Letters) is the principle of Life or Consciousness (and therefore the foundation of Intelligence), being infinite, eternal and absolute. The Cosmic Intelligence is the the Hierarchy of Light or the Ladder of Jacob. In addition, the Crown of this Hierarchy consists of the Spirits or Intelligences who have completed their human evolution in this or another solar system, the so-called Planetary Spirits, the Creators of the worlds. These Creators of worlds or planets are the Master Builders of the present and the future Universe. In the days of Pralaya They are in charge of the great Vigil of Brahma and They mark the next cosmic evolution. Therefore, the Crown of Cosmic Intelligence does not depend on the Manvantaras; verily, They exist in the dimension of Infinity. Thus the Highest Hierarch of our planet is one of the most resplendent Gems in the Crown of Cosmic Intelligence. (LHR I, p 339)

International Government – The International Government mentioned in the books is the Great Hierarchy of Light; and for us Christians, who take our religious terminology from the Jews, it is of course Jacob's Ladder, which is mentioned precisely in the second book of Leaves of Morya's Garden. And for the East it is Great Shambhala, or Shabistan, or Mount Meru. There are other names as well, for they vary according to the people and the country. (LHR I, p 295)

Intolerance – Intolerance is evil; there can be no good intolerance. It invariably contains falsehood, because it conceals the truth. (BR, 409)

Intuition – Spirit knowledge.

Straight-knowledge is intuition of an extremely high quality. (LHR I, p 448)

Invisible Light – The world knows about the White Fire. The world knows about the Invisible Light. Where We wish to reveal the subtlest energies, there We act only through subtlest energies. (INF I, 106)

Invisible World – Those 'invisible' dimensions of existence not, as yet, generally perceived by our physical perceptions.

If people would ponder upon the truth that only the result is visible to them, whereas the process itself is invisible they would grasp the meaning of the Invisible. (INF I, 175)

It is not only the visible that exists but the world is filled with invisible realities. (BR, 130)

The Great Advent cannot be manifested in an ordinary way, and it cannot take place in the physical body. One should understand that the Great Lords take on or maintain this or that Image, according to the needs of the world. Why is it so difficult to imagine that a Great Individuality does not require a physical body to manifest very close to us? (LHR I, 424)

Involution and Evolution – The Cosmos embraces both evolution and involution; and if something that is manifested in the Cosmos can again deteriorate into chaos, even so this can happen within man, the microcosm. This occurs if the best feelings of man are transformed into ruinous energies by being mixed with and overwhelmed by the lowest manifestations of egotism. The greatest and most tragic example is the fall of the Prince of this World. Such falls are possible even on the high degree attained by this Spirit. (LHR I, p 433)

As the words imply, the evolutionary spiral expands and the involutionary spiral contracts. The very same may be observed not only in personal aspects but also in ideas. It is very instructive to discern how ideas are generated and how they complete their circle. Often they seem to disappear completely, but if they are of an evolutionary nature they appear again in an expanded form. For evolutionary thinking, one should study the spiral of the root of an idea. The task of the gradual containment of an idea can afford a progression toward a higher understanding. One may take for instance the idea of religions and examine it spirally; precisely, not comparatively, but evolutionally, spirally. Thus one can see the one root. Likewise one can study how the ideas of religions expanded through evolution. Thus, the prognosis of the future will not be diminished. Positive signs must be gathered. (HIER, 356)

see also Evolution

Invulnerability – When defending the work of our societies and communities, let us not forget our scientific expeditions and the great idea of the Banner of Peace, our international contacts, and, finally, our struggle against the cruel and ignorant attitude toward cultural creativeness! Often, it is difficult for us to comprehend the whole significance of our constructive work, and in urgent moments the most significant data and proofs are not evident to us. It is not always that our memory can muster the necessary thought. That is why it is so important to practice the reviewing of our tasks, together with the inspection of our shields and general accumulations. To begin with, let us firmly realize that we are constructing a great work of world importance and that we are invulnerable beneath our shields. (LHR I, p 45)

Irritation – You already know how I have warned of the fatal danger of irritation. These embittered outcries speed across oceans. He who is more magnanimous must realize his responsibility. Above all, magnanimity will protect from irritation. (FW I, 518)

It is necessary to distinguish between indignation of spirit and irritation. The fire of irritation must be divided into two kinds. When irritation has an impersonal cosmic character, its poison may be removed by a current of prana. But if conceit or self-pity intensify the irritation, then the sediment of poison will be precipitated upon the centers. Then there is no means to eject it; one may only wear it away by cosmic perception. (AY, 31)

Why can Our Community easily avoid irritation? We shall not overestimate the quality of consciousness; but still the fullness of labor remains as the foundation. In labor and in the utilization of prana lies the mystery of the possibility of unity of a group. Such cooperation is possible, and Our followers must not be confused by the varied characters of the co-workers. A sufficiency of labor and the use of nature will give the correct aspect to the nest of labor.
(AY, 134)

Is it not true that unity is difficult, despite the fact that it is prescribed as the extraordinary means needed for everyone? It is difficult to contain unity even temporarily. Is it not true that it is easy to tear oneself away through irritation? It is not difficult to forget about the epoch of Armageddon and about all that exists, just to please the bile. Thus, irritation is not close to astrochemistry.
(H, 373)

A disciple importuned his Teacher with irritation, saying, "I read the Teaching at length, but for all that, I do not know how to begin." The Teacher replied, "It is evident that you must first of all free yourself from irritation. This most prevents you from seeing the path." (AUM, 583)

Janus – In Roman cult the god of doorways, thresholds, and of beginnings, and represented as two-faced.

Jehangir – The son of Akbar the Great, called "Light of the eyes" (which means the 'first born'). (HIER, 232)

Jehovah – According to the Kabbalists, this word, derived from 'Jah-Eve' (meaning Male-Female), symbolizes the primary meaning of existence. Moses, being a disciple of the Egyptian priests, was initiated into their secret knowledge: Unity of Cosmos, unity in all its multiformity. And this idea of unity he affirmed as monotheism— 'precisely to the masses', giving them Jehovah as one aspect of the Divinity. There were also other reasons why the image of Jehovah was chosen as the Ruling Element or God for the Jewish people. Let us remember how highly advanced was the science of astrology in ancient Egypt. 'Jehovah was connected with Saturn', and Israel, as an individual nation, was born under this planet. (LHR I, p 210)

Jhani Yoga – (Sk.). Or Gnani or Jhana—The Yoga of Intellect and Wisdom.

John, Prester – The name assumed by the Great Spirit Who headed "a mysterious Spiritual Abode" in Asia during the 12th and 13th centuries. Several times advice and admonishments were received from this Great Personage by the courts of the West. Once an envoy was sent to seek Him out but the embassy returned unable to find the Great Abode. (LHR I, p 423)

Joy – "Joy is a special wisdom," as Christ said. (LMG II, p 81)

It is useful to impregnate space with joy, and dangerous to stratify the heavens with sorrow. But where may one find the store of joy? Certainly not in the bazaar. But near the ray of Light in the joy of Hierarchy. (FW I, 298)

Pleasure is neighbor to contentment, whereas joy is wings to Infinity.
(FW I, 385)

How can one attain success? Remember, through joy—not through despair, but joy. Do not for an instant believe that We ponder the probability or improbability of success. The thought is, Does your joy suffice to quicken the ascent? We always counsel joy. It is necessary to realize and remember that you have succeeded when you rejoiced. Certainly this is not the frisking of a calf on the meadow, but the creative joy which transforms all difficulties. The play of the Mother of the World is in joy. She enfolds the enlightened ones in Her veil of joy. Rejoice amidst flowers; and in the midst of snow—equally redolent—also rejoice! (FW I, 663)

The Teacher has more than once exclaimed, "Joy!" But the disciples have looked around in perplexity, asking, "Where is this joy? The sky is beclouded and there is sorrow everywhere." Yet the Teacher has foreseen joy over and above the temporary frame of mind. (BR, 495)

Judge, Judgment – Who can take it upon himself to judge that which he does not know? Who presumes to affirm the presence or absence of something unknown? It is more sensible to admit that much exists which is unknown to people. Let people at times reread this simple truth. (BR, 402)

The heart must be the supreme judge. (BR, 385)

One should know how to conquer the illusion of contradictions. It is needful on the one hand to cultivate kindheartedness and on the other to understand austerity. For many, such a task is completely insoluble; only the heart can prompt when the two qualities will not contradict each other. The heart will prompt when it is necessary to rush to the help of one's neighbor. The heart will indicate when to stop short the madness of a fierce animal. It is impossible to express in a word of law just when the necessity of this or that action becomes evident. Unwritten are the laws of the heart, but only therein does justice dwell, for the heart is the bridge of the worlds.

Where are the scales of self-abnegation? Where is the judge of achievement? Where is the measure of duty? The sword of knowledge flashes at the command of the heart. For the heart there will be no contradiction. (BR, 121)

Jupiter – Strong are the rays of Jupiter; they further the rapid diffusion of the forces of Uranus. (BR, 373)

Where then are the nearest worlds, whither we could direct our consciousness? Jupiter and Venus. (COM, 32)

Justice – Harmony in the physical and mathematical world of Sense, is 'justice' in the spiritual one. Justice produces harmony, and injustice, discord, and discord, on a cosmic scale, means chaos—annihilation. (IU I, pp 329-331)

Kabalah – (Heb.). see Cabbala

Kalachakra – (The wheel of Time, or the wheel of the Law) is the Teaching ascribed to the various Lords of Shambala. Traces of this Teaching can be found in almost all the philosophical systems and teachings of India. At the present time, it is perhaps more known in Tibet. But in reality, this Teaching is the Great Revelation brought to humanity at the dawn of its conscious evolution in the third race of the fourth cycle of Earth by the Lords of Fire, Sons of Reason, who were and are the Lords of Shambhala. (LHR I, p 401)

I approve of the Kalachakra, now being compiled. This fiery Teaching is covered with dust, but it should be proclaimed. Not reason but wisdom gave this Teaching. It should not be left in the hands of ignorant exponents. Many domains of knowledge are united in the Kalachakra; only the unprejudiced mind can find its way among these stratifications of all worlds. (FW I, 212)

Ah, now we once again approach our great Kalachakra: Who can exist without food? Who can exist without sleep? Who is immune against heat and cold? Who can heal wounds? Verily, only he who studies the Kalachakra.

The great Azaras who know the Teachings of India, know the origin of Kalachakra. They know vast things which, when they will be revealed to help humanity, will completely regenerate life! Many of the Teachings of Kalachakra are unknowingly used both in East and West, and even in such unconscious utilization, much that is wonderful results. It is therefore comprehensible how incomparably great would be the possibilities made manifest by a conscious achievement, and how wisely could be used the great eternal energy, this fine imponderable matter which is scattered everywhere and which is within our use at any moment. This Teaching of Kalachakra, this utilization of the primary energy, has been called the Teaching of Fire. The Hindu people know the great Agni—ancient teaching though it be, it shall be the new teaching for the New Era. We must think of the future; and in the Teaching of Kalachakra we know there lies all the material which may be applied for the greatest use. Now there are so many teachers—so different and so hostile to each other. And yet so many of them speak of the one thing and this very thing is expressed in the Kalachakra. ...

What is revealed in the Kalachakra? Are there any forbiddances? No, the lofty teaching sets forth only the constructive. So it is. The same high forces are proposed for humanity. And it is revealed most scientifically how the natural forces of the elements can be used by humanity. When you are told that the shortest way is through Shambhala, through Kalachakra, it means that achievement is not an unattainable ideal, but that it is something which may be attained through sincere and industrious aspiration here, upon this very earth and in this very incarnation. This is the Teaching of Shambhala. Verily, each one may attain it. Verily, each one may hear the pronounciation of the word, Kalagiya! ...

The harmony of exterior and interior can be attained only through the study of Kalachakra. Probably you have seen the signs of Kalachakra on the rocks, in quite deserted places.

Some unknown hand has set a design upon the stones or has chiseled the letters of the Kalachakra upon the rocks. Verily, verily, only through Shambhala, only through the Teaching of the Kalachakra can you attain the perfection of the shortest path. (S, pp 28-31)

Kalagiya – The sacred call to Shambhala.

You mentioned to me the sacred call—Kalagiya! When someone hears this imperative call, he must know that the way to Shambhala is open to him. He must remember the year when he was called, because from that time evermore, he is closely assisted by the Blessed Rigden-jyepo. Only you must know and realize the manner in which people are helped, because often people repel the help which is sent. (S, 7)

Do not outrage the laws! Await in ardent labor until the messenger of Shambhala shall come to you, amid constant achievement. Await until the Mighty-voiced shall utter, ‘Kalagiya’. Then you may safely proceed to expound this superb matter. Vain curiosity must be transformed into sincere learning, into application to the high principles of everyday life. (S, 17)

I know that as a high spirit, already prepared, hears a voice proclaiming Kalagiya it is the call to Shambhala. (HIM, 30)

Kalagya – The disciple’s response to the call: "I come, Lord! Kalagya." (AY, 338)

Kali – (Sk.). The ‘black’, now the name of Parvati, the consort of Siva, but originally that of one of the seven tongues of Agni, the god of fire— ‘the black, fiery tongue’. (TG)

From times immemorial the Mother of the World has sent forth to achievement. In the history of humanity, Her Hand traces an unbreakable thread. On Sinai Her Voice rang out. She assumed the image of Kali. (LMG II, pp 131-32)

Kali Yuga – (Sk.). The Fourth, the black or iron age, our present period, the duration of which is 432,000 years. (TG) Kalidasa – (5th century A.D.) Greatest Hindu dramatist and lyric poet, often referred to as the "Shakespeare of India". Author of Sakuntala.

Kalki Avatar – Maitreya corresponds to the Kalki Avatar in Hinduism (the "White Horse Avatar" — see the Revelation of St. John), and to the Messiahs of all nations. All the Messiahs are inevitably Avatars of Vishnu; therefore, they belong to One Ego. In the exoteric legends the difference between Maitreya and the Kalki Avatar is that while the Kalki Avatar will appear at the end of the present Kali Yuga for the final destruction of the wicked, the renovation of humanity and "the restoration of purity." Maitreya is expected earlier. (LHR II, p 153)

There are 10 mythical avatars of Vishnu. In these avatars is traced the gradual evolution and transformation of all species. The 10th avatar will occur when Vishnu appears himself under the form of the horse Kalki. (IU II, p 274)

Kama – (Sk.). Means ‘desire’. The fourth principle of man through which desire is expressed in two aspects: Kama-Manas, or the lower intellect (literally, the intellect of desires), and Kama-Rupa, or subjective form (the form of mental and physical desires and thoughts). This is the ‘thinker in action’. Kama, in connection with Manas (the higher) and Buddhi, forms the higher Subtle Body (the astral body, in order that it be not confused with its etheric double, is often called ‘the lower astral’), or the spiritual soul of the spiritually developed man. Kama-Manas is a sort of bridge which connects the higher Manas with Kamarupa, thus connecting Manas and Form to make the Kama-Manas body, or ‘human soul’. (LHR I, p 473)

Kamaduro – (Sk.). Corresponds to the subterranean fire. (LHR I, p 496)

The unbridled energy brought into action through the gases emitted by poison of decomposition. (AY, 307)

Kama-Loka – (Sk.). The Semi-material place, to us subjective and invisible, where the disembodied "personalities", the astral forms, called Kamarupa remain, until they fade out from it by the complete exhaustion of the effects of the mental impulses that created these eidolons of human and animal passions and desires. It is the Hades of the ancient Greeks and the Amenti of the Egyptians, the land of Silent Shadows; a division of the first group of the Trailokya. (TG)

Kama-Manas – (Sk.). The lower intellect; literally, the intellect of desires. (LHR I, p 473)

Kama, in connection with Manas (the astral body, in order that it be not confused with its etheric double, is often called 'the lower astral'), or the spiritual soul of the spiritually developed man. Kama-Manas is a sort of bridge which connects the higher Manas with Kama-Rupa, thus connecting Manas and Form to make the Kana-Manas body, or human soul. (LHR I, pp 472-473)

Always bear in mind the difference between the highest Manas, or the spiritual mind, and the Kama-Manas, or the intellect. Thus, the development of the intellect (Kama-Manas) was achieved in the fourth root-race of our cycle.

Karma – (Sk.). The law of cause and effect as it works as one of the great principles of Cosmic Action.

Karma is action—it cannot be defined otherwise. (FW II, 395)

It is customary to consider Karma as retribution. But in its true significance Karma means labor. (INF I, 20)

Karma gathers the currents which are adapted to the affirmed improvement. When the spirit strains all efforts, the manifestation of the transmutation can develop the best possibilities. Only the adaptability to the karmic current provides the affirmed cosmic foundation. Thus, karma and striving give to humanity the essential impulses. Only the guidance of karma carries one to the step of Be-ness. Therefore, when man realized the power of karma and strives to express the best aspirations, his path is parallel with the universal energy. The universal energy attracts the creative strivings. The future and the Infinite are thus being built. (INF II, 159)

Great has been the discussion among scholars as to whether in Cosmos a return to the lowest state follows the attainment of the highest grade of development. It is wise to apply the understanding of karma to everything that evolves in Cosmos; not in the conception of karma customarily applied by humanity, that of a reward or settling of accounts, but of karma as the highest action which furthers evolution. All creative inceptions are predetermined by the law of this karma. Many inceptions do not apply to these laws, but the inception which takes place in realization of the karma of evolution lives in space and is carried forward by the currents of the Cosmic Magnet. (INF I, 310)

The action of consequences of that which is committed by man in deed, word and thought. (FB, p 109)

Karma acts as a life-generative force wherever the course of the luminaries is affirmed. The current of karma which is in line with evolution is revealed as a manifestation of the Cosmic Magnet. (INF I, 312)

Karma and Transmutation constitute factors which are directed toward progress, they create the effect by the propulsion of karma and they set the direction through transmutation of spirit. (INF I, 63)

Sometimes one can demonstrate the most complex laws by means of the simplest apparatus. The law of Karma is complex, but take the Ruhmkorff coil or any other electric coil and you will get an evident image of karma. The current runs along the spiral uninterruptedly but the protective winding is subject to all outside reactions. In addition, each thread contacts the thread of the preceding round, carrying upon itself the consequences of the past. Thus, each hour changes one's karma, for each hour evokes the corresponding past. Thus, one may contact the entire line of past manifestations.

But the same obvious example shows how the seed of the spirit is unharmed; and striving into the heights it sustains its shell without fearing the past. Verily, karma is threatening only to those who are plunged into inaction. But a striving thought is liberated from the burden of the past and, like a heavenly body, strives forward without retreading its path. Thus, even with a difficult karma, one may evince a useful liberation. (Quoted from Hierarchy in LHR I, pp 74-75)

Individual karma is always the basic one. And firstly, it is formed by the inclinations, thoughts and motives of man—actions are secondary factors. The Buddhists say, "karma is thought". If it were otherwise, man could not rid himself of his karma. Verily, the individual karma, being fundamental and determinative, can influence the creation as well as the liquidation of all other types of karma. By injuring himself a person injures others. Everything is linked in the Cosmos; everything is intertwined, and nothing can be dismembered from all the rest of karma. Therefore, individual karma also cannot be dismembered from other types of karma, such as group karma, race karma, etc. It is said in the Teaching, "With difficulty do the sparks of creativeness seep through on the path of karma; and even less understood is the truth of karmic action. Not from without comes the proper estimation of karma. Every cell contains within itself its karma. The spirit carries its achievement and weapon within." (LHR I, p 197)

Ketub – The Heart.

Precisely, Ketub is the unifier of energies. (H, 39)

The unifier of energies, the unifier of knowledge, the fiery Ketub, is understood by an Agni Yogi. (H, 40)

Ketub is one of the names for psychic energy. (LHR II, p 383)

Khatak of the Mother of the World – 'Khatak' is the sacred silk scarf which Mongolians and Tibetans present to all spiritual representatives and all especially revered persons, as a sign of respect. In Buddhist shrines all sacred Images are covered by, or wrapped in, these silk scarves, the length of which varies from one to five yards, and the width from a quarter of a yard to one yard. Their colors are white and yellow in Tibet, and blue and yellow in Mongolia. Sometimes holy Images and happy signs are woven into them. The khatak is a symbol of protection and help. On the sacred paintings of Tibet and Mongolia, the so-called tankas, or banners, one can often see depicted a saint from the Subtle World lowering a khatak to a sinner in the lower spheres, and the latter climbing up the khatak. Know – When We say, "Know," We are insisting upon a many-sided survey and mastery of possibilities. (COM, 243)

Knowledge – There are two kinds of knowledge—one expressed in words, the other an exact one realized by spirit but not to be put into words. One cannot even explain in words how this understanding arises, but it is truly wondrous. (LMG II, p 136)

Not only is knowledge precious, but equally valuable is the process of acquiring knowledge. (BR, 301)

Kriyasakti – Kriyasakti in all its inexhaustibleness has been known to people from time immemorial. ... Right now thought-creativeness is found to be under such doubt that it is included in the humanities, whereas according to contemporary terminology, mental energy ought rather to be a part of the physical sciences. (BR, 323)

Kshatriyas – (Sk.). The second of four castes into which the Hindus were originally divided. (TG)

Kumaras – I must also remind you that all the Archangels and Angels had to go through human evolution. And the Archangel Varahael, or Uriel, was and is a MAN. Likewise the Archangel Michael, though ranking amongst the Highest Archangels, never-the-less walked on our sinful Earth, bringing salvation. If these greatest Spirits who gave the impetus to the creation and development of thought at the dawn of our earthly physical humanity and who continued to impel the evolution of the human consciousness throughout the entire span of this most difficult and lengthy process had not done so, our earthly humanity, even up to this day, would have remained at the caveman stage. Precisely, the great Archangels are those Seven Kumaras who, including the Highest One among Them, are spoken of in the Eastern Scriptures and in The Secret Doctrine. They came from the higher worlds, and They made the greatest sacrifice by incarnating as the great Founders of religions, kingdoms and philosophies, during all the turning points in the history of the planet, in order to quicken the evolution of humanity. (LHR I, pp 350-351) Kundalini or Kundalini-Sakti – (Sk.). A Universal Energy; The power of Life.

Whence comes the application and the action of the fire of Kundalini? From the same source—the fire of love. (AY, 425)

Spirit-knowledge is revealed in the consciousness of a true Agni Yogi. The consciousness that embraces the currents of Space and grasps the formula of psychic energy may enter the vortex of Kundalini. (INF I, 22)

Agni Yoga is not only a progressive development of human possibilities; it should effect the combination with the cosmic energies which reach our planet at a prescribed period. This fact must be understood with surety. Otherwise a seeming succession of sickness will spread, and their treatment by external measures will bring on the most disastrous results.

How can one be cured of this manifestation of fires? They can only be utilized as a useful psychically active force. How can one cure pains in the spine if they are correlated with the awakening of the Kundalini? He who knows will welcome and aid it by rubbing in mint. How can we stop the burning of the third eye if it begins to function? Is it not more rational to help its development, shielding it from the sun? Long ago people knotted their hair on the crowns of their heads, in order to protect this channel. Can one stop the functioning of the solar plexus if it begins to rotate? Each outrage of the solar serpent may culminate in injury to the brain. Equally dangerous is an interruption of the functioning of the center of the Chalice. Of course, poisoning by opium intercepts the movement of the centers; but, then, decapitation would be simpler! (AY, 220)

It is correct to define the Kundalini as an abstract principle. When the conditions of earthly life were crude, need arose to attract the spirit into the higher spheres. Previously, the Eye of Brahma held priority; then it was replaced by the triumph of the Kundalini. But the attainment of Samadhi did not protect humanity from the horror of slavery and treason.

Now is the time to insist upon the synthesis of action. Straight-knowledge will provide this synthesis of earthly existence. The treasure of straight-knowledge is contained in the Chalice, therefore one should add to the two primary sources the blossoming of the third center. Let the rainbow of the Kundalini attract one upward, but on Earth earthly construction is needed. One has to supply a foundation for the pillar, as does handwriting for thought. The long-silenced Chalice will again come to life, and humanity will tread a new path. Three Lords, three centers, will comprise the cooperation here.

Whoever understands the addition of the Chalice to the Kundalini will understand how the father transmits the earthly kingdom to the son. The Kundalini is the father, the generator of the ascent. The Chalice is the son, awakened by the father. Whoever realizes the essence of the father will, at the change of races, understand the son. The Chalice of attainment initiates action. Thus nothing is rejected, but only strengthened. Let the Eye of Brahma be the natural supplement to this condition. (AY, 549)

First of all, one should recognize the centrifugal aspect of the heart and study outward from it, not inward toward it. The solar plexus is the antechamber of the temple of the heart. The Kundalini is the laboratory of the heart. The brain and all the centers are the estates of the heart, because nothing can exist without the heart. Even the brain can be supplemented to a certain degree. Even the Kundalini can be somewhat nourished by a manifestation of electricity, and the solar plexus can be strengthened by blue light. But the heart stands as the temple of humanity. One cannot conceive of the unity of humanity by way of the brain or the Kundalini, but the radiance of the heart can bring together the most seemingly varied organisms, even across remote distances. This experiment, of the unification of hearts across distance, awaits its workers. (H, 339)

Kundalini is the very same force, or psychic force, that acts through the center at the base of the spine. But it manifests through the heart in highly evolved spirits. In the past centuries attention was directed mainly to the center of Kundalini for attainment of the visible result of the action of psychic energy. But in the coming epoch, with the worlds coming closer to each other, the center of the heart will be especially intensified. Action through the center of Kundalini is convincing and real chiefly in the earthly condition, whereas for attaining the higher worlds and for the sojourn in them it is essential to refine the energy of the heart. (LHR II, p 332)

Labor – Labor may be of four kinds—toil with repulsion, which leads to decomposition; unconscious toil, which does not strengthen the spirit; toil devoted and loving, which yields a good harvest; and finally, toil which is not only conscious but also consecrated under the Light of Hierarchy. The ignorant may suppose that uninterrupted communion with Hierarchy can distract one from striving for the work itself, but, on the contrary, constant communion with Hierarchy lends a higher quality to one's labor. Only the eternal Source deepens the significance of perfectionment. This flaming measure of labor must be established. The very approach to the Fiery World demands realization of earthly labor as the most proximate step. Few of the workers can discern the quality of their own work, but if the worker were to strive to Hierarchy, he would immediately advance to a higher step. The ability to establish the sacred Hierarchy in one's heart is also an inner concentration, but such action comes through toil. By not wasting time upon oneself, it is possible in the midst of labor to become linked to Hierarchy. Let the Lord live in the heart. Let Him become as inalienable as the heart itself. Let the Name of the Lord be inhaled and exhaled with each breath. Let each rhythm of labor resound with the Name of the Lord. (FW II, 118)

Labor is the crown of Light. It is necessary that school pupils remember the significance of labor as a factor of world-creation. As a result of labor there will be steadfastness of consciousness ... (COM, 117)

The significance of labor would be emphasized even more, as it is the most important factor—the cornerstone—of our existence. (LHR I, p 417)

Of little use are those who work in halfwayness. They are easily disappointed and obtain no results. Labor must be built upon compete devotion. Often it is not given to one to see the fruits of his work, but one must know that each drop of labor is already an indisputable acquisition. Such knowledge will permit prolongation of the work in the Subtle World also. It is not all the same, if the task is fulfilled mentally and is impressed in thoughtforms? The only condition is that the work be useful. It is not up to us to judge where labor is of the greatest usefulness; it has its own spiral. (BR, 125)

Fire must be alive. Inactivity is unnatural for Fire. Energy generates energies. It is especially harmful to tear man away from his customary labor. Even through the lowest forms of labor man creates a manifestation of fiery energy. Deprive him of labor and he will inevitably fall prey to marasmus; in other words, he will lose the Fire of Life. (FW I, 62)

Lamp of the Desert – A degree of spiritual attainment.

One should know that the condition of the open centers brings the ability to eradicate surrounding imperfection. It brings the development not only of sensitivity but also of the giving of one's own forces for the enhancement of one's surroundings. Thus, one can observe that the forces emitted are in a way absorbed by space, and this degree in the opening of the centers is called "Lamp of the Desert." (AY, 86)

Language – It is very useful to study ancient languages; in them has been recorded the history of man's thoughts, and it is possible to follow the development and elimination of concepts. Let us take the Sanskrit and Latin languages. We can see to what extent the latter had already dispensed with profound concepts; but ancient Rome, aiming toward materialism, cannot be compared with the records of India's thought.

Language is the chronicle of a people; the dictionary is the history of culture. (AUM, 231)

We approve an abridgment of language. Combinations of new definitives are desirable. Such a new language releases from immobility of speech. It is of no purpose to worship dead words. It is far more joyful to see how the meaning of a sound effect penetrates and convinces. Everyone understands that not words convince but the sendings of the brain center.… When people say, "This is the language of my father," ask them: "Are the worn-out shoes of your father still usable?"

Every science is in need of new formulas. Likewise, the certain periods of life bring new expressions. One must rejoice at each new expression. Nothing is worse than the embrace of a corpse! … Seek renovation in all of life. (COM, 141)

The ability to understand even one's own native tongue depends not upon the ear but on the contact with other centers through the aura. Therefore, it is better to say, "I have understood," than to say, "I have heard." (LMG II, p 184)

Lao-Tze – (Chin.). (c. 604-c. 531 B.C.) He is the traditional founder of Taoism, whose precepts are contained in his Tao Te Ching. (WD)

Leader – Some may ask why I speak of a Leader and not of a Ruler. The difference between them is enormous. The conception of Ruler presupposes the present and the ruling over something already existing, but the Leader manifests the future in the very significance of the word. He has not received anything already built; he leads, and each of his actions impels forward. The Ruler knows that which is already built and accomplished, but the Leader confronts nothing which is already affirmed and must bring the people to the Mount of Perfection. If the burden of the Ruler is great, then the responsibility of the Leader is still greater, and therefore the Highest Powers affirm their Altar there, where there are signs of such Leadership. Precisely the Leader must discriminate between hypocrisy and sincerity. The manifestation of the virtue of the heart differs greatly from a forced servility. The Leader has the power to discern this quality.

Many have read how David interrogated the Highest Powers. He took recourse in this Source in order to avoid necessary errors. ... We also know that for the High Communion a pure heart is needed. Nothing impure can partake of this Communion, therefore the symbol of the Leader must be the sign of purity of the heart. Not only in actions but in thoughts the Leader carries the welfare of the people. He knows that he is entrusted to bring a full chalice. He does not lose his path in useless wanderings. He will not spill the entrusted chalice. Thus the concept of the Leader is a sign of the future. (FW II, 48)

Leadership – In its highest meaning, a synthesis of spirit such as is found in a true Hierarch.

What is so often taken to be leadership is in reality nothing but a crafty caricature of real guidance. The leaders elected by the masses usually lack synthesis, for precisely the masses themselves do not possess it. True leadership has nothing to do with this kind of pseudoleadership, and it certainly does not contradict the Hierarchic principle, being the foundation of it. The Hierarch is, first of all, a leader. What, then, can exist without the leading concept or focus? (LHR I, p 319)

Lepchas – Descendants of the primitive races of Sikkim.

Lethargy – Lethargy is a peculiar, undefined state between sleep and death. The heart almost stops, the body is motionless, and an unearthly expression of the face is maintained. Yet the man is not only alive but returns to wakefulness for a reason of his own, which no one understands. The falling of one into lethargy is unexpected, and the circumstances of such a transitory state can never be known to those around him. In Our language this is a protracted extrusion of the subtle body. Such a state is not a sickness, and should be looked upon as an unnatural tension of the organism in relation to the Subtle World. It may be the result of overfatigue, fright, shock by grief, or unexpected joy. Especially noteworthy is the instant of awakening. Usually those present create great harm by their untimely exclamations and questions. Each question of this kind is already a suggestion. One should take the greatest care not to dissipate the retained impressions. Most often, people emerging from lethargy begin to assure us that they remember nothing. Rather, such remembrances have been stricken from their consciousness by some inopportune questions or noise. In such a manner an opportunity of acquaintanceship with the Subtle World is lost. During the awakening, the aroma of attar of roses is very useful. (AUM, 219)

Life – The next life is built in the heart. (HIER, 428)

see also Incarnation

Light – Light is matter plus motion. (LHR I, p 306)

Now let us turn to the second sign of the Triune name, to the Primary Cause—Light. People have so confused the concept of Light with lighting that they cannot imagine Light as energy. Let us not look into that Infinity where thought and Light and all that exists merge into unity, but according to the earthly understanding let us apprehend Light as a salutary energy, without which life is impossible. Light is the most pervasive messenger of salvation. One can distinctly comprehend a difference between utilitarian fire and cosmic Light. Not fire, but radiance surrounds each living being. The benevolent thinker is surrounded by a rainbow, and through his light brings healing. So many times We have foretold the future of these radiations. We have said that with such a criterion the very structure of life will be transformed. One may rightly call Light the principle which leads to regeneration. Thought and Light are so closely linked that thought may be called luminiferous. (AUM, 143)

Darkness is finite, but Light is manifested Infinitely. Each one who knows this simplest of truths is already invincible. (AUM, 162)

Light reveals the darkness and then disperses it. The bearer of light also sees the dark shadows, which vanish at the approach of light. (BR, 580)

The best connections with the light are obtained in the morning. Therefore, do not shut out the morning light. Work in the light, make decisions in the light, pass judgments in the light, grieve in the light, rejoice in the light. Nothing is to be compared with the light wave. Even the best electricity, even the bluest, yields eight thousand times less light than a ray of the sun. (LMG II, p 241)

Light-mindedness – That state of human consciousness that has no thought or knowledge of the ‘responsibility of action’ (in deed and thought). It is particularly a lack of reverence where reverence and goal-fit behavior are called for.

Most human faults and vices are developed from light-mindedness; therefore, by getting rid of this greatest evil we shall approach perfection with the steps of a giant. (LHR I, p 38)

Light of Truth – The Light of Truth is the light of courage, the light of devotion—with these words begin the Statutes of the Brotherhood. (BR, 580)

Lingam – (Sk.). "The vessel of wisdom", says the Teachings, meaning that its vital substance possesses important properties. Precisely, by sparing this substance vital forces are accumulated and thus we sustain creative power within ourselves. Therefore, complete continence is expected of everyone who studies practical occultism. (LHR I, p

A sign or symbol of abstract creation. Force becomes the organ of procreation only on this earth. In India there are 12 great Lingams of Siva, some of which are on mountains and rocks, and also in temples. ... In its origin the Lingam had never the gross meaning connected with the phallus. ... The symbol in India had the same meaning which it had in Egypt, which is simply that the creative or procreative Force is divine. It also denotes who was the dual Creator—male and female, Siva and Sakti. (TG)

Linga Sharira – (Sk.). It forms the prototype upon which the physical body is built, and thus, is born before it and dies or fades out with the disappearance of the last physical atom. (TG)

Lion – One should not hesitate. Walk like lions! Righteousness adorns your armor. (LMG II, p 24)

Courage must be gathered to pass like lions—thus grows an achievement.
(LMG II, p 28)

Walk like lions, but guard the little ones, because they will help you to open My doors. Have understanding! (LMG II, 64)

Verily, Lord Buddha could manifest Himself. The Lord appeared to many, but He wished to make His Teaching the only source, and therefore He ceased personal manifestations.

Worship had no place in the Teaching of the Lord; its essence was knowledge and personal achievement. Just this was the characteristic trait of the Teaching of the Lord. Precisely because of this, His symbol was the lion. We often call the Lord, "King of Thought". (LMG II, p 158)

The Blessed "Lion", garbed in fearlessness, ordained to teach the manifestation of courage. (COM, 41)

Say to the hypocritical contemplators that if contemplation is a tension of energy and accumulation for a leap, then from the "Lion" comes ordainment of such action. But if contemplation is an indolence and indifference, then it is impossible to represent this shameful pastime as a great Covenant. (COM, 213)

Lion of the Desert – A degree of spiritual attainment denoting, above all, absolute fearlessness.

When humanity will realize the great unity between Infinity and the particles, and know the mutual relationship between light and darkness, then may it be told of the path of the ‘Lion of the Desert.’ (INF I, 17)

Certainly one may imagine how greatly interested We are in those organisms which have already stepped beyond the degree of the ‘Lion of the Desert’.
(HIER, 257)

The realization of the finiteness of the Universe, combined with the realization of the limitless principle of space, belongs to those questions which the pupil must resolve himself. This is called Summa Summarum. To aid the realization of these conceptions of space, milestones are set. But the formula must be pronounced independently. The formula corresponds to the degree of "Lion of the Desert." It demonstrates the rending of oneself from Earth and earthly possessions. In order to comprehend the separate spheres there is needed the realization of this formula. (AY, 91)

The degree of the "Lion of the Desert" especially permits fulfillment of thought. Therefore one must be particularly cautious. The degree of the "Lion of the Desert" knows no offense. Who could offend? The great heart can contain all. (AY, 110)

Living Ethics – The Living Ethics discerns all the concepts which are the Fundamentals of Life. In order to apply the Living Ethics to life it is first of all needful to find in oneself the quality of true Service to Hierarchy. Precisely all bigots are the first to depart from the Living Ethics. No standing before an Object, symbolizing the Loftiest of Images, can help, if there is no true reverence. … The Living Ethics must first of all be expressed in ethics of daily actions. The Living Ethics helps to preserve the image of man. These fiery laws will give the spirit understanding of Hierarchy. Service can be a miraculous bridge between Worlds, for the Subtle World cannot help a spirit to become surrounded with subtle energies if infections of the spirit are not outlived on the Earth. (FW III, 135)

The Living Ethics contains laws for the manifestation of Truth. Life is affirmed in all the higher concepts; thus, the creativeness of the Living Ethics directs thought to the construction of the essential. All strivings in the name of the Living Ethics will direct thought to future constructiveness. Indeed, not by words but by actions will be molded the steps of the future. (FW III, 137)

Cosmic construction is saturated with all powerful energies. Likewise, constructiveness of the spirit manifests its power by the synthesis of all fires. It is possible to create, saturating the surroundings, only when the heart energies have been kindled. Without these sacred fires it is impossible to affirm the Higher Ethics. The Living Ethics can be instituted as the goal of striving in life, but for this it is necessary to know and to aspire to the higher and subtler understanding. Only subtle spirits can manifest the Living Ethics. The application of principles in life is accomplished by directed action. The empty word leaves a corresponding stratum, but action of the fiery heart evokes and sets alight fires in surrounding hearts. Thus creates the true Agni Yogi.
(FW III, 164)

In the books of Living Ethics the opening, purifying and broadening of the consciousness is so much insisted upon. (LHR I, p 323)

Logos – Logoi – (Gr.). The manifested deity with every nation and people; the outward expression, or the effect of the cause which is ever concealed. Thus, speech is the Logos of thought, hence it is aptly translated by the "Verbum" and "Word" in its metaphysical sense. (TG)

Loka – (Sk.). A region or circumscribed place. In metaphysics, a world or sphere or plane. (TG)

Preta-Loka corresponds to the purgatory of the Catholic Religion. (LHR I, p 401)

Lords of Fire – The Sons of Reason who were and are the Lords of Shambhala. (LHR I, p 401)

Lords of Light – The Masters of Hierarchy. The highest gods, analogous to the Roman Catholic Archangels. The divine Intelligences charged with the supervision of Cosmos.
see also Dhyan Chohans, Kumaras

Loss – It is erroneous to believe that it is easy to lose something on Earth. It is even more difficult to find. The definition of a loss presumes something acquired. All that is acquired will drag behind him who acquired. At times it is impossible to be rid of material and abstract possessions. Therefore We advise acceptance of possessions with full responsibility for them. (AY, 39)

Lotus – (Gr.). A most occult plant, sacred in Egypt, India and elsewhere; called "the child of the Universe bearing the likeness of its mother in its bosom". (TG)

The inner Lotus can be observed open as well as closed. When the protective purple aura is needed, it can be seen how the petals of the Lotus contract and become covered by the precipitations of the blood vessels. During such a manifestation an experienced Yogi realizes that great danger is near. As in nature, long before the clouds appear the petals of flowers turn increasingly toward the sun or at twilight promptly fold up, so also the Fiery Lotus senses the approach of cosmic storms. And through the development of Yoga one can observe a similar tension also in the outer Lotus. Thus is called the circular rotation of the Kundalini, which touches the chief centers, and forms, as it were, the outer Lotus of defense. This particular tension is usually preceded by the manifestation of arrows, which has already been spoken about. The outer Lotus is also called an armor. We consider its formation not only a sign of danger but also of attainment of a degree of Yoga. (FW I, 76)

It is the flower sacred to nature and her Gods, and represents the abstract and the Concrete Universes, standing as the emblem of the productive powers of both spiritual and physical nature. It was held sacred from the remotest antiquity by the Aryan Hindus, the Egyptians, and the Buddhists after them; revered in China and Japan, and adopted as a Christian emblem by the Greek and Latin Churches, who make of it a messenger as the Christians do now, who replace it with the water lily. … With the Hindus, the lotus is the emblem of the productive power of nature, through the agency of fire and water (spirit and matter). … the seeds of the lotus contain, even before they germinate, perfectly-formed leaves, the miniature shapes of what one day, as perfected plants, they will become. The lotus, in India, is the symbol of prolific earth, and which is more, of Mount Meru. … The underlying idea in this symbol … shows its identical parentage in all the religious systems … signifies one and the same philosophical idea—namely, the emanation of the objective from the subjective, divine Ideation passing from the abstract into the concrete or visible form. (SD I, p 379)

Lotus of Benevolence – A significant auric manifestation.

Causality is that factor which moves the Universe. It is incongruous to expect that the Lotus of Benevolence will result from an evil act. One can understand that the result of each action will be a direct reflection of the beginning.
(INF I, 24)

Love – Let us turn back to the concept of love. In each book a considerable place must be allotted particularly to that fundamental concept. For under the concept of love much of the opposite is understood. It is correctly pointed out that love is a leading and creative principle. It means that love must be conscious, striving, self-denying. Creativeness requires these conditions. And if love is marked by self-enfeeblement, disintegration, and service to self, it will not be the highest concept of humanity, which extols the concept of achievement. The heart filled to the brim with love will be active, valiant, and will expand to its capacity. Such a heart may pray without words and may bath in Bliss. How greatly in need is humanity of the realization of the fire of love! To such a fire will correspond a purple star of the highest tension. (HIER, 280)

Speaking of the kinds of love, let us note the love that holds back and the love that inspires. In essence the first love is earthly, and the second heavenly. But what a multitude of constructive efforts were destroyed by the first! And a similar multitude winged by the second! The first is aware of all the limitations of space and consciousness; but the second has no need of earthly measurements. It is without handicaps of space or considerations of death. The first knows the world as a planet; but the second is not impeded even by the destruction of the planet, because before it are all worlds. Verily, the second love embraces the physical world and the Subtle and Fiery Worlds as well. It kindles hearts for the highest joy and is thus indestructible. (H, 242)

Likewise, the attraction and love between the opposite Elements should be regarded as a manifestation of Cosmic Law. Verily, spiritually dead is the one who lacks this divine fire of inspiration and creativeness, given us by the Cosmic Law of existence. Unfortunately, even up to the present time there is no true understanding of this powerful foundation of cosmic structure. People have forgotten, or rather do not want to admit, the great cosmic signficance of love. The materialism of our age puts love on the level of a purely physiological function. At best, love today is treated as a psychological process. But if the cosmic significance of love could be realized once more, people would see in love its highest function, i.e., the awakening of all the highest emotions and creative abilities. Precisely this awakening is the chief purpose and the true keynote of love. Love is a unifying creative power. On the higher planes of Being everything is created by thought. But for the fulfillment of these thoughtforms, there must be the two Elements united by Cosmic Love. (LHR I, p 371)

"Love one another"—this commandment was wisely given. Nothing can harmonize psychic energy better than love. (AUM, 515)

It was said long ago, "He who knows how to love has a fiery heart." For strengthening the energy, fiery transport is needed. No form of reasoning produces that fire which is kindled by a spark of the feeling of love. (AUM, 516)

Without love there is no creation. (AUM, 158)

Lucifer – Lucifer is now at the head of the Black Brotherhood, which is very powerful, for it has co-workers among the masses over the entire span of the planet. (LHR II, p 419)

Wherein lay the revolt of Lucifer?
He wishes to remain within the boundaries of the planet. And the legend of the Prince of the World is fairly true. He began to surround himself with spirits content with the earthly aura. In order to hold his followers he began to unfold before them the possibilities of earth, imitating—at times with skill—the counterposition of the opposing side. ...

Without him there would not be a definite boundary between the earth and the nearest spheres. Without him the difference between life on earth and on other spheres would be gradually effaced, permitting to incarnate spirits the movability of matter. But the Prince of the World, in opposition chains matter to the crust occupied by him. ...

Hence you shall have to depart to Saturn; for this, have you long been called Satan. (EC, pp 119-122)

Luck – It has been noted as an astonishing fact that luck comes through force. This was said in antiquity, and the same expression is heard unaltered today. Only by constant reiteration is it possible to affirm the measures of the three worlds. (FW II, 349)

How many secrets of bad luck can be explained by distorted thinking! (H, 293)

Luminary, Our – The energies which collect around the seed are impelled along the attraction of the Magnet to the manifested ray of the luminary, and the property of the ray transmits its potency to the seed; hence the affinity between the seed and the luminary. The spatial Fire varies in intensity and in the quality of color of the ray. These basic qualities express the manifested energies which link the various currents correlating with the Cosmic Magnet. Thus, Our Luminary intensifies these currents which flow in harmony with evolution. Indeed, the rays which are collecting a new race are directing to a new world and, naturally, they annihilate everything which does not conform with evolution. And Our Luminary certainly develops the principles of the nascent new race. Hence, the spatial fires are so intensively absorbed by the Agni Yogi. When Uranus strains the rays, a new step is affirmed. Through many discoveries, many shiftings, many perturbations, many researches aiming toward investigation of the highest energies, many astounding attempts of research into psychic energy, investigations of the properties of a ray and of spatial irradiations, humanity will be affirmed in its new researches. The rays of Our Luminary prepare a better step for humanity. Yes, yes, yes! Thus does the ascendance of the ray bring an unavoidable shifting. Thus do the rays create! (INF I, 332)

The energies are distinguished according to their potential; the more powerful the potential, the more powerful the striving of energy. The more powerful the potential, the more powerful the attraction. The energy is intensified in proportion to the rising of the Spatial Fire. A like correspondence exists between the seed of the spirit and its saturation by the luminary. Thus, the potentiality of the spirit depends on its saturation by the luminary. The generation of energies in this manner results from the saturation by the luminary. The vortices which draw the seed into a spiral transmit to it their energies, and the life impulse carries it along further into the sphere where the attraction sets its direction. Thus does the impelled seed acquire its life path, and the manifestation of an everlasting life impulse confirms existence.

Luminous Citadel – Shambhala, the sacred Abode of the Guardians of our planet.

Let the traveler not forget that he cannot return to the home he abandoned, that only by himself can he reach the Luminous Citadel to which he is summoned. (H, 188)

Luminous Images – The Masters of Hierarchy. The spiritual forms of the Great Lords in the Hierarchical chain.

Lungs – We pay attention to the transmuter of prana, to the lungs, which transmit the essence to the heart as the affirmation of world balance. (H, 10)

Lungs, the Center of – This center, working with the center of the shoulder blades controls the prana as it enters and suffuses and nourishes the Subtle Body. Thus it has been called the Fire-transmuter.

The Center of the lungs is at the foundation of all these so-called miracles (i.e., mastery over water and air). (INF I, 103)

Thus, the centers of the lungs are designated as reverberating strings which carry the fiery sparks into all the centers. The lungs, of course, do their work in inhaling, transmuting, and exhaling. These functions indeed suffuse the centers of the lungs with Prana. The triple creativeness is so powerful that it relates to all functions. (INF I, 394)

Luxury – It has been said that humanity must abandon luxury. … Luxury is not beauty, not spirituality, not perfectionment, not construction, not benevolence, not compassion; no good concept can replace it. Luxury is destruction of resources and possibilities. Luxury is dissolution, for all structures without rhythm mean only disintegration. One can see clearly enough that worldly luxury has already been shaken, but, as a cure, harmonious cooperation must be found in order to rid the world of the plague of luxury. Egoism will raise the objection that luxury is an earned abundance. It will also be said that luxury is regal. This will be slander. Luxury has been always a sign of decay and eclipse of the spirit. The chains of luxury are most terrible too for the Subtle World. Needed there are advancement and continuous perfectionment of thought. The encumbrance of luxury will not help one to the next Gates. (FW II, 335)

Lymphatic – One having a temperament lacking energy or indisposed to exertion or excitement. It is interesting to note that mediums are frequently lymphatic. (FW III, 162)

Magic – You will ask why I speak against magic when I Myself am pointing out the cementing of the space, the significance of a circle, and other conditions which remind one of magic. But the difference is that magic seeks a substitute for life while We teach to ameliorate the existence by taking advantage of the possibilities of life itself. (LMG II, p 113)

Magnanimity – It is asked—what most of all hinders every good beginning? Reply—precisely absence of magnanimity. No creative attainment, no cooperation, in fact no community is possible without magnanimity. One can observe how through magnanimity labor is made tenfold easier and, it would seem, nothing could be simpler during an inspired work than to wish only for the good and for success of one's neighbor! (FW III, 424)

Magnets – About the laying of magnets.

The magnet forges the projection of the evolution of the planet. The magnet manifests immutability. The magnet affirms the path of humanity. There are several aspects to the magnet: either the unsplit body of the leading planet; or a part of that body, connected with other parts; or an extraneous object which has acquired a link with the magnet through contact. The magnet either remains invisible, attracting the flow of events; or it serves a center of conscious activity; or it enlightens the man who found it.

One can trace in the history of humanity a network of magnets, which have flashed forth like guiding fires.

How then does a magnet work? It transmutes into action the ideas of space. Many magnets are lying under the foundation of cities. Many have been discovered. (LMG II, pp 166-167)

see also Cosmic Magnet, Magnet of the Heart, Magnet of the Spirit, Dark Magnet

Magnet, Cosmic – see Cosmic Magnet

Magnet, Dark – Fear and terror form a peculiar magnet. One may surmise what is attracted by such a dark magnet! People observe that fear darkens the sight. Indeed, darkness advances upon one possessed by terror.

Each instant man is evoking Light or darkness. (AUM, 145)

Magnet of the Heart – The life-creating force of the heart is most powerful, and it may be said that it is a magnet. (INF I, 69)

A most powerful force, which transmutes various energies, is the Magnet of the Heart. All currents are transmuted by this magnet. Man is attracted to this magnet; therefore, the power of his transmutation lies in the heart. The sun seen in the region of the solar plexus is that powerful magnet. Its location is certainly in the heart, and its reflection is great. It is a most powerful force. Hence, the sun of the heart is the force which determines the balance. (INF I, 349)

Magnet of the Spirit – The magnet of the spirit, this propellent aggregator of the life energies, is nurtured by the manifestation of the cosmic energy. The accumulations in the Chalice gather around the seed of the spirit, enveloping it in their colors. The very striving seed of the spirit resounds to the fiery impulsion. Thus, the magnet of the spirit of an Agni Yogi is the creative sower of the affirmed fires. Verily, the sower of cosmic fires into the consciousness of men is a true co-worker of Cosmos. Humanity will acknowledge the Carriers of Fire! (INF II, 35)

One of the most powerful magnets is the magnet of the spirit. A most powerful force, which transmutes various energies, is the magnet of the heart. All currents are transmuted by this magnet. Man is attracted to this magnet; therefore, the power of his transmutation lies in the heart. The sun seen in the region of the solar plexus is that powerful magnet. Its location is certainly in the heart, and its reflection is great. It is a most powerful force! Its rays penetrate all strongholds and can be manifested as a most radiant magnetic force. Hence, the sun of the heart is the force which determines the balance. In ancient times this truth was as well known as the laws of attraction. Therefore, We value the centers which glow as the sun. (INF I, 349)

Maha Meru – (Sk.). The name of an alleged mountain in the center (or navel) of the earth where Swarga, the Olympus of the Indians, is placed. Geographically accepted, it is an unknown mountain north of the Himalayas. The Occult teachings place it in the very center of the North Pole, pointing it out as the site of the first continent on our earth, after the solidification of the globe. (TG)

Is not Maha Meru the foot of the Summit of Spirit? (FW I, 83)

Mahat – (Sk.). The first principle of Universal Intelligence and Consciousness. Thought power. The producer of MANAS the thinking principle. (TG)

Mahatma – (Sk.). Lit., "Great soul". An adept of the highest order. Exalted beings who, having attained to the mastery over their lower principles are thus living unimpeded by the "man of the flesh", and are in possession of knowledge and power commensurate with the stage they have reached in their spiritual evolution. (TG)

Do not forget that the Mahatmas of the Brotherhood include those Seven Greatest Spirits who, at the end of the third race, came to Earth from the higher planets for the acceleration of our evolution. (LHR I, p 452)

"Mahatma" denotes a great soul which encompasses the manifestations of the New World. (COM, 164)

Each Mahatma began his ascent from the very midst of people, having only dared to choose the difficult path of the Great Soul. And, besides daring, he found in his heart indignation of spirit, for how else can the fires be kindled? Upon these fires the precious substance of the secretions is transmuted into a healing substance. One can see how the saliva of a fiery being can remove an inflammation and restore the vital energy to numb centers. Alongside the sacred property of secretions stands the healing power of the laying on of hands. It is instructive to compare the secretions of men having dormant centers with the ejection of the fiery substance. If I advise medicines made from plants for common organisms, then for the more knowing ones there is a powerful laboratory of sacred fiery secretions. (HIER, 304)

Mahatma Letters – These letters, first published in 1923, were written between the years 1880 and 1884 to A. P. Sinnett, English Civil Servant in Simla, India by two Eastern Mahatmas of Tibet whom H.P. Blavatsky had acknowledged as her

Teachers and the inspirers of her Isis Unveiled and Secret Doctrine. (ML, Fly Leaf)

Mahavan – (Sk.). Literally, Great Rythym. (LHR I, p 250)

Mahavan and Chotavan are the most characteristic rhythms of Fire. Possessing these rhythms one can easily approach the element of fire. This is not a coercive invocation, but only the conscious entrance into the sphere the meaning of which you consider essential. One must understand rhythms, for how else do we bring convincingness to actions? Even the half-dead sand arranges itself into special designs in response to vibration. To how much greater an extent is man influenced by rhythm! Not sorcery but knowledge will give man the way to transfiguration; an undelayable way, because thus was humanity urged during the days of the end of Atlantis. (AY, 357)

Only the heart which embraces the world can beat in the rhythm of Mahavan. (INF I, 364)

If Mahavan corresponds to earthly causes, the vibrations of the Silver Bridge are necessary during disturbances in the Subtle World. (H, 357)

The rhythms of Mahavan and Chotavan are the rhythms of the Cosmic Fire. At a certain degree of achievement of the Fiery Yoga our organism begins to perceive these rhythms (which come from space) and to resound to them.
(LHR I, p 499)

Mahayana – (Pal.). Literally means, "the great vehicle" and refers to the Spiritual Teaching of Tibet as distinct from the Hinayana or "smaller vehicle", the Teaching of the Northern Buddhists. The school was founded by Magarjuna and its books were written in the second century B.C. (TG)

Mahayana is as closely related to Hinayana as Buddhism to Vedanta. Mahayana knows and reveals the nature of the world of the elements. Hinayana emphasizes causes and effects and teaches the avoidance of the recurring issue of the causes. The Teaching strikes sparks from the chaos of the elements. One may study these images, but it is equally correct to concentrate on cause and effect. If we should call Buddha the Cause, then Maitreya is the Effect. (AY, 287)
see also Hinayana, Padma Sambhava

Maitreya Buddha – (Sk.). The same as the Kalki Avatar of Vishnu (the "White Horse" Avatar), and the Sociosh and other Messiahs. The only difference lies in the dates of their appearances. Thus, while Vishnu is expected to appear on his white horse at the end of the present Kali Yuga age "for the final destruction of the wicked, the renovation of creation and the restoration of purity", Maitreya is expected earlier. Exoteric or popular teaching making slight variations on the esoteric doctrine states that Sakyamuni (Gautama Buddha) visited him in Tushita (a celestial abode) and commissioned him to issue then on earth as his successor at the expiration of five thousand years after his (Buddha's) death. This would be in less than 3,000 years hence. Esoteric philosophy teaches that the next Buddha will appear during the seventh (sub) race of this Round. The fact is that Maitreya was a follower of Buddha, a well-known Arhat, though not his direct disciple, and that he was the founder of an esoteric philosophical school. (TG)

Maitreya's is the Age of the Heart! Only with the heart can one evaluate the treasures of Maitreya! Only with the heart can one understand how greatly all acquisitions, all straight-knowledge are needed for the future. (H, 74)

Malice – Malice can be likened to rust. (AUM, 178)

Man – A man is not comparable to Infinity, but one spark of higher energy maintains in itself a significance even beyond conceivable boundaries. A spark of higher energy has been given to each man, and as its bearer he is invested with a lofty duty. He is a bridge to the Higher Worlds. Thus in denying the Higher World, the ignoramus repudiates his own humanity. (AUM, 67)

To know one's destination means to know that the spirit of man is an expression of Higher Forces. (FW III, 47)

"Where do you think the abode of the Divine Intelligence exists?"

"In the soul of man. In this great world within us Divinity dwells. The soul of man is the greatest evidence of Divine creativeness. If we would realize that God spent endless ages in the creation of man, endowing him with a soul that reflects his Creator, we would find it hard to believe that a human being lives on this earth only a short period and then disappears without a trace, and that his soul dies together with his physical body—that the soul's existence was in vain." (LHR I, p 438)

Manas – (Sk.). Mind—That which distinguishes man from the animals, and the Third Principle, counting downwards, of which man's constitution is composed. Manas is divided into the Higher (Buddhi-Manas) and the Lower (Kama-Manas or the "Mind of Desire"). The latter is mortal and dissolved at death, but the Higher is the Spiritual Mind of which Atma and Buddhi forms the Spiritual Monad of man—the reincarnating entity. (TG)

The spiritual entity passing into the Subtle World continues its conscious or semi-conscious existence in proportion to the development of its higher Manas, or spirituality. (LHR I, p 376)

Mandala – (Sk.). A circle; also the ten divisions of the Vedas. (TG)

Man-God – A full Arhat.

Much has been spoken about Man-God aspiring toward deification. Many are the memorable records citing the Images striving toward higher worlds. But how dimly are they formulated in the human consciousness! Man-God is to man only one who departed to other worlds! But We Brothers of Humanity seek and proclaim Man-God on Earth. We revere all Images, but none more than the great Image of Man-God, who bears in his heart the full Chalice, ready for flight, but bearing his full Chalice on Earth. Renouncing his destiny, he strains his fiery being. In the fulfillment of his destiny man confirms the Cosmic Magnet. Man-God is a fiery creator. Man-God is the carrier of the fiery sign of the New Race. Man-God is aflame with all fires. Thus, inscribe in the records about Man-God: Arhat, Agni Yogi, Tara—so shall We inscribe. (HIER, 14)

Man-God advances as an evident aspiring Redeemer of Humanity. We guard this sacred truth about Man-God. I affirm that the Tara, carrying the flaming Chalice of aspirations for the redemption of humanity, can proclaim Our manifestation among men. The origin of the power of the Cosmic Magnet bestows striving toward the consummation. We Brothers of Humanity point out that the change will take place through the fiery principle. Verily, Our new step is so beautiful! The currents of the higher spheres impel the currents toward the construction of Our Cosmic force. Great is the attraction! When striving hearts aspire toward consummation, the impetuosity increases, and the current of oneness is affirmed by the tension of the Cosmic Magnet. Thus the union resounds. (HIER, 15)

The Lord, the Man-God, and the Regent of the Forces of Light constitute the great Power. (FW III, 100)

The goal of this accumulation is to achieve a great destiny and become a full Arhat, or Man-God. (LHR I, p 427)

Mantram – (Sk.). Mystic words, sounds or phrases used as incantations and having occult potency.

One can stave off the approach of the dark ones by repeating My Name as a Mantram. (FW I, 426)

Manvantara – (Sk.). A period of manifestation, as opposed to Pralaya (dissolution, or rest), applied to various cycles. (TG)

Circular motion is in everything. Vortical rings are not only in the strictly physical world, but also in all thought-forms. One may observe how the circle of each task is culminated. We have already advised alternating work for the renewal of strength. Such manvantaras may be observed even in the smallest tasks, but they will have the same significance as world manvantaras. Thus, outside of circles of daily labor, one may see the manifestation of the circle also in entire periods of activity. Precisely the fiery heart will whisper when such a ring is complete, in order that a new manifestation may be taken up.
(FW II, 184)

Mara – (Sk.). The god of Temptation, the Seducer who tried to turn away Buddha from his PATH. He is called the "Destroyer" and "Death" (of the Soul). One of the names of Kama, God of love. (TG) Mara is the Prince of Darkness. He is also called the "Destroyer" and "Death" (of the soul). (LHR I, p 420)

Marakara – Is a very gloomy locality in the lowest strata of the Subtle World. It is difficult to be there, because prana practically never pierces it. Nevertheless, it is necessary sometimes to penetrate into these satanic layers. (H, 309)

Marasmus – Fire must be alive. Inactivity is unnatural for Fire. Energy generates energies. It is especially harmful to tear man away from his customary labor. Even through the lowest forms of labor man creates a manifestation of fiery energy. Deprive him of labor and he will inevitably fall prey to marasmus; in other words, he will lose the Fire of Life. (FW I, 62)

Mars – Just now, during the grave days of the approach of Mars, when the lower past currents are disturbing, we think only about the future.

The unprecendented deviations of planets help the awakening of consciousness. The Space is becoming dense, and the ray of Mars will be drowned in the light of the Mother of the World. (LMG II, p 133)

Blessed be the obstacles, they teach us unity and resistance. When these qualities are strengthened by an affirmation by the heart, the armor will also be ready. The armor of Mars was prepared and forged by Vulcan and Venus. Thus the symbol of the wise myth in itself contains the meaning of life. (H, 401)

Mars and Mercury are in the chain of planets which belong to our solar system, as well as many others not yet known to our astronomers. (LHR I, p 439)

Masters – Also called "Mahatmas" by the Eastern schools. A Master is a perfected human being—an adept of the highest order. The Masters of Hierarchy are the exalted spiritual Teachers of humanity.

Materia Lucida – A highly refined and subtle form of matter, radiating with colors ranging beyond hues known to our physical plane, and therefore not visible to the average man, but entirely so to those with centers properly developed. Materia Lucida is the substance of the forms of the higher spirits. It has been called the consciousness of the cosmic rays.

Materia Lucida is the degree of the Primary Matter on the astral plane ... having its own degrees or gradations. (LHR I, p 448)

Materia Lucida is revealed as that driving force which creates the subtle energies. (INF I, 289)

Materia Lucida is the consciousness of the cosmic rays. You are right in terming Materia Lucida the great "Mother of the World". You are right in calling Materia Lucida "Cosmic Love". Verily, the Universe is woven with the yarn of Lucida and the lever of Love. Poor Humanity alone has clothed itself in isolation, with the veil of dark denial. (INF I, 52)

Materia Lucida, which is the substance of the forms of the higher spirits, is entirely visible to the person whose centers are open. This matter, Materia Lucida, although most subtle, is not invisible. It is a luminous substance, a matter which radiates with colors ranging beyond those known to our physical plane. (LHR I, p 374)

But when humanity realizes that the Arhat is the highest manifestation of Materia Lucida, it will understand that there is no difference between Materia Lucida, which emits Light, and the matter of love enveloping all with Light. Humanity invests the Arhat with an austere image, but Materia Lucida radiates love ... (LHR I, p 13)

Materia Matrix – The Primary Matter.

Materia Matrix is beyond the astral plane, and is an equivalent of Mulaprakritis, Akasha, Primary Substance—the subtlest, super-sensuous, ethereal substance, which fills the whole of space—the Mysterium Magnum of the Alchemists. (LHR I, p 448)
see also Primary Matter

Matter – Matter we know to be eternal, i.e. having had no beginning (a) because matter is Nature herself (b) because that which cannot annihilate itself and is indestructible exists necessarily—and therefore it could not begin to be, nor can it cease to be (c) because the accumulated experience of countless ages, and that of exact science show to us matter (or nature) acting by her own peculiar energy, of which not an atom is ever in absolute state of rest, and therefore it must have always existed, i.e., its materials ever changing form, combinations and properties, but its principles or elements being absolutely indestructible. (ML, 55)

We believe in Matter alone, in matter as visible nature and matter in its invisibility as the invisible omnipresent omnipotent Proteus with its unceasing motion which is its great life, and which nature draws from herself since she is the great whole outside of which nothing can exist. (ML, p 56)

The combination of a correct appreciation of the beauty of matter with a readiness to fathom the attainments of the spirit, brings the achievement to maturity. The turmoil of life no longer attracts, and of course there comes the realization that it can proceed no further in the same way.

And so, the most difficult thing is to encompass both the rapture of matter and the manifestation of spirit. And how many wondrous quests have been delayed by a regret concerning matter, or by spiritual insulation. Sometimes the affinity of the spirit with matter is easily achieved; then one should look for the cause in the past chosen lives.

The most extreme ascetic, who curses the beauty of the world, closes the Gates before himself. Likewise, the scientist who forgets about the Source deprives himself of flights into the domain of higher conquests. (LMG II, p 88)

You are indignant at this aggrandizement of matter. But do you not know that in esotericism matter and spirit are one—that matter is just the differentiation of spirit? Do you not know that matter is indeed energy, as one cannot exist without the other? Therefore, matter isolated from spirit is regarded as illusion. Do you not know that all comes from the One Element, and that this Element is considered as the Divine Principle, triune in its manifestation? Do you not know that spirit divorced from matter is deprived of expression, in other words, of existence? Indeed we cannot separate ourselves from matter, neither in action nor in thinking. We deal either with the subtle or with the denser aspects of that same matter. (LHR I, p 305)

Maya – Illusion; the cosmic power which renders phenomenal existence and the perceptions thereof possible. In Hindu philosophy that alone which is changeless and eternal is called reality; all that which is subject to change through decay and differentiation and which has therefore a beginning and an end is regarded as maya—illusion. (TG)

Reality is the thought of space but Maya is the attention of the people. (AY, 122)

Maya ... covers reality with evidence, and sweeps away the furrow of attainments. (COM, 201)

The most obvious illustration of Maya and of reality is found in the heavenly bodies. Though such a body may have been destroyed thousands of years ago, its light is still seen on Earth. Who, then, can attempt to define the boundary between the existing and the visionary? We find similar examples also among earthly manifestations. (AUM, 444)

One can see how mechanical hypotheses ensnare the hopes of people. This is what was known by the ancients as maya, which could be destroyed by the slightest blow. (LHR I, p 157)

Mediator – A human being of relatively highly evolved spiritual nature who serves as an intermediary or mediator between Hierarchy and ordinary humanity. It is important to distinguish between the Mediator and the medium. The former is lifted by his insight into the higher strata, while the latter, by the curse of his psychism can reach no further than the lower part of the subtle world, there to fall prey to elementals, disembodied souls, and all manner of evil.

One may be interested in mediums, but mediators must be esteemed and appreciated. (AY, 447)

Medicines – see Energy

Mediums – Called in the Teachings—Inns for disembodied liars. They are the human beings who, due to a certain structure of the organism that enables the etheric double (the lower astral body) to effuse easily and without the least control of the will, fall victims of the most undesireable inhabitants of the Subtle World who take advantage of such ethereal emanations and use them for their own purposes. (LHR I, pp 398-399)

Correct is the consideration about mediums that their lymph is a mechanical link with the Astral World. But, limited to mechanics, mediumism is not protected against outside intrusion. It is also correct to understand that the forces of darkness exert all their ingenuity to remain in earthly spheres.
(FW II, 64)

One must always point out the harm of psychic manifestations. In ancient India, fakirs and mediums were not allowed into the holy of holies of the temples. Likewise, the Hierophants of Egypt did not accept mediums and psychics as disciples. They even avoided lymphatic servants ... One must realize that mediumship has nothing to do with opening of the centers.
(LHR I, p 298)
see also Obsession

Memory – Since memory is for the past, consciousness is for the future. By means of memory I cannot penetrate within the boundaries of the sun, but consciousness opens the gates. For us, the museum and library replace the memory; therefore, disciples should not grieve over the loss of the old memory. It is simply that a small thing is replaced by a great one. (LMG II, p 43)

Mental World – The world of Manas.

Let us not forget that each instant must belong to the New World. Observe that in enumerating the worlds, We seem to omit the World of Thought. This is not by accident. The Mental World constitutes a living link between the Subtle World and the Fiery One. It enters as the nearest impetus of the Fiery World. Thought does not exist without Fire, and the Fire is transformed into a creative thought. The manifestation of thought is already understood; let us also realize the Great Fire—AUM. (FW I, 84)

Mesmer, Freidrich Anton – The famous Austrian physician who rediscovered and applied practically that magnetic fluid in man which was called animal magnetism and since then Mesmerism. He was born in Schwaben, in 1734, and died in 1815. He was an initiated member of the Brotherhoods of the Fratres Lucis and of Lukshoor (or Luxor), or the Egyptian Branch of the latter. It was the Council of "Luxor" which selected him—according to the orders of the "Great Brotherhood"—to act in the XVIIIth century as their usual pioneer, sent in the last quarter of every century to enlighten a small portion of the Western nations in occult lore. It was St. Germain who supervised the development of events in this case; and later Cagliostro was commissioned to help, but having made a series of mistakes, more or less fatal, he was recalled ... Mesmer founded the "Order of Universal Harmony" in 1783, in which presumably only animal magnetism was taught, but which in reality expounded the tenets of Hippocrates, the methods of the ancient Asclepieia, the Temples of Healing, and many other occult sciences. (TG)

Messengers – It was said in antiquity, "All people are angels." Verily, people are the messengers of the far-off worlds. (BR, 278)

Some messengers proceed with a mission, already knowing whence, whither and why—and how they will return. Others know but inwardly the Indication, and they complete the earthly path as ordinary citizens. Let us not weigh which of them accomplishes an achievement with the greater selflessness. Let people recognize that there exists a great number of degrees among the great Spiritual Toilers. (BR, 205)

Co-workers and messengers may be either conscious or unconscious ones. The entrusting of commissions is considered honorable, but unconscious co-workers usually do not even know when they have been inspired by a commission. They proceed in accord with a command unknown to them, transmitting something or forewarning someone, but they themselves do not know where is the beginning and where the end of their mission. There are many such messengers, they differ according to to their condition, but none the less they do not tarry. Also, there are particular silent commissions, when it is needful to exert influence, not by a word, but by silence. (BR, 66)

Metals – Metals are to be selected not according to their costliness but to their resistivity. One should not wear copper things. The ancients knew how much more useful was bronze. Also, zinc should no longer be used in the household. Not only is infection possible through contact with copper, but the channel of this metal brings maladies. (LMG II, p 185)

Michael, the Archstrategist – The Leader of the Army of Light.

I must also remind you that all the Archangels and Angels had to go through human evolution. And the Archangel Varahael, or Uriel, was and is a MAN. Likewise the Archangel Michael, though ranking among the Highest Archangels, nevertheless walked on our sinful Earth, bringing salvation. If these greatest Spirits who gave the impetus to the creation and development of thought at the dawn of our earthly physical humanity and who continued to impel the evolution of the human consciousness throughout the entire span of this most difficult and lengthly process had not done so, our earthly humanity, even up to this day, would have remained at the caveman stage. Precisely, the great Archangels are those Seven Kumaras who, including the highest One among Them, are spoken of in Eastern Scriptures and in The Secret Doctrine. They came from the higher worlds, and They made the greatest sacrifice by incarnating as the great Founders of religions, kingdoms and philosophies, during all the turning points in the history of the planet, in order to quicken the evolution of humanity. So, the Archangel

Michael is now guarding the destiny of our planet. He is destined to fight the last Battle with the Prince of this World. (LHR I, pp 350-351)

Milarepa – An ancient Tibetan Teacher.

The Teacher Milarepa often conversed with animals. Near his retreat bees nested, ants built cities, parrots flew about, and a monkey was accustomed to perch himself in imitation of the Teacher. The Teacher said to the ants: "Tillers and builders, no one knows of you, yet you raise up lofty communities." He said to the bees: "You gather the honey of knowledge and of the best forms, let no one interrupt your sweet labor." He remarked to a parrot: "By your screeching I see that you are preparing yourself to be a judge or a preacher." And he admonished the mischievous monkey: "You have destroyed the ant's structure and have stolen another's honey. Perhaps you have decided to become a usurper."

Who, if not the usurper, appropriates another's labor and casually wrecks structures under the heel? Many centuries have passed since the time of the Teacher Milarepa, but usurpers, with the psychology of monkeys, live as before. (COM, 193)

Millefolium – "Thousand Leaves," was the name of an ancient decoction of wild field herbs. Its significance lay in the belief that the field flora is in itself already a collective panacea. (FW I, 320)

Mind, Cosmic – The Cosmic Mind is the manifested Mind or the collective Mind or Reason of the Hierarchy of Light. (LHR I, p 376)

see also Universal Mind

Miracles – A miracle violates harmony, whereas cosmic events only affirm evolution. (LMG II, p 124)

The way of miracles is most remote from harmony. Either the miracle is lost, and then it is simply harmful; or it jerks a man up to a degree which cannot be maintained under surrounding conditions; or it happens to be seen by envious ones, whereupon it begets evil. (LMG II, p 91)

Miraculous Hand – Hierarchical Assistance when circumstances and the growth of consciousness permits.

One can see the Miraculous Hand when we act according to the law of Hierarchy. (H, 156)
see also Guiding Hand, Hand

Mirage – The fog of humanity is great, and the thinking may be pushed forward by the most unexpected means. Therefore it will be much easier to construct a mosaic out of separate pieces. A completed line should not be demanded. Its parts may be built up under different moods. (AY, 394)

Mission – To be prepared, to be self-denying, to be abused, to be calumniated, to be joyful, to be silent, to be jubilant, to be the bringing and the bestowing one, and to be in this life taught by the light of the sun, is to be as We wish to see you; and as such We are dispatching you. Thus has your spirit accepted the mission. (LMG II, p 48)

Mitra, or Mithra – (Pers.). An ancient Iranian deity, a sun-god, as evidenced by his being lion-headed. The name exists also in India and means a form of the sun. The Persian Mithra, he who drove out of heaven Ahriman (Satan), is a kind of Messiah who is expected to return as the judge of men, and is a sin-bearing god who atones for the iniquities of mankind. As such, however, he is directly connected with the highest Occultism, the tenets of which were expounded during the Mithraic Mysteries which thus bore his name. (TG)

Calling it psychic energy, we speak of the same Sophia of the Hellenic world or Sarasvati of the Hindus. The Holy Ghost of the Christians manifests signs of psychic energy, just as do the creative Adonai of Israel, and Mithra, full of solar power. Certainly, no one doubts that the Fire of Zoroaster is the Fire of Space which you study. (AY, 416)

Monad – Consists of the sixth principle and of the universal seventh and is not a conscious entity on the planes of manifestation. In order that we reach a conscious manifestation on all planes, or that we reach the real immortality (i.e., become an Arhat, Buddha, or Dhyan Chohan) we must unite the three principles, fourth, fifth and seventh, while here on Earth and fuse them in the sixth principle. (LHR I, p 428)

The highest or fundamental principle, which contains potentially the synthesis of all the others, is the fiery energy of life or spirit, which is spread throughout the entire Cosmos. For its focus it requires the sixth principle, or Buddhi (often called "the spiritual soul" as distinct from the animal soul). Thus the monad is formed, which is the primary, unconscious, incarnated Ego. (LHR I. p 472)

Vedanta correctly states that the spirit remains inviolate. The fiery seed of the spirit remains in its primary consistency, because the essence of the elements is immutable. But the emanation of the seed changes, depending on the growth of consciousness. Thus one may understand that the seed of the spirit is a fragment of the elementary fire. And the energy accumulated around it is consciousness. (AY, 275)

The Monad or Jiva per se cannot be even called spirit: it is a ray, a breath of the ABSOLUTE, or the Absoluteness rather ... having no relations with the conditioned and relative finiteness, (Absoluteness) is unconscious on our plane. Therefore, besides the material which will be needed for its future human form, the monad requires (a) a spiritual model, or prototype, for that material to shape itself into; and (b) an intelligent consciousness to guide its evolution and progress, neither of which is possessed by the homogeneous monad, or by senseless though living matter. The Adam of dust requires the Soul of Life to be breathed into him: the two middle principles, which are the sentient life of the irrational animal and the Human Soul, for the former is irrational without the latter ... Thus, The Monad becomes a personal ego through Manas, when the latter is perfect enough to assimilate Buddhi. Thus, individuality is built gradually, and can only be partially expressed on Earth.

Metaphysically speaking, it is of course an absurdity to talk of the 'development' of a Monad, or to say that it becomes 'Man' ... It stands to reason that a MONAD cannot either progress or develop, or even be affected by the changes of states it passes through. It is not of this world or plane, and may be compared only to an indestructible star of divine light and fire, thrown down onto our Earth as a plank of salvation for the personalities in which it indwells. It is for the latter to cling to it; and thus partaking of its divine nature, obtain immortality. Left to itself the Monad will cling to no one; but, like the 'plank,' be drifted away to another incarnation by the unresting current of evolution. (SD)

Money – Do not live on income from money. This profit is stained. The interchange of goods is by direct exchange of objects; or if necessary they can be allowed to be exchanged into money to be reconverted immediately. (LMG II, pp 177-178)

Moriah, Mount – (Bib.). The site of King Solomon's first temple at Jerusalem according to tradition. It is to that mount that Abraham journeyed to offer Isaac in sacrifice. (TG)

Moru or Balu – The essence of Moru, or Balu, is made from a plant which is to be found all over the Himalayan slopes at, or above, 8,000 feet. It belongs to the rhododendron family. In Tibet it is used as incense in temples and homes. (LHR I, p 498)

Moses – Moses truly was a great leader, and you say correctly that he was the creator of Israel. However, Moses was not responsible for the idea of monotheism; this idea had existed from the most ancient times. Therefore, the belief that the Jewish people brought this idea into the world is not exactly correct.

Moses, being a disciple of the Egyptian priests, was initiated into their secret knowledge: Unity of Cosmos, unity in all its multiformity. And this idea of unity he affirmed as monotheism—precisely to the masses, giving them Jehovah as one aspect of the Divinity. There were also other reasons why the image of Jehovah was chosen as the Ruling Element or God for the Jewish people. Let us remember how highly advanced was the science of astrology in ancient Egypt. Jehovah was connected with Saturn, and Israel, as an individual nation, was born under this planet.

In spite of the fact that the idea of monotheism is very pronounced in the exoteric religion of the Jews, their sacred pantheon is as numerous as those of other people, including Christians: the Hierarchy of Forces, the Ladder of Jacob, and all the Planetary spirits worshipped by the Catholic Church.

Moses was a Jew, and all the stories about his Egyptian origin are most erroneous. Even from a purely psychological point of view, such an opinion is beneath criticism; the whole movement, the whole development of the epic of Moses, strongly contradicts it.

Moses was a leader and ruler in the fullest sense of these words, and he had to undertake ‘the hard task’ of creating a nation out of a nomadic tribe, which for a very long period had been enslaved and therefore had developed many negative qualities. From such a tribe he had to build a nation and give it the foundations of constructiveness and the concepts of organized government. All hints about the cruelty and revengefulness of his laws are not quite sound; when one studies his laws objectively one is amazed how wise and merciful they are. In many ways they are more generous than our present laws. And if we speak as realists we should not even attempt to criticize the cruelty of Moses when we consider our own times, full of the most cruel crimes and terror. (LHR I, pp 210-211)

Moses delved into the science of Egypt, but he outdistanced it through the Ten Commandments. Thus acts the Yoga of Hierarchy. (H, 500)

Mother of the Cosmos – Even so, the Mother of the Universe, or the manifested Cosmos, can be accepted as one of the Figures of the Holy Trinity. Indeed, there is no religion, except later ecclesiastical Christianity, in which the Feminine Element is not included among the Primates of Be-ness. Thus, the Gnostics also considered the Holy Ghost as a Feminine Element. In the most ancient Teachings, the manifested Trinity of Father, Mother, and Son was considered as an emanation of the Light, eternally hidden Cause; and the latter, in turn, as that of the Causeless Cause. (LHR I, p 487)

Mother of the World – I attest that the Power adorning Our Universe is confirmed as Our Mother of the World—the Feminine Origin. (INF I, 156)

I have already told you that the Mother of the World conceals Her Name. I have already shown you how the Mother of the World veils Her Face. I have already made mention about the Mother of Buddha and Christ.

Indeed it is time to point out that the one Mother of both Lords is not a symbol but a Great Manifestation of the Feminine Origin, in which is revealed the spiritual Mother of Christ and Buddha.

She it was Who taught and ordained Them for achievement. From time immemorial the Mother of the World has sent forth to achievement. In the history of humanity, Her Hand traces an unbreakable thread.

On Sinai Her Voice rang out. She assumed the image of Kali. She was at the basis of the cult of Isis and Ishtar. After Atlantis, when a blow was inflicted upon the cult of the spirit, the Mother of the World began to weave a new thread, which will now begin to radiate. After Atlantis the Mother of the World veiled Her Face and forbade the pronouncement of Her Name until the hour of the constellations should strike. She has manifested Herself only partly; never has She manifested Herself on a planetary scale ...

The Mother is Beauty; the world is self-sacrifice. Precisely by these two fundamentals are the Gates opened.

The bridge between the planets, and the shortening of race cycles, rests upon these two fundamentals. (LMG II, pp 131-132)

Motion – Misunderstandings continue to be piled around this concept. Hearing about motion and mobility, people turn into restless runners. But can bustle be fitting for the higher manifestations? Similarly, people do not distinguish outer for inner movement, yet such a distinction is quite essential; it saves one from bustle, which unavoidably leads to falsehood.

Likewise, inner motion will bestow dignity of movement. (BR, 499)

Motive – How resounding are the words of the heart about hidden motives! How important it is to realize impartially the intentions of the spirit! Three traits of character will help to cognize the potentiality of motive: the trait of honesty, the trait of self-abnegation, and the trait of service. The manifestation of each trait will give the spirit the sword against egotism. Not the hand of karmic tension but the hand of self-exertion will hold for the spirit that gleaming sword. Let us remember that fire which gives tension to the motive. (INF II, 170)

Mount Meru – Whoever beholds the Himalayas recalls the great meaning of Mount Meru. Blessed Buddha journeyed to the Himalayas for enlightenment. There, near the legendary sacred Stupa, in the presence of all the gods, the Blessed One received his Illumination. In truth, everything connected with the Himalayas reveals the great symbol of Mount Meru, standing at the center of the world. (HAL, p 12)

Mount Meru as: "the exalted mass of glory, the venerable haunt of gods and heavenly choristers … not to be reached by sinful men … because guarded by Serpents." (SD I, p. 126)

Meru—the abode of the gods—was placed … in the North Pole., while Patala , the nether region, was supposed to lie in the South. … As Meru is the high abode of the Gods, these were said to ascend and descend periodically; by which (astronomically) the Zodiacal gods were meant, the passing of the original North Pole of the Earth to the South Pole of the heaven. (SD II, p 357)

Muladhara-Kundalini – (Sk.). One of the seven main centers or chakras of man. It is located at the bottom of the spine. (LHR I, pp 426-427)

see also Chakra

Mulaprakriti – (Sk.). Mulaprakriti should be looked upon as the Absolute, as it is the Abstract Feminine Principle. (LHR I, p 439)

The differentiation is so bereft of subtlety that it is difficult to convey to people about the principle which dwells in the manifested power of Mulaprakriti. Likewise, the principle of life cannot be asserted without the realization of the Feminine Origin. Like the Cosmos, Mulaprakriti is a universal principle. The origins cannot be regarded as competitive forces; only unification of the forces creates life. And We, in the higher worlds, manifest a consecrated reverence for the Origin which humanity calls passive. (INF I, 201)

Mulaprakriti is the abstract, divine, feminine principle. The feminine aspect of Parabrahman. Undifferentiated substance. Literal translation: "The root of Nature or Matter." (LHR I, p 448)

Music – Music is necessary for all fiery sowings. One should choose good music, it focuses the emotions. But one should not absent-mindedly let the music just pass by one's ears. (FW I, 330)

Music of the Spheres – Each participle from atom to star has an inaudible tone conditioned by the vibratory rate and subtle makeup of its individual atoms. The collective chords resulting from such tones cause an ethereal harmony called the Music of the Spheres, audible to those equipped with clairaudience.

It is necessary to understand these oceans of thought from space which generate the Music of the Spheres. (AUM, 137)

The world tasks are affirmed by the tension of the cosmic fires, and the joy of spatial achievements reverberates as the music of the spheres. (INF I, 89)

Musk – A substance obtained from a sac under the skin of the abdomen of the male musk deer, a small animal inhabiting high altitudes of central Asia. The very best musk is obtained in Tibet.

The main power of musk is in its, so to say, "fiery laboratory" which intensifies the forces of the centers thus nourishing the weaker organs with fire. It must be understood that the finer organism will react positively upon being saturated with fire, while those that are influenced by earthly attractions may experience the reverse. There can be signs of temporary illness, but if in such cases musk is taken regularly, these strange reactions can be avoided. The fiery property of musk is its greatest power. It must also be understood that in a fiery organism the effect of musk is increased by the fiery centers.

The power of the fiery centers should be treated with great care. The transmutation of centers, which tenses the Psychic Energy so powerfully, intensifies also every kind of reaction of the fiery substance! Therefore, speaking of musk, we must note the inner reaction which tenses every fiery substance.

Musk is irreplaceable and harmless. It is given for general use for maintaining balance, a prophylactic against many illnesses including cancer.

Musk, according to all the ancient sources, is related to the sun and not to Venus. For mental work musk is especially beneficial. (LHR I, p 256)

Musk and Psychic Energy – Musk is the deposit of the substance of an unconscious psychic energy. It is not a regular stimulant in the full sense of the word. It balances the nervous system. It regulates the sympathetic nervous system which so strongly vibrates in advanced Yogis. While using musk, the demand for food lessens because psychic energy, by strengthening the nervous system, also nourishes the physical body. "Precipitation of the unconscious fire" is also a definition of the same substance, psychic energy; therefore, musk can also be considered as such a fire. The "phosphorous of spirit" is another name for that same psychic energy. Psychic energy is the most powerful, most penetrating, most transmuting energy which protects from all diseases and from many other things. It acts in this miraculous way only when it is consciously mastered, or at least realized. But even unconscious precipitation of this substance is most precious.

Mysterium Magnum – (Lat.). Materia Matrix, the "subtlest, super-sensuous, ethereal substance, which fills the whole of space." Equivalent also to Mulaprakriti, Akasa, Primary Substance. (LHR I, p 448)

"The Great Mystery", a term used in Alchemy in connection with the fabrication of the "Philosopher's Stone" and the "Elixir of Life". (TG)

Mysticism – Many concepts are in need of clarifying; among them, mysticism must be defined. It denotes exact knowledge, then the conception of it may be retained. (AUM, 458)

It would seem that an end has been put forever to the two Western inventions, mysticism and metaphysics. Any laboratory, moderately fitted out, tells enough about the properties of the one matter. But as soon as people go beyond the limits of yesterday's experiment, they begin to cover up their helpfulness with indefinite dusty nomenclature. They rise in opposition, covering with the bugbears "metaphysics" and "mysticism" all the scientific possibilities of the coming day. The metaphysics of yesterday has turned into the scientific knowledge of an average literate man. Mysticism has proved to be a historic fact, and the walls of the tomb have convinced many more, those of broadest consciousness. ...

With Our Community can proceed those who apprehend reality and true materialism. It is impossible to imagine a mystic or a metaphysician within Our enclosure. The metaphysician, receiving a blow, cries out, "I am stricken physically!" The mystic, upon perceiving the radiance of life, rubs his eyes.

Why are you living? In order to cognize and to perfect yourselves. Nothing misty should satisfy you. (COM, 230)

Names – I have asked you to abstain from pronouncing personal names as far as possible. People addressing themselves to someone at a distance impose a sense of burden upon the person if his spirit is sufficiently sensitive. You have noticed how the yogis often change their abodes and avoid pronouncing names. This results from a knowledge of the effect produced in space by names, when they are sent with some knowledge of the Teaching. (AY, 383)

Narada – (Sk.). One of the Seven Great Rishis, a Son of Brahma. This 'Progenitor' is one of the most mysterious personages in the Brahmanical sacred symbology. Esoterically Narada is the Ruler of events during various Karmic cycles, and the personification, in a certain sense, of the great human cycle; a Dhyan Chohan. (TG)

Be not amazed that the reactions to the Teaching are so diverse and so striking. Narada similarly struck different sparks from human consciousnesses. (BR, 197)

Nature – Bear in mind (a) that we recognize but one element in Nature (whether spiritual or physical) outside which there can be no Nature since it is Nature itself,* and which as the Akasa pervades our solar system every atom being part of itself pervades throughout space and is space in fact, which pulsates as in profound sleep during the pralayas and the universal Proteus, the ever active Nature during the Manvantaras. (ML, p 63)
see also Matter

Nature Spirits – I consider that the miracle of nature-spirits can be explained. Their main property is elasticity. Their form depends upon the aspiratory conditions. Falling into the focus of human sight, they are sucked into human form. Men will see them in human shape and animals will see them as animals, because they have no shell.

I attest that whether the forms are fearful or beautiful depends upon the reflex of the nerves. The potentiality of the elements is such that it is always ready to respond to nerve reflexion and thus to doubly reinforce Our sending in a definite direction.

One should not think that the elemental spirits are Our brood. Their manifestation may be likened to the spark at the moment of contact with a tense reservoir of dynamite. The consciousness of this spark becomes kindled upon contact with the human spirit. Of course their grade varies, as does the intensity of the dynamite's energy. ...

The spirits of elements strive toward union with man. They undergo the development of consciousness in lower forms of elements, and rarely possible are cases of their growth up to the consciousness of man. Man, however, in extraordinary cases can bypass a whole planet. But, of course, in strict classification one may place the bulk of the elemental spirits into the primary forms.

You know how varied are the evolutions. The understanding should be expanded.

One can devote a special discourse to the elements. This domain is very beautiful. (LMG II, pp 137-138)

Naturovaloris – The law of Earth's nurture affords, through the antennae of the plants, the possibility of drawing out of this reservoir by means of smell and sight the precious quality of vitality, the so-called Naturovaloris, which is acquired through conscious striving. (LMG II, p 81)

Necessity – Together with co-measurement, necessity must be understood. The final test will be that of necessity. In other words, each one being tested must say what it is that he considers most urgent. According to the quality of the immediate reply will his consciousness be measured. (LMG II, p 164)

I will tell you of the origin of the controversy between Buddha and Devadatta.

Devadatta asked; "Wherefrom is each action begun?" The Blessed One answered:

"From the most necessary; because each moment contains its necessity and this is called the justice of action." Devadatta persisted: "How is the evidence of necessity ascertained?" The Blessed One answered: "The thread of necessity crosses all worlds, but whoever has failed to realize this remains within a dangerous chasm, unsheltered from the stones."

Thus Devadatta could not distinguish the line of necessity, and this obscurity impeded his way.

A spirited steed even with the end of his hoof feels on which stone to step next. So is felt the order of mobility, co-measurement and necessity. (LMG II, p 165)

Negation – One should expel all words of negation. He who denies is poor; he who affirms is rich. He who denies is immobile; he who affirms is propelled. He who denies is constantly wrong; he who affirms is always right. He who affirms can be relatively right in place and time; he who denies is absolute in deadliness. Ignorance is the mother of negation. Expelling negation, the Teaching enslaves no one./ The denier is already a slaveholder, for he does not wish to let his interlocutor go free from his circle. The Teaching of the Community must be active in the opening of all paths. (COM, 139)

Neophyte – (Gr.). A novice; a postulant or candidate for the Mysteries. (TG)

The neophyte cannot grasp events in their world dimensions. To him it is even difficult and unusual to change his room. How, then, to think of world wings! He is also held back by considerations of the pettiest property, and he does not see the step when any condition is admissible because it is weighed on the scales of Infinity. (H, 191)

Neti – One may be asked also why the visions coincide with special moments of life. Is this the result of a Guidance that is aware of the approach of the crucial hour, or is it due to an exalted spiritual attitude which permits one to see what otherwise would remain unseen? It is both. But besides our own state of consciousness, certain cosmic currents approach which transform the earthly layers. Certainly, not only astral chemisms react upon us, but a certain higher energy, the origin of which is infinite. Neti, Neti—the Ineffable, guides us, and often we are touched by the Highest Power. (FW I, 432)

New Age – see New Era

New Era – In conclusion, I want to remind you about the absolute inevitability of the New Era. The fiery energies are in their greatest tension attracted toward Earth, and if not accepted, realized and assimilated they will cause terrific earthquakes and other cosmic perturbations, and also revolutions, wars and new epidemics. We are now at the very entrance to a New Era, a New Race, and therefore our time may be compared with the times of Atlantis, the existence of which becomes more and more evident to our science.

Watch out for all unusual and destructive signs in all spheres of life, and many things will be clearer to you. You will see where are the sparks of the New Era, the era of spiritual knowledge and great cooperation of people under the sign of culture.

Realization of the coming of this great time should multiply the strength of every sensitive person and should direct him toward joyous, constructive work for the General Good under the Banner, which we shall call the Banner of Peace and Culture. (LHR I, p 147)

New Firmament – It should be remembered that the New Firmament can become visible. Quite some time ago I mentioned that a new heavenly body is approaching, but as yet it is concealed from observation. (FW II, 92)

New World – The New Era.

Yes, yes, yes! Verily a new world! The joy of the spirit provides all possibilities. When the great future is affirmed, Our creativity embraces all manifestations. When We are assembling a New Race, We intensify all achievements. Thus, this wondrous year has revealed manifold affirmations of the great future. Radiant foundations have been laid. (INF II, 110)

The word sacred is completely out of use. Sacrilege has replaced sacredness. Many are the possible applications of the word sacred on Earth, but men have cast out the most beautiful. When thought wandered from the sacred destination of Being, the very meaning of Being evaporated. The manifestation of supreme concordance is a sacred act of the spirit. The sacred union is the foundation of all Be-ness. Thus the higher spheres reveal the loftier forms of Materia Lucida. When even upon Earth concordance lends beautiful forms to colors, sounds, and to man, what may not be reached in the higher concordance!

Maitreya sees the New World of concordance! (INF I, 95)

Neuritis – The sickness called neuritis has a certain relation to fire. ... These pains can be easily gotten rid of by establishing the materiality of psychic energy. When these sediments obstruct the nerve channels all manner of painful developments can be expected. Like stones in the inner organs, the crystals of psychic energy may be injurious if the energy is not utilized. (AY, 329)

Night of St. Bartholomew – Also called the Massacre of St. Bartholomew, which was the name given to the massacre of the Huegonots, which began in Paris on St. Bartholomew's Day, Aug. 24, 1572. The initiative of the crime rests with Catherine de Medici who started out by assassinating a few Huegonot leaders for political reasons. The massacre spread to the provinces, however, and before it was over an estimated 50,000 were killed. Catherine de Medici received the congratulations of all the Catholic powers, and Pope Gregory XIII commanded bonfires to be lighted and a medal to be struck. (EB)

Let us not forget the terrors of the Night of St. Bartholomew! (LHR I, p 293)

Nirvana – (Sk.). The state of absolute existence and absolute consciousness, into which the Ego of a man who has reached the highest degree of perfection and holiness during life goes, after the body dies, and occasionally, as in the case of Gautama Buddha and others, during life. (TG)

Nirvana is the quality of assimilation of all actions. The saturation of all-inclusiveness brings you true knowledge, flowing from the tremor of illumination. (LMG II, p 205)

Conscious actions are necessary; they alone lead to Nirvana. (LMG II, p 206)

As for 'Nirvana', it means, according to the original Eastern concept, the transcendental, or the highest state of existence, which cannot be encompassed by the ordinary human mind; in other words, it is a complete contrast to non-existence. (LHR I, p 221)

Remember that the condition of Nirvana is the condition of the highest manifested perfection corresponding to a given cycle of evolution in each kingdom and species. Likewise, the consciousness, i.e., instinct, of plants and animals during Pralaya will have its corresponding Nirvana. There are as many degrees of Nirvana as there are cycles of perfection in Infinity. But the Nirvana will always be the expression of the maximum achievement of perfection corresponding to the particular stage of evolution. (LHR I, p 383)

Bliss, Nirvana, Divine Nearness and all analagous terms for the highest state are usually understood as an ecstatic oblivion and the rapture of the indolent rest, but oblivion can be understood only as the erasure of all earthly means and examples. Truly, why such limited earthly ways, when one may already act through the highest energies? Is it possible to identify Divine Nearness with indolence and immersion in oblivion? Such a correlation is contrary to the very meaning of approach to the Highest Principle. This communion with the Highest, this transformation through the highest energies, primarily impels one to an increased tension of all forces. Even in extreme tension a man cannot lose hold of himself. But amidst the contact with fiery radiances the seed of the spirit will kindle the more, and its striving towards thought-creation is unrestrainable. One may wonder why people try to limit and disparage the significance of the Fiery World? They wish to cloak it in earthly limitations as well as to stipulate that the inhabitants of other worlds must be in earthly bodies and in earthly circumstances. Only a dwarfed imagination can limit the development of your imagination as the foundation of striving towards the Highest Worlds. (FW I, 157)

Nirvana is actually fiery ascent. In every Teaching we find the symbol of this fiery ascent. (FW I, 157)

The highest tension of energies. (H, 260)

Nivedita, Sister – A pupil of Vivekenanada, who wrote books about India and her

Teacher. (LHR I, p 242)

Nobility – We term nobility the benevolent accumulations from former lives, while upon Earth nobility is considered only according to one's birth. (HIER, 182)

Obedience – Complete obedience to the indications and the precise execution of them gives health and leads to great victory, to great Light. In ancient times obedience was a step toward the next ordainment. The one who was unable to realize entirely the discipline of obedience could never reach the higher degrees. Only the one who knew how to obey and to execute could take great responsibility and understand all the immutableness of the order.

With all this, one must firmly understand that all the given orders can never enslave the spirit of a disciple because there is always left the freedom of individual expression, and we know how endlessly we may refine the quality of the fulfillment of every task. Only a slave of yesterday may revolt against an order. Only a petty consciousness is afraid to lose its individuality by fulfilling the plans of his Guru. To rely upon our own accumulations, rejecting all that which we can assimilate from the high consciousness of the Teacher, means to reject any new accumulations. Individuality is formed from these new assimilations combined with previous accumulations. Extremely happy is the one who can draw upon the Treasury of the Great Consciousness. I wish to quote from the book, Infinity:

"The idea of obedience to the Teacher seems to be alien to people. But how can the spirit lose when the Teacher is the Leading Light? How can the disciple lose his fire when the Teacher lights all fires? How can the Shield of the Teacher hold back the pupil if he is already inspired by his Teacher? How little does humanity desire to strive toward mutually beneficial work! But humanity must learn to act interdependently and to materialize all the thoughts affirmed by the Teacher. Thus, the Cosmic Mind fulfills evolution. Thus, humanity must learn to construct by higher measures. Verily, by following the Teacher you assimilate his Image …" (LHR I, pp 54-55)

Observation – Experience in the beautiful keeps one within the bounds of authenticity. When the earthly world is so rich, when the Subtle World is still richer, when the Fiery World is so majestic, then experience in the beautiful is needed. Only acuteness of observation helps to affirm beauty. It is a mistake to think that transitory methods of art can create a single basis for judgment. Actually, only the power of observation, which nourishes the third eye, provides a firm foundation for creativeness that is suitable also in the Subtle World. (FW I, 243)

Obsession – Obsession and self-poisoning are close companions. They are equally little recognized by people. During the process of self-poisoning, obsession is especially easy, but under obsession poisoning ultimately takes place; such poisoning is ineradicable. Certain people assert that during obsession the health not only does not fail but even improves. This is a great error, the apparent good health is the result of nervous tension only. Moreover, the intrusion of a foreign psychic energy inevitably opens a channel to various infections. Obsession is not psychism, but it affects the entire organism. Let us say definitely — obsession is not only a psychic sickness but also an evidence of infection of the whole organism. Indeed, the dark obsessing entity is not concerned about the health of the organism. Every disease is in itself a dissolution which is pleasing to darkness. Two psychic energies cannot live long together. Periodically there may be a relaxation of the obsession; such a method is employed by the obsessors if they value the victim.

Aspiration toward the Higher World is the best recourse against obsession. Thinking about the Higher World is the best proven antitoxin. Exalted thoughts not only influence the nerve substance, but also purify the blood. Experiments with the composition of the blood in relation to the thinking of the patient are highly instructive. (AUM, 305-306)

Also, it is necessary to understand that the unprepared and spiritually weak people who deal with spiritualism open themselves to all sorts of obsessions, and who can tell when that degree of obsession may be reached when the victim will be unable to rid himself of his obsessor? Exactly, the dark forces are using these obedient tools in order that through them they may gain entry into the spiritually pure groups and treacherously ruin them. Madmen! They do not understand the dreadful danger to which they open themselves by permitting the entities from beyond to enter their auras. The mediums and the weak psychics do not possess spiritual synthesis and often become victims of the dark whisperers.

Naive people usually presume that the dark ones are always brutal and criminal in their methods and intentions. This is a fatal error; only the small, insignificant dark ones act in this manner. Much more dangerous are those who approach under the guise of Light and pronounce our formulae. The dark ones always act according to the consciousness of their victims, and—one must give them credit—often they act very subtly and cleverly, appealing to conceit and other weaknesses. Usually such victims are from among persons full of egotism and conceit, who aspire only for their own profit. The idea of self-sacrificing achievement is not likely to be understood by such people; consequently, true spirituality is impossible for them. Therefore, we can judge people only by the fire of their hearts, by their devotion and readiness to sacrifice and cooperate in every possible way. There is no other measurement! (LHR I, pp 346-347)

Od – (Gr.). From odos, "passage", or passing of that force which is developed by various minor forces or agencies such as magnets, chemical or vital action, heat, light, etc. … It is also called ‘odic’ and ‘odylic force’, and was regarded by Reichenbach and his followers as an independent entitative force—which it certainly is—stored in man as it is in Nature. (TG)

Even when they are not directing energy their Od nevertheless penetrates the whole surroundings. Such natural agents of good health must be highly valued. (FW II, 256)

Olcott, Colonel Henry Steele – American lawyer and journalist. Received his title in the Civil War. Co-founder, with H.P. Blavatsky and Wm. Q. Judge, of the Theosophical Movement which began in the last quarter of the Nineteenth Century. President-Founder of the Theosophical Society, which office he held from 1875 to his death in 1907. Author of People from the Other World, Old Diary Leaves, and A Buddhist Catechism.

Oneness – Law of Oneness – A great Oneness reigns in Cosmos as a powerful Law. Only those who adhere to this law can verily take part in cosmic cooperation. The Oneness of substance in everything urges humanity to creativity. When the consciousness draws from the treasury of Space, the Cosmic Magnet is under tension. The manifested treasury contains the expression of the energy imbued by the Oneness. Therefore each seed of the spirit must feel this Oneness. Each seed of the spirit belongs to the Cosmic Oneness in which all cosmic creativeness is comprised. Humanity deprives itself in departing from this truth by setting up a law of separativeness. Immutable is the law of the Oneness in infinite diversity!

Only by this law can one build, because when attraction is creating, the power that lies in the action is Oneness. The creativity of Cosmos is boundless through this Oneness!

Upon Oneness stands the entire affirmed Be-ness. The operating law is so stupendous that all cosmic construction rests upon this principle. In every manifestation this law assembles the parts, uniting those which belong to each other. This great law is the Crown of Cosmos.

In the eternal creativeness of life, the law of Oneness holds. The cosmic creativeness goes forth as a fiery command; a command preordaining fusion; a command preordaining destiny; a command preordaining the replacement of one by another; a command preordaining consummation; a command preordaining immortality; a command preordaining life for each atom; a command preordaining the New Era. Thus is the cosmic creation accomplished by the magnet of life. How then is it possible to split the creation of the Cosmos? How then can those things which belong to one another be separated? How then can those things which verily issue one from another be separated? Indeed, in its saturation Cosmos is strained for the fiery fusion! Only Cosmic Reason can give to humanity the Image of Oneness. Reason gives to humanity the supreme image of the creation of the most fiery Heart. Reason assembles in sacredness; therefore, in Cosmos this law is created by life. Where then is the end, when all cosmic manifestations evolve upon two Origins? When a spirit contacts the higher spheres, cosmic creativeness is revealed to it as the law of infinite unity. When the spirit reaches the highest Oneness, it may be said verily that it draws from the vessel of cosmic joy. Yes, Yes, Yes! (INF I, 48)

Opened Treasures – In ancient cults there was a period called "the condition of opened treasures," when the priestess was already abiding on the eighth floor, entrance to which was prohibited, and the stairs were covered with the skins of leopards in order that no sound might penetrate. This state of "opened treasures" was so reverenced that the violation of the repose was punished as a religious offense.

Everything inharmonious is especially harmful ...

The ancients knew that the "treasures" are unrepeatable, and took measures against accidents. During the opening of the treasures the Elder of the Temple observed which of a gamut of sounds had the greatest effect. Each sound was accompanied by a definite color—thus were conditions for each case determined. (LMG II, pp 117-118)

Origen – (c.185-254c.) An early Christian Father who accepted the task of guarding the purity of the Teachings of Christ.

Christian theologian. He was head of the Catechetical School of Alexandria (203-231). His doctrines were condemned by the Council of Constantinople in 553. (WD)

The Teacher bids thee read the words of Origen.
Thou wilt begin to understand the transgressions committed by the Church.
The ways of Origen's school will be of guidance for our day. (LMG I, 167)

According to Ruffin, the biographer of Origen, the writings of Origen suffered many "corruptions"; otherwise they would never have been published, and might even have been destroyed. (LHR I, p 196)

Appollonius of Tyana was called to visit the Brotherhood, but He, in his incarnation as Origen, accepted the most difficult task of guarding the purity of the Teaching of Christ, and for this He suffered imprisonment instead of dwelling in the Abode of the Brotherhood and participating in the joyous work there. (LHR I, pp 202-203)

As the great Origen said, "Our mind alone is unable to comprehend God Himself, but can intuit Him as the Father of all beings from the beauty of his creations and the splendor of Nature.

And Origen continues: "Therefore, we cannot consider God as being a particular incarnation, or as incarnate at all. God is Uncompounded Spiritual Nature, excluding all complexes. He is intelligence, and at the same time the source and origin of all intelligence in Nature and Creation. God, Who is the origin of everything, should not be considered complex; as otherwise it might appear as though the elements that have created everything considered complex existed before their very origin." (LHR I, pp 306-307)

I strongly recommend that you read the works of the great Origen, that brilliant expounder of the true Teaching of Christ. (LHR I, p 385)

Origins, The – The Masculine and Feminine Principles.

When the Origins will be affirmed in the consciousness of humanity as balanced forces of the Cosmic Magnet, then life will be recognized as the effect of the great law. (INF I, 236)

He who knows the law of Be-ness can affirm that the acknowledgement of the two Origins is the foundation of Cosmos. (INF I, 34)

There cannot be the manifestation of life in Cosmos without the vital forces provided by the Origins. Verily, the power of the Origins spiritualizes the forces. (INF II, 479)

The Cosmic Magnet unites the poles of the Origins for the life-imparting force. If the poles do not respond to the attraction of the Magnet, the consuming of the energy ensues. (INF I, 225)

The Mother of the World appears as a symbol of the feminine Origin in the new epoch, and the masculine Origin voluntarily returns the treasure of the World to the feminine Origin. Amazons were the embodiment of the strength of the feminine Principle, and now it is necessary to show the aspect of spiritual perfection of woman. (LMG II, pp 74-75)

Origin of Light – The Guidance of the Origin of Light attracts all the necessary elements. The guarantee lies in the Cosmic Magnet. (INF II, 155)

Light is the effect of thought. (HIER, 99)

Light is not an independent principle. (ML, p 166)

Osiris – (Eg.). The greatest God of Egypt, the Son of Seb (Saturn), celestial fire, and of Neith, primordial matter and infinite space. This shows him as the self-existent and self-created god, the first manifesting deity (our third Logos) identical with Ahura Mazda and other 'First Causes'. For as Ahura Mazda is one with, or the synthesis of, the Amshaspends, so Osiris, the collective unit, when differentiated and personified, becomes Typhon, his brother, Isis and Nephtys his sisters, Horus his son and his other aspects.

He was born at Mount Sinai, the Nyssa of the O.T. (See Exodus xvii.15), and buried at Abydos, after being killed by Typhon at the early age of twenty-eight, according to the allegory. According to Euripides he is the same as Zeus and Dionysos or Dio-Nysos 'the god of Nysa', for Osiris is said by him to have been brought up in Nysa, in Arabia 'the Happy'. Query: how much did the latter tradition influence, or have anything in common with, the statement in the Bible, that 'Moses built an altar and called the name 'Jehovah Nissi' or Kabbalistically—'Dio-Iao-Nyssi'? (See Isis Unveiled Vol. II, p 165). The four chief aspects of Osiris were—Osiris-Phtah (Light), the spiritual aspect; Osiris-Horus (Mind), the intellectual manasic aspect; Osiris-Lunus, the 'Lunar' or psychic, astral aspect, Osiris-Typhon, Daimonic, or physical, material, therefore passional turbulent aspect. In these four aspects he symbolizes the dual Ego—the divine and the human, the cosmic-spiritual and the terrestrial ...

As to his human development he is, as the author of the Egyptian Belief has it … "One of the Saviours or Deliverers of Humanity … As such he is born in the world. He came as a benefactor, to relieve man of trouble … In his efforts to do good he encounters evil … and he is temporarily overcome. He is killed … Osiris is buried. His tomb was the object of pilgrimage for thousands of years. But he did not rest in his grave. At the end of three days, or forty, he rose again and ascended to Heaven. This is the story of his Humanity." (Egypt. Belief) And Mariette Bey, speaking of the Sixth Dynasty, tells us that "the name of Osiris … commences to be more used. The formula of Justified is met with": and adds that "it proves that this name (of the Justified or Makheru) was not given to the dead only." But it also proves that the legend of Christ was found ready in almost all its details thousands of years before the Christian era, and that the Church fathers had no greater difficulty than to simply apply it to a new personage. (TG)

Sometimes the scattered members of Osiris will have to be gathered. Will not Isis collect them? (AUM, 598)

Ownership – Once the disciples asked the Blessed One how to understand the fulfillment of the commandment of renunciation of property. After one disciple had abandoned all things, the Teacher continued to reproach him in the matter of possessions. Another remained surrounded by things yet did not draw reproval. The feeling of ownership is measured not by things but by thoughts. Thus, the community must be accepted by the consciousness. One may have objects and yet not be an owner.

The Teacher sends the wish that evolution grow lawfully. The Teacher can distinguish those who have liberated their consciousness. Thus said the Blessed One; and He asked in general not to think about ownership of property, for renunciation is a cleansing of thought. For only through purified channels can basic striving make its way. (COM, 85)

The embryo of proprietorship is also fear, the feeling that one must be attached to the Earth at least by something! As if a miserable hovel could be an adequate anchor for the spirit! As if a heap of personal belongings could protect one from the lightning! Periodically the injurious playthings of ownership have been taken away from humanity. But again fear, the father of lies, spins his cobweb and again terrors are concocted. Therefore, let us abolish fear. With it will depart property ownership and boredom.

How much new health there is in diversity of place and of labor! (LMG II, p 204)

Contemporary industry and the entire production of objects has become so unbalanced, in quantity and quality, that for the time being they preclude the possibility of a proper distribution of things. Forcible and indiscriminate distribution engenders craftiness and lies. Can one expect new possibilities in inaction or should one deepen the consciousness in its essence? You remember the words of Buddha about the disciple surrounded with things yet consciously renouncing personal ownership. It is useless to try to take away objects forcibly and thus create a passion for trash. The most important thing is to carry out rationally an educational program on the debasing significance of possession. It is not important that someone remain in his own armchair, but it is important that youth realize the absurdity of having its own chair. It is necessary that this consciousness be manifested not as a denial but as a free conquest. When, liberated from craftiness, people will learn of the impracticality of personal ownership, then a collective of coworkers will grow up. (COM, 251)

Oxygen – Just as the protracted changes into the imperceptible, so is the structure of oxygen invisible—the birthplace of the power of fire. (AY, 499)

The manifestation of transmission depends on the purity of the consciousness and on the oxygen attracted by the Fire of Space. (AY, 500)

Ozone – Synonym for fresh, clean air.

Ozone here on Earth appears as a messenger from Above, yet it will be the grossest manifestation of the Atmosphere. The Earthly azure is lofty, but it is like wool compared to the fiery radiance. (FW I, 157)

But one should guard fire as a treasure. The phosphorus of the nerves is consumed like a wick; and is the lamp fit without it? One can add the oil of ozone, but without the wick the nerves will not kindle the fire. (AY, 369)

Each manifestation of Cosmos has its application in Eternity. And, as is the devastation, so is the accumulation subject to the rhythm which is inseparable from the affirmed course of your earthly events. The difference is that Zeus, in creating a cosmic storm, fills space with ozone; whereas your earthly Zeus, creator of wrath, fills the sphere with suffocating smoke. In this, the lowest and the highest do not meet. (INF I, 18)

The ozone of Space and the rays of far-off worlds will provide the planetary substance for the accumulation of new energies. (INF I, 23)

Economy of energy is at the basis of the world's creation. To enter a new house permeated with ozone means to receive admittance to new acquisitions. The work of a yogi is to destroy the awe of death. (AY, 240)

Ozonators – Ashrams may be defined as magnets and ozonators. Being filled with heart energy provides a conduit for many things. Therefore, when I am concerned about spiritually pure atmosphere, I have in mind a very important consequence. Without spiritual accumulations, the command to take everything upon oneself has no meaning. This command can be given only where there is a heart bond with the Subtle and Fiery Worlds. Only such a bond, during the present earthly conflict, can strengthen those to whom the order has been given. The currents are too complicated to be opposed by earthly forces. But you know about the bond with the two Worlds. Precisely in this communion are found forces for the passing by the most unexpected path. In this, do not hesitate to take care of yourself, in order not to expend energy superfluously. One should not in any manner be diverted from inner concentration. The affairs of the whole world are in a grave state. (FW II, 203)

Pact for the Defense of Cultural Treasures – see Roerich Pact and Banner of Peace

Padma Sambhava – Founder of the Red Sect, one of the two great Tibetan Sects. (AH, p 398)

Twelve hundred years after Buddha, the teacher Padma Sambhava brought closer to men the teachings of the Blessed One. At the birth of Padma Sambhava all the skies were aglow and the shepherds saw miraculous tokens. The eight-year-old Teacher was manifested to the world in the Lotus Flower. Padma Sambhava did not die but departed to teach new countries. Had he not done so the world would be threatened with disaster. (AH, p 63)

Pain(s) – One can affirm that an Agni Yogi does not have purely physical pains. All the physical pains, which demonstrate the presence of subtle energies, are called fiery; hence, each tension arouses sacred pains. The sensitiveness of assimilation is so powerful that one must chiefly avoid strain. (INF II, 328)

The physician who has an opportunity to study the sacred pains and does not do it is guilty. In studying those pains and comparing them with the actions that cause them, he could prepare the steps for the coming evolution. In reality, during the spiritual development of the world, sacred pains should not exist, but the surrounding imperfections create these pains. Thus, in comparing the conditions and causes, one can foresee the direction of evolution. Certainly, much can be improved in the human consciousness if we know that even earthquakes are called forth by the spirit of humanity. One can gradually gather many manifestations of which man is the creator. Thus, the sacred pains are the indicators of the next race in the clutches of the underdeveloped; hence, I say, guard your health. (HIER, 165)

The sacred pains should be understood as signs of the flights of the spirit into the region which binds the worlds. (HIER, 336)

The pending sword fills the spirit with pain. (LMG II, p 14)

Palimpsest – An ancient parchment or tablet that has been written on two or more times for different purposes; the earlier writings have been erased. (WD)

A triple palimpsest provides an example of the stratifications of signs of the three worlds. Let us imagine a parchment on which first was written a cosmogonic treatise, and which later served for a love sonnet, while finally there has been written on it a reckoning of fabrics and furs. Through the obvious bazaar figures it will be difficult to make out the effusions of the heart, and it will be almost impossible to decipher the treatise about the most important. Does not the same thing take place in regard to the hieroglyph of the three worlds? Yet just as the experienced savant is able to read the most complicated manuscripts, an enlightened consciousness can understand the meaning of inscriptions of the Higher World.

Let us not take the jumbled figures of the bazaar for the laws of the Universe. (AUM, 100)

Paloria – The full union of consciousness. (H, 150)

Panchen Rimboche – (Tib.). Lit., "The great Ocean, or Teacher of Wisdom". The title of the Teshu Lama at Tchigadze; an incarnation of Amitabha the celestial "father" of Chenresi, which means to say that he is an Avatar of Tson-kha-pa (Sonkhapa). De jure the Teshu Lama is second after the Dalai Lama; de facto, he is higher, since it is Dharma Richen, the successor of Tson-kha-pa at the golden monastery founded by the latter Reformer and established by the Gelukpa sect (yellow hats), who created the Dalai Lamas at Llhassa, and was the first of the dynasty of the "Panchen Rimboche". While the former (Dalai Lamas) are addressed as "Jewel of Majesty", the latter enjoy a far higher title, namely "Jewel of Wisdom", as they are high Initiates. (TG)

Pan-Fohat – see Fohat

Parabrahm(an) – (Sk.). This Causeless Cause is the Parabrahman of the Hindus. However, Parabrahman is not a Personal God. He is 'That' of the Vedantists. Parabrahman is simply the Reality which has no equivalent—the Absolute, or rather, the infinite abstract Space, which contains the potential space, also called Aditi. (LHR I, p 487)

Parabrahm is not a God but absolute immutable law. (ML, p 52)

Beyond Brahma, literally, The Supreme Infinite Brahma, "Absolute"—the attributeless, the secondless reality. The impersonal and nameless Universal Principle. (TG)

Paracelsus – (Theocrastus Bombast Von Hohenheim)

History knows a number of outstanding persons whose destiny it was to play an important role in the advancement of human evolution, who had previously visited this Stronghold of Great Knowledge. Thus, Paracelsus spent a certain period of time in one of the Ashrams of the Trans-Himalayan Stronghold, obtaining great knowledge. Later, Paracelsus wrote many volumes, but often he had to use the most obscure language in order to escape the persecution which in those times was powerfully directed against any illumined bearer of knowledge. (LHR I, p 423)

The symbolical name adopted by the greatest Occultist of the middle ages—Philip Bombast Aureolus Theocrastus von Hohenheim—born in the canton of Zurich in 1493. He was the cleverest physician of his age, and the most renowned for curing almost any illness by the power of talismans prepared by himself. He never had a friend, but was surrounded by enemies, the most bitter of whom were the Churchmen and their party. That he was accused of being in league with the devil stands to reason, nor is it to be wondered at that finally he was murdered by some unknown foe, at the early age of forty-eight. He died at Salzburg, leaving a number of works behind him, which are to this day greatly valued by Kabbalists and Occultists. Many of his utterances have proved prophetic. He was a clairvoyant of great powers, one of the most learned and erudite philosophers and mystics, and a distinguished Alchemist. Physics is indebted to him for the discovery of nitrogen gas or Azote. (TG)

What you remembered about Paracelsus and his homunculi is very characteristic, because this microcosm can be easily magnified to Macrocosm. (HIER, 257)

Para Fohat – The fundamental, or primary psychic energy in its highest cosmic aspect, and Fohat is its next aspect in the manifested Universe. The same psychic energy manifested as life force is diffused everywhere as Prana. The time has come to bring into oneness the meaning of Primary Energy. (LHR II, p 331)
see also Fohat

Parallelism – We, Brothers of Humanity, do not admit parallelism where there is manifest a spiral of tensity. Parallelism manifested in action and in the containment of beauty is evidence of goal-fitness. (INF I, 76)

Now about parallelism. Indeed, Cosmic Reason draws together the single particles of its magnetic force. But parallelism does not always proceed by the way of the Origins. (INF I, 172)

Parallel lines of advance do not present a picture of the future. (INF I, 75)

Parents – The Teaching says that people should unite according to the elements. Only parents who belong to the same elements can have balanced descendants. (LHR I, p 252)

Past – Leave all the past to Us and think only of the future. Let us not take anything useless from the past; let us not burden our consciousness by anything. I, Myself, will put away and will remember all that is valuable! Events propel one into the future. (HIER, 348)

Patanjali – (Sk.). The founder of Yoga philosophy who lived about 600-700 B.C. (TG)

Patience – Patience is a conscious systematic understanding of what is taking place. Patience needs to be cultivated as a promoter of advancement. It is absurd to represent patience as an inner atrophy, on the contrary, the process of patience is intensity. Thus energy takes part in events, contributing to them and not making erroneous premises in advance.
Thus one should accustom students to patience in its true meaning. (AUM, 344)

We place our confidence in the power of patience. Asserting courage, We will not forget patience. It is a solace to know that patience overcomes any irritation. In the intensity of patience a special substance is created which, like a powerful antidote, neutralizes even imperil. But, of course, patience is not a lack of feeling. During criminal indifference, benevolent reactions are not evident. Patience is a conscious tension and an opposition to darkness. (H, 478)

With patience one can attain great results and disclose signs of fiery understanding. (FW I, 660)

Patriotism – About this subject N.R. has said: "Only broad constructive work on a world scale, inspired by the national genius can raise the significance of a country and its position among other countries. Can you imagine that the armchair critics, who grumble, blame and scoff, can help at all? Can they do more than those whose energy is applied for development of culture? Will not this cultural uplift awaken a true esteem for a country? For every firm structure, first of all, it is necessary to have a powerful center. But a center which reflects a narrow nationalism cannot be successful in the world structure. Where is there such a country in the world of today that is built up of only one race?

And if some people think that narrow nationalism is equal to patriotism, they are very much mistaken. And even if at first glance some short-sighted people see power in it, they will discover that with the further development of such a movement there will result self-destruction. Each power let loose is a boomerang; and therefore we must be very careful about the way we throw into space these powers, for by the law of returned blow they sooner or later will either destroy or elevate us, depending upon how we use them.

True patriotism is so different from chauvinism. It is selfless love of one's country together with respect toward the growth and development of one's own nation. The true power and beauty of a country abides in its multiformity, in a comprehensiveness that does not preclude the fundamental oneness of the motherland. And the one who knows how to manifest this unity in diversity is really a great leader. The narrow nationalism of Germany has degraded that country and, if brought to life again, may destroy it. Patriotism is a high, most noble and sacred sentiment, but narrow nationalism or chauvinism is self-destructive. (LHR I, pp 218-219)

Pentagon – (Gr.). From pente "five", and gonia "angle", in geometry a plane figure with five angles. (TG) Pentagram – (Gr.). The five-pointed star. A sacred symbol in occultism.

The flaming Pentagram is the shield in time of battle. In the midst of special tension man represents such a Pentagram—the larynx burns as if aflame, the extremities of hands and feet are ablaze; thereby, like an unconquerable shield he rises, protecting the manifested works. (H, 174)

All the sensations of the Battle react upon the heart, when the flaming pentagram must be upraised like a shield. (H, 176)

People, My – Who then are My people? Those who do not feel any place to be their home; those who do not attach any value to objects; who love to ascend mountains; who love the singing of birds; who value the air of the morning hour; who value action more than time; who understand flowers; who display fearlessness without noticing it; who abhor gossip; who esteem the manifestation of the joy of beauty; who understand the life beyond the limits of the visible; who feel when one can partake of Amrita; who hasten to fulfill the prophecy. These, My people, can use My Power. (LMG II, p 173)

Perfect Heart – Absolute Reason and the Perfect Heart are one and the same Source. When We say that the flow of life issues from the Essence, humanity may accept this Truth. The creativeness of the Cosmic Magnet is concentrated on exacting the life emanations from the surging energies. The power of the Perfect Heart saturates all Cosmic currents. From these emanations are combined all manifestations of life. The energies which are inert act as intervening currents.

The element which is projected into creation by attraction is akin to the impulse manifested. The Perfect Heart accepts all striving energies and spiritualizes them into many facets. Willfulness does not provide the formulae for creative combinations.

Thus, Infinity affirms all the sources of the Perfect Heart.

The Perfect Heart can express all potentialities of nature to such an extent that any form can find life. The Perfect Heart contains within itself all the nascent life manifestations of the creative forces.

Absolute Reason, from which humanity derives its striving essence, affirms solicitously the creative manifestations. The constructive work of the cosmic energies is directed by the Perfect Heart. The duration of action in Cosmos is termed perpetuity. Why then is it not possible to apply this concept to the energy which impels the spirit into higher spheres? When efforts are made to refine even the plant life, why not apply the same effort toward humanity? The Perfect Heart strains all its energies for this ascent.

The Cosmic Fire is in eternal motion directed by Absolute Reason and the Perfect Heart.

All manifestations of the Perfect Heart are correspondent with the fires which the spirit directs toward the General Good. The fires of the spirit are intensified by those of the highest spheres; hence, the intercourse of the spirit with the spheres is confirmed.

The Magnet of the Perfect Heart foresees the intercourse with the striving spirit. Whither will the light-imparting ray of the Perfect Heart be directed? Each conscious response is a vibration of identity. Therefore, in turn, the emanations of the centers also propel, evoking a conscious striving. The centers of creative Fire build the steps of humanity. The fires of an Agni Yogi are therefore impelled with such diversity. (INF I, 300-302)

Perfectionment – Perfectionment may appear to be a clerical concept, but We understand perfectionment as the improvement of a real apparatus. Improvement of the apparatus in all its entirety is worthy of humanity.

Through understanding of the physical apparatus people must strive toward improved forms. (COM, 231)

Monetary alms should be abolished, as help can be provided through labor or objects. There will be none without work when people will turn to the path of spirit. We intend to demonstrate this advantage of perfectionment not for the invisible world but for you yourselves. We summon to Our Path.

Assemble the most unfortunate ones, the most obscure young students, and reveal to them the gift of power to endow humanity. Advise them to write the statutes in the Temple. It is long since the world has witnessed assemblages in the Temple. Christ will bestow His Grace upon the attaining ones. We wish to see the Temple beautiful and alive. And no one shall expel those walking to Light, for ruin awaits him. Miracles will be received upon the tablets of knowledge.

Let each one who is illumined by spirit walk boldly into the Temple. Our Path leads to the transformation of Earth into a palace. There are no poor. Who is unwilling to accept riches? (LMG II, p 36)

The spirit is a light of the beauty of the stars. But few spirits blend with light; more of them are in astral bodies. Better to glow as a star, retaining knowledge and the possibility of returning to the planets to help. One may choose a better destiny—are the possibilities of the giving one not evident?

One may strive upwards toward light, seeking to render assistance; then there is no parting. If those who remain would consider the departed as having been sent to light and for enlightenment, then the communion would be more sound. The loftier the spirit, the more he beholds—it depends upon the development of the spirit. A lofty spirit feels whither to strive—it flies as an arrow. But a dark one hovers behind the stove. Therefore, precious is the bold desire to seek, because he who seeks finds. If the desires of the spirit are lofty it can discover lofty forms, and in creating them it can contribute to perfectionment. (LMG II, p 40)

Perfectment – Not for confusion of minds is it necessary to know the Truth, but for the reinforcement of the future path. Perfectment rests upon a basis of knowledge. (AUM, 337)

It is a mistake to think that certain initiations elevate one to the step of absolute Teachership; only continuous discipline of cognition can be the living source of perfectment. (AUM, 492)

Peppermint – Essence of peppermint is very good for purifying the atmosphere—either sprayed in the air or put in hot water for evaporation. (LHR I, p 146)

Periods – Determination conditions the law of occult facets. Even a stone is cut in facets for the manifestation of the inner fire. Likewise, the path to the Light is divided by clearly discernible lines ...

A rational path is divided into periods of about a thousand days each. The three years of these periods, similar in exterior aspect, completely differ as to the qualities of spiritual consciousness concerned. The sharper the line of distinction, the more conformable to the plan is the path. Usually the first year of the three-year period is characterized as preparatory, the second is an active one, the third a dim and wearisome threshold.

Let us begin a new period. It may be called "earthly homelessness." One must cast aside all past considerations and rush into a desert of boundless stillness, where thunderstorms and whirlwinds entwine one under a radiant dome. Amidst the storms a new raiment will be woven.

Let the next period be called "The Luminous," and thus let us build it. Let us courageously turn the steeds into the haze of the desert. The experience of homeless wandering must be lived through. In like manner have walked all Seekers.

One can welcome this period, when the boundaries between countries are being erased. (LMG II, pp 194-195)

Permanency – There is no permanency in Cosmos; even a simple object in two consecutive moments appears different. (LMG II, p 157)

Personality – In Occultism—which divides man into seven principles, considering him under the three aspects of the divine, the thinking or the rational, and the animal man—the lower quaternary or the purely astrophysical being; while by Individuality is meant the Higher Triad, considered as a Unity. Thus the Personality embraces all the characteristics and memories of one physical life, while the Individuality is the imperishable Ego which re-incarnates and clothes itself in one personality after another. (TG)

When human conceit drives the consciousness to the turning point and the Ego becomes an idol, then are the Gates closed. The personality becomes a reflection of the smile of cosmic action when it considers itself as an inseparable part of the existing, manifested Cosmos.

Verily, man is the highest manifestation of Cosmos. Verily, he is chosen as the predestined builder and collector of all treasures of the Universe. Verily, the term "man" means the affirmation of creativeness. Long ago was the key entrusted to man, but when revelation illumined him there appeared the extinguishers of the fires. (INF I, 25)

Spatial thinking is not so easy for the majority of people. For this, it is necessary primarily to preserve the personality but be freed of egoism. To many, such an antithesis will seem absurd; for them egoism is personality. The manifestation of a powerful personality devoted to the General Good is beyond the imagination of many, but without personality thinking would not have potency. (H, 55)

One could enumerate these differences endlessly, but only the presence of the fire of the heart will vindicate the characteristics of the personality. (FW I, 347)

Phenomena – An aspiring study of thought leads to an understanding of so-called phenomena, which are nothing but unrealized psychic energy in its various manifestations. (AUM, 287)

A special harm can be found in "phenomena," because the discharge of the forcibly disturbed matter produces a repelling atmosphere of tossing electrons. Nothing harms an organism so much as useless phenomena. (LMG II, p 181)

Philosopher's Stone – Called also the 'Powder of Projection'. It is the Magnum Opus of the Alchemists, an object to be attained by them at all costs, a substance possessing the power of transmuting the baser metals into pure gold. Mystically, however, the Philosopher's Stone symbolizes the transmutation of the lower animal nature of man into the highest and divine. (TG)

The Philosophers' Stone is something real. It must be understood spiritually and physically. The spiritual condition that is called "Stone" corresponds to the consonance of all the precipitates of psychic energy. Physically the preparation is quite close to the preparation of Paracelsus, but he made a basic error on which he insisted in vain. As for the rest, the Arabian sources which sustained Paracelsus were quite correct. (H, 27)

People have regarded the manifestation of the spirit as the philosopher's stone. (AUM, 86)

Photoplasm – What external condition is indispensable for quality in labor? Light. Only light makes labor productive and useful. The butterfly can fly until its rainbow pollen is exhausted. Man has the same rainbow force, which absorbs the power of the light by means of photoplasm. The different plasms are intermediaries between the visible and the invisible. Photoplasm being an emanation of the nervous system, forms a rainbow pollen which absorbs rays of light and conveys them into the nerve channels …

Soon the study of photoplasm will give a new direction to the methods of labor. One may see how the pollen of photoplasm effervesces, and how by tiny whirls it carries the received treasure into the pores of the skin. (LMG II, p 241)

Physician – One may urge all physicians of the World to start upon a mission of spiritualization of the heart. Each physician has access to different homes. He sees various generations, and his words are listened to with attention. When giving physical instructions he can so easily add the most valuable advices. He has the right to be acquainted with all the details of the moral conditions in the home. He can give advice which will compel the occupants to reflect over and above the actions of the stomach. He can even command, for behind him stands the fear of death. The physician is a most sacred person in the household where there is a sick person. And since humanity has taken care to collect a sufficient quantity of diseases, the physician can give many valuable warnings. If we but had enlightened physicians! At present there are so few! The more do We esteem enlightened physicians, since of course they are always under the threat of expulsion from the Medical Societies. Heroism is needed everywhere where the Truth is. (FW II, 217)

Pine – The emanations of pine trees are, of course, irreplaceable. Pine trees, like electric machines, accumulate vital forces, a condensed supply of prana, or naturovaloris. The Druids considered a chalice of pine essence as a chalice of life.

It is always beneficial to have in rooms small pine trees or to spray the pine essences. In this way, the atmosphere is purified, and the undesirable entities, which are so numerous around the human emanations, are driven away. (LHR I, pp 145-146)

Pineal Gland – The 'third eye' certainly has its physical substratum in the center of the nervous system. Pay most serious attention to the two glands of the brain—pituitary and pineal. The molecular movements of the pituitary gland develop psychic sight, but for the spiritual, highest sight, there should also be movements of the pineal gland. The radiations or emanations of these two glands, when unified, bring the highest results. (LHR I, p 146)
see also Pituitary Gland, Chakra

Pituitary Gland – There is a belief that the organ which corresponds to the third eye is the pineal gland. This gland, together with the pituitary, is now considered very important in the correct functioning of the organism. In ancient India they were also known as the channels for all spiritual-manasic manifestations. (LHR I, p 400)

Plain of the Luminous City – Is the name of the ordained new city, the city of the Sixth Race. (LHR II, p 384)

Planetary Chain – Consists of all those spheres of the Subtle and Fiery Worlds which surround our planet and they correspond to the principles in the human organism … Of course, Mars and Mercury are in our chain of planets which belong to our solar system, as well as many others not yet known to our astronomers. (LHR I, p 439)

Planetary Spirits – The Cosmic Intelligence is the Hierarchy of Light or the Ladder of Jacob. In addition, the Crown of this Hierarchy consists of the Spirits or Intelligences who have completed their human evolution in this or another solar system, the so-called Planetary Spirits, the Creators of the worlds. These Creators of worlds or planets are the Master Builders of the present and the future Universe. In the days of the Pralaya They are in charge of the great Vigil of Brahma and They mark the next cosmic evolution. Therefore, the Crown of Cosmic Intelligence does not depend on the Manvantaras; verily, They exist in the dimension of Infinity. Thus, the Highest Hierarch of our planet is one of the most resplendent Gems in the Crown of Cosmic Intelligence. (LHR I, p 339)

Primarily the rulers or governors of the planets. As our earth has its hierarchy of terrestrial planetary spirits, from the highest to the lowest plane, so has every other heavenly body. In Occultism, however, the term 'Planetary Spirit' is generally applied only to the seven highest hierarchies corresponding to the Christian archangels. These have all passed through a stage of evolution corresponding to the humanity of earth on other worlds, in long past cycles. Our earth, being as yet only in its fourth round, is far too young to have produced high planetary spirits. The highest planetary spirit ruling over any globe is in reality the 'Personal God' of that planet and far more truly its 'over-ruling providence' than the self-contradictory Infinite Personal Deity of modern Churchianity. (TG)

Plants – Regarding the application of My medicines, all the powers of the vegetable kingdom must be directed toward the one aim for which they exist—the increase of vitality. It is possible to cure all ailments by the counterpoising of vitality.

Certain plants exist as reservoirs of prana. The pine trees collect it as if in electric needles. And as a bond between heaven and the depths of earth, the earth is covered with living antennae which gather and preserve the true renewing element of spiritual tissue. (LMG II, p 71)

Nothing gathers the essence of prana as well as do plants. Even pranayama may be replaced by association with plants. And it should be understood how assiduously the eye must fathom the structure of the plants. The pores of the plants are enlarged not only by the advent of new leaves and flowers, but also by the removal of dead parts. The law of Earth's nurture affords, through the antennae of the plants, the possibility of drawing out of this reservoir by means of smell and sight the precious quality of vitality, the so-called Naturovaloris, which is acquired through conscious striving.

Valuable as are the living plants which have not lost their vitality, preparations from them dried in the sun may also be useful. But the stage of decomposition should be avoided, because decomposition is the same in everything and always attracts the most imperfect spirits. Therefore, one should watch the condition of cut flowers. The smell of decomposition must be sensed, as it is not the external appearance but the smell which manifests the symptom.

When it is not the season for flowers, it is useful to have small pine trees. Like a dynamo they accumulate vitality, and they are more effectual than right breathing. Instead of by ritual breathings one can thus receive a most condensed supply of prana. Of course, a state of rest also increases the action.

Vital understanding of the power of nature will provide without magic a renovation of possibilities. (LMG II, pp 81-82)

It is beneficial to sleep on cedar roots. You know what collectors of electricity pine needles are. Not only do plants serve salutarily by their extracts, but the plant emanation produces a strong effect on the surroundings. One may see how man can be helped by a bed of flowers consciously combined. Absurd are mixed flower beds whose mutual reactions destroy their good effect. Matched or homogeneous ones can answer the needs of our organism. How many useful combinations there are in fields covered by wild plants! Combinations of plants which are natural neighbors must be studied as instruments of an orchestra. Those scientists are right who look upon plants as subtly sensitive organisms. The next steps will be the study of the reaction of groups of plants on each other as well as upon man. The sensitivity and reciprocal action of plants upon surroundings is indeed astonishing. Plants are manifested, as it were, as a binding substance of the planet, acting on a network of imperceptible interactions. True, the value of plants was long ago foreseen, but group reciprocal actions have not been studied. Until recently people have not understood the vital capacity of vegetable organisms and have senselessly cut clusters of heterogeneous plants, not caring about the meaning of what they were doing. A man with a bouquet is like a child with fire. Exterminators of the vegetation of the planet's crust are like state criminals.

Remember, We do not like cut flowers. (COM, 142)

Play of the Mother of the World – In Our Hindu writings you have encountered the expression 'play' applied to cosmic concepts. The play of the Great Mother of the World —is it not visible to the illumined consciousness? And the drama of blood—is it not changed in the light of radiant matter? Yet for the radiant play it is necessary to have a prepared hour. (COM, 216)

The play of the Mother of the World is in joy. She enfolds the enlightened ones in Her veil of joy. Rejoice amidst flowers, and in the midst of snow—equally redolent—also rejoice. (FW I, 663)

Pledge of the Teacher – The pledge of the Teacher should be understood as an extremely scientific factor. Only upon evidence of a corresponding consciousness in a disciple can the pledge be given. The disciple can either consolidate that pledge or sever it. The strengthening of the pledge can create a powerful bond which is inseverable when the disciple's consciousness is in conformity with it. The correlation of the consciousness to the task is the fundamental condition for a mission; therefore, it is important that the disciple should manifest correlation of consciousness. (INF II, 83)

Podvig – The word 'podvig' is so beautiful! It has in itself the idea of self-perfecting and self-denial, the result of which is the advance of consciousness, not only personal but of the whole country. Verily, now is the time to call for podvig. (LHR I, p 188)

One must seriously ponder the concept of podvig as the necessary condition. The profound understanding of all the qualities that are included in podvig is extremely important. Therefore, it is useful to write down from the books of the Teaching all the necessary qualities enumerated there, as well as all vices which are obstacles on the path. Verily, it is most difficult for people to realize that the foundation of discipleship and of all spiritual achievement is the striving toward the Highest Ideal and the fiery purification of all one's feelings and of one's whole character. (LHR I, p 286)

Possession – It is good to understand that the possession of objects should be devoid of a feeling of property ownership. It is good to possess things in order to take care of them, and even to surround them with a benevolent aura, with the thought of passing them on to others. The manifestation of a creative hand dwells in a house whose occupants are without attachment to property, and being improved it will carry joy further. The sign of the bestowing hand will be preserved continuously, and therein lies the justification of objects. Through this understanding is solved the most difficult problem. I say this for the world, because the ruination of the world arises chiefly from attachment to non-existent property. To inculcate this in the new people means to cure them of the fear of old age. Possession devoid of the sense of ownership will open the path to all without conventional inheritance. Who can improve, shall possess. This concerns lands, forests and waters. All mechanical achievements and various types of inventions are subject to the same principle. It is easy to imagine how folk creation will begin to work, especially in the knowledge that only the spirit offers the best solution. (LMG II, p 35)

That which is the most dear but least of all belonging to us is the best load to carry on the way. Song brings us health, and blossoms will heal wounds. Therefore, I say, happy are those who understand sound and color. (LMG II, p 44)

The spiritual life is always affected
when one's possessions are too many. (LMG I, 81)

Children, be ready for great ingratitude.
Ye may give up the most precious and they will remark it not.
But have no regrets. Traveler, thou must renounce all possessions that impede thee.
And the more thou renounceth, the lighter thy path.
Be grateful to those who have taken from thee.
They will help. They took care of thee.
Thus, he who goes lightly, easily attains the heights.
And thou wilt learn how to reach the summit.
Therefore, be grateful to the ingrates.
I said, I send unto thee Bliss. (LMG I, 330)

Regard nothing as belonging to you; the easier for you not to damage things. Think how best to adorn each place; the surer will you protect yourself from rubbish. Consider how much better than the old must each new thing be; by this will you affirm the ladder of ascent. (LMG II, p 178)

The least particle of personal property of bygone days is like a millstone around one's neck. (LMG II, p 191)

The poisonous breath of possession can be destroyed only by a clearly conceived school program. Literature against possession does not exist. Only a few have conquered the dragon of trash. But many dream about personal acquisitions. How veracious must historical comparisons be! How strictly must be collected biological details, in order to demonstrate the illegality and the futility of possession. The laws of the properties of matter testify that possession does not conform to the nature of man. (COM, 252)

Thus, feeling gives birth to energy. Energy can create so-called possessions. How, then, to deal with these possessions? We know about renunciation, but if something already exists, how is it possible to designate it as non-existent? Besides, would this not be destructive? Thus, let us again invoke the Teacher and, in thought, transfer to Him this burdensome load. And He will transfer our mental gift still higher. Thus we solve the problem of possessions. Thus, the very name disappears, and we remain the guardians of the property of the Hierarchy. For we may read the Teacher's books; the Teacher grants us permission to dwell in his house, to admire his things, and to be nurtured by the fruits of his garden. Thus, the name of the Teacher will always be with us, and we shall smile as we dust the objects entrusted to us by the faith of the Teacher. People do not know how to deal with possessions because they do not care to understand the meaning of mental transmutation of the earthly plane into the subtle one. (H, 281)

Let us summon the heart as a judge—Do we sincerely entrust our possessions to the Teacher? We may utter beautiful words yet desire the reverse in our hearts. (H, 282)

He centered in Himself all Light. He was imbued with renunciation of self and of earthly possessions. He knew the Palace of Spirit and the Temple of Fire. One cannot take earthly objects into Fire, and the Palace of Spirit cannot be made a treasury of gold. Thus one should follow the Great Example. One can sometimes compare the objects of today, but how can one evaluate the objects of the future? (FW I, 589)
see also Ownership, Renunciation

Possessions and the Subtle World – During the crossing into the Subtle World there flash out all the aspects of the feeling of possession, which troubles even people who are not at all bad. One should assiduously keep in mind this circumstance, and be affirmed upon the realization that earthly possession does not exist. A great deal has been said about personal possession, but only the fiery state can prove the illusion of such sense of possession. Only when our consciousness remains our sole possession do we feel the freedom of ascent. It is very difficult to balance the ascent which goes beyond the middle strata of the Subtle World. Therein people do not even think of parting with various kinds of property; indeed, they exist just by means of these attractions. But if a higher manifestation raises their consciousness a bit, there begins an incredible conflict. Therefore, here in the earthly state one must apprehend where lies the useless burden. This should be done not in the name of the Subtle World but in the name of the one higher. (FW II, 177)

One more difficult achievement—it is not easy to gain respect for earthly creativeness, yet liberate oneself from the sense of possession. He who feels the grandeur of Infinity will certainly understand the entire incommensurability of illusory possession on so transitory a place as Earth. He who understands the magnitude of the creativeness of thought will value the Sublime in all earthly creativeness. Hence, let us perceive the one great Path and give over the fruit of our labor to those who come after us. Thus we will preserve the value of labor, not for ourselves, but for those who follow and continue this bond of perfectment. Also, this point of view regarding possession must be affirmed in one's heart here upon Earth, otherwise we shall carry into the Subtle World a most burdensome feeling of earthly possessions. Let people combine the concept of inner perfectibility with the acceptance of beauty in earthly things. Beauty for many, is this not a salutary fire for the wayfarers? Thus the refining of one's self for others will be a worthy decision. (FW I, 635)

As there is not enough room for all on a summit, whoever ascends it will likewise discover that the ascent cannot take place with a heavy load. Furthermore, there is no place on the peak for anything superfluous. The ascending spirit must constantly bear in mind the necessity to break away from the attachments to everyday life. The slopes are steep, and one should remember also that only the foot of the Mountain is broad. At the base there is room for worldly things, but the Summit is sharp-pointed and too small for all human possessions. Mundane occurrences are best seen from the Summit; hence, everyone should remember about the Summit, but should also not forget about the steep slopes. During the ascent, in courage, firmness and creativeness, one should remember that the Summit itself is small but the horizon vast. The higher one ascends the broader and more powerful is the vision; and the more powerful the vision the stronger the fusion into oneness. Thus let us remember the farewell bidding given for the ascent. (FW III, 19)

Prajapatis – (Sk.). Progenitors; the givers of life to all on this Earth. They are seven and then ten—corresponding to the seven and ten Kabalistic Sephiroth; the Mazdean Amesha-Spentas, etc. … Brahma, the creator, is called Prajapati as the synthesis of the Lords of Being. (TG)

Prakriti – (Sk.). Matter. Nature in general, nature as opposed to Purusha—spiritual nature and Spirit, which together are the "two primeval aspects of the One Unknown Deity". (TG)

Pralaya – (Sk.). It is wrong to call the condition of Pralaya 'death' as in the Cosmos there is no such purely human concept as death. There is only an infinite change of forms. Even so, Matter in the time of the Great Pralaya remains in its highest condition, and therefore is not deprived of spirit; for the Great Breath does not stop even during the Maha-Pralaya. The small Pralaya leaves all the worlds in status quo. (LHR I, p 434)

One can discern Manvantaras and Pralayas in everything. From the tiniest manifestation to a change of worlds one can see this majestic law decidedly. One can understand the precise progression that binds the smallest with the greatest. (H,140)

Prana – (Sk.). The Life-Principle; the breath of Life. (TG)

Thy strength grows through prana. (LMG I, 52)

Read, and consider how many times even Christ withdrew into solitude.
Even His Spirit had need of prana. (LMG I, 370)

It is good to be in the sunshine, but the starlit sky also brings harmony to the nerves. The moon, on the contrary, is not for us. The moon's pure light affects the prana. The magnetism of the moon is great, but for repose it is not good. Often the moon evokes fatigue, like people who devour one's vital energy. The manifestation of miraculous power increases during moonlight.

A pure prana must respond to the attraction, otherwise there is no miracle but a destruction of the vital treasure trove. (LMG II, p 32)

Matter is a condition of the spirit. But blood differs so greatly from its equivalent in the spirit, which is nurtured by prana, that the boundaries are broken throughout all the Worlds … The spirit, nurtured by prana, does not assimilate blood. (LMG II, pp 38-39)

Before using My medicines one must spend three years amidst prana. (LMG II, p 133)

The moment of exit of the astral body is also helped by magnetic waves. Therefore a yogi needs sensitiveness to all the intangible performances of nature. For this the yogi needs, primarily, contact with prana. To effect this, the window should not be closed, except perhaps when the humidity is very dense. (AY, 194)

Imagine the Space containing Prana and Akasha. (INF I, 16)

The lungs, of course, do their work in inhaling, transmuting, and exhaling. These functions indeed suffuse the centers of the lungs with Prana. (INF I, 394)

Similarly strengthened with this hour is the red-golden light, which thus is closer to the golden sediments of prana. (H, 196)

Prana is like nourishment for the heart. (H, 568)

When the lower strata are so sullied, the emanations of the heights carry fragments of the sediments of prana. Prana cannot be produced artificially, but its natural sediments purify space. (H, 570)

Prana is purified by the highest Fire, and only this quality makes it creative. Yet even in the plains, even in the city squares, before expressing a decision, try to inhale as deeply as possible. In this inhalation perhaps a particle of the prana of Benefaction will reach you through all barriers. (FW I, 32)

Perhaps the seventh vitamin is Fire. It has often been clearly stated that pure air provides far more essential nourishment than city air. But by purity one should understand a particular fiery saturation. People in the mountains can live longer without food and without needing sleep. The nourishment of spirit, or Agni, can satisfy them without the need of heavy foods. Studies should be made of the nourishment by prana on heights. (FW I, 404)

In an hour of consternation one must know how to evoke even a momentary calm. Such calmness and but one breath of prana will provide a strong shield. (BR, 74)

Para-fohat is the fundamental, or primary psychic energy in its highest cosmic aspect, and Fohat is its next aspect in the manifested Universe. The same psychic energy manifested as life force is diffused everywhere as Prana. The time has come to bring into oneness the meaning of Primary Energy. (LHR II, p 331)

Pranayama – The suppression and regulation of the breath in Yoga practice. (TG)

Pranayama of all kinds in its essence is directed to the kindling of the fires of the heart. Of course, of the multitudes who practice pranayama only very few receive positive results. Wherein lies the cause? A complex exercise is devised and the consciousness strives towards the calculation or alternation of bodily movements, in other words towards superficial methods. But no earthly calculations will kindle the talisman of the heart. The sun's energy is non-existent without the sun; thus, also, the heart will not be kindled without striving towards the focal point. Thus, it is easier to kindle the heart through transporting oneself to the focal point than by relying on material calculations. Of course pranayama has been wisely established as an auxiliary means towards the hastening of results. But as soon as the mantram of the heart lost its significance, pranayama also turned into a mechanical remedy against cold. Therefore, let us remember about the sacred heart as the path toward the focal point. (H, 378)

During illnesses, especially those in the nature of colds, it is useful to perform a fiery Pranayama. This Pranayama is very simple; the usual inhaling through the nose and exhaling through the mouth, the while directing the Prana to the seat of the disease. But for intensification of action one should keep in mind that the Fire of Space is inhaled and the consumed Ur is exhaled. Thus, Fire is again the remedy, and the physician can alleviate the condition of the patient by assuring him how easy it is to attract the basic energy. (FW I, 369)

Do not exaggerate the importance of pranayama. The science of breath that is practised by the true Raja Yogis has little to do with pranayama. The Hatha Yogis are interested in the control of the vital breath of the lungs, whereas the ancient Raja Yogis understood it as mental breathing, for only the control of this mental breath brings a high state of clairvoyance and the restoration of the functioning of the third eye, together with all the real achievements of the Raja Yogi. (LHR I, p 297)

The science of Hatha Yoga rests upon the ‘suppression of breath’, or Pranayama, to which exercise our Masters are unanimously opposed. For what is Pranayama? Literally translated, it means ‘death of (vital) breath’ … Several impatient Chelas, whom we knew personally in India, went in for the practice of Hatha Yoga, notwithstanding our warnings. Of these, two developed consumption, one of whom died; and one developed into almost idiotic; another committed suicide; and one developed into a regular Tantrica, a Black Magician, but his career, fortunately for himself, was cut short by death. (SD quoted in LHR I, p 297))

Prayer – Prayer is the realization of eternity. In prayer there is beauty, love, daring, courage, self-sacrifice, steadfastness, aspiration. But if in the prayer are included superstition, fear and doubt, then such an invocation is related to the times of fetishism.

How then should one pray? One can spend hours in aspiration, but there may be a prayer of lightening speed. Then instantaneously, without words, man places himself in continuity with the whole chain into the Infinite. Resolving to unite with the Infinite, man inhales emanations of the ether, as it were, and without mechanical repetitions establishes the best circuit for the current. Thus, in silence, without wasting time, one can receive a stream of refreshment.

Only developed spirituality can uplift the human consciousness in a single sigh. But we must repeat about prayer, because people will inquire about it.

Needless are conjurations, needless are entreaties, needless is the dust of humbleness, needless are threats, for we alone transport ourselves into the far-off worlds, into the treasuries of possibilities and knowledge. We feel that they are predestined for us, and we approach them daringly.

Thus understand the Covenant: "Pray in no wise but in spirit". (LMG II, pp 186-187)

The Teachings prescribe prayers before sleep, in order to strengthen the beneficent link. (H, 92)

A mantram and all prayers can sustain the outer rhythm and also serve as union with the Highest World. … The beautiful hymns of the Rig Vedas dies away because they did not penetrate into the heart. (H, 402)

Prayer is the expression of the best thought. (FW III, 495)

The savage in his prayers pleads primarily for mercy for himself, whereas the wise anchorites pray for beneficence for the world. (H, 554)

Let the heart become accustomed to converse with the Teacher. Like unto the ancient wise ones let the heart know the communion with the Lord, in order that nothing small should intrude during the heart talk with the High One. (H, 254)

Precipitations – A condensation or crystallization. Specifically can refer to the precious substance that collects in the Chalice, derived from lessons and experiences of many lives. It forms the basis for what we call wisdom and imagination, and the structure of the permanent incarnating Ego.

One may find the core of the imagination in the 'Chalice' as the precipitation of many lives. (FW III, 62)

When the heart energy of nature is spoken of, one must seek in every organism of nature the magnetic, vitalizing substance which corresponds to the precipitations of the energy of the heart. In the Teaching, several particularly clear examples of the precipitations of this fiery substance are mentioned.

Deodar or cedar, musk and amber—all of them belong to the life-givers. (LHR I, p 259)

Study of the physical traces of "imperil" may compel the understanding of the precipitations of psychic energy. One can observe the traces of "imperil" in any nerve channel. But it can be remarked that around the granulations of this poison is gathered some sort of substance which absorbs this virulent viper. The precipitates of psychic energy will be discovered, because each energy has its physical crystal. (AY, 220)
see also Imperil

Prejudice – Prejudice is the entryway for injustice and ignorance. But people should recognize the boundary line of prejudice. This worm lives in the same house with doubt like a younger kinsman. A very keen eye is needed in order to discern such a dangerous mite. Each manifestation, each object, is usually encountered by people with varying degrees of prejudice. People try to justify themselves by saying that since they perceive objects they must as a preliminary measure preserve their unprejudiced judgment. But as a matter of fact, instead of impartiality they disclose the cruelest prejudice. One should keep this popular weakness in mind in order to know from what to liberate oneself. (BR, 342)

Prester John – see John Prester

Preta-Loka – (Sk.). Corresponds to the purgatory of the orthodox religions; one of the lowest levels of the Subtle World and one of the 'regions' of the Bardo Plane that individuals find themselves in if drawn to it by the weight of their still active passions and vices.

When people find themselves in the state of Preta-loka they begin to regret that they did not throw off their outworn rags earlier. The fire of space must consume painfully that which should have been dissolved by the radiant Agni. (FW I, 575)

Pretas – (Sk.). "Shells", of the avaricious and selfish man after death; "Elementaries" reborn as Pretas, in Kama-loka, according to the esoteric Teachings. (TG) Primary Matter – Materia Matrix.

The Primary Matter itself—Materia Matrix—does not penetrate to the earthly sphere because of the whirling of the infected lower layers. (AY, 144)

It is wrong to regard the primary Matter as without spirit. Primary Matter is the first stage of the manifestation of Spirit, consequently it is the highest one. Spirit without matter is naught. By 'matter deprived of spirit' we mean the condition of matter on the lowest planes, when the highest energies have left it and it maintains only the animal life. Precisely, when matter becomes waste it is fit only for cosmic reworking. (LHR I, p 434)
see also Materia Matrix

Primary Source/Mulaprakriti – Only recognition of the invisible world will afford a knowledge of cosmic manifestations. Only acceptance of the Fire of Space in all its manifestations will bring the understanding of the Primary Source. Only the invisible world contains all the intense energies. All cosmic tensions are contained in the treasury of Space. (INF II, 239)

Verily the time has come to return to the primary source; otherwise one may not cross the boundary near which humanity already stands. Earthly forces have been depleted and strained, and the highest powers are alarmed. Only the fiery, illuminated consciousness can restore the broken bridge of ascent. (FW I, 15)

Only acceptance of the Fire of Space in all its manifestations will bring the understanding of the Primary Source. (INF II, 239)
see also Mulaprakriti

Primordial Energy – see Psychic Energy

Primordial Light – In Occultism, the light which is born in, and through the preternatural darkness of chaos, which contains "the all in all", the seven rays that become later the seven Principles in Nature. (TG)

Primordial Substance, Akasa – Before him the weaver has his warp, without which the most skilled craftsman cannot reveal his creative thought. For creativeness of thought, the Cosmic Thought-frame is also necessary; for thus we name the Primordial Substance from which the fiery thought strikes the spark of creation. (H, 50)
see also Cosmic Thought-frame, Akasa

Principles – The Elements or original essences, the basic differentiations upon and of which all things are built up. We use the term to denote the seven individual and fundamental aspects of the One Universal Reality in Kosmos and in man. Hence also the seven aspects in their manifestation in the human being—divine, spiritual, psychic, astral, physiological and simply physical. (TG)

The Eastern Teachings differ as to the number of principles and their subdivisions and combinations that have to do with the definition of the spirit and the soul. But in truth, it is difficult to separate the soul from the spirit, as all these divisions are actually varying aspects of one fundamental energy, which manifests itself on different planes and through various nerve centers or vehicles. In all the Teachings one finds the subdivision of the human being into three fundamental principles: spiritual, psychic, and physical—or spirit, soul and body. In the Eastern Teachings there is extension of these three basic principles, for special purposes, and we find the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh principles. This development was approved by the Mahatmas in The Secret Doctrine. Thus, the highest or fundamental principle, which contains potentially the synthesis of all the others, is the fiery energy of life or spirit, which is spread throughout the entire Cosmos. For this focus it requires the sixth principle, or Buddhi (often called 'the spiritual soul' as distinct from the human-animal soul). Thus the monad is formed, which is primary, unconscious, incarnated Ego. Then follows the fifth principle—the Manas, self-conscious, 'the thinker' (higher intelligence). These three principles form the higher triad, or the conscious, immortal Ego. In Devachan, this Ego survives after the dissolution of the other principles which form man's earthly personality, or, as the Easterners would put it, man's lower ego, or self. In the Teachings, this Higher Ego, or the triad, is often treated as the seed of the spirit, which is unable directly or independently to manifest itself on earth. In order to manifest, this triad needs a fourth principle, called Kama, through which desire is expressed in two aspects: Kama-Manas, or the lower intellect (literally, the intellect of desires), and Kama-Rupa, or the subjective form (the form of mental and physical desires and thoughts). This is the thinker in action. Kama, in connection with Manas (the higher) and Buddhi, forms the higher Subtle Body (the astral body, in order that it be not confused with its etheric double, is often called 'the lower astral'), or the spiritual soul of the spiritually developed man. Kama-Manas is a sort of bridge which connects the higher Manas with Kama-Rupa, thus connecting Manas and Form to make the Kama-Manas body, or human soul. When this bridge between Manas and its lower aspect, Kama-Manas, has been established, i.e., when man begins to receive the impressions from the higher Buddhi-Manas, we can say that man is spiritually developed and approaches immortality. Thus, for the achievement of true immortality, in other words, for the maintaining of consciousness on all the four planes of existence, and for becoming an Arhat, it is essential to connect, precisely in the physical body, the fourth, fifth, and seventh principles and fuse them in the sixth—Buddhi. All the qualities of the basic energy, being separately transmuted by its fire, must be harmonized and expressed in the highest quality of psychic energy. (LHR I, pp 472-473)

Principles, Masculine and Feminine – As it is said in the Ancient Teachings, "From the beginning, before Mother became Father-Mother—in Infinity the Fiery Dragon moved …

"Thus, in the Cabbala—Ain-Suph is Space, Darkness. And from it, in due time, issues forth Sephira—the vital element. Sephira, when manifested as an active force, takes the image of Creator and becomes the Male Element. Therefore, it is the Androgyne. It is the Father-Mother, or Aditi, of Hindu Cosmogony and the Sacred Teaching. Thus, Darkness is Father-Mother; Light is Their Son. Darkness is the eternal womb in which the source of Light appears and disappears …

"Father and Mother are the masculine and feminine priniciples in the Root of Nature, or the opposite polarities in all things, in each plane of the Cosmos. They are Spirit and Substance, whose result is the Son …

"Thus, when Mother manifests from her undifferentiated state she becomes the sinless Virgin, who is adorned with the Universal Mystery (That), but is free from conception. Hence, comes the idea of the Immaculate Conception: She effuses out of Herself Her Consort. Thus, in the Eastern religions, one often comes across the definitions, given to all the highest Gods, 'The Consort of His Mother' and 'The Son of the Immaculate Conception'. In every religious system, the gods fused their functions of Father, Son and Consort into one function. In each cosmogony, the Son was considered 'The Consort of His Mother'. The title of the Highest Egyptian God, Amon, is 'Consort of His Mother'.

"When the Son separates from the Mother, he becomes the Father. Therefore, it is said that in the world of Be-ness, the One Point or Ray impregnates the Virgin Womb of the Cosmos, and the sinless Mother gives birth to the Form which generates all other forms. The Hindu Prajapati (Brahma) is called 'the first generating Masculine Element' and 'the Consort of His Mother.'" (LHR I, p 488)

Prophecy – What is prophecy? It is foretelling the destiny of a definite combination of particles of matter. Therefore, prophecies can be fulfilled but also may be spoiled by an unfitting attitude, exactly as may be spoiled a chemical reaction. …

Prophecies can be divided into the dated and undated. When we have to do with a dated prophecy it means we must understand all the intermediate conditions. A great date consists of lesser dates; therefore it is right to observe the small date.

It must be remembered that the dark ones are working upon small dates, trying to complicate the big one. (COM, 24)

Can prophecies remain unfulfilled? Indeed they can. … A true prophecy foresees the best combinations of possibilities, but it is possible to allow them to escape.

The subject of fulfillment of prophecies is very profound; in it are combined cooperation and higher knowledge of spirit. …

Since time immemorial prophecies have been issued from Our Community as benevolent signs for humanity. The paths of prophecies are diverse; either they are suggested to particular people, or they may be inscriptions left by some unknown hands. Prophecies best of all inform mankind. Indeed, the symbols are often obscured, but the inner meaning creates a vibration. Certainly, a prophecy requires alertness and aspiration. (COM, 25)

Prophet – A prophet is a man who possesses spiritual foresight. Just as on the physical plane there is nearsightedness and farsightedness, thus simply must one understand the quality of farsightedness of the spirit. (LMG II, p 200)

Protective Net – One must manifest the highest respect for the complexity of the apparatus that forms the contact with Fire. The most delicate golden networks of nerves are almost imperceptible to the eye. One must peer into them with the third eye in order to remember them forever and be imbued with respect for them. (FW I, 91)

The golden network, seen by Urusvati, forms the foundation of the Chalice; one can judge the delicacy of the inner apparatus. (FW I, 92)

Each one can defend himself first of all by the strength of his spirit. Some strengthen their protective net, picturing it as a shield. But the fiery heart does not limit itself to a shield; it sends forth the spiral of Agni, which blunts the most malevolent arrows. (FW I, 558)

A protective net must surround the body. It is very important that the aura terminate in a net of vital sparks; therefore, even purple and blue auras must have ruby-colored sparks at their periphery. The display of those tones which are foreign to Earth makes the possessor too sensitive to earthly manifestations. The width of the aura often grows, the insignia of Earth being thrust out. Teros and Tamas must work like brothers, because the representatives of Tamas and Teros must be inseparable.

The spirit imbues the aura with radiation, but the network makes it compact. By the realization of the defensive net one can protect the radiations; but it is impossible to stretch the network without Teros, the ray of which, like a lantern, must find the break. Hence, there can follow the non-coordination of contact with the outer world. This simple condition must be especially assimilated, because the network is regulated by the usual consciousness and the command of the will.

At first glance the leaping sparks seem to be only the motion of an apparatus; but they are guardians, ready to repel the enemy. (LMG II, pp 90-91)

Psychic Energy – Consciousness is the fundamental energy, and the psychic energy is its highest quality. (LHR I, p 499)

As a complex radiance of the Universe the psychic energy glows with fires. This can be called Atma—the highest principle. (AY, 517)

The rise and fall of psychic energy is conditioned by various causes. The most important factor must be understood to be the actual quality of spirit of the bearer of psychic energy. As for the fiery spirit, even during the largest decline of psychic energy, its store is never completely exhausted. But the earthly spirit is affirmed only by the lowest energies, which very easily swallow up small stores of psychic energy; since this higher Fire is brought forth by the tension of the higher centers, by higher aspirations and higher feelings. The manifestation of psychic energy is, as it were, crystallized during a decline, but the fiery spirit is able to inflame these crystals by heart tension. A transport of the spirit can even manifest the potential of the store of psychic energy. Therefore the fiery spirit cannot exhaust its store of psychic energy. This store can burst ablaze during an inflammation of the centers. It can practically disappear during expenditure in battles and during sendings at far distances, but this sacred crystal cannot entirely disappear. Its action only alters its rhythm and its properties, as well as its tension. (FW III, 399)

The Spirit which realizes in life the power of tension of psychic energy can count upon the strength of psychic energy also during the crossing into the Subtle World. Our subtle body is fed by these saturations, and the fluids of psychic energy form the subtle body. Indeed, through transmutation of the centers psychic energy acts increasingly strongly, and the centers gather these powerful fluids for strengthening of the subtle body. When psychic energy is accumulated by exalted feelings, the transmutation of the subtle body is correspondingly saturated with fiery energies. Thus, it is important to intensify one's forces in a fixed understanding of the power of psychic energy. The action of fiery energy intensifies all the succeeding manifestations of life … (FW III, 415)

Psychic energy penetrates all tissues, establishing equilibrium throughout the organism. During sickness psychic energy flows away from a certain center, weakening the function of the glands. Psychic energy is then impelled to those centers which are able to support and maintain equilibrium … (FW III, 416)

The Fiery World has its expression under the name of Psychic Energy. (FW III, 440)

We call psychic energy 'eternally growing'. It can draw its own growth from out of Infinity. The only indispensible conditions are its realization, and its direction toward good. Without realization, the energy remains captive … (AUM, 472)

We also call psychic energy the 'bulwark of self-sacrifice'. Of its might achievements are born. The feeling of ecstasy cannot be experienced without psychic energy … (AUM, 473)

Psychic energy is also called 'a magnet', and in such a definition there is much truth. Of course, the law of attraction and repulsion reacts especially upon psychic energy … (AUM, 474)

We also call the same energy 'justice'. Since through the reaction of the energy, it is possible to determine the different qualities of people, it surely will be the path of justice … (AUM, 475)

We also call psychic energy 'indefatigable'. True, the human organism can become wearied from the tension of the energy, but the energy itself is inexhaustible. Such a quality in the energy points to a cosmic source. The energy cannot be exhausted either by age or by illness. It may become silent if it is not summoned to action … (AUM, 476)

We also call the energy ‘labor’. In continuous conscious striving the energy acquires discipline. Awareness of labor is the basis of development of consciousness, that is to say, the beginning of the action of psychic energy. It is a mistake to think that a single tension will already bring the energy into motion. (AUM, 477)

Since aspiration is connected with psychic energy, then beauty also lies at the same source. Therefore I say that psychic energy is ‘beauty’. Thus one can enumerate all the qualities of the great energy, but as it is combined with all the manifestations of life, then it is correct to call it omnipresent and fundamental. Therefore, let us so call it. (AUM, 478)

Psychic energy is called the organ of the 4th dimension. (BR, 36)
see also Rhumkorf’s Coil

Psychic Seeds – How then are the psychic seeds conceived? These creative energies may be understood as carriers of vital emanations. When the forces strive toward a life expression, these psychic seeds are drawn forth. Thought propels the manifested psychic seeds into space. The creativeness of the Agni Yogi, in his tension, thus directs the psychic seeds. What people term inspiration is often the outgrowth of an impelled psychic seed directed by a carrier of Fire … (INF I, 273)

Psycho-dynamics of the spirit governs the psychic seeds. The net of collected seeds determines the course assigned by the Cosmic Magnet. The psychic seed is present at the inception of each consciousness. The net, uniting consciousnesses, establishes the direction of those strivings which lead to evolution. The acknowledgement of the manifestations of the Lords supports the carriers of psychic seeds. The consciousness of mankind is asserted by psychic seeds. All so-called tendencies are nothing else but still-unrealized energies of psychic seeds. Thus humanity gropingly progresses. (INF I, 279)

Fiery evolution is affirmed in the manifestations of psychic seeds. The creativeness of a psychic seed combines energies in space. When the psychic seed is projected into space, the propelling Magnet collects kindred energies. The invisible process of a psychic seed is most powerful … (INF I, 280)

The principle of attraction of psychic seeds is called the pull of the Cosmic Magnet. The basis of attraction lies in the spatial current of identity. The one transmitting the current arouses an identical current, and the vibration of the Cosmic Magnet responds to the propelled energy. Hence, the psychic seeds determine the future evolution. (INF I, 285)

Psychism – By ‘psychism’ the Easterners as well as the Westerners mean the manifestations of the lower degrees of this energy, precisely those powers which are exhibited so strongly in mediums and psychics. This latter term is given in the West to those whose powers are somewhat higher than those of the usual medium. But in both cases the higher psychic energy is absent, as this quality can be manifested only when the centers are open and are fierily transmuted. Many misunderstandings occur, and many peculiar interpretations and applications are made, because these psychic happenings are wrongly determined.

The psychic realm is vast, and it includes an endless diversity of manifestations, from the highest to the lowest. All which have no connection with true spirituality, that is, with the planes of the higher Manas and Buddhi, is called psychism. All that is performed or achieved through the aid of mechanical exercises pertains to the realm of lower psychism, as such methods can never bring the opening of the higher centers, least of all their fiery transmutation. Such attempts result in insanity.

Contact with the lower spheres of the Subtle World is easy for mediums as well as animals. Certainly, animals see, sense and hear much more than we do. As Luke Berk says, "Clairvoyance is a common faculty; dogs, idiots and men are equally disposed to it". It is curious to note that the vast majority of mediums and psychics (with the rarest exceptions) do not possess high intellectual abilities. Precisely, in mediums it is a certain peculiarity in the organism, and in psychics a lack of balance, that hinders the correct development of the higher centers and sometimes even completely paralyzes them. That is why we do not like mediums but feel rather sorry for them. Due to the peculiar structure of the organism, a medium from birth is opened to all external influences. The will of a medium easily submits to the obsessors, who are so numerous in the lower layers of the Subtle World, and the danger is that a medium does not realize his subjugation. Indeed, for a medium it is a most difficult thing to strengthen the will and thus resist the obsessors and whisperers. Many have mediumistic tendencies; however, these tendencies being yet nascent, they are unrealized, and lucky are those who do not develop them until spirituality is completely awakened. (LHR I, p 352)

The realm of psychism is so complex, so fearful, and it conceals many surprises for the self-deluded ‘adepts’. There is much conscious, and still more unconscious, deception in the visions of mediums and undisciplined psychics. Without the High Guidance, one cannot be safe in this sphere. Only a disciple who is under direct guidance of the Great Teachers can discriminate regarding these visions. In order to see and understand correctly, one must learn to control the lower manas and not permit it to interfere. There are many examples of visions when the higher Manas manifested the great truth but the feeling of selfishness called out the lower aspect of it; and the lower manas, by its interference, not only brought its own additions but distorted the whole sense of the manifested truth. (LHR I, p 298)

At a time when one sacrifices his soul for the good of the World, the other sits upon the water. While one offers his heart for the salvation of his fellow-men, the other flounders in the manifestations of the Subtle World. The saints of Great Service have no psychism because they are always striving in spirit toward Hierarchy, and their heart resounds to the anguish of the World. Psychism is a window into the Subtle World, but the teacher tells the pupil, "Do not turn so often to the window, look into the book of life" (FW II, 14)

One must realize that mediumship has nothing to do with the opening of the centers. Remember that in one of the books of the Teaching mediums are referred to as inns for disembodied liars! The same is true of psychism, which is far from the fiery transmutation of the centers. (LHR I, p 298)

Psycho-Dynamics – Activity of the Higher Manas manifesting as creative striving.

Each psychic process can disclose a tense and invisible creativeness. The energies can be perceived only by those who possess the psycho-dynamics of spirit. The creativeness of psycho-dynamics of spirit is accessible to him who has transmuted his physical energies into cosmic fires. When the spirit can tread this fiery path, then those invisible processes are accessible to him and the path of Truth is open before him. (INF I, 177)

Certainly, the psycho-dynamics of a fiery spirit intensifies all forces around it. (INF I, 263)

Psycho-Life – It is impossible to conceive all that can be bestowed by the power of the far-off worlds! The psychic life is affirmed there as the action of the Cosmic Magnet. The psycho-life guides all expressions of existence, and it is impossible to separate the shadow from the light. (INF I, 164)

Psycho-Magnetic Forces – Which, then, are the sources manifested as psycho-magnetic forces? Three sources are manifested as these forces: the Spatial Fire, the rays of the luminaries, and the spiritual magnet. Therefore, it may be said that the current of the spiritual magnet is manifested as the creativeness of an Adept and of an Agni Yogi. (INF I, 362)

Psychometry – The divination of facts concerning an object or its owner through contact with, or proximity to, the object. (WD)

Psychometry is regarded as the gift of exceptional people, but this common faculty unquestionably has been given to all. Every man in each contact with objects receives different sensations. The distinction lies in that one person directs his attention to them while another passes them indifferently. One should take account of each sensation.

What riches of life are opened up to those who vibrate to all sensations! It is not difficult to awaken oneself to a diversity of perceptions. Each book, each letter bears in itself a complete aura. Something indescribable, yet evident to the heart, is received from a contact. There is no reason to suppose that only certain fortunate persons possess this gift denied to others. The thought of possibilities is already an opened path. (AUM, 576)

All phenomena, such as telepathy, transmission of thought at a distance, hypnotism, healing, clairvoyance, clairaudience, psychometry, etc. are connected with the manifestations of various qualities of psychic energy. (LHR II, p 332)

Puissant – see Degrees of Attainment

Puman – (Sk.). The Subjective Element, Spirit, God. The Subjective Element (God) is spoken of in the Agni Purana. 'It exists potentially in the depths of Cosmic Nature, even as fire is hidden in a piece of dry wood, and as oil exists in the heart of the kunjat tree. This subjective element rests in Nature, hidden as a psychic witness or spiritual element, entirely neutral and not acting. The fusion of this subjective element with Cosmic Nature is effected by a force known as Fohat (cosmic electricity). This energy holds all the embryos and fundamental qualities of all beings and of Matter, which must consequently issue from this union of Cosmic Nature with her consort Puman (Spirit, Subjective Element, God).' (LHR I, p 389)

Pupils, Our – For the reason that Our Pupils bear within themselves the microcosm of the Brotherhood, there is not an indifferent attitude towards them. In their mode of life the same details as of Our Life are gradually revealed. There is endless labor; absence of the sense of finiteness, even of knowledge; loneliness and the absence of a home on Earth; the understanding of joy, in the sense of realization of possibilities—for the best arrows so seldom reach their mark. And when We see the hearts of people who strive toward one and the same garden, how could We not manifest joy? But fearlessness in the face of labor is especially important. It is true that from the realization of the infinite possibilities of the human apparatus one feels relief. (LMG II, p 62)

Purgatory – When in antiquity purgatory and fiery hell were spoken of, certainly transmutation and karma were meant. When the laws were established, their meaning was known. Exactitude of knowledge was expressed in manifestation by the Cosmic Magnet. The knowledge of karma was asserted by the luminaries. Purgatory was put in the place of karmic striving. Purgatory in its present understanding was inherited from the law of transmutation. The fiery hell followed as the law manifested by karma. Karma and transmutation are inseparable! One principle predetermines the other, and the tension of the one evokes the striving of the other. (INF II, pp 35-36)

Puranas – (Sk.). A collection of symbolical and allegorical writings—eighteen in number now—supposed to have been composed by Vyasa, the author of Mahabharata. (TG)

Read the Puranas in their dead letter and this book of wisdom will seem like a cemetery. (AY, 407)

Purity of Life – By purity of life, there is understood purity of thoughts, intentions, fearlessness, steadfastness, independent activity, etc. As for the needs and functions of the body, they should not be considered impure, for they are natural, and only excesses are harmful, destructive, and therefore vicious. (LHR I, p 431)

Purusha – (Sk.). The "Heavenly Man". Spirit. "The Spiritual Self". (TG)

Purusha trembles in the presence of injustice. (LMG I, 206)

Purusha-Prakriti – (Sk.). Spirit-nature or spirit-matter.

This matter or substance is the basis of our Universe in its visibility and invisibility. As a foundation, as a potentiality of all existence, this substance is everywhere one, but its differentiations are infinite. (LHR I, p 382)

Pyramid – Among the interpretations of the pyramids pay attention to that one which delineates the three Worlds. The top represents the Fiery World, where all is one; the middle part represents the Subtle World, where the essences are already separated; and the base is the dense World. This division is the most profound, and the gradations between the Worlds are symbolically portrayed by the pyramid. Such a symbol is truly significative. The dense World so wisely separates the natures that it is even difficult to perceive how they can be fused into one on the Fiery summit. Yet the pyramid was built for the summit. Its foundation was laid only to bring all sides harmoniously together and to completion. Let each one ponder on how many times the point of the summit will be contained in the foundation. The fiery point must rule the unbridled, rudimentary stones upon the earth's surface. A great deal of just care must be applied in order to safeguard the Fiery completion. One must think about the summit. One should not be concerned that already in the Subtle World the essences are clearly separated. The edge of the pyramid may be divided into four parts, also into five, seven, eight, or any other number, but the three Worlds will remain the foundation of the basic division. One may imagine over the visible pyramid the identical invisible one, in an infinitely expanded concept. But this is beyond earthly language. (FW III, 519)

Pythia – (Gr.). Modern dictionaries inform us that the term means one who delivered the oracles at the temple of Delphi, and "any female supposed to have the spirit of divination in her—a witch." (WD) This is neither true, just nor correct. On the authority of Iamblichus, Plutarch and others, a Pythia was a priestess chosen among the sensitives of the poorer classes, and placed in a temple where oracular powers were exercised. There she had a room secluded from all but the chief Hierophant and Seer, and once admitted was, like a nun, lost to the world. Sitting on a tripod of brass placed over a fissure in the ground, through which arose intoxicating vapours, these subterranean exhalations, penetrating her whole system, produced the prophetic mania, in which abnormal state she delivered oracles. (TG)

The approaching time must put at the disposal of every sensitive spirit the tripod of Pythia. (LMG II, p 46)

Qualities – We strengthen our listeners with all the qualities necessary on the path to Brotherhood. It is not enough to possess only certain separate qualities, it is needful to realize their complete combination. The symphony of qualities is like the symphony of the spheres. If one quality develops beautifully while others are straggling, there results a destructive dissonance. Dissonance can be weakening or irritating, or even destructive. Equilibrium of qualities is achieved through great tension of consciousness. The shepherd must carefully tend his flock, and likewise must man cure an ailing quality. A man himself knows definitely which of his qualities is ailing. Life provides him with an opportunity to test any quality whatsoever. In everyday life there can be found the possibility of application of any quality. If a man begins to insist that he has been deprived of the possibility of applying his best qualities, he will reveal his own dullness. On the other hand, if a man rejoices at a chance to apply his qualities, he exhibits broadening of consciousness. Then comes the next step of joy, precisely that concerning the beauty of symphony of qualities. (BR, 60)

The cosmic correspondence strains all creative forces, and when the strings resound in conformity the cosmic tension can propound a creative formula. Thus, when the quality of the energy is consciously assimilated, constructiveness can be affirmed. Therefore, only the principle of correspondence can impart true striving. Only when the quality of the energy assimilates the properties of the cosmic fires is the higher correspondence affirmed. Thus, in each impulse one has to look for the quality of higher correspondence, and the entire power of action is held in the invisible world. (INF II, 455)

Experiments with psychic energy will show how much such a symphony expands the beneficial circle. Experienced observers will apprehend easily the correlation of qualities with psychic energy, but for the ignorant such a comparison will be incomprehensible.

For the long jouney let us gather together as many qualities as possible. Let each of them be of the best degree! (BR, 61)

Raj-Agni – (Sk.). Raj-Agni—thus was called that Fire which you call enthusiasm. Truly this is a beautiful and powerful Fire, which purifies all surrounding space … The thought of magnanimity grows in the silvery light of the Fire of Raj-Agni. Help to the near ones flows from the same source. There is no boundary line, no limitation for the wings radiant with Raj-Agni. Do not think that this Fire can be kindled in an evil heart. One must develop in oneself the ability to call forth the source of such transport. At first one must prepare in oneself the assurance that the heart is offered to the Great Service. Then one should reflect that the glory of the works is not one's own, but belongs to the Hierarchy of Light. Then it is possible to become uplifted by the infinitude of Hierarchy and affirm oneself in the heroic attainment needed for all worlds. Thus not for oneself, but in the Great Service is kindled Raj-Agni. Understand that the Fiery World cannot stand without this Fire. (FW II, 22)

Raja-Yoga – (Sk.). The true system of developing psychic and spiritual powers and union with one's Higher Self—or the Supreme Spirit. The exercise, regulation and concentration of thought. Raja-Yoga is opposed to Hatha Yoga, the physical or psycho-physiological training in asceticism. (TG) Rakshasas – (Sk.). Lit., "Raw eaters", and in popular superstition evil spirits, demons. Esoterically, however, they are the Gibborim (giants) of the Bible, the Fourth Race or the Atlanteans. (TG)

Souls or astral forms of sorcerers; men who have reached the apex of knowledge in the forbidden art. Dead or alive they have, so to say cheated nature; but it is only temporary—until our planet goes into obscuration, after which they have nolens volens to be annihilated. (ML, p 107)

Ramakrishna – A great Indian Sage, Saint, and Mystic of the 19th century. Ramakrishna was largely responsible for the tremendous growth of interest on the part of the Western World in the Teachings of the East.

We recollect how in various countries has grown the understanding of the radiant Teaching of Ramakrishna. Beyond shameful words of hatred, beyond evil mutual destruction—the word of Bliss, which is close to every human heart, spreads widely like the mighty branches of the sacred banyon tree. On the paths of searching, these calls of goodwill were shining like beacons. We ourselves witnessed and have often heard how books of Ramakrishna's Teaching were unexpectedly found by sincere seekers. We ourselves came across the book in a most unusual way …

The call of the Blessed Bhagavan for creative Good will forever remain the great spiritual heritage of humanity ...

In his parables about the Good, Ramakrishna never belittled anyone. And not only in the Teaching, in parables, but in his own deeds he never tolerated bemoaning. Let us remember his reverent attitude towards all religions. Such broad understanding will move even a stony heart. In his broad outlook, the Blessed Bhagavan, of course possessed a real straight-knowledge. His power of healing he in turn gave out freely. He never hid anything useful. He exhausted his strength in innumerable blessed givings. And even his illness, of course, was due to such constant self-sacrificing outpouring of his spiritual energy for the healing of others. And in these generous gifts Ramakrishna manifested his greatness. (Him, pp 87-89)

Rays – The quality of rays is infinitely varied, but two categories of rays are easy to distinguish. One category can be revealed to contemporary humanity, while the other comprises rays demanding from people a spiritual understanding without which the rays may be very destructive. Each ray can manifest a defense only within the limits of its generic colors. If even a very deep yellow is discordant for a violet ray, then how will all the crimson-toned ones strike the outer shell of such aura? Through perfection a new defense is attained, whereupon we cognize various rays, absorbing them with our own ray. We shield ourselves, as it were, against fatigue from various flashes by our own gamut of colors. (LMG II, p 86)

The ray of the Higher Consciousness is united with the rays of the closer consciousness through fiery striving. When, in the creation of good, the spirit is tensed in a fiery transport, the spirit is always unified with the Higher Consciousness. The fiery law manifests its might on the Earth, therefore is it so necessary to manifest understanding of the Subtle World. Each action can acquire a double force by the unification of the rays. The unified consciousness is the most immutable shield. In full striving and fiery understanding the rays will always create by manifesting a single power. The ray can pierce the consciousness, but we call the unification of the rays of the consciousness Hiero-inspiration. The rays of creativeness of the heart manifest the most fiery labor in Cosmos, but the heart must actually be saturated with the striving of achievement. Certainly the Sun of Suns will conquer all obstacles and create new beginnings. (FW II, 210)

Rightly has it been observed that certain rays are apprehended with especial difficulty, as is also everything connected with these rays. That is why we do not try to coerce an alien consciousness that has been attuned differently. (BR, 7)

Rays of the Luminaries – Strong are the rays of Jupiter; they further the rapid diffusion of the forces of Uranus. In time people will discover methods of treatment by means of the rays of the luminaries. Since earthly light rays are curative, how much more powerful are the rays of the luminaries! (BR, 373)

Reason – Reason is the guide of misunderstanding. Rational thinking is being condemned, but irrational actions have also been condemned. This means that there is some force that should supplement the action of the reason. The heart must be the supreme judge. Being the conscience of peoples, it will produce equilibrium. Reason is not equilibrium. (BR, 385)

Reasoning is a kind of antithesis to the attainment of the heart. Reasoning is a kind of magic, but magic is the antithesis of Beneficence. We must fully comprehend magic as well as reasoning, because they are so closely related to personality, to self, to egoism. Reasoning issues from self, magic sets itself against the Highest. But the achievement of the heart, and also of Beneficence, in essence has no feeling of self, in other words, of the most limiting inception. The porcupine flings its quills from itself, and it is difficult to get at him from above. Each one who is argumentative deprives himself of the great communion with the Above. Do not let us confuse reason and conditioned reasonings. (H, 336)

Receptivity – These sacred waves are carried to the spirit who sensitively absorbs the Creativeness of the spirit depends upon sensitiveness of receptivity. Receptivity is accessible only to the centers. There can be partial receptivity; then the spirit evinces the attainment of a specialty. Of course, there is in the creativeness the affirmed direction of an all-embracing synthesis plus a specialty. Thus is life constructed! (INF II, 310)

We build all new possibilities upon the sensitiveness of receptivity. The creative forces are especially powerful when they are strained by sensitive receptivity. Only when the strings of the sensitiveness of receptivity resound can one hearken to the Cosmic Magnet; only then can the spirit gather all threads for creativity. The adherence to the Cosmic Magnet has impelled all Lords to the great self-sacrificing achievement. It is therefore that We value so much the heart which senses the course of the Cosmic Magnet. (INF II, 345)

Regeneration, Cosmic – Cosmic regenerations create new forms. Cosmic regenerations eradicate the outworn forms, evoking new ones to life. Thus, the rhythm of cosmic regenerations shifts the spatial manifestations. The afflux of new forces strains the cosmic spiral. Thus, cosmic creativeness equilibrates the shifting of forms. The dates of departing energies predicate the dates of approaching energies. Hence, the cosmic shiftings are focused upon the dates of cosmic regenerations. (INF II, 77)

Regeneration of the Spirit – The regeneration of the spirit is affirmed also be the eradication of old boundaries. Thus, when the creativeness of the spirit is tensed by its approach to the Cosmic Magnet, the spirit then partakes of cosmic regeneration. These regenerations comprise in themselves the entire potentiality of the spirit, and the step of regeneration will provide a new formula. Hence, when the creativeness of the fire of the spirit is strained for the construction of evolution, it gathers identical energies. Thus does the Agni Yogi gather energies for regeneration. Therefore, the flaming centers can create regenerations. Thus, the cosmic fire is assimilated by the centers. (INF II, 78)

The regeneration of the spirit is achieved through striving, not through the monotony in skills which beclouds one's mind. Evenness is usualness; evenness is numbness; evenness is death of spirit. Only when the spirit understands its line of action can it set itself into the orbit of the cosmic course.

Why, then, is the spirit tempered through various exertions? The beauty of the tempering of spirit is contained in the potential of striving. Therefore, when the spirit strives in quest of the Source the evenness of life is interrupted. In eliminating evenness one can attain the unusual. In this, humanity must affirm itself. The entire beauty and creativity of the Lords is built upon the unusual. The aspiration of humanity toward the unusual will give it the understanding of the New, and will advance it toward Infinity. (INF II, 491)

Regents – The co-participants of Cosmic structure may be called true Regents. Each epoch has its Regents. The Lord, the Man-God, and the Regent of the Forces of Light, constitute the great Power. (FW III, 100)

Regret – Do understand the name of the son of fear and doubt —his name is regret. Indeed, regret after entering upon Great Service cuts off all the effects of former labors.

He who doubts binds a stone to his leg. He who is afraid constrains his breathing. But he who is regretful of his labor in behalf of the Great Service terminates the possibility of approach. (COM, 68)

Reincarnation – The doctrine of rebirth, believed in by Jesus and the Apostles, as by all men in those days, but denied now by the Christians. All the Egyptian converts to Christianity, Church Fathers and others, believed in this doctrine, as shown by the writings of several. In the still existing symbols, the human-headed bird flying towards a mummy, a body, or the soul uniting itself with its sahou (glorified body of the Ego, and also the kama-lokic shell) proves this belief … 'Resurrection' with the Egyptians never meant the resurrection of the mutilated mummy, but of the Soul that informed it, the Ego in a new body. The putting on of flesh periodically by the Soul or the Ego, was a universal belief; nor can anything be more consonant with justice and Karmic law. (TG)

Religion – In ancient times, among all nations, there were, and are even now, always two types of religion—one for initiates, and one for the masses. In other words, one esoteric, and the other exoteric. And it is quite understandable, considering the stage of development of the masses in those days.

For the initiates, all gods were only the personifications of certain cosmic forces. This sometimes explains the strange aspects of these gods, and also the animal symbols. (LHR I, p 210)

One may take for instance the idea of religions and examine it spirally; precisely, not comparatively, but evolutionally, spirally. Thus one can see the one root. (HIER, 356)

So if a religion and its emissaries display cruelty, it cannot be a religion that is a link with the Highest Good! How can one imagine a servant of religion as cruel? By this cruelty he would become the enemy of good. Moreover he would be indicating his ignorance with regard to the very covenant of religion. Good cannot sanction cruelty! (FW I, 592)

In primitive beliefs the worship of the deity was based on fear. But fear evokes terror and inevitable indignation. Human nature inherently preserves the consciousness that the great Origin of Origins has nothing in common with terror. He who feels love for God can utter his Name in his own language. Only with such an all-pervading concept can one express worthy veneration. Nothing on Earth can so kindle the fire of the heart as does love. No existing glory is comparable to love. People are not ashamed to reveal anger and irritation in their basest forms, but the sacred concept of love is accompanied by confusion and even derision. A man who dares to display loving devotion is already regarded as somewhat dubious; from this confusion of fundamental concepts issues the world chaos. The human heart cannot flourish without striving toward the Origin of Origins—inexpressible in words, but cognized through the fire of the heart. Thus, amidst violated world foundations, let us kindle the fires of the heart and of love for the Supreme. Let us realize that even science, by its relativity, keeps open the path to Infinity. Amidst the grandeur of the worlds, can one dwell in malice, in murder, in treason? Only darkness can harbor all insidious crimes! No law justifies ill will. Ill will is terrible, for it leads into darkness. But by what earthly means alone can one prevail against darkness? Verily, the fire of love. (FW I, 629)

In the West, religion signifies the link with God, with the Highest Principle; this means that every tie must be cherished, and the most important intercourse will be through the fiery thought process. (FW I, 646)

Remedies – You have been writing today about physical remedies, but for crowds even barrels of the most precious substance will be useless. (FW II, 217)

Taking certain remedies is tantamount to poisoning. It is necessary to reexamine the field of medical compounds. Side by side with these poisons there are such medicines as precious balsam, and others of which you know, which have been forgotten. One must not reject life-giving substances, no matter how the adversaries rise against them. (FW III, 504)

Reminiscing – see Degrees of Attainment

Renunciation – Each organism is moved by a particular energy, but it is necessary to establish the precise direction of the basic aspiration. Once the disciples asked the Blessed One how to understand the fulfillment of the commandment of renunciation of property. After one disciple had abandoned all things, the Teacher continued to reproach him in the matter of possessions. Another remained surrounded by things yet did not draw reproval. The feeling of ownership is measured not by things but by thoughts. Thus, the community must be accepted by the consciousness. One may have objects and yet not be an owner.

The Teacher sends the wish that evolution grow lawfully. The Teacher can distinguish those who have liberated their consciousness. Thus said the Blessed One; and He asked in general not to think about ownership of property, for renunciation is a cleansing of thought. For only through purified channels can basic striving make its way. (COM, 85)

When you come—come as if forever. When you depart—depart as if forever. When you come, possess everything because you have renounced everything. When you depart, leave everything because all has been assimilated. Affirm renunciation amid goods and chattels. Affirm possession in the midst of the desert. If you perceive a thirst for things, quench it.

Verbal renunciation is like the gesture of a monkey. Ask your interlocutor how he thinks about the community. Affirm your understanding from this thinking. A word contains a thousand thoughts. It is too crude to attribute to a word a precise expressiveness. Only comparison of concepts can determine the quality of thinking. Ask him what is for him most unacceptable. By what is he most attracted? Ask more than once, as otherwise the most important will be forgotten. People have not been accustomed to define clearly the unacceptable. Decrepit man does not agree, but fears to account for it to himself. A child is attracted to something but does not know how to reflect about the basic cause. The new age is in need of responsible clarity. How indispensable it is to force people to think about the causes of non-acceptance! Revelation of the causes is half-way to acceptance.

I have, because I have renounced. (COM, 241)

"Who hath said that one must renounce madly? Madness doth so remain." Is it not madness of hypocrisy to give away everything and then to expect help from others? And if help is refused, to become full of hate, as usually happens. Unfortunately, a certain type of giving is often performed with the secret hope of receiving in return a hundredfold the amount given. But it is forgotten that only those receive a hundredfold who think least of all about receiving anything. Thus, he who does not understand the great law of balance, or co-measurement and goal-fitness cannot become a true follower of the Teaching of Light.
(LHR II, pp 85-86)

The World is molded in beautiful Principles. The expression about the renunciation of the World is correct. One cannot renounce the heavenly beauty. The whole world has been given to man. Therefore it would be far truer to speak about the discovery of the meaning of things. When the manifestation of renunciation arises, it concerns the most perverted concepts, the most harmful actions, but it is inadmissible to misuse a beautiful concept, the World, to describe a generalization of these abominations of ignorance. Worldly matters do not have to be unworthy and shameful. Great consciousnesses have taken great pains over the World. It is unfitting to attribute to them the distortions of ignorance! In studying the foundations of the Fiery World, it is first of all necessary to have an agreement over the understanding of many concepts. Is it at all possible to call gluttony, or depravity, or theft, or betrayal, worldly matters? They are even beneath the actions of animals. Animals know the measure of need, but if man has forgotten the measure of justice it is only because he has abandoned the World and has fallen into darkness. Whoever does not reflect more worthily about the World is not able to distinguish right from wrong. How could he comprehend the Blessed Fire? He would shudder at the very thought of the Fiery World. Let us advise friends to gradually differentiate the World from chaos. I advise friends to begin discourses about the fiery element as the subject of forthcoming revelations. (FW II, 121)

To renounce property does not mean to give everything away and refuse to possess anything. Things are the result of human creativeness, and they should be appreciated. The improvement of their quality is a step toward the perfectment of the spirit. The Teaching tells us that the true significance of objects should be understood, while not being enslaved by them. One has to learn to love everything, and, at the same time, be ready to leave everything for new achievements. Love for beautiful things without possessiveness is one of the purest and most uplifting of feelings. Without love, nothing can be created and improved. Thus, let people learn to love without the sense of possessiveness. Let them admire beautiful creations without the conventional concept of

see also Ownership, Possession

Repentance – The word repentance does not exist in the Senzar dictionary. It is replaced by an expression familiar to you—intelligent cooperation. Consider the essential hypocrisy in the definition of repentance. It is simplest to demonstrate to people the nature of repentance through an example in medicine. By distortion of thought man wounds his brother; but neither words nor thoughts can heal the wound. By persistent effort one will have to mend the torn tissues. For the restoration of goal-fitness it is necessary to demonstrate a wise cooperation. The consequence of action can be cured only by action. No verbal avowals, no oaths, are of importance.

He who has realized his folly can cover it with sound reasoning. By sensible cooperation can one drain the folly.

To absolve a repentant sinner for a fee—is it not the most heinous crime? Is not this bribing of Divinity worse than the first forms of fetishism? Light must be shed from all sides upon this terrifying problem. Otherwise the human linen will remain very grimy. (AY, 52)

Repetition – There is power in repetition. Although incorrectly applied in religion, in life this armor is indispensible. One must repeatedly enwrap oneself. (LMG II, p 50)

Since ancient times, people have been advised at the hour of turmoil to repeat a short invocation and by rhythmic repetitions to repulse the wave of influences. Later, these measures deteriorated into the senseless repetition of religious words, nevertheless the principle remains sound. Sometimes our spirit demands certain reiterations or enumerations.

During the best periods of priesthood's reign the chosen words were: "Adonai," "Ishtar," "Alleluia," and "Aum." Also, the repetition of the alphabet or of figures was in use. Of course, actually the power is not in the words themselves but in the creation of waves.

The fact is that sometimes through the invocation of the spirit a useful wave can be created. (LMG II, pp 139-140)
see also Mantram

Repulsion – More than once during successful research work progress has been interrupted by petty difficulties. Amidst these difficulties repulsion, so called, has special significance. It arises from many conditions, both external and karmic. It is difficult to describe in words this feeling which shuts, as it were, the fiery centers, thus depriving them of power. Undoubtedly repulsion is related to fear. But for ascent one overcomes repulsion. In ancient Mysteries there was a special ritual for the conquering of repulsion. (FW I, 454)

Resins – Cedar tar and other tars or resins, such as eucalyptus, are the products of the psychic energy of the trees and, therefore, they are extremely beneficial for strengthening, purifying, healing, etc. Knowing these qualities, everyone should try to apply them in the best possible way. The best tar is from Siberian cedars. (LHR I, p 145)

Responsibility – You cannot approach the Teaching and the Service without being responsible for all your actions. (LHR I, p 132)

Verily, in the Great Service is the feeling of great responsibility. But one should become accustomed to this chalice, for there can be no shortest path without emptying it. The heart which aspires to Hierarchy feels how necessary and salutary is the Chalice of Offering. (FW II, 14)

The woman who strives to knowledge and beauty, who realizes her lofty responsibility, will greatly uplift the whole level of life. (LHR I, p 7)

It is dangerous not to feel any responsibility. … Each one ascends according to his nature, and responsibility becomes not a burden, but wings. Yet as soon as one wavers, the same responsibility becomes a millstone about one's neck. Moreover, even with no responsibility we cannot swim in the ocean of the elements. This is not a moral, but a life belt. A farewell is only a new, welcomed reunion. We are not temporary, but infinite beings. (H, 515)

How little do people ponder upon the great affirmation of responsibility! The one who accepts responsibility with obvious light-mindedness or with selfish desires is subject to a terrible karma. When the great Service for the good of humanity is given, responsibility should be carried accordingly. When Our vessel is in the hands of the Carrier, it means that dignity should be preserved, in order that the wondrous vessel may keep its wings. Verily, it is befitting that responsibility be carried by a tempered spirit and with the entire solicitude of the heart. (HIER, 341)

It is said, "Useful people may be sent to you, but you should know how to keep them." Imagine the position of people who have heard about your cultural activities and, after meeting you, have found out that you do not differ at all from other people! How will such a discovery affect their attitude toward you and your work? Think, too, about those who approach you through the books of the Teaching—what disappointment they will feel when they find that you do not practice the fundamentals of the Teaching! Think of your great responsibility! I shall not enlarge on the diversity of this responsibility, as it should be clear to all who have the seven books of the Teaching. But you must think about it more often, as well as about all the results of spiritual deafness and neglect. (LHR I, pp 128-129)

But until man comprehends all the grandeur of his origin, that his being is an immortal part of the Divine Ego and is eternally changing its forms, and until man realizes his responsibility and that there is no one who can forgive his sins or reward him for his merits, that he himself is the creator of causes and effects, that he is the sower and the reaper of everything created by him—until he realizes all this, he will remain the disseminator and propagator of the insanity, criminality and corruption which threaten our planet with dreadful destruction. (LHR I, p 313)

Rest – It has been said often— "Rest can be found not in sleep but in change of labor." True, some may discontinue sleeping and obtain poor results. As a preliminary it is necessary to teach the nerve centers to work in groups, One must disconnect the work of the centers. One must learn to unite the most unexpected groups and then quickly change their combinations. (COM, 167)

Let us agree on the meaning of the concept of rest. Around this concept a multitude of false and harmful interpretations have clustered. People have become accustomed to think that rest is inaction; in this way it has become transformed into psychic enfeeblement. Inaction is most corruptive for psychic energy. Each spiritual immobility will fatigue, not regenerate.

Physicians prescribe rest, quiet, all kinds of inaction, and assume that in a moribund state it is possible to restore strength. But these same physicians understand that weakness and collapse result from violation of equilibrium. Thus, rest is nothing but equilibrium. But equilibrium is a proportionate tension of energy. Only thus is it possible to restore and strengthen one's forces …

Let the concept of rest be rightly understood for the manifestation of Brotherhood. Unrest begets aimless bustle. (BR, 44)

The man who knows the cause of fatigue will wisely prescribe rest for himself, summoning to the work completely different centers. (AY, 241)

Rest, like Nirvana, is an effervescence which does not boil away. (BR, 217)

Rhumkorf's Coil (also Ruhmkorff Coil) – Invented by the instrument maker Rhumkorf in Paris, in 1851. This electrical instrument consists of 2 coils of wire wound one over the other upon a core consisting of a bundle of iron wires. One of the circuits is called the primary circuit and the other the secondary circuit. If an alternating or intermittent continuous current is passed through the primary circuit, it creates a powerful electromotive force in the secondary circuit. (EB)

Rhythm – System, rhythm, have a determining significance. In biographies one may perceive how rhythm has strengthened the mind and Fire. Of course, at the present time rhythm is much spoken of, but it is not applied in life. Thinking is very chaotic and life is disorderly. The ancients in their pranayama exercises introduced a certain rhythm, but now everything is permitted and man is the slave of everything. The Yoga of Fire should be another reminder of the predestination of man. (FW I, 387)

If the planet were to arbitrarily slow down or accelerate its motion, one can easily imagine all the ruinous consequences. Hence it is so important to assimilate the significance of rhythm. Speaking of human labor, one should continually insist upon rhythm. Constant and rhythmic work produces the best results. The labor of the Brotherhood serves as an example of this. Rhythm is indispensable because it also affirms quality of work. He who is conscious of rhythm loves his work. But the magnet of love is not easily intensified. Without it reprobation and repulsion arise. Without it loss of quality and waste of time and materials result. It is needful to speak more often about the rhythm of labor, otherwise even gifted and capable workers will lose their aspiration. (BR, 300)

How to await the development of works? As waves have their rhythm, so do the works grow: in measured rising and expectant flowing progression. Understand the hour of the clarion; heed the pace of life.

In moments of silence store up the teaching on the shelf of experience. (LMG II, p 24)

Rig-Veda – (Sk.). The first and most important of the four Vedas. Fabled to have been 'created' from the Eastern mouth of Brahma; recorded in Occultism as having been delivered by great sages on Lake Man(a)saravara beyond the Himalayas, dozens of thousands of years ago. (TG)

Rigden – (Tib.). A part of the title of the Lord of Shambhala. (LHR I, p 401)

One should gather all unwaveringness of the heart in order to find oneself in the ranks of Rigden. (H, 380)

Rigden-jyepo – (Tib.). The Lord of Shambhala.

Right Action – Right action will be in cooperation with the Fiery World; correlation is the result of it, and the fiery centers of the organism resound with the great thought of space. Thus each right action is not only beneficial for ourselves, but it is also a spatial action. The Fiery World rejoices at right action. (FW II, 320)

Ringse – (Tib.). The Tibetan 'ringse' has a deep significance, being the sediment crystallized by the manifestation of Bliss. (HIER, 422)

We consider it a treasure when the heart is ever ready to resound to the environment, being already without tension. It is not easy to do this unless the energies are transformed into resounding crystals; then there will be formed the Ringse so correctly pointed out in Tibet in the Covenant of the Himalayas.
(H, 32)

The deposits of psychic energy are of course perfectly real, both in the animal and vegetable kingdoms. One should remember that the Ringse previously mentioned contains a deposit of psychic energy which possesses the quality of indestructability and vitality. (H, 120)

From Our point of view each vivisection performed upon the heart is inadmissible, just as it is inadmissible to seek the Ringse in a living organism, yet one can observe many psycho-physiological manifestations during the development of the heart. Thus, the fiery heart produces a light spot upon the upper tissue which, during the increase of fire, becomes almost white. The ancients called this manifestation the "sacred ashes." This has nothing in common with the enlargement of the heart, but rather with its refinement. One can also understand why it is impossible to make a comparable experiment with an animal heart and that of man. If the human heart is the throne of consciousness, the animal heart must, of course, differ from it in certain functions. Moreover, a violation of the action of the heart after the ejection of one's subtle body would be a real crime. Each artificial pulsation of the heart will attract the subtle body and perpetrate an unpardonable act of decomposition and suffering. (H, 354)

Rishi – (Sk.). Adept; the inspired one. Master.

Roerich, Helena and Nicholas – (1879-1955) (1874-1947) The Roerichs were born in Russia and grew up there, steeped in the cultural heritage of that country. Nicholas became known as a great Russian artist and humanitarian. When the century was still young, Nicholas and Helena Roerich received the Mission to traverse certain countries of Europe and Asia, summoning men to reverence for culture, for the achievements of human genius, issuing the call for Peace based upon real spiritual values and expansion of consciousness. After meeting with the Masters, during their sojourn in Europe, they were directed first to come to America, to bring to the New World the New Teaching.

In addition to spreading the Teaching, the Roerich's founded The Master School of United Arts, the Roerich Museum, the Agni Yoga Society, the International Art Center, and the Roerich Pact and Banner of Peace Committee.

In 1923, Professor and Madame Roerich, with their two highly gifted young sons, left for Europe, where they had to equip an expedition to proceed through the heart of Asia. For five years the expedition travelled, covering India, Tibet, Little Tibet, Sikkim, Mongolia, Chinese Turkestan, Altai, etc. Twice Professor Roerich left the expedition for brief periods of time to come to this country for most important decisions to be conveyed to his coworkers here. Plans were laid, and brought into reality, of founding an International Art Center, also combining science and related subjects. Foundations were laid for a number of museums, each dedicated to a special nation. Exchanges of exhibitions, artists, lecturers, and scientists were promoted; scholarships were given at the Master Institute of the Roerich Museum which taught all arts under one roof.

After their return in 1929 from the Central Asiatic Expedition, Professor and Madame Roerich chose Naggar in Kulu Valley, India, as their place of residence and as the best site for a scientific institution which was founded by them under the name of Urusvati Himalayan Research Institute.

Roerich Pact and Banner of Peace – The Roerich Pact and Banner of Peace was created and promulgated by Nicholas Roerich, for the protection of the treasures of human genius. It provides that educational, artistic, religious and scientific institutions, as well as all sites of cultural significance, shall be deemed inviolable, and respected by all nations in times of war and peace.

On April 15, 1935 this Pact was signed in the White House, in the presence of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, by the representatives of twenty-one Governments of North, Central and South America. (Preface to Memorial Booklet)

The Banner of Peace is the symbol of the Roerich Pact. This great humanitarian ideal provides in the field of mankind's cultural achievements the same guardianship as the Red Cross provides in alleviating the physical sufferings of man.

The design of the Banner of Peace shows three spheres surrounded by a circle in magenta colour on a white background. Of the many national and individual interpretations of this symbol, the most usual are perhaps those of Religion, Art and Science as aspects of Culture which is the surrounding circle; or that of Past, Present and Future achievements of humanity guarded within the circle of Eternity. These two interpretations are equally good, for they represent a synthesis of life that is a true and just ruling precept. (Roerich Pact and The Banner of Peace, p 5)

Rose – A rose is a symbol of consonance, and the dominant of the radiation of the rose is linked with the glow of the heart. (H, 66)

Rosenkrenz, Christian – A learned Adept of Germany who lived around 1460 and founded an Order of mystical students known as Rosicrucians. (TG)

Christian Rosenkrenz, the founder of the Order of the Rosicrucians, upon his return from Asia was compelled to introduce the teaching of the East in a semi-Christian form. Otherwise, his disciples would have been persecuted by the fanatics and bigots. (LHR I, p 453)

Ruhmkorff Coil – see Rhumkorf's Coil

Rupa – (Sk.). Body; any form, applied even to the forms of the gods, which are subjective to us. (TG)

see also Kama-Rupa

Sacred – The word sacred is completely out of use. Sacrilege has replaced sacredness. Many are the possible applications of the word sacred on Earth, but men have cast out the most beautiful. When thought wandered from the sacred destination of Being, the very meaning of Being evaporated. The manifestation of supreme concordance is a sacred act of the spirit. The sacred union is the foundation of all Be-ness. Thus the higher spheres reveal the loftier forms of Materia Lucida. When even upon Earth concordance lends beautiful forms to colors, sounds, and to man, what may not be reached in the higher concordance!

Maitreya sees the New World of concordance! (INF I, 95)

Sacred Action – The action of the Cosmic Magnet.

Upon each field, upon each action, upon each manifestation, the cosmic blending radiates. Each vibration is strained by the pull of the Magnet. Therefore, the Sacred Action lives in every cosmic manifestation. (INF II, 128)

Sacred Source – The spirit which is affirmed as a true co-worker and helper of the Cosmic Forces should be regarded as a Sacred Source. (FW III, 70)

Sacrifice – Sacrifice is power. Power is possiblity. Consequently every sacrifice is first of all a possibility.

It is time to cast aside the hypocrisy that sacrifice is deprivation. We do not accept deprivations, but We give possibilities.

Let us see what possibilities are born from the so-called sacrifice. Where is a true sacrifice which can demean? In Our Treasury there is a large collection of sacrifices, and each one was useful to the one who made it. We dislike to speak about sacrifices, because a sacrifice is the most profitable undertaking. (LMG II, p 101)

Fortitude will carry you through,
And the self-sacrificing achievements of the spirit will be transformed into the fragrance of freesias. (LMG I, 433)

The path of self-sacrifice leads to consummation! (INF I, 219)

The Brothers of Humanity willingly renounce Paranirvana for the affirmation of human evolution, in their desire to lay the foundation for a better step. The goal is not divested of labor. The goal is not divested of sacrifice. (HIER, 1)

Domination is the lowest form of consciousness because it is caused by fearful, all-excluding egoism; while power, blessed by the highest knowledge and strained by the heart, is the highest sacrifice. (LHR I, p 27)

Let nobody be so low as to allow himself to count his contributions or so-called sacrifices. This would be equal to the blocking of the path. All real contributions and sacrifices are weighed on the innermost scales of conscience which exist in everyone. (LHR I, p 126)

Saddhu – (Sk.). A saintly person, a spiritual teacher. The term is applied at the present time to almost every travelling monk and pilgrim in India. (LHR I, p 266)

Sadhana – (Sk.). Perfected Devotion.

Saint-Germain – see St. Germain

Saints – Saints have been spoken about, but to whom can this inexplicable concept be applied?

Those who perform miracles will be learned magicians. Those who keep their lives in purity will be practical people. Only those who have consciously renounced all the personal and who have transported their consciousness into the conception of world evolution can be called saints in Our understanding. It is imperative that this process be accomplished consciously, outside of fortuitous external conditions. (LMG II, pp 199-200)

Saint Sergius – see Sergius of Radonega

Salamanders – Salamanders, as entities of the lower fire, cannot be very luminous. When I showed you a salamander I wished to give you a conception of the creatures of the fiery depths. (FW II, 28)

Samadhi – (Sk.). A state of ecstatic and complete trance. The term comes from the words Sam-ahda, 'self-possession'. He who possesses this power is able to exercise an absolute control over all his faculties, physical or mental; it is the highest state of Yoga. (TG)

Are there not traits of egoism in the state of ecstasy, the state of Samadhi? The ignoramus will ask this question. How could he know that this supreme state is not only unrelated to selfhood but antithetical to it! How could one who has never experienced the highest tension apprehend that that, precisely, carries the highest Bliss for the General Welfare! Nothing gives birth to such pure abnegation of self as that induced by the exultation of the brimming heart. Which of the human energies can compare with the energy of the heart, and which of the energies can act at long distances? The worlds have no boundaries for it and consciousness knows no limitations. Thus, a window can be cut through into the Invisible. But, as was said, the Invisible will become visible and we shall be ready to apply the Fiery Baptism in life. Therefore, let us give due regard to the significance of the experiment performed by the Mother of Agni Yoga here, without abandoning life. From the first spatial sparks, through all fires up to Samadhi, she will leave writings which will become the threshold of the New World. Therefore, I speak not only of tension but also of great caution. Armageddon does not lighten the conditions of ascent; what was achieved is therefore the more valuable.

Thus, I say, learn to harken to the fiery heart. Do not doubt that which is purified by Fire. Wise is the revelation of the foundations of the heart in life; and how greatly one ought to rejoice at this rock of Good.

Cling more firmly to Me. Cling to Me at each moment, on all steps. The daggers of Satan are aimed at one's back, but if there is a firm unity, the blade will break against the rock of Good. Firm striving, useful on all worlds, is needed. (H, 210)

Samadhi is only a partial fiery state. It is difficult on Earth to understand the potentiality of the fiery existence, when even Samadhi does not correspond to it entirely.

If Samadhi even endangers life, then what tension of energy must be required for the assimilation of fire! (FW I, 659)

Samjna – (Sk.). Perception. (LHR I, 478)
see also Samskara, Skandhas

Samskara – (Sk.). Lit., from Sam and Kri, to improve, refine, impress. In Hindu philosophy the term is used to denote the impressions left upon the mind by individual actions or external circumstances, and capable of being developed on any future favorable occasion—even in a future birth. The Samskara denotes, therefore, the germs of propensities and impulses from previous births to be developed in this, or the coming janmas or reincarnations. (TG) Samskara are the inclinations and creative powers, explaining the present dharmas by the previous and indicating which of the present dharmas prepare those of the future.

Samskara are accumulations left by former sensations and lending their fragrance to future sensations. From this definition of samskara (skandhas) it is clear that this group of elements appears as the one absorbing all peculiarities of other skandhas. Vijnana-skandha, and partly samja, lend their coloring or character to the other combinations, and therefore appear as the cause, defining the next existence, in the sense of strivings and inclinations. (LHR I, p 478)

Samyana – What is said about the Samyana of yogis is not just invention; it is a scientific method of confirming cosmic forces. (INF I, 6)

Sanhedrin(m) – (Heb.). A word of Jewish antiquity meaning Assembly. (WD)

Santana – In Sanskrit the word ‘Santana’ means "a stream". It is customary in Buddhism to compare the chain of our lives with a perpetual current, or stream. Therefore, the Teachings tell us to "go through Santana with your heart". In other words, to go through all our lives with the tireless striving of the heart. (LHR I, p 325)

The understanding of Santana is a vast affirmation of the stream of energy. (H, 400)

Santana was not a meaningless rolling of stones. It is like a stream feeding the adjoining fields, like a brook bringing cleanliness to the hearth. (FW I, 508)

Santana, the current of life, transforms and predetermines a great deal, yet there remains a place for free-will. The Rays of the Luminaries determine much, but the bond with the Higher World is strong, and in this respect it will have the greater significance. It may be understood that the Teaching about Guides has a great importance in all faiths. People must realize that to them is given the possibility of passing through the melee and through all straits with the help of the Higher Guides, but that they must not reject the helping Hand. One must come to love the Guide with all one’s heart. Not by earthly means does the Guide bring help—therefore one must be sensitively conscious of this fiery thread. Throughout one's entire life can be seen the wonderful protection, if one's eyes are opened. Thus Santana itself is no stronger than the manifestation of the Higher Worlds. (FW III, 569)

Sarasvati – (Sk.). The same as Vach, wife and daughter of Brahma, produced from one of the two halves of his body. She is the goddess of speech and of sacred knowledge and wisdom. Also called Sri. (TG)

Satan – Nowhere are there indications that it is difficult only upon Earth; in comparison it must be said—if here one is annoyed by devils, the Archangel is threatened by Satan himself. (FW III, 30)

New planetary chemisms have an enormous significance. One may picture that the chemism of Saturn is attracting a certain type of being. Who knows what penalty is being prepared for those who serve Satan? You have long known the old legend about Satan. One must note that the fury of those who serve him already reaches the point of madness. Thus, for some the spot on Saturn is just a spot, but for others it is a confirmation of the old legend. Many manifestations are related to Armageddon. (FW II, 124)

What, then, is to be done if Satan has so firmly implanted distrust. (FW II, 135)

The Teaching calls upon people to help themselves and to respect their own nature. But the deepest, darkest ulcer is considered fitting for those who trust Satan. It is difficult to imagine how many people are addicted to Satanic rituals! Entire schools are busy spreading such harmful principles. Much already has been told to you about terrors, but when I see new transgressions, I cannot but warn you once more. Be not surprised at dizziness and headaches; each particle of your energy is tensed and on guard, for it is necessary to protect you from many projectiles. Unprecedented necromancy is being applied by the dark ones, in order to summon the very lowest spirits; for they are indifferent to consequences, they wish to be strengthened for just one hour. But a counter-blow is naturally drawing near. (FW II, 149)

Satan is very anxious to make an end of the Earth, in order to concentrate his forces on the Subtle World, which cannot be destroyed in the same way as Earth. Thus the Proprietor of Earth through present treachery is betraying the Earth. He is a poor Proprietor in that he cultivated such a nature within himself. He causes Us double labor by keeping up the fires of chaos. (FW II, 187)

It is well that you understand to what extent the Prince of this World is taking measures for a new battle in all parts of the World. (FW II, 317)

Verily, Satan himself saturates the world with fanaticism. (FW III, 330)

An old proverb says: "The bridle of Satan is strong." Another: "He who has seen the image of Satan will never forget it." Ancient peoples upheld the concept of the inertness of human consciousness. Our chief counsel is to inculcate a reasonable mobility. (AY, 524)

It is precisely not cowardice to look about sharply, especially when you are aware of the determinations of Satan. A small seed can be thrown surreptitiously to harm even a giant. Thus, those who desire to harm others will try out all measures, not being certain of where evil may flourish. In this evil sowing lies the success of darkness. People forget how cautious they must be, for intent of evil not only creeps in like a tiger but also like a tiny mouse. (H, 424)

Saturn – Slander of the Teaching is worse than death of the spirit, because by this act man exiles himself from cooperation and dooms himself to Saturn. (AY, 98)

Uru and Svati are found in cosmogony. The signs of approaching Aquarius and the combination with Saturn are repeated. (AY, 516)

The appearance of sun spots on Saturn only indicates cosmic ruptures, which are sending an unprecedented chemism to the Earth. (FW II, 122)

The heavy currents of Saturn and of other unfavorable combinations of the planets are especially helpful to them (the dark forces, ed. note). (LHR I, p 137)

For your consolation I may tell you that all who are truly devoted to the pure Knowledge and to the General Good will depart for higher spheres. Sad will be the destiny of those who are left on the fragments of the wrecked ship or shifted to Saturn. (LHR I, p 454)

Satya Yuga – (Sk.). The golden age, or the age of truth and purity. (TG)

It would be more correct to say that the cycle of Kali Yuga is approaching its end on our planet and that we are now going through a transitory stage. Satya Yuga must begin with the affirmation of the sixth race, individual groups of which are already appearing on Earth. But the true era of Satya Yuga on our planet can begin only after the planet is purified of its unfit material and new continents are formed. As usual, the passages of the epoch appear much earlier, but the continents that are predestined to accept the majority of the sixth race can manifest many signs of the coming New Epoch. (LHR I, p 456)

All world upheavals and spiritual shiftings are governed by Fire. Only when Our Principle will be affirmed upon the planet will the era of Satya Yuga begin. All of human life proceeds aimlessly for those who do not accept the Perfect Heart and the sublimity of Reason. (INF II, 279)

The Fiery Host is often called thus because Satya Yuga begins with the element of fire.

(AY, 307)

Therefore, during the epoch of unbalance between good and evil, prior to the epoch of Satya Yuga, humanity must show exactitude of direction. (INF I, 230)

Thus one can see the end of Kali Yuga. It depends upon humanity where will be the beginning of Satya Yuga. We know that Satya Yuga is preordained, but its location and conditions may differ. (HIER, 118)

It is generally known that before the beginning of Satya Yuga the scroll of karma rolls up with especial rapidity. (HIER, 364)

We finish Our writing on this Great Day, when one more step of Satya Yuga has begun. The step of ascent was proclaimed through scriptures long ago, but the dust of the bazaar dulled people's eyes. So it is today. It will again be asked, "Where is the trumpet call, where are the wings of the angels, where is the sundering mountains and seas?" The blind ones take the tempest for a call to the repast.

Thus, the cure is in the realization of the Hierarchy of the Heart. The Teaching will be revealed to those who have perceived the right path. The Messenger will knock at their door. (HIER, 460)

Scala Furiosa – (Lat.). When the dawn is aflame with battle, thoughts about the future and about General Welfare are especially necessary. Scala Furiosa will not touch the heart which is fortified by the thought of Service. (H, 496)

Scarf of the Mother of the World – How, then, shall we proceed? Exactly by clinging firmly to Me, and imagining yourself in the midst of the ocean, where only the

Scarf of the Mother of the World guards one. (H, 203)

Seal of the Hierarch – Useful for Hiero-inspiration is the current which is called the Seal of the Hierarch. It can be sensed upon the nape, it shines as a white ray. Through knowledge of Hiero-inspiration it is possible to remember this sensation. (FW II, 282)

Secrecy – A seal is the guardian of a secret. Secrecy has existed in all times. Where the knowledge is small, secrecy must be used. (COM, 99)

Secret Doctrine – The general name given to the esoteric teachings of antiquity. (TG)

The great volume of occult lore authored by H.P. Blavatsky and first published in 1888.

Secretions – The secretions serve for the most sacred acts, and not only the substance itself but its emanations participate in the creativeness of the world. What you remembered about Paracelsus and his homunculi is very characteristic, because this microcosm can be easily magnified to Macrocosm. And the Teaching about the great spiritual secretions has a great foundation. (HIER, 257)

Each Mahatma began his ascent from the very midst of people, having only dared to choose the difficult path of the Great Soul. And, besides daring, he found in his heart indignation of spirit, for how else can the fires be kindled? Upon these fires the precious substance of the secretions is transmuted into a healing substance. One can see how the saliva of a fiery being can remove an inflammation and restore the vital energy to numb centers. Alongside the sacred property of secretions stands the healing power of the laying on of hands. It is instructive to compare the secretions of men having dormant centers with the ejection of the fiery substance. If I advise medicines made from plants for common organisms, then for the more knowing ones there is a powerful laboratory of sacred fiery secretions. (HIER, 304)

All secretions possess the same properties. In like manner each spatial entity of equal degree is attracted to blood and saliva. (HIER, 264)

Sediments – Concentrations of crystals of psychic energy grow during each heightening of aspiration. Each tension of power of the spirit multiplies the crystals of psychic energy. Sediments of precipitated crystals, consisting of subtle energies which have been chemically transformed in the organism, feed those organs which are in special need during the expenditure of energy. Crystals of psychic energy melt down substances harmful for the organism. Through conscious tension one can actually promote this dissolving process, which is of service as a counteracting factor. Conscious sendings of psychic energy to infected or injured organs can produce a healing effect. Conscious tension of the will causes spontaneous action of the crystals. Thus, thoughts about psychic energy crystals can bring needed assistance for the injuries of internal organs. On the path to the Fiery World it is necessary to realize those fiery batteries which are contained in man. (FW III, 218)

The consciousness contains within itself all the traces of past lives, impressions of each manifestation as well as each thought and striving for revealing of a broad horizon. The consciousness is fed by the "chalice" and the heart, and each compressed energy is deposited in the consciousness, unbreakably connected with the spirit. The spirit, upon becoming separated from the body, preserves a full connection with higher and lower energies. Certainly, the Teacher leads wisely in pointing out the affirmation of vital transmutation. Indeed, through the immortality of the spirit there are preserved all manifestations of vital energies. As are the sediments, so will be the future crystals. And thought, and heart, and creativeness, and all the other manifestations collect this energy. The whole fiery potential of the spirit consists of radiations of vital energies. Therefore, speaking about spirit and consciousness, one must take the spirit as the crystal of all higher manifestations. The ancients knew about the crystalline quality of the spirit, and the spirit was revealed as fire or flame in all the higher manifestations. Therefore, it is so important to understand the true significance of fiery transmutation.

Verily, spirit and matter are refined in one impulse toward attainment of the higher fiery consciousness. (FW III, 227)

The present condition of the World corresponds to the stratified sedimentations accumulated by humanity. (FW III, 318)

Seed of the Spirit – The Monad.

The seed of the spirit is a fragment of the elementary fire. And the energy accumulated around it is consciousness. (AY, 275)

The seed which transmits life to a strong spirit is verily that heritage which is passed on by the Hierarchic Principle. All those who desire to be affirmed in the conception of attainment must undeferrably adhere to the principle of Fiery Guidance. The seed is transmitted as a great fiery approach. The traveller who has realized the destiny of fiery achievement must recognize the law of the cosmic inheritance. Cosmic laws are affirmed in the basis of life, and nothing will be living whose basis is not palpitating with fire. Only he who can aspire to the fiery principle will comprehend the beauty of the fiery receptivity of Fire. Through a realization of unity with the Higher Forces it is possible to trace how the heart absorbs the Rays of Hierarchy. Only the most close ones can resound to the Rays, which affirm a fiery vibration. In transmission and reception one should remember the law that every vibration may be accepted by the spirit which stands on the most fiery step. On the path to the Fiery World one must keep in mind that one's self-manifestation as a transmitter connects one's energies with Hierarchy. Such understanding leads to the unity of spirit, which is one in its essential nature. (FW III, 73)

All molecules move in conformity with the attraction; all spatial fires move in conformity with the attraction. It is the cosmic seed which attracts all atoms to itself. In truth, each atom is a seed, but there are cosmic seeds. Thus, each luminary attracts energies into its vortical rings and permeates them with its rays. Hence, the Spatial fire is not uniform but of varying tensions and properties.

In rotation, the luminaries attract and enfold the energies in their orbits; hence, the creativeness of the luminaries saturates the Universe. The quality of the seed of the spirit is established for an entire Manvantara and comprises an essence identical with that of the luminary. Certainly, the monad is likewise saturated by the luminaries, as it constitutes the seed of the spirit. (INF I, 328)

The seed of the spirit and the divisibility of spirit provide the explanation regarding the monad. The seed of the spirit is indispensable to life. The divisibility of spirit makes possible both the enrichment and the dissipation of the monad. One can consciously divide one's spirit for the good of the world and send forth its separate parts for achievement. From this, only enrichment results. But ignorance may dissipate the treasure and remain together with a dormant seed. From this, soullessness results. Actually, the parts of the spirit dissipated in ignorance may become obsessing agents, and then, woe to the sleeping heart! Thus, in order to avoid returning again to the divisibility of spirit, let us remember that the seed of the spirit can sleep or can be radiant in vigilance. Only by this light is the magnet of the heart created, which attracts to its bosom the released parts of spirit. There is a vast difference between setting free and losing. Thus, one can remember that the slumbering seed of the spirit, though it maintains life, admits all the qualities of soullessness. (FW I, 375)

Vedanta correctly states that the spirit remains inviolate. The fiery seed of the spirit remains in its primary consistency, because the essence of the elements is immutable. But the emanation of the seed changes, depending on the growth of consciousness. Thus one may understand that the seed of the spirit is a fragment of the elementary fire. And the energy accumulated around it is consciousness. This means that Vedanta was concerned with the seed, and Buddhism spoke of the perfectment of the bodies. Thus the movable and the immovable are completely correlated. (AY, 275)
see also Monad

Self-action, Self-activity – The essence of fiery advancement comes from various affirmations of spirit. The chief factor will be the development of self-activity. In self-activity will be contained love for Hierarchy; in it will be contained a feeling of responsibility and a true understanding of Service. Thus when We speak of self-activity, one should understand that it includes all qualities of higher affirmation.

When a co-worker takes upon himself the development of self-activity, his field of action becomes unlimited. Hierarchy becomes the fiery impetus of all his actions. No attacks, near or far, are frightening to the co-worker, because he knows fiery service. (FW III, 39)

Self-action must be understood. In it is comprised the entire synthesis of activity. Verily, self-action is self-realization. (INF I, 373)

Selflessness – The true fire-blossom is actual selflessness; however, it must not only be evident in actions but must live in the consciousness. Behavior, like wandering shadows, is an inaccurate reflection, and the vortex of shifting conventions conceals the meaning of action. Is it possible to judge conduct without knowing cause and effect? Then a savior will appear to be an offender, and a giver will seem a miser. But it is not easy to establish in the consciousness selflessness—individuality is unavoidable. And the blending in of selflessness can take place only with a clear realization of the future. Selflessness is not built on past experience; only a true perception of the future can mold an inner judgment about the boundaries of the possible. Whoever thinks in the stillness of the night that the past has taught him the value of selflessness is a prisoner.

One should sing a hymn to selflessness in the rays of the sun, as a bird does, in its own way of expression, knowing the future day on which it has been decided that the migration is to start. The concept of migration has significance for the realization of selflessness. (COM, 166)

Self-perfectment – Self-perfectment is Light. Self-indulgence is darkness. One can so build one's life that each day will, as it were, be the end. But one can so illumine one's life that each hour will be a beginning. Thus one can rebuild one's earthly existence beneath one's very eyes. Only in this way will the questions of the future and the understanding of fiery perfectment become perceptible. Daring should be found to reconstruct one's life in accordance with new accumulations. To die in the bed of one's grandfather is to be relegated to a medieval status. We even advise that these beds be taken to a museum; this will also be more hygienic. However, we should not limit tomorrow by the measurements of yesterday; if we do, how can we approach a comprehension of the Fiery World, which was like hellfire to our grandfathers. And now, when due reverence is tendered to Light and the grandeur of Fire, we can have spiritually a very rich tomorrow. (FW I, 308)

Self-perfectment is the most difficult achievement. People inject into this process so many inconsistencies that the manifestation of true self-perfectment is obscured. Self-perfectment is simplified primarily when Hierarchy is accepted. Everyone should realize that the perfecting of the consciousness in itself contains all other aspects of improvement, but one cannot accept the mechanical betterment of the details of daily life as perfectment. One may be able to forge the most deadly blade or discover the most fatal poison, but it is impossible to consider such intellectual craftiness as worthy improvement. Nevertheless, to understand the idea of the Higher Worlds, it is necessary to determine what self-perfectment is. We can come to a decision as to what beautiful achievements are when we ourselves realize for what they must be accomplished. There will be not even a thought about achievement if we have no conception of the desirability of improvement of life. Affirmation of the physical world alone cannot advance the true development of consciousness. Take the history of humanity. Observe how brief were the periods of materialism; they invariably ended in bloody convulsions. Indeed, the trend of thought became rebellious, and the correct path having been lost, crimes multiplied. Self-perfectment is possible only through refinement of consciousness by its seeking to surround itself with worthy manifestations. Thus can consciousness protect us from small and shameful thoughts. Consciousness leads to the Fiery World. (FW I, 652)

Self-sacrifice – The self-sacrificing heart of an Agni Yogi contains the pain of the world, but it is a rare manifestation. As is said in a most ancient psalm, "I shall encompass within my heart the sorrow of the world. I shall incandensce the heart as the womb of Earth. I shall saturate it with lightnings. The new heart is the shield of the world. I shall inscribe upon it the sign of the Earth-Mother. The Cross of the Mother will be the sign of My fire." (HIER, 102)

Wisely is ordained the bliss of him who sacrifices his soul for his neighbor. Often this commandment is applied to the sacrifice of one's life, yet it is not said of life or body, but of the spirit. Thus a most difficult and lengthy task is given. In order to give one's soul one should cultivate, expand, and refine it, then it can be given for the salvation of one's neighbor. Thus the wisdom of the Commandment should be understood and consciously applied. (HIER, 340)

Which path is the most affirmative one on the way to Us? The most unfailing way is the path of self-sacrificing achievement. The most wondrous fire is the flame of the heart saturated with love for Hierarchy. The achievement of such a subtle heart is affirmed by Service to the Highest Hierarchy. Hence, so wondrous is the self-sacrifice of the subtle heart. The spirit-creativeness and independent action of a sensitive server fierily imbue space. Thus the subtle heart responds to all cosmic occurrences. Thus, verily, the visible reverberates with the invisible, the present with the future, and the predestined takes place. Thus the self-sacrifice of the subtle heart imbues the world with flame. (HIER, 352)

Senses – What can one call an Agni Yogi? Certainly an apologist of Truth. The perceiving of Truth is as akin to the Yogi as light is akin to fire. Indescribeable is the growth of sensitiveness, but it quickens the five known senses and also the seven senses related to the astral body, which can only rarely reverberate within the earthly shell like a resonator. Thus, one should attentively harken to the feelings of an Agni Yogi. Within them lies Truth like the flame of light. (AY, 219)

You have seen dark spatial spots. Likewise you know the turbid formations resulting, as it seems, from spatial combustion. Also, you know the radiant spatial formations. Everything becomes alive and is flamingly transformed, likewise do one's senses vibrate. The experienced observer knows that his eyesight sometimes grows dim and then again clears up. The same thing happens with the hearing, the sense of smell, touch and taste. Thus can be observed complete mobility of all our functions. In fact such fiery nerve-responsiveness to the Macrocosm represents a refined condition, but only a few take into consideration such a conformity with the external world. Imperfection of consciousness obstructs all observations. (FW II, 459)

Sensitiveness – The sensitiveness of sensation unites all humanity in the higher spheres. Thus principle unites the Teacher with the disciple. Thus, sensitiveness is a chief quality of the disciple. Sensitiveness applied by the spirit gives keenness of perception. Thus, by applying the sensitiveness of the heart one may reach the highest aspirations. (INF II, 365)

Senzar – The mystic name for the secret sacerdotal language or the 'mystery-speech' of the initiated Adepts, all over the world. (TG)

The sacred Senzar language consists of the best definitives, adopted from all existing languages. (LHR II, pp 41-42)

Sephiroth Kherim – (Zepheroth Herim) Rays of Retribution.

That spatial condemnation which takes place as a counteraction to wrong actions was once called "Zephiroth Herim." The people who gave this definition knew profoundly about the bond between Fire and our existence. They understood that besides the law of karma each act touches upon the fiery element. It can interfere with whole spirals of construction and bring on an immediate returning blow. Therefore, the theory of retribution has also, outside of ethical reasons, an absolutely chemical basis. (FW II, 321)

Sergius of Radonega – Much was given to the Russian people and it deserved its name 'God-Seeker'. It gave us such luminaries as Saint Sergius of Radonega, who not only laid the Foundation for the Russian State, but who really molded the whole character of the people. By his labors, by the magnet of his spirit, as well as that of his co-workers, spiritual fires were kindled which for centuries nourished the consciousness of the people. (LHR I, p 467)

"Whoever succeeds in hearing the voice of his spirit will rise above the precipice." Thus spoke Saint Sergius. "He who has retired into the woods cannot hear the talk of people, and he who then falls asleep will not hear the birds—heralds of the Sun. And he who is reticent at an evident miracle will relinquish his sight. And he who is hesitant about helping his brother will not draw the splinter from his own foot." Thus spoke Saint Sergius.

Of Sergius one will have to speak; people will want to know about Him. Thus, We shall throw color upon the Image of St. Sergius, illumining in narration His life and sayings. (LMG II, p 50)

Those who have entered the Fiery World cannot breathe the air of Earth. Nirvana is actually fiery ascent. In every Teaching we find a symbol of this fiery ascent. St. Sergius received the fiery sacrament. Thus, graphically is the sign of the higher possibility given. (FW I, 157)

Actually, the very highest magic is as naught before the face of the Fiery World. One may convince oneself that magic is able to contend with the dark forces, but Fiery Beings are unexpected even by the higher magic. You esteem St. Sergius, but did He ever admit magic? He did not even employ inner concentration, nevertheless He did have flaming visions. He admitted only work, as an exaltation of the heart. In this, He outdistanced many spiritual wayfarers. We speak about the heart, but precisely He found the strength of this source. Even terrors were allayed by Him not through conjurations but by the prayer of the heart. (FW II, 116)

If people would take the trouble to study seriously the fundamental Teaching of Christ and, if possible, in the original language of the Gospels, instead of being satisfied with the school textbooks, they would discover new meaning in the words, and the true great Image of Christ would be revealed to their spiritual sight—that very Image to whom the revered St. Sergius devoted all his austere life and which was the cause of the enmity of the priests of that period.
(LHR I, p 310)

Let all those whose spirit has been revived gather under the Banner of Saint Sergius, the God-given Leader of the Russian Land. This is the only salvation! (LHR I, p 468) Service – Unselfish action for the General Good.

You may be asked how the entrance upon the path of Service is defined. Certainly the first sign will be renunciation of the past and full striving to the future. The second sign will be the realization of the Teacher within one's heart, not because it is necessary thus, but because it is impossible otherwise. The third sign will be the rejection of fear, for being armed by the Lord one is invulnerable. The fourth will be noncondemnation, because he who strives into the future has not time to occupy himself with the refuse of yesterday. The fifth will be the filling of the entire time with labor for the future. The sixth will be the joy of Service and completely offering oneself for the good of the world. The seventh will be spiritual striving to the far-off worlds as a predestined path. According to these signs you will discern a spirit ready and manifested for Service. He will understand where to raise the sword for the Lord, and his word will be from within his heart. (HIER, 196)

Let us see how people understand Service to the Lord and Hierarchy. He who thinks of ascending only by prayer is far from Service. He who in his labor hopes to bring the best efforts for the good of humanity must adopt the Lord with his heart. He who does not relinquish his own comfort does not know how to serve Hierarchy. He who does not accept the Indications of the Hierarchy does not understand Service. Only when the heart is ready to accept consciously the affirmation sent by the Highest Will can it be said that the realization of Service is adopted. (HIER, 295)

Service to the Hierarchy of Light is service to the General Good. Of course, striving to the General Good opens the gates of higher knowledge and Service. But I would like you to realize clearly what qualities you must first develop in yourself for advancement on the path of Service. Many people are dreaming about the General Good and even are ready to work for it as long as it does not interfere with their habits and prosperity. But true service to the General Good, which leads to the gates of the Stronghold of Light, requires sacrifice and complete disdain for everything personal, in other words, the complete abandonment of selfhood. When the consciousness is broadened, when all feelings and comprehension are refined, the law of sacrifice will be accepted as the highest achievement. There will be no room for self-pity, fear of the future, offenses and envy because with every breath will sublimity, beauty, and the highest joy of service be realized.

The mature spirit who consciously chooses the path of Service knows the joy of a broadened consciousness and the fiery striving to the Highest Consciousness; he knows the joy of fulfillment of the Higher Will; he knows the joy of discovery and the destination of life; and in the appointed hour he will learn the sublimity and beauty of the final sacrament.

And so, after understanding and accepting with our heart the significance of the great liberating and crowning sacrifice, let us strive to develop in ourselves love, devotion, gratitude and obedience to Hierarchy. Let us be ready to take any burden, remembering that the heavier the burden the shorter will be our path. Truly speaking, from love and devotion issue all the other qualities which help our advancement. Thus, let us cultivate them as the most precious flowers; and, since these flowers of spirit grow and nurture each other, the greatest love will bring the greatest answer. Therefore, let us surround the Great Teacher with the fire of love. Let us guard our respect for Him. Let us evince the most careful, the highest understanding of the Teaching and the Indications, and sacredly, reverently, with the tremor of the heart, face the beauty and the majesty of his creativeness. Remember, those whose understanding is higher will ascend higher.

And now to quote from the Teaching: (Hierarchy) "Some people pour a daily gruel over the Image of the Teacher and imagine themselves to be in the Great Service. The Teaching and Service first of all presuppose the expansion of consciousness on the basis of adherence to the Teaching and reverence to the Teacher. In studying Infinity one should first of all realize the limitlessness of love and devotion. It is not wise to say that love has overflowed and devotion has withered because the consequence will be the disintegration of one's self. One should understand the limitlessness of love and devotion as the first steps toward Service and Yoga. One should set oneself this task at least as a means of self-progress. One should advance only in the direction of the Teacher. Then only does relief come. But making a daily onion-gruel out of the Teacher will not lead to success. Sacredly, limitlessly, let us sustain our love and reverence to the Teacher, as a healing remedy toward regeneration."

So, my dear friends, the vulgar conception, the scoffing at the sacred ideas by small consciousnesses because of their lack of co-measurement, and the belittling of the highest and fundamental must all be banished from our life if we wish to enter the path of Service.

Some are searching for the happiness of life, but bliss can come only through the fulfillment of the Will of the Teacher. There is no other way. And one must keenly grasp these wonderful, profound words of the Teacher and constantly remember them: "In fulfilling My Will, thou givest Me the possibility to fulfill thy will." For who else, if not the Teacher, knows our sacred wishes and strivings? And by purifying and crystallizing them by the given Teaching, that is, by the broadening of our consciousness, who but He gives us the possibility of realizing them? Would one want to be so foolish as to ruin one's own happiness?

Let us ardently strive to fulfill the saving Will, which leads us toward the envisioned service of the General Good! (LHR I, pp 60-61)

Is it not the greatest happiness to be able to move ahead to the indicated goal, fully realizing the events and knowing that our destiny is to achieve maximum broadening of our consciousness for the best service to the Common Good?

Seventh Light – Indeed, thought creates in the Subtle World, but it is as quick as lightning in the Fiery World, and transcends all earthly measures; there is the Seventh Light.

The Seventh Light is the most containing; therefore each earthly containment will already be a path thither, where each spirit is alight with radiance. (FW II, 106-107)

Shambhala – (Sk.). A very mysterious locality on account of its future associations. A town or village mentioned in the Puranas, whence, it is prophesied, the Kalki Avatar (Maitreya) will appear. Some Orientalists make modern Muradabad in Rohilkhand (N.W.P.) identical with Shambhala, while Occultism places it in the Himalayas. (TG)

Shambhala is the indispensable site where the spiritual world unites with the material one. As in a magnet there exists the point of utmost attraction, so the gates of the spiritual world open into the Mountain Dwelling. The manifested height of Guarisankar helps the magnetic current. Jacob's Ladder is the symbol of Our Abode. (LMG II, p 32)

What are the signs of the time of Shambhala? The signs of the age of truth and cooperation. (COM, 242)

Those who work with Shambhala, the initiates and messengers of Shambhala, do not sit in seclusion—they travel everywhere. Very often people do not recognize them and sometimes they do not even recognize each other. But they perform their works, not for themselves, but for the great Shambhala; and all of them know the great symbol of anonymity. They sometimes seem wealthy, yet they are without possessions. Everything is for them, but they take nothing for themselves. Thus, when you dedicate yourselves to Shambhala, everything is taken and everything is given to you. If you have regrets, you yourself become the loser; if you give joyously, you are enriched. Essentially, the Teaching of Shambhala lies in this—that we do not speak of something distant and secreted. Therefore, if you know that Shambhala is here on earth; if you know that everything may be achieved here on earth, then everything must be rewarded here on earth. You have heard that the reward of Shambhala is verily here and that it is manifold in its returns. This is not because the Teaching of Shambhala is unique from others, but because the Teaching of Shambhala is vital, is given for earthly incarnations and can be applied under all human conditions. In what way can we study how to work? How to be ready for all manner of attainments; how to be open and all-accepting? Only in the practical study of Shambhala. (S, p 30)

S – Lords of – The International Government mentioned in the books is the Great Hierarchy of Light; and for us Christians, who take our religious terminology from the Jews, it is of course Jacob's Ladder, which is mentioned precisely in the second book of Leaves of Morya's Garden. (LHR I, p 295)

In the Tibetan language, "Rigden" is a part of the title of the Lord of Shambhala. (LHR I, p 401)

Shankaracharya, Shri – Sri Shankaracharya, the founder of the Vedanta philosophy, was an incarnation of the ray of one of the Great Teachers of the White Brotherhood. (LHR I, p 443)

Sharpening of the Sword, The – In the Mysteries of Egypt there was a proceeding called "The Sharpening of the Sword." The neophyte was placed in deep darkness. He was approached by the Great Hierophant, who disclosed to him some of the Mysteries; and light illumined the Hierophant. Then again everything sank into darkness. Afterward the priest designated as Tempter approached. Out of the darkness, the voice of the tempter asked, "Brother, what hast thou seen and heard?" The tested one answered, "I was honored by the presence of the Great Hierophant."

"Brother, art thou convinced that this was the Great One Himself?"

"My eyes have seen and my ears have heard."

"But the image could be deceptive and the voice could be false."

Then the tested one either was confused and was rejected, or he was filled with firmness and spoke, "One can deceive the eyes and ears, but nothing can drag the heart into delusion. I see with the heart, I hear with the heart, and nothing impure will touch the heart. The sword entrusted to me is sharpened."

Then again the Great Hierophant approached and, pointing out a chalice filled with a red beverage, said, "Receive and drink of thy chalice; empty it to see the mystery on the bottom."

On the bottom was an image of a supine man enclosed by a serpent curled in a circle, with the inscription: "Thou art thyself the all-giving and all-accepting." Thus reads the same Teaching at all times, but the darkness of ignorance causes one to forget its meaning. (AY, 520)

Shield – The consciousness is a faithful shield. The aura and the consciousness form a protective armor. (AUM, 275)

An invulnerable armor may be of metal or of silk, but the best armor is the fiery one. Can the Leader proceed by the ordained path without the fiery armor? With what other means may one deflect all arrows of malice and swords of hatred? But many Leaders even in their earthly consciousness have felt that they were protected by the fiery armor. Whole books can be written about the magnetism of the destined Leader. It may be observed that neither the outer appearance, nor the voice, nor riches, but something else convinces people. More than once have I spoken about the Fire of the heart. Precisely this armor is a magnet which attracts and protects. As it has been said, "I will receive all arrows in my shield." But this shield must be forged. This shield can be manifested only from Above. But how many thoughts and discourses must be sent in advance, in order that this Communion be established and the fiery armor forged! One should lose not a day nor an hour, to make the Communion living and ever-present. In error people think that science precludes the Higher World; it can alter earthly nomenclature, but the triune essence remains the basis. The more so does the Leader know wherein is the substance. Perhaps he will not express the Unutterable Word, but he will feel it in his heart. That Word will help the Leader not to lose the universal concept, only this will bring readily the wondrous armor. (FW II, 53)

Years of stubborn but beautiful struggle are ahead of us, but the result of this battle is predestined. Therefore, we should examine our armor and temper the steel of our swords. It is necessary to have the given shields always ready because we must raise the right shield for the right occasion. Write down and recall in your memory as often as possible each encounter, each defense, and the protection given to you by each shield. The number of the shields exceeds that of the institutions. Your entire activity is covered and protected by them! Exercise together! Every co-worker can show resourcefulness and can display the strength of the shield from a new, unexpected point of view. (LHR I, p 44)

Often it is difficult for us to comprehend the whole significance of our constructive work, and in urgent moments the most significant data and proofs are not evident to us. It is not always that our memory can muster the necessary thought. That is why it is so important to practice the reviewing of our tasks, together with the inspection of our shields and general accumulations. To begin with, let us firmly realize that we are constructing a great work of world importance and that we are invulnerable beneath our shields. (LHR I, p 45)

Thus, insist that your co-workers examine and cleanse their shields. Search for those shields in every indication, every thought given in the books of Living Ethics. We must have the beautiful, constructive formulae ready. (LHR I, p 47)
see also Armor of Light

Shield of Light – There is inscribed upon the Shield of Light—Lord, I come alone, I come in a manifested achievement, I shall reach the goal, I shall reach it! And there is inscribed upon the Shield of Light honesty, devotion and self-abnegation. (FW III, 7)

Beautiful is the circle of magnanimity; it is as a shield of Light! (BR, 54)

Shore – Pushing off from the old shore, humanity inevitably will reach their indicated, evolutional, upright cliff of the New World. (COM, 265)

We should become accustomed to the thought that sooner or later we are destined to reach the Fiery Shores. (FW I, 332)

Only the future in all its fieriness will carry one over to the new shores. Only by casting forward the saving anchor can we make our landing. The farther we cast the anchor the more easily and vigorously do we transfer our consciousness into the Fiery World. For the sake of that World we can improve the consciousness, enlighten the heart, and think about the Good. (FW II, 344)

The Guiding Star is Karma, affirmed by actions of many lives. Each traveller knows how difficult it is to swim across an ocean and to leap over an abyss. The Guiding Star will be that skiff which conveys one to the other shore amid the raging elements. One can investigate how the Guiding Star leads, and where is that shore which will receive the wayfarer. Apparent comfort is not the boat; amid the whirlwinds of life comfort cannot endure, for the affirmation of the Guiding Star takes in all the bases of Karma. The Karmic foundations of life will be affirmed on impregnable principles, and all creative accumulations will manifest their saturated currents. (FW III, 82)

Realizing that the path into Infinity is that shoreline toward which the highest spatial energy is impelled for fusion with the essence of everything that exists, one may affirm that Cosmos creates the consciousness of Be-ness. (INF I, 57)

Shoulders, Center of – The 'rays of the shoulders' are the radiations from the centers of the shoulders. Every nerve plexus is the hearth of rays. (LHR I, p 496)

Siddha – (Sk.). Siddha means a saint and a sage, one who has reached an almost god-like degree. (LHR I, p 266)

Siddhartha, Prince – (Sk.). I can assure you (and my words are based on the statement of the Great Authority) that Buddha, after his incarnation as the Prince Siddhartha, has not incarnated again. (LHR I, p 422)
see also Buddha Siddhartha, Gautama

Siddhis – (Sk.). 'Siddhi' are the attributes of perfection, or the phenomenal abilities and powers acquired by yogis through purity of life. (LHR I, p 266)

That is why all instructions regarding the development of certain siddhis are so dangerous. Until a spiritual synthesis is created, such siddhis can give nothing, and in the end almost always lead to disorders of the nervous system, obsession, and spiritual, if not physical, death. (LHR I, p 353)

Signs – Consider that all signals must be lit up, so that the signs may be easily understood. To each of the summoned ones I will give signs, but these must be accepted. I can say that at times one has to resort to excessive signs, but they cannot always be made use of.

Let Me recall: Once We succeeded in saving a man from a fire, but he did not harken to the signs and broke his leg. At another time, to save someone from penning a disastrous signature, there had to be applied, besides spiritual influence, such a muscular force that his hand became numb for a long time. In order that a man be saved from a dangerous beast he had to be pushed off a footpath. Hence, one should not compel the use of extraordinary measures, and one must sensibly harken to the saving signs. (LMG II, pp 167-168)

Silence – Silence may be teeming with voices and darkness may be suffused with light. Hence, he who regards Space as empty will not apprehend the mighty life manifested in silence as the highest Word of Cosmos, nor the invisible as the manifest Eye of Cosmos. The law of Cosmos is inviolable, and even man has accepted the Voice of Silence. Where speech is meager, the voice of the heart affirms silence. Cosmos in silence makes manifest the language of the heart, and the Cosmic Voice may become the language of the heart, and the Cosmic Voice may become audible.

Sensitiveness and vigilence can aid us in giving ear to the Voice of Silence. The beauty of silence is expressed in all the higher manifestations of life.

Let us learn to harken to silence! The infinitude of Cosmos creates the manifestation of the Silence.

The transmission of thought is also a manifestation of Silence. We often use it. Before the consummation of the thought manifestation, We send the ray of Silence. The rays of Silence call forth those sacred pains in the Chalice. (INF I, 80)

I advise silence in order not to ignite a number of centers, especially the heart. (H, 174)

Let us learn to coordinate the heart with silence. But this silence will not be emptiness; it will suffuse space with the synthesis of thought. Just as the prayer of the heart has no need of words, so the silence that is pregnant needs no formulas. Intense silence demands many cumulations of thought and benign desires. Thus, the heart, intensified by silence, replete as a dynamo, beats out the rhythm of the Universe, and personal desires are transmuted into the guiding Universal Will. Thus is cooperation with the distant worlds evolved. (H, 68)

But amidst attainment devote a time to silence of the spirit.
Then shall I approach thy inner being.

The seeds of the Great Silence leads to the knowledge of the Great Service ...
Brothers, in all thy beginnings, remember the time of silence.
Then art thou approached by the Messenger of Command.
And thus, understanding prayer and achievement,
Glorified by beauty, strongly embracing power in sacrifice, Thou wilt attain the Temple. (LMG I, 360)

see also Voice of Silence

Silver Bridge – To restore the heart affected by various causes We use vibrations. If Mahavan corresponds to earthly causes, the vibrations of the Silver Bridge are necessary during disturbances in the Subtle World. (H, 357)

What is meant by the "vibrations of the Silver Bridge?" This is the name of the vibration that is sent by the Teacher to the disciple for the strengthening of the tired heart. This vibration strengthens the bond between the disciple and the Teacher. This silver Ray can be seen by the spiritual eye. (LHR II, p 393)

see also Silver Cord, Silver Thread

Silver Cord – Otherwise, how can a disciple create unity of consciousness with his Teacher? How else can he create the silver cord which unites him with his Teacher? As you already know, this union with the Teacher opens up all the possibilities. And this union is created by stubborn efforts and by the unfailing striving toward the One Focus. Similarly, a tender plant is fenced about so that nothing can harm its growth. (LHR I, p

see also Silver Bridge, Silver Thread

Silver Thread – Observe what takes place in your sensations during lofty communion. It can be noticed that feeling in the extremities is gradually lost, and finally the heart alone is sensed. This is not pain, but a sort of tension and imbuing. The communion can take place under any position of the body—standing, seated, or recumbent. The manifestation of the heart feeling referred to is called "the silver thread." It can wind and attract, as it were, and such a bond is a sign of nearness. (AUM, 171)

The greatness of Cosmos precludes scrutiny; it overwhelms and exalts. Spirit-knowledge is cognized by the spirit's knowledge. Pay attention to the silvery thread that connects one in spirit with the spirit of the Guide and extends its silvery manifestation up to the Ruler of the Planet. There results a network of conduits from the Supreme Spirit. The highest individualization does not fear union, and the gifts of revelation are sent along the silvery thread up to the highest spheres. Similarly, at the birth of a spirit a lofty Spirit sends him his conduit. (LMG II, p 47)

The silver thread is a radiant symbol of the link and of trust. It is possible to bring the concept of the bond into such a state of clarity that the thread will be almost perceptible. The appearance of the Image of the Guide will no more foresake one than will the thread of the bond. But the will is free; it can snap the strings of any harp whatsoever. I already have told you how lamentably sound the strings which are forever broken. Verily, even in the raging of the most frightful obsession are heard the wailings of the broken strings. Amid chaos, shocking indeed are the moanings from such ruined threads. Diseases are born of such criminal actions. Traitors break the most sacred threads. That is why betrayal is the worst offense against the Fiery World. (FW III, 505)
see also Silver Cord, Silver Bridge

Silvery Lotus – The closed circle of the heart produces an oppressive formation. The Silvery Lotus that is unfolded on all sides indicates the containment of all cosmic fires. Thus is an open heart affirmed in Cosmos. (INF II, 109)

He who carries the Silvery Lotus in his Chalice awakens through his vibrations the accumulations in others. The creativeness of the white ray is replaced by the radiance of the Silvery Lotus. (INF II, 131)

The red-golden light that fills the inner substance indicates the armor of the heart. As the outer rims of the aura from purple become ruby, so the Silvery Lotus of the heart flashes with an outburst of red-gold when the spirit clothes itself in the ultimate armor. Thus is attained the inner condition that permits participation in the hardest battles without harm or danger of severe wounding of the subtle body. The consequence of such an armor of the heart was already evident when the warrioress confronted the dark forces and despite their preponderant numbers made them tremble, and they were left with their threats. Yet an impotent threat of the enemy is already a victory. But, of course, the red-golden light is not reached easily and demands a lengthy achievement. (H, 182)

The Silvery Lotus glows as a sign of the opening of the gates of the future. (FW I, 659)

The Silver Lotus is to be found in the heart, and one sometimes is able to see it within oneself. Bear in mind that we see within ourselves all the fires and rings of the centers in the place where this or that center is aflame. Sometimes fiery rings, hoops or wheels, or suns are seen and at times, a flame, but all this is mostly within oneself.

The Silver Lotus can be even larger in size than a flower, and the tongues of flame form petals, as it were. (LHR II, pp 186-187)

Silvery Tear – The Silvery Tear—thus We call the lofty degree of readiness for tests. The first word recalls the silver thread, the second—the chalice of patience. One should constantly keep in mind that the concept of the supermundane lives side by side with the earthly concept. This consciousness is very hard to maintain, for even good consciousnesses think only along one line in the hour of testing. We should not console ourselves with the thought that the silver thread is sturdy; let us rather safeguard it as if it were something fragile. Moreover, let us not forget that the chalice of patience is easily filled to overflowing, even in everyday life. It is not difficult to pass judgment on another's circumstances. Tests of equilibrium should be carried out upon oneself. Each such victory will be in itself a true success. Life provides many an opportunity for such victories. Preseve in memory each such conflict, instructive processes of thinking take place in it. The symbol of the tear for the chalice of patience is not accidental. It is difficult to restrain one's indignation when one observes a senseless destruction. A complaint about the brutalities of people often runs along the silver thread. The Teacher will often send a ray of Light so that one can look into the distance. Only the telescope of the spirit can cover the judgment. (BR, 565)

Simplicity – Simply, simply, simply, applying love, courage and readiness. This is no time for inflated bubbles; out of place is conceit, especially when compared with Christ's washing of the fishermen's feet.

In simplicity of life, in realization of the dignity of service to the New World, love for the worthy opens the Gates. (LMG II, p 58)

You may write emphatically about simplicity, because nothing so much bars the way as the puffiness of self-conceit. One must exert utmost efforts to reject every germ of self-conceit, and without sinking into bigotry. It seems an old truth, but now it must be reiterated. Everyone must understand for himself where his simplicity is lacking.

Inasmuch as self-confidence is blessed in action, so is self-conceit ruinous. Self-conceit is hostile to simplicity. Even great minds are subject to this malady, and must return an additional time to labor until they eradicate this husk. One of the impeding conditions is lack of simplicity. One may wear bast-shoes and still not be simple. In simplicity one can build the greatest temple.

Simplicity, beauty and fearlessness—Christ and Buddha spoke of nothing more. And it is a blessing if the spirit vibrates to these covenants.

Do you notice that We even try to speak in the simplest words, only to bring nearer the downfall of the Tower of Babel? Hence, say that We shall reduce the dictionaries to ashes if they have made of the incisive words of Christ a heap of savage concepts. Simply it was said: "Pray in no wise but in spirit."
(LMG II, p 61)

We rejoice especially when the magnitude of the Plan is being garbed in simplicity. Remember, simplicity possesses the power of attraction. This magnet corresponds to the new abode. (LMG II, p 163)

The Teacher does not use force. He acts according to the intelligence of the co-workers. Often, the leader sees a short and simple plan of achievement, the very simplicity of which is above the consciousness of the co-workers. Then the wise leader will not insist upon his own way, after considering the abilities of the co-workers, he will select a line of action which is of easy access for the majority. (LHR I, p 35)

Sincerity – Indeed, We value sincerity above everything. The word which does not contain the affirmation of the heart is void. Only the potential of spirit can give power to creativeness. (INF II, 337)

Sisters – We always imply Sisters as well, when speaking of Brothers. The Origins are affirmed as the equilibrium in Cosmos. (INF II, 21)

see also Brothers

Sixth Principle – The heart is the highest manifestation of the sixth principle. The heart is the abode of Brahma. (LHR I, p 323)

Therefore, think of the heart as the basic principle, which connects you with the distant worlds. (H, 313)

The Duad, consisting of the seventh and sixth principles. does not act as a conscious entity on the physical plane of existence. Thus, in order to reach true immortality and to achieve a conscious manifestation on all planes, that is, to become an Arhat, a Buddha or a Dhyan Chohan, man must connect the three principles (the fourth, fifth and seventh) here on Earth and merge them together, precisely in the sixth principle …

You associate the sixth principle with the heart, and this is quite correct, as nothing can escape the heart. All energies are transmuted there. But there are many who are accustomed to connect the sixth principle, i.e., Buddhi, with the brain center, and they may oppose you. Nevertheless, precisely the sixth principle, in its highest aspect, is manifested in the heart. (LHR I, p 240)

The Monad, in reality, consists of the sixth principle and of the universal seventh and is not a conscious entity on the planes of manifestation.

(LHR I, p 428)

Sixth Race – Now, We assemble the spirits of the sixth race, and Agni Yoga is the Call! And the synthesis of the Lotus attests a new creative step. (INF I, 188)

The sixth race is now taking its rightful place … Precisely, the sixth race must begin the New Era, and this preparatory period is very strenuous. But it would be wrong to think that the sixth race is being born in one particular country or nationality; it is spread widely. Certainly, there is always a main kernel of the sixth race, and in the time of catastrophe its members will be gathered into places of safety. (LHR I, p 226)

The assembling of a race is accomplished by the law of the Magnet, and unlimited thought lies at its foundation. If man would manifest fire as a conscious task of the spirit for the future, then the race could be united easily; but the conditions under which We now assemble the race demand great labor. The Agni Yogi must melt the old residue in the consciousness and direct humanity to new consciousness. So strongly propelled toward the attestation of the cosmic fires is the consciousness of the future that it is necessary to manifest a new generation through selection of the very young. (INF I, 192)

If We could reveal to humanity the records of human deeds, verily it would be horror-stricken! It is therefore very difficult to collect the new race. Submersion in darkness imposes a great strain. Therefore We take fire as a manifest symbol of pure striving. (INF I, 194)

Therefore, the assertion of fusion will be disclosed as a key to the sixth race. (INF I, 229)

When you create a new step, when Uranus is collecting the sixth race, then it is necessary to be imbued with the affirmed great time, and all the interfering worries should be discarded. (LHR I, p 20)

Toward the end of the sixth and the beginning of the seventh race, there will occur the materialization of the astral bodies. (LHR I, p 195)

Skandhas – (Sk.). We find that the physical and psychic organism of a man is but the combination of five groups of aggregates or skandhas, which are divided into physical qualities: form—rupa; sensation—vedana; perception—samjna; forces—samskara; consciousness—vijnana. All five are equally unstable and dual. Samskara are the inclinations and creative powers, explaining the present dharmas by the previous and indicating which of the present dharmas prepare those of the future.

Samskara are accumulations left by former sensations and lending their fragrance to future sensations. From this definition of samskara (skandhas) it is clear that this group of elements appears as the one absorbing all peculiarities of other skandhas. Vijnana-skandha, and partly samjna, lend their coloring or character to the other combinations, and therefore appear as the cause, defining the next existence, in the sense of strivings and inclinations.

Rupa is like a plate; vedana is like food contained on the plate; samjna is like a sauce; samskara is like the cook; and vijnana is like the eater. (LHR I, p 478)

Skepticism – There are two kinds of skepticism: one benevolent, as in him who seeks confirmation; the other fainthearted, as in a proprietor resisting innovations. The manifestation of the second is customary in circles of poor education. Never begin a dispute with people of this kind. Propose to them to read and to add to their education. The first kind of skeptics represent for Us an agreeable manifestation, for out of their ranks are obtained useful coworkers. Indeed, they are usually far more cultured and their former experiences are richer. Thus, they can more easily compare data of different domains of knowledge. In fact, they are already prepared for acceptance of the community, and for them comparisons will be only a removal of temporary cataract. (COM, 217)

Slander – Confucius said that the one who does not react to slander, which is slowly absorbed by the brain, nor to insults, which like sores injure the body that one verily can be called wise. He who takes no notice of either slander or insults can be called far-sighted. Precisely, far-sightedness points out the insignificance of all slanders before the face of historical truth when the Higher Justice pronounces its verdict on a world scale. (LHR II, p 76)

Slaughtered – The Teacher forewarns that nowadays the most unusual conflicts may be expected, so crowded have the lower strata of the Subtle World become. People have decided to fill the Subtle World with great numbers that are arriving before their normal time. No one has thought what the consequences will be for the people themselves. It is impossible to slaughter millions of people with impunity, without setting up a most grave Karma. Even if the karma is not a personal one, so much the worse, because it increases the Karma of nations and of the whole planet. What has been said about peace-makers is the more correct, since because of them there arises a proper attitude toward the future. The lower strata of the Subtle World must not be filled with the horrors of uncompleted karma. One should not think that this will have no reaction upon the condition of the planet. But the principal cause is that no one thinks about the Subtle World at all. The isolation is most frightful; precisely the dark force exults at each alienation. (FW I, 144)

Sleep – Sleep is a participation in the life of the subtle sphere. The condition of sleep is significant from the point of view of psychic energy. It is undoubtedly strengthened, but in a special quality; in other words, it acquires the distinctive quality of the Subtle World. (AUM, 213)

Sleep affords communion with the Higher Spheres. Sleep proves that without such communion people are unable to exist. The explanation of sleep as bodily repose is a most primitive one. Without sleep people can usually go on but a very short time before their thinking falls into a most ailing state; hallucinations and torpor, and other signs of an unnatural existence appear. The organism strives for the life-giving exchange, and does not find the ordained way. As We said, sleep can be brief on the heights, where the currents of communion can be especially nourishing. People may remember about meetings in the higher Spheres or in the lower. The dense body can impede such essential communions, but sleep as such will be the gift of the eternal life. And such meditation will help on the path to the Fiery World. (FW II, 396)

Do not avoid sleep. Sleep is beneficial and absolutely necessary for the nourishment of the Subtle Body. Only during sleep is it easily exuded and nourished intensively with the finest energies—to say nothing of the great lessons received while in this state. Not only does one learn to merge into different spheres, but also fulfills the commissions of his Teacher and often participates in battles with the dark forces. Why should we deprive ourselves of such a great privilege, which first of all is given to the disciples of the Great White Brotherhood. If it is necessary to decrease our food, the organism will indicate it. The same is true about sleep. Often the work in the Subtle World is more significant than the work in the physical world. (LHR I, p 162)

It is almost foolish to think that one can develop and increase the supply of psychic energy by too much work and too little sleep. (LHR I, p 237)

It is not a decrease in food but a lack of sleep that injures the organism.
(LHR I, p 281)

Smile – We never advise feigning a smile. As each unjust pronouncement is repellent, so, too, a hypocritical mask will be an indicator of falseness and of sickness of the aura. But we ask you to be more good in heart—this is the very best balm. (BR, 247)

Sneeze – People are unwilling to notice how the capacity for observing sensations beyond the physical is leaving them. Whereas, even during an ordinary cough, yawn, or sneeze, one can notice an instant of a special condition which is not a physical one. We shall not even enumerate other, more complicated tensions, but whoever has felt the above-mentioned sensation of being outside of the physical state, can already begin to gather manifestations of the other planes. (FW I, 175)

People talk much about thought-forms, but not all thoughts can be clothed in a form. There can be mental dust, which not only has been deprived of formation but which is intermingling with other similar dust clouds. One may begin to sneeze from such rubbish. (B, 83)

Snow – Pay attention to high sites, exposed to winds from snowy peaks. At an altitude of 24,000 feet one can notice specific precipitations of meteoric dust. Under the power of wind and the rays of the sun this dust settles on the lower recesses, thus changing not only the quality of the snow but also the properties of the soil. It is especially instructive to observe this in places where the ground is already saturated with metals. The metalization from within and without gives unusual magnetic combinations. Not only psychic energy but also many other energies acquire a specific condition in such localities. One should value places where such manifold conditions are united. Observations upon the quality of the snow, soil, and plants are not difficult, even with ordinary apparatus.

Not only in the condition of snow but during the melting of waters the dust of the far-off spheres gives us the knowledge of new ingredients. In order to approach psychic energy also from Earth, one must observe how the precipitations of the far-off spheres influence the human organism. One can see that these reactions will be significant and multifold. Thus, let us be attentive to the essence of nature. (AY, 571)

It is possible to observe precipitations of energy on mountain snows and on dew. In ancient times people understood the medicinal quality of dew. It was mentioned in legends that in order to become prophetic one had to walk through the dew for seventy days. And recently hospitals were opened where walking barefoot through the dew was prescribed; plain water was useless because the particular quality of dew was required.

Snow, full of meteoric dust, contains the same curative properties. (AUM, 410)

Soda – Soda is useful, and its usefulness is linked with Fire. Soda fields have been called the ashes of a great Conflagration. (FW III, 595)

It is right that you do not forget the significance of soda. Not without reason has it been called the ash of Divine Fire. It belongs to those widely given remedies which have been sent for the usage of all humanity. One should remember about soda not only in sickness but also in health. As a bond with fiery actions, it serves as a shield against the darkness of destruction. But one should accustom the body to it gradually. Each day it should be taken with water or milk, and in taking it one should, as it were, direct it into the nerve centers. Thus can one gradually acquire immunity. (FW II, 461)
see also Soda Bicarbonate

Soda Bicarbonate – There is no better remedy for pains in the lower part of the chest than soda bicarbonate. In general, soda bicarbonate is a most healthful preparation. It is a preventative against all sorts of disease including cancer. But it must be taken daily and regularly. Especially, does it help to relieve pains and the movements in the solar plexus. Likewise, for sore and burning throat hot milk (but not boiled) with soda bicarbonate is most helpful. The usual dose is one coffeespoonful to a glass. Soda is absolutely necessary during a conflagration of the centers. It discharges the fiery energies and prevents consuming fire. (LHR I, p 491)

see also Soda

Solar Plexus – The center of the solar plexus is a focus of fire radiation. It must be imagined how fire acts. As all the higher functions of the Cosmos act from within, so too, the fire of the solar plexus is intensified in its own seed. The center of the solar plexus gives equilibrium to all the bodies, and its radiations saturate also the ethereal body which feeds the astral body. The interweaving of all the centers and all the bodies is comparable to the rings of a spiral, centered, as it were, in the solar plexus. Each planet, each fiery center, has its solar plexus and Divine Fire of life … just as in antiquity the sun was depicted with its rays, so too, is it possible to represent the solar plexus, which has its own particular radiations issuing out of the seed and extending throughout the entire protective network. These powerful currents bring to the heart all the reflections of space.

Therefore, when cosmic manifestations are intensified the solar plexus trembles. (FW III, 219-220)

Only a spiritual approach will reveal the significance of all cosmic correspondences and their human reflections. The centers may be regarded as accumulators of cosmic energies. It is correct to think about direct nourishment for the highest centers. The solar plexus absorbs each energy that is sent and consciously feeds the centers. Thus, comprehension of the fiery centers is the most essential task. Medical science will be able to diagnose a disease only when it knows its correspondence with cosmic energies. (HIER, 238)

The heart, the Chalice, the solar plexus, are truly cosmic barometers. (FW I, 173) see also Centers, Chakra, Heart

Solar Serpent – The creativeness of the spirit is so powerful that the solar serpent, having assimilated the affirmed cosmic fires, is manifesting concordance; therefore, the centers of the Agni Yogi vibrate fierly. (INF II, 409)
see also Kundalini

Solemnity – An exalted offering of all one's best feelings, it is a tension of all superior energies, a contact with the approaching gates. (AUM, 523)

True Solemnity is built in the highest tension. Solemnity is not rest, not satisfaction, not the end, but precisely the beginning, precisely determination and progress on the way to Light. (H, 71)

Solemnity should be strengthened by the concept of Brotherhood. It ought not to remain an empty sound. To affirm solemnity means to sing hymns to the rising sun. It must be realized what purification is vouchsafed at being filled with healthgiving solemnity. (BR, 295)

You know how greatly We oppose any conventional habits, yet one must discriminate between habit and immersion in saving grace. As an example, solemnity combines in itself ecstasy and ascent and a defense against evil and the turning toward Hierarchy. Thus solemnity is a salvation, but it must be absorbed and maintained. In the midst of disintegration and destruction can there be solemnity? But for a solemn consciousness destruction does not exist. It is immediately canopied by a cupola of recreation, in all its beautiful subtlety. Thus, the reflection of solemnity is justly considered luminous. (H,

Solitude – Nowhere is it said that a yogi must be physically alone, but in spirit solitude is inevitable. Consecrating himself, the yogi crystallizes his individuality. And the more liberally he gives, the more he remains untouched. (AY, 260)

Learn to think in solitude. And realize the responsibility for thought ... I advise that one observe oneself, and remember that no one else besides the Teacher will help. I advise that the Teacher be regarded as the only stronghold. (AY, 340)

Solomon's Seal – The symbolical double triangle, adopted by the T.S. and by many Theosophists. Why it should be called "Solomon's Seal" is a mystery unless it came to Europe from Iran, where many stories are told about that mythical personage and the magic seal used by him to catch the djinns and imprison them in old bottles. But this seal or double triangle is also called in India the "Sign of Vishnu", and may be seen on the houses in every village as a talisman against evil. (TG) see also Triangle

Soma – Not that soma is not the ethereal body. Soma is a subtle secretion of the glands which can create a sort of protective net for the centers. Therefore, with such protection the transmutation of the centers may be continued, as the insulation of the centers makes this transmutation less dangerous. Even under the snow some plants live and grow. Sometimes the most wonderful plants develop under the pure snow. Thus, soma offers protection against fire. (LHR I, p 258)

The magnetization of water placed near a sleeping man will indicate the secretion of his radiations, and will demonstrate the precipitation of his force upon objects. Such precipitations should be observed most attentively; they can remind about the obligation of man to fill his surroundings with beautiful deposits. Each sleep is not only a lesson for the subtle body but is also a nursery of psychic precipitations. (AUM, 379)

Somnambulism – If Samadhi even endangers life, then what tension of energy must be required for the assimilation of fire! But the transmutation of consciousness creates such an intensely ecstatic state that the manifestation of the fiery tension only corresponds to the power of the new being. Somnambulism sets up this fiery resistance even on Earth. In a certain state the somnambulist acquires a phosphorescence that completely safeguards him from burning, even in a strong fire; such cases are well known, both in the East and in the West. But of course, somnambulism is a transmutation of consciousness which kindles, as it were, the entire nervous essence, and thus the fire is absorbed by the fire of the aura. Hence it gives a certain idea of the transformation of the fiery body. (FW I, 659)

Song of Fire – It is quite just to call the music of the spheres the Song of Fire. Are not the fiery vibrations concordant? (FW II, 4) see also Music of the Spheres

Sons of Reason – The Lords of Fire, the Sons of Reason who were and are the Lords of Shambhala. (LHR I, p 401)

Sophia – (Gr.). Wisdom. The female Logos of the Gnostics; the Universal Mind and the Female Holy Ghost with others. (TG)

Calling it psychic energy, we speak of the same Sophia of the Hellenic world or Sarasvati of the Hindus. The Holy Ghost of the Christians manifests signs of psychic energy, just as do the creative Adonai of Israel, and Mithra, full of solar power. Certainly, no one doubts that the Fire of Zoroaster is the Fire of Space which you study. (AY, 416)

A one-sided consciousness inevitably stumbles over dogmas and is frightened by sophistry. Yet Sophia is not sophistry, and experimentation is not prejudice—thus one may gather a useful collection. (FW I, 211)

Sorrow – The emphasis on the indestructability of joy and sorrow sent into space is highly scientific. Many bear the sorrow of another, and many grasp at joy that does not belong to them. Thus one must always remember about the eternal sowing. Thought, if not powerful, can be absorbed by the currents of space; but the essence of sorrow or joy is almost as indestructible as the fiery seed. It is useful to impregnate space with joy, and dangerous to stratify the heavens with sorrow. (FW I, 298)

Soul – Esoteric philosophy teaches that everything lives and is conscious, but not that all life and consciousness are similar to those of human or even animal beings. Life we look upon as 'the one form of existence', manifesting in what is called matter; or, as in man, what, incorrectly separating them, we name Spirit, Soul, and Matter. Matter is the vehicle for the manifestation of soul on this plane of existence, and soul is the vehicle on a higher plane for the manifestation of spirit, and these three are a trinity synthesized by Life, which pervades them all. (SD I, p 49)

The spirit or monad always remains in its primeval purity whether in an animal or a man. But only the precipitations which accumulate from contact with other energies build individuality, or, if you prefer, a soul. (LHR I, p 380)

Kama, in connection with Manas (the astral body, in order that it be not confused with its etheric double, is often called 'the lower astral'), or the spiritual soul of the spiritually developed man. Kama-Manas is a sort of bridge which connects the higher Manas with Kama-Rupa, thus connecting Manas and Form to make the Kana-Manas body, or human soul.

Hence, the true individuality of man is in his causal body, or spiritual soul, whereas his lower soul is his personality, i.e., the changing earthly manifestations. It is clear, then, that the soul is a growing concept and subject to changes.

Thus, the personal or lower ego, or human soul, consists of five principles; whereas the spirit, or higher Ego, the true individuality, or spiritual soul, forms a triad of the seventh, sixth, and fifth principles. (LHR I, pp 472-473)

Much has been said about the affinity of souls, but who knows and understands this truth in the full grandeur of immutable cosmic law? The Teaching says that people should unite according to the elements. Only parents who belong to the same elements can have balanced descendents. (LHR I, p 252)

Soul, Group – Also, let us make an end to the confused conception of a group soul. The spirit of concordance is expressed with especial force in animals before individuality has been actualized. But it is incorrect to call the concordant soul a group soul. Translations and commentaries have produced this confusion. Plato's conception of twin souls not only was closer to the truth but was expressed beautifully. Thus, let us not use this erroneous term group soul; let us replace it with the term spiritual concordance . Also among men such concordance is a valuable achievement; it builds individuality. (FW I, 376)

Soulless Beings – Soulless beings are known to all. This is not a figure of speech but a chemical reality. It may be asked, Do these people incarnate in this deplorable state? The question indicates ignorance of the fundamentals. No one can be incarnated without a store of fiery energy. Without the torch of Agni, no one enters the physical world. The squandering of Agni takes place here, amidst all the wonders of nature. To dissipate Agni it is not at all necessary to commit any violent crimes. From various Teachings we know enough about even the reformation of robbers. Ordinarily the dissipation of Agni occurs in everyday life when the spirit slumbers. The accumulation of Agni is arrested by trivial actions. It must be understood that the benefaction of Agni grows naturally, but when darkness blankets the process of perfectment, then the Fire imperceptibly—though it can be chemically proven—departs from the worthless receptacle. Beautiful is the law of eternal motion, either evolution or involution. Beautiful is the law that permits each incarnate being to have within him eternal Agni, as a Light in the darkness. Beautiful is the law that, even in spite of karma, issues Light to each wayfarer. Beautiful is the law that does not prevent the growth of the fiery garden within one, even from the age of seven. Though these first blossoms be small, though they bloom in very small thoughts, they will be a true inception of the future trend of thought. What a multitude of beautiful thoughts are born in the heart of a seven-year-old when the dim images of the Subtle World have not as yet disappeared from the brain and the heart! Dissipation may also begin then if the soil of the plant proves to be rotten. In case of such depletion it is possible to help much, or, as it was said long ago, to "lend Fire." This lending takes place also in the very smallest actions. Thus, already thrice have I reminded about crumbs. From these sparks grow huge fires. (FW I, 183)

Do not think of soulless people as monsters. In various fields they even attain mechanical pre-eminence, but Fire has left them, and their works have become darkened. (FW II, 184)

Of course, everyone is at liberty to determine his own destiny and even his final disintegration. But soulless beings are highly infectious and harmful. Obsession occurs easily during such a depleted condition. Do not regard it as an exaggeration that almost half of the planet's population is exposed to this danger. True, it varies in degree, yet once the decomposition sets in it progresses rapidly. One can notice the same thing amidst past cultures. The fires of the spirit died out like smokey bonfires, and all smoke is poisonous unless some useful substance is added to it. (FW I, 185)

The seed of the spirit and the divisibility of spirit provide the explanation regarding the monad. The seed of the spirit is indispensable to life. The divisibility of spirit makes possible both the enrichment and the dissipation of the monad. One can consciously divide one's spirit for the good of the world and send forth its separate parts for achievement. From this, only enrichment results. But ignorance may dissipate the treasure and remain together with a dormant seed. From this, soullessness results. Actually, the parts of the spirit dissipated in ignorance may become obsessing agents, and then, woe to the sleeping heart! Thus, in order to avoid returning again to the divisibility of spirit, let us remember that the seed of the spirit can sleep or can be radiant in vigilance. Only by this light is the magnet of the heart created, which attracts to its bosom the released parts of spirit. There is a vast difference between setting free and losing. Thus, one can remember that the slumbering seed of the spirit, though it maintains life, admits all the qualities of soullessness. (FW I, 375)

Imagine a man coming out of a dark and stifling room into a beautiful garden. If such a sharp change does not renew his thinking, he shows himself to be highly insensitive. Such personalities are to be found among soulless people.
(FW II, 153)

Souls, Twin – Twin souls, if separated over centuries, do not recognize each other when they meet. Precisely, only those souls which have been united for thousands of years on the earthly plane by great spiritual and heartfelt feeling may reach cosmic union in the higher worlds. The unification of consciousnesses and hearts does not take place in one life, nor even in the course of several lives. Indeed, thousands of years are necessary, in order to accumulate the energies capable of uniting these inseparable bonds. The highest beauty cannot be so easily accessible! (LHR I, pp 458-459)

Sound – You, my young friends, who have approached art and creation, you should be able to utilize your gifts as a condensation of your forces; for sound and color, thought and rhythm are the foundations of the Universe and of our existence. Sound and color, knowledge and creation are the chalice of Amrita, the chalice of Immortality! … Absorb all the sounds, all the colors, all the rhythms from the fathomless source of space. These finest vibrations, consciously absorbed, will refine your receptivity and your thought. (LHR I, p 4)

Source of Life – see Fire of Space

Southern Cross – A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere.

Space – In the most ancient Teachings, the manifested Trinity of Father, Mother, and Son was considered as an emanation of the highest, eternally hidden Cause; and the latter, in turn, as that of the Causeless Cause.

This Causeless Cause is the Parabrahman of the Hindus. However, Parabrahman is not a Personal God. He is 'That' of the Vedantists. Parabrahman is simply the Reality which has no equivalent—the Absolute, or rather, the infinite abstract Space, which contains the potential space, also called Aditi. (LHR I, p 487) STANZA I. The Eternal Parent, wrapped in Her Ever-Invisible Robes, had slumbered once again for Seven Eternities …

The 'Parent', Space, is the eternal, everpresent Cause of all—the incomprehensible Deity, whose 'Invisible Robes' are the mystic Root of all Matter and of the Universe. Space is the one eternal thing that we can most easily imagine, immoveable in its abstraction and uninfluenced, by either the presence or absence in it of an Objective Universe. It is without dimension, in every sense, and self-existent. Spirit is the first differentiation from 'THAT', the Causeless Cause of both Spirit and Matter. As taught in the Esoteric Catechism, it is neither 'limitless void' nor 'conditioned fullness', but both. It was and ever will be. (SD I, p 35)

"What is it that ever is?" "Space, the eternal Anupadaka." "What is it that is ever coming and going?" "The Great Breath." "Then, there are three Eternals?" "No, the three are one. That which ever was is one, that which is ever being and becoming is also one: and this is Space." (SD I, p 11)
see also Space Within Space

Space within Space – Parabrahman is simply the Reality which has no equivalent—the Absolute, or rather, the infinite abstract Space, which contains the potential space, also called Aditi.

Precisely, the first differentiation in the periodic manifestations of eternal Nature, sexless and infinite, is Aditi in "That", or the potential space inside the abstract Space. In its next manifestation it appears as the divine immaculate Mother-Nature within the all-embracing absolute Infinity. Thus, Space is called "Mother" until its cosmic activity begins, and Father-Mother in its first stage of awakening.

As it is said in the Ancient Teachings, "From the beginning, before Mother became Father-Mother—in Infinity the Fiery Dragon moved …

Thus, in the Cabala—Ain-Suph is Space, Darkness. And from it, in due time, issues forth Sephira—the vital element. Sephira, when manifested as an active force, takes the image of Creator and becomes the Male Element. Therefore, it is the Androgyne. It is the Father-Mother, or Aditi, of Hindu Cosmogony and the Sacred Teaching. Thus, Darkness is Father-Mother, Light is Their Son. Darkness is the eternal womb in which the source of Light appears and disappears …

Father and Mother are the masculine and feminine principles in the Root of Nature, or the opposite polarities in all things, in each plane of the Cosmos. They are Spirit and Substance, whose result is the Son …

Thus, when Mother manifests from her undifferentiated state she becomes the sinless Virgin, who is adorned with the Universal Mystery ('That'), but is free from conception. Hence, comes the idea of the Immaculate Conception, She effuses out of Herself Her Consort. Thus, in the Eastern religions, one often comes across the definitions, given to all the highest Gods, 'The Consort of His Mother' and 'The Son of the Immaculate Conception'. In every religious system, the gods fused their functions of Father, Son and Consort into one function. In each cosmogony, the Son was considered 'The Consort of His Mother'. The title of the Highest Egyptian God, Amon, is 'Consort of His Mother'.

When the Son separates from the Mother, he becomes the Father. Therefore, it is said that in the world of Be-ness the One-Point or Ray impregnates the Virgin Womb of the Cosmos, and the sinless Mother gives birth to the Form which generates all other forms. The Hindu Prajapati (Brahma) is called 'the first generating Masculine Element' and 'the Consort of His Mother'. (LHR I, pp 487-488)

Spark of Wisdom – That transitional state which connects us with Hierarchy is called the Spark of Wisdom. This is not emptiness, nor apathy, nor coercion, but a full, conscious opening of the heart. (FW I, 174)

Spatial Fire – see Fire, Spatial

Spear – The spinal chord also is called the spear, because if we wish to parry the blows we must tense this channel. (LMG II, p 63)

Specialty – Our feeling is one of absence of specialty, because We live for the whole complex of life. Every specialist approaching Us inevitably loses his monochromatic eye-glasses. Therefore, make every effort that the specialty should become but one of the dishes at your table. As birds over the Earth, as bees above all the flowers, we can embrace the entire universe.

Without specialty it is easier to prepare oneself for the current task in evolution—intercourse with distant worlds and the transformation of the Astral World, (COM, 14)

Speech – The Teaching must color every act and every speech. This tinting, as of a beautiful textile, will adorn the effects of speech. According to the effects must the quality of a sending be judged. One should become accustomed to the fact that the sending itself can appear unintelligible, for only its inner meaning has a shield.

Accustom yourselves to placing significance in each speech, eradicating needless babble.

It is difficult to renounce the feeling of ownership; it is likewise difficult to overcome babbling. (COM, 100)

Human speech should be guarded against various disfigurements that are ugly and unexpressive. Futhermore, language needs to be cleansed of certain archaisms based on long outmoded usages. People often utter words without taking into consideration their significance. Thus they fill their speech with meaningless names and concepts.

Indeed they would have to laugh if they were to reflect upon the real meaning of what they had said. So, too, in everything one should abandon the outlived, which has lost its meaning. (BR, 286)

The antithesis of prayer is profanity. It defiles and disturbs space. It is forbidden to have in the cities factories that produce poisonous gases; yet the consequences of blasphemy and foul speech are far more harmful. (AUM, 38)

Spinal Chord – The spinal chord … is called the spear, because if we wish to parry the blows we must tense this channel. (LMG II, p 63)

Spirit – In Theosophical teachings the term 'Spirit' is applied solely to that which belongs directly to Universal Consciousness, and which is its homogeneous and unadulterated emanation. Thus, the higher Mind in Man or his Ego (Manas) is, when linked indissolubly with Buddhi, a spirit … Spirit is formless and immaterial, being, when individualized, of the highest spiritual substance—Suddasatwa, the divine essence, of which the body of the manifesting highest Dhyanis are formed … Spirit, in short, is no entity in the sense of having form; for, as Buddhist philosophy has it, where there is a form, there is cause for pain and suffering. But each individual spirit—this individuality lasting only throughout the manvantaric life-cycle —may be described as a center of consciousness, a self-sentient and self-conscious center; a state, not a conditioned individual. (TG)

And so, there is only one Substance, one Element—whether you call it God, Spirit, Fire, That, etc., or Parabrahman, Ain-Soph, Space, Absolute, etc. —which in potentiality has both polarities, or is the Androgyne. (LHR I, p 489)

Only the bridge of the spirit can close that abyss which dawns before humanity. The bridge of the Spirit is a bridge of Beauty. (FW III, 203)

Spirit, Divisibility of – Many channels feed into the mouth of a river. The river receives waters from the mountains and carries them through many channels to eventually swell the sea. Often the mouth of the river is hidden and unnoticeable; often it is inconspicuous and narrow; often it is underground; yet whatever kind of mouth the river may have, it feeds the currents of the sea. In its role in life, the heart may be closely compared to the river's mouth, although its synthesizing function is not always apparent. Though the synthesis may seem unmanifested, still it is impossible to arrest the force of the estuary's current; likewise it is impossible to arrest the creativeness of the synthesis of the heart, for the elements of this synthesis are fed into it through the paths of subtle energies; and the outflow of the subtle energies resulting from the synthesis also is a most subtle process. The divisibility of the spirit best demonstrates this fine process. The divisibility of the spirit is linked with divisibility of energies, and, if manifested on a high level, may involve the divisibility of centers. One group of centers acts upon the earthly plane, the other returns a subtle fluid to the Fiery World. In the transmutation of the centers it is always necessary to have in mind this powerful divisibility of the spirit.

Great is the labor of the subtle energies of the centers, and it can never stop. One may only replace one process by another. When the high Agni Yogi devotes his energies to the task of great cosmic construction, in this giving is contained a great fiery transmutation. In such instances manifestation on a physical plane cannot be clearly expressed, and the high Agni Yogi can listen to his own thoughts because his consciousness will carry impressions of the Subtle World and his work in it. These thoughts are, as it were, remembrances of the creative work of the centers and of the spirit. It is said, "a thought suddenly flashed"—but We say, "the spirit has recalled." Thus one may affirm the work of a high Agni Yogi. On the path to the Fiery World it must be remembered that synthesis is like a river's mouth and each specialization is like one channel. (FW II, 61)

Spirit, Flight of – The flight of the spirit is not reckoned in hours. The manifestation of the spirit rushing between the planets is beyond time; a moment, because it cannot be extended. Otherwise there results a rupture between the densified body and the mental. But one should remember that the spirit, which acts beyond time, also cognizes beyond the limitation of numbers, and is able to cognize up to the fourteenth gradation of hearing, whereas on the earthly sphere one can attain only up to the ninth. (LMG II, p 97)

Spirit-Knowledge – As you felt loneliness before, so now you must feel the spirit-knowledge. There is a bidding to each new step. Permit volition to the spirit. Exercise caution, in conformity with the spiritual consciousness. Ask yourself, "What does the spirit wish?" The step of the spirit-knowledge is important. Approaching it, it seems that the spirit is most remote. But this is only apparently so; on the contrary, the spirit knocks powerfully. As one wishes, so should one act. One had better apply it on details than risk using it in massive measure. (LMG II, pp 51-52)

No clairvoyance is equal to the spirit-knowledge. The truth can come through this knowledge. The understanding of the needs of the time comes only by this path.

Prophetic ecstacy avoids exactness of time and place, but the knowledge of the spirit foresees the quality of an event. And the way of this straight-knowledge comes into bloom without visible signs, but it is based upon the opening of the nerve centers.

The priests of old considered the spirit-knowledge to be the highest manifestation, for it could not be attained by any bodily exercises but was achieved through the accumulations of former lives.

Therefore, the care of the spirit-knowledge is expressed not in exercises but by the improvement of the life conditions of the blood vessels which feed the nerves. The principal attention must be paid to the blood pressure, because when the nerves absorb the emanations of the white blood corpuscles the opposite polarity especially reacts. (LMG II, pp 189-190)

Spirit-Matter – Space is filled with fundamental cosmic matter, or cosmic substance —

Spirit Matter, or the substance Purusha-Prakriti … This matter or substance is the basis of our Universe in its visibility and invisibility. As a foundation, as a potentiality of all existence, this substance is everywhere one, but its differentiations are infinite. (LHR I, p 382)

The Cosmic Substance, Spirit-Matter, which is spread throughout Infinity, is the Divine Foundation or the Potential of All-Being. In its endless manifestations, differentiations and changes of forms, it strives toward infinite perfection and self-consciousness in these particular forms. (LHR I, p 383)

The East knows and believes in the Divine Principle, ineffable and eternally cognizable —which amounts to inconceivable—the One Element, eternally manifesting Itself in a visible and invisible Universe. This Element is also known as the Absolute, as It contains in Itself Everything. In Its manifested form, It is Spirit-Matter, as Matter in reality is only Its differentiation or Quality. Pure Spirit may be manifested or perceived only through the cover of Matter. That is why it is said that without Matter pure Spirit is Naught.
(LHR I, p 394)

It is wrong to regard the primary Matter as without spirit. Primary Matter is the first stage of the manifestation of Spirit, consequently it is the highest one. Spirit without matter is naught. (LHR I, pp 433-434)

It would be wrong to say that matter is passive, as matter does not exist without spirit; just as, strictly speaking, there is no such thing as a "passive element". In the manifested world, everything is passive and active concurrently. Do not forget the law of relativity. Also, remember that the stages or degrees of manifestation of spirit-matter are infinite! In the second volume of the Teaching, it is said that "Matter is a condition of Spirit." (LHR I, p 440)

Spirituality – Spirituality, first of all, is consciousness, and consciousness is the foundation of the Universe. Each atom has its consciousness, as wherever there is life there is consciousness; but, of course, its gradations are infinite. It is true that in the Subtle World there are half-conscious, or even unconscious, posthumous conditions, but only in those cases where spirituality is either dormant or absent, or when a person in his earthly life failed to develop his higher abilities and thus severed communication with his spiritual centers, which alone can give us the true immortality of the Man-God, who possesses clear knowledge. (LHR I, p 194)

Spirituality is both an earned and natural quality. On the middle steps it can be cultivated, but it is necessary to begin such transformation from birth. One must provide a pure atmosphere, not darken the imagination with base views, learn to rejoice at the truly highest and beautiful, eschew luxury and any form of filth. The spiritual man will not be a hypocrite, nor will he be liar nor coward. He will cognize labor as an indispensable means of perfectionment, but his heart prayer will be flamingly beautiful. (FW III, 499)

Star – After many magic rituals, the great mystery of the formula of life was discovered by the rabbi. It took the emblematic form of a star … (LHR I, p 402)

Star, Dark – Seeing a dark star indicates a very great danger. (FW I, 131)

Star of the Morning – The Star of the Morning is the sign of the Great Epoch which will flash as the first ray from the Teaching of Christ. (LMG II, p 77)

Star of the Mother of the World – The Star of the Mother of the World is the planet Venus. (LHR I, p 376)

St. Germain, The Count of – Referred to as an enigmatical personage by modern writers. Frederic II, King of Prussia, used to say of him that he was a man whom no one had ever been able to make out. By some he was regarded as an incarnate god, by others as a clever Alsatian Jew. One thing is certain, Count de St. Germain—whatever his real patronymic may have been—had a right to his name and title, for he had bought a property called San Germano, in the Italian Tyrol, and paid the Pope for the title. He was uncommonly handsome, and his enormous erudition and linguistic capacities are undeniable, for he spoke English, Italian, French, Spanish, Portuguese, German, Russian, Swedish, Danish, and many Slavonian and Oriental languages, with equal facility with a native. He was extremely wealthy, never received a sou from anyone—in fact never accepted a glass of water or broke bread with anyone—but made most extravagant presents of superb jewelery to all his friends, even to the royal families of Europe. His proficiency in music was marvellous; he played on every instrument, the violin being his favorite. "St. Germain rivalled Paganini himself", was said of him by an octogenarian Belgian in 1835, after hearing the ‘Genoese maestro’. "It is St. Germain resurrected who plays the violin with the body of an Italian skeleton", exclaimed a Lithuanian baron who had heard both.

He never laid claim to spiritual powers, but proved to have a right to such claim. He used to pass into a dead trance from thirty-seven to forty-nine hours without awakening, and then knew all he had to know, and demonstrated the fact by prophesying futurity and never making a mistake. It is he who profesied before the Kings Louis XV and XVI, and the unfortunate Marie Antoinette. Many were the still living witnesses in the first quarter of this century who testified to his marvellous memory; he could read a paper in the morning and, though hardly glancing at it, could repeat its contents without missing one word days afterwards; he could write with two hands at once, the right hand writing a piece of poetry, the left a diplomatic paper of the greatest importance. He read sealed letters without touching them, while still in the hand of those who brought them to him. He was the greatest adept in transmuting metals, making gold and the most marvellous diamonds, an art, he said, he had learned from certain Brahmans in India, who taught him the artificial crystallisation (‘quickening’) of pure carbon. As our Brother Kenneth Mackenzie has it— "In 1780, when on a visit to the French Ambassador to the Hague, he broke to pieces with a hammer a superb diamond of his own manufacture, the counterpart of which, also manufactured by himself, he had just before sold to a jeweller for 5500 louis d'or". He was the friend and confidant of Count Orloff in 1772 at Vienna, whom he had helped and saved in St. Petersburg in 1762, when concerned in the famous political conspiracies of that time; he also became intimate with Frederick the Great of Prussia. As a matter of course, he had numerous enemies, and therefore it is not to be wondered at if all the gossip invented about him is now attributed to his own confessions: e.g., that he was over five hundred years old; also, that he claimed personal intimacy 'with the Saviour and his twelve Apostles, and that he had reproved Peter for his bad temper'— the latter clashing somewhat in point of time with the former, if he had really claimed to be only five hundred years old. If he said that "he had been born in Chaldea and professed to possess the secrets of the Egyptian magicians and sages", he may have spoken truth without making any miraculous claim. There are Initiates, and not the highest either, who are placed in a condition to remember more than one of their past lives. But we have good reason to know that St. Germain could never have claimed 'personal intimacy' with the Savior. However that may be, Count St. Germain was certainly the greatest Oriental Adept Europe has seen during the last centuries. But Europe knew him not. (TG)

Once a French nobleman said to St. Germain, "I cannot grasp the nonsense going on around you."

St. Germain answered, "It is not difficult to understand my nonsense if you will give it the same attention you give your own, if you will read my reports with the same attention as the list of dancers at the court. But the trouble is that the order of a minuet is of more importance to you than the safety of Earth." (AY, 451)

Steps – The orbit that attracts conscious strivings will always bring the spirit to Our Gates. The creativeness of spirit resounds throughout all space, and only acknowledgement of Higher Might imbues the spirit with creative searching. Thus, each orbit that attracts one to higher creativeness is imbued with all the highest energies. Only the path of conscious quest affords striving toward Our Orbit. Thus one may attain the upper steps. (HIER, 51)

Stone, The – There are well known legends and sagas about the wandering stone—lapis exilis—which is glorified throughout centuries from the Pacific coast—to the mediaeval Meistersingers, to the famous Wolfram von Escenbach … It is true that one may find in legends indications about signs on the stone, which appear and disappear. It is said that the stone warns his temporary owner of various significant events. On special occasions the stone emits cracking sounds, it may become very heavy, or on the other hand may lose weight considerably. At times the stone radiates light. The stone is usually brought to the new owner quite unexpectedly by some strangers. Not without cause are so many sagas and songs dedicated to it. The stone is also mentioned in mediaeval scientific and historical chronicles. On the Himalayas, in Tibet, and Mongolia one constantly comes across references to this miracle. In the same connection the name of the mysterious King—Prester John—is also often cited, and even the Holy Grail is identified with this stone. (Him, p 36)

The crystal of Materia Lucida can be shown only rarely in such magnitude as has been visible to you. For this, there is needed a special converging of magnetic currents. The crystal appears, as it were, to be attracted by the Stone. (AY, 214)

Unutterable are the Forces which serve you. They who carry the Stone radiate the stars of benevolence. (LMG II, p 22-23)

My command to disciples, and lawful is My request, is to walk sternly but without irritation. Irritation makes one's vessel crystalline and fragile. A silver chalice better befits the Stone. (LMG II, p 25)

Reading the suggested books, you will find sparks. Place into one receptible the fragments of reverence to Maitreya. Thus, over the face of the Earth I Myself have laid the chips of the One Stone. A new miracle will bring the nations together. Our Ray will expel doubt. (LMG II, p 123)

Who can justly assert that he has been the giving one? We will open Our account books and show how much every one received. For it is not at all easy to sacrifice when a sacrifice is a possibility, and the possibility is a benefit, and the benefit is a sound cooperation, and the cooperation is the Alatir-Stone, which either resurrects or consumes. (LHR I, p 127)

Straight-Knowledge – Straight-knowledge is knowledge and experience accumulated in our Chalice. It is so-called intuition, but of an extremely high quality. (LHR I, p 448)

Straight-knowledge is the very high energy which manifests from all the accumulated spiritual treasures in us. (LHR I, p 433)

Straight-knowledge is the Cosmic Heart, or the Consciousness of the Cosmic Mind of the Hierarchy of Light. The Cosmic Magnet is the bond with the Higher Worlds in the plan of Be-ness. Our inner bond with the Heart, and Consciousness of the Great Teacher of Humanity brings us into the powerful current of the Cosmic Magnet. (LHR I, p 447)

Someone has said, "Often a simple woman has a better sense of straight-knowledge than a woman-graduate of a university." Here I must remark, "Such a woman is 'simple' perhaps in the sense of not possessing social position or education, but not simple in the sense of lacking spiritual serenity." People often confuse great straight-knowledge, which is the result of many experiences of many incarnations, with a certain psychism. The latter manifests itself in more or less correct presentiments, dreams and certain perceptions of the astral plane, according to the consciousness. On the other hand, straight-knowledge knows unfailingly, knows just the essence of things, the direction of evolution, as well as the future. Straight-knowledge is the synthesis of spirituality and, of course, only a developed spirit with an accumulated Chalice possesses it … The one who listens to the voice of his heart will the more easily awaken his straight-knowledge. The heart is the best instructor in all the problems of life. (LHR I, pp 166-167)

The spark of Divinity, or God, in us can be so developed by the striving of the heart that it may fuse with the highest fire of space. Then it can reveal by its Light all the accumulated spiritual treasures in us, these very high energies which manifest as majestic Straight-Knowledge. But the degree of this illumination will correspond completely with the accumulations of the Chalice of the individual. (LHR I, p 433)

How can one call attention to the new energies? Straight-knowledge will aid in the acquisition of keen sight. Soon people will be divided according to their straight-knowledge. One should distinguish as keenly as possible the people with open consciousness. Not education, not experience, not talent, but precisely the fire of straight-knowledge opens the direct path to Shambhala. Precisely the fire of straight-knowledge indicates the unique quality of the new signs in the midst of daily life. One can foresee that institutions will guard with special care the lives of such sensitive co-workers. Such consciousnesses are like milestones upon a straight road. Scientific observations will be directed by the fire of straight-knowledge. (AY, 282)

Strata, Lower – It has been correctly observed about the final test through fear; after irritation, doubt, temptations have been passed, there remain the horrors of the lower strata. But after the strengthening of the communion with Hierarchy these disgusting spectacles do not any more affect the heart. One can even rejoice at the attempts to dismay one, since these are already at the final boundary. (FW II, 114)

Middle – Beings of the middle strata cannot endure the pressure of the oceanic depths, just as they are not adapted to ethereal vibrations; nevertheless certain hints may be found in observations which are already taking place. (FW II, 128)

Striving – All manifestations of energies are creatively saturated when the impulse which moves them issues from the source of the heart. That which in the Cosmos is considered to be the true impelling force, in the laboratory of the heart is called striving. (FW III, 207)

Only the pull of consciousness affords independent action. Only independent action is in step with the Cosmic Magnet, and the creativeness of the spirit, which effects the designated step, produces striving. (INF II, 252)

Each striving thought creates in the space. Each striving thought creates forms. (INF II, 276)

The goal and the meaning of existence is to strive upward beyond the limits of the known, and to help one another. (LMG II, p 83)

Let us remember that a thinking being is never lonely because thought is his greatest magnet and brings similar response from space. Therefore, if we want to receive a beautiful answer we should send into vibrating space our striving thoughts saturated with the pure fire of the heart; only the thought which is spiritualized by striving, nourished by the heart, can create and attract as a powerful magnet. Thought without striving and flaming quality is sterile. Thus, let us long for knowledge, for broad thoughts, and in our striving we shall dare, as only daring thought molds new ways. (LHR I, p 4)

Courageously, inspired by striving, realizing the majesty of the endless perfecting of creative life, strive toward the calling Infinity—infinity of lives, infinity of achievements, infinity of knowledge, infinity of construction, infinity of beauty! (LHR I, pp 4-5)

When the spirit surrounds the manifested power of its essence with the burdensome accumulations, it departs from striving. The burdens are so heavy that the spirit loses its approach to the Tower. That is why those who know this affirmation move ahead by transmuting their ego. When the spirit does not strive to outlive its burdens, it attracts the affirmed obstacle. Thus, there is a balance between striving and consequences … Self-conceit deprives man of the wonderful striving. What remarkable definitions of striving—this key to all the Gates—are given in the books of the Teaching! (LHR I, p 37)

Fearlessness and striving are two of the foundations of the Teaching. It is almost impossible to stop something that is in striving motion. Similarly does striving thought surmount all obstacles. (LHR I, p 43)

Stronghold – Another name for the Himalayan Headquarters of the White Brotherhood.

Travelers may knock for admittance. Travelers could tell about the Great Souls who dwell in unfailing service beyond the far-off deserts, beyond the mountains, beyond the snows.

Travelers will not tell whether they have been in the Abode. Travelers will not utter the word Brotherhood, yet each listener will comprehend what Center of Knowledge is spoken about. The Sowers of Good go about the world when humanity is atremble.

People wish to hear about the Stronghold, the Citadel. If they will not learn about the statutes, they will nevertheless grow stronger at the mere message that the Stronghold of Knowledge does exist. (BR, 610)

If a victory is to take place, it is necessary to realize all the importance of the Stronghold. (LHR I, p 59)

see also Stronghold of Light, Shambhala

Stronghold of Light – True service to the General Good, which leads to the gates of the Stronghold of Light, requires sacrifice and complete disdain for everything personal, in other words, the complete abandonment of selfhood. (LHR I, p 60)

I must say that I have not yet met anybody who, after learning something about the great White Brotherhood, has not attempted the search for it. But rarely, almost never, does one question himself as to whether he is ready spiritually and physically to endure that tension. Can his physical shell stand the awful tension of the atmosphere that surrounds this Stronghold? Only he can approach it who, here on Earth amidst the struggles and surmounting all possible difficulties, has outlived all habits and attachments and in self-sacrificing achievement has fierily transmuted his energies. Without going through the earthly purgatory it is impossible to enter Paradise. The Fires of the Higher Energies would burn the overloaded aura. Therefore, only one or, at most, two people in a century ever reach this Stronghold. You also know that the Great Teachers never invade the karma of man, and therefore they make no exceptions. Karma can bring a man into Their Community, and if such karma is present, no one and nothing, except the man himself, can impede its fulfillment. (LHR II, p 193)

You may point out to the true seekers that the Stronghold of the Great Knowledge has existed since the remotest days and guards tirelessly the evolution of humanity, observing and directing the currents of the world's events into a salutary channel. All the Great Teachers are connected with this Abode. All of Them are its members. Manifold are the activities of this Stronghold of Knowledge and Light. The history of all times and peoples has witnessed this Help, which was never promulgated but which for each country is always given at the turning point in its history. The acceptance or refusal was invariably followed by either the flowering or the downfall of the country.
(LHR I, pp 421-422)

Stubbornness – There is no more intolerable burden than stubbornness. People do not even choose a headstrong horse; they will not even take an obstinate dog on a journey. Stubbornness is a paralysis of the best centers. Experiments with psychic energy will be without results if the investigator is stubborn.

Reason and wisdom contain no restrictive stubbornness. (BR, 19)

Stupidity – It is said that without stupidity Earth would be a paradise. It is a mistake to be consoled with thinking that nowadays there is less stupidity than in ancient times—at present it has become even more malignant. Each advanced stupidity is especially dangerous in playing with explosives. Stupidity does not think about the future. It is not disquieted by thought about epidemics. (BR, 316)

Suadhisthana Chakra – (Sk.). One of the seven main chakras, located in the abdomen between the base of the spine and the navel. (LHR I, p 426)

Subtle Body – To be distinguished from the lower astral. The Subtle Body is made up of a combination of Kama, Higher Manas, and Buddhi, and in the spiritually developed man constitutes his Spiritual Soul. (LHR I, p 474)

It is incorrect to call the subtle body formless, as its shapelessness is relative. The Teaching speaks of incorporeality but not of shapelessness. Moreover, there are statements in esoteric Teachings that those primordial subtle immaterial bodies had beautiful, perfect form. It is impossible to declare that they had nothing in common with our present physical forms. We should bear in mind that the subtle body is the prototype of the physical body. Of course, the primitive physical high-animal type was, in its appearance, very far from the subtle body or the spiritual essence which was clothed in it. (LHR I, p 194)

In the Teaching of Life it is said: "People have their subtle bodies almost formed; but the mental body is created only by a select few." (LHR I, p 375)

By "densification of the astral", one should understand the densification of the subtle body almost up to the state of the physical. (LHR I, p 498)

Toward the end of the sixth and the beginning of the seventh race, there will occur the materialization of the astral bodies. (LHR I, p 195)

It is especially difficult to perceive the instantaneousness of action of the subtle body. (BR, 291)

Subtle Body, Flights of – The flights of the subtle body can be of two kinds: either it flows out of the feet and aimlessly wanders, or it passes through the upper nerve centers and flies upon spiritual missions. It is instantaneously transported across oceans, it teaches people, it imbues auras. (LMG II, p 107)

Subtle World – The Subtle World is the exalted sublimation of the earthly sphere. (H, 159)

One must conceive the Subtle World as the most perfected state of our worthiest feelings. (FW I, 391)

Many desire to know details of the Subtle World. But many will be sorely perplexed. The entire perceptibility of the Subtle World is relative, varying according to the development of the consciousness. One may be transported by the Light, or one may find oneself in fog. One may build by will power beautiful structures, or one may remain deaf and dumb. To each in accordance with his deeds. Each perceives in accordance with his consciousness. The Subtle World is a condition of great justice. One may observe that a consciousness, even though simple, progresses if illumined by love. The bazaar-colored emotions of earth-dwellers bear little resemblance to love. Love often remains unrealized. But in the Subtle World love is the key to all locks. For many people imagination is an unattainable abstraction, but in the Subtle World each grain of accumulation of imagination is a particle of the path of possibilities. For earth-dwellers offense, bitterness and vengeance constitute the basis of the bile and liver; but for the Subtle World, even in an average consciousness, these infamies fall away as useless husks. Therefore, We emphatically insist upon the fiery consciousness, in order that one be directed immediately into higher spheres. One should indeed strive by all possible means towards the fiery consciousness. (FW I, 322)

Is it possible for a most worthy inhabitant of the Subtle World to rise thence into the Fiery World? It is, and his transformation will be beautiful. Through the process of purification, the subtle body begins to shine. Fire begins to spread, and finally the shell falls away like a light layer of ash. Since the fiery essence cannot remain in its former stratum it ascends into the Fiery World. That which was in the Subtle World an insufferable effulgence becomes in the Fiery World the dimmest—such is the ladder. One must become accustomed to imagining many strata of the Subtle World. From deep red flame to the most beautiful radiance of the rainbow, like an agitated sea, these facets are effused and weave all possible combinations. But for the darkness, for the lower abysses, this radiance will be as distant as heat-lightning. Let him who longs for Light not fear to be fiery. A burning on Earth is a symbol of superb transformation. (FW III, 564)

Often disputes take place about the length of stay in the Subtle World. Long periods have been mentioned, but also there can be noted some very brief ones. How to reconcile this difference? Yet in the great multiform Universe all is possible. The inhabitants of the Subtle World can be divided into several kinds: some try to prolong their sojourn from a desire to develop the utmost usefulness—they are the hardest workers. Others try to remain longer in order not to take on the earthly trial. A third group stay on because of their love for the Subtle World. A fourth exert every effort to return more quickly to the earthly experience. It is true, children often incarnate quickly, but they can be observed to be striving toward many different tasks. It is touching to see children who wish to do better and who are afraid of former conditions; they should be particularly helped. Of course such strivings do not resemble those of a pauper who, because of the loss of his earthly treasures in a former life, wishes to become a rich man. But the chief happiness in the Subtle World is to preserve the purity and clarity of one's thinking. One must know precisely what one desires. (FW III, 566)

The number of people who preserve vivid continuity of consciousness when passing into the Subtle World, even into its middle strata, is not so overwhelmingly large. Upon arriving there, many fall asleep or drag out a semi-conscious, miserable existence. Variations in the degrees of consciousness are infinite. There are as many stages of consciousness as there are steps in Infinity. There is complete consciousness in the Subtle World only for those who created the bond with the higher worlds while still living, by reason of the aspirations of the heart toward evolution, and by persistent attempts to preserve such consciousness. Thus, even though he possesses an intellect developed to its utmost, a materialist who denounces spirituality and the possibility of existence in the higher worlds may remain without a conscious life in the higher spheres of the Subtle World; for, having not created or affirmed the higher attractions, he will be drawn almost immediately into the whirl of the attraction of Earth, and in a semi-conscious or unconscious state he will await a new incarnation. Of course, one can well imagine what kind of incarnation it will be. Such immediate returns to Earth, with the exception of those of very high spirits, are not desirable. As you know, the stay in the Subtle World has a great significance in the way of nourishment and intensification, and toward transmutation of the accumulated energies into spiritual forces. Therefore, one can well imagine what a deterioration of the spiritual substance takes place in the cases of long deprivation of such nourishment. (LHR I, p 375)

Success – What comprises the success of a yogi? It is not in the attraction of crowds, not in the conversion of multitudes. But near the works of the yogi one can begin to observe imitation, conscious and unconscious, voluntary and involuntary. People begin to do the same thing. Even enemies, while cursing, follow by the same way. It is as if a special atmosphere had gathered about the actions of the yogi. This is veritable success; when not money, nor multitudes, but the invisible fire kindles human hearts. But, desiring to imitate, they enter the same atmosphere and bear away with them drops of the identical creative dew. Success does not come only from without. It is created by the correlation of human hands with spatial thought. But the yogi becomes the primary channel, the primary receiver of the energies of space. Therefore the yogi is luminous as an evocative fire. He builds that which should be built. He lays together the predestined stones. And even enemies, atremble, reiterate the words he brings. The yogi is not a preacher. He seldom appears; but the works entrusted grow with a special bloom. Others do not even acknowledge the flourishing of these works. For their destiny is not to absorb, but to kindle.

Where will fly the spark of fire? Could one see all the lighted fires and all the travelers warmed by the fire of an Agni Yogi? The fire lights up successfully, because it burns not for itself. (AY, 375)

It is noted that certain people as it were, carry success with them. Superstition calls them lucky. Science attributes their success to strength of will. We shall add that usually these people have an assimilated consciousness. They become representatives of the collective, consequently drawing in a force intensified by many participants, who at that time do not even suspect the outflow of energy. It is not at all required that the whole collective know each other. Through the nodes of transmission a wave of energy is transmitted instantaneously; therefore the presence of the international collective is much needed for actions. Hence, a wave of internationalism is needed, because the diversity of dynamics will then produce greater tension. (COM, 173)

Success is only a sign of the correct direction. Success is but the understanding of the moment. (LMG II, p 42)

Learning about sacrifice you receive power. Success follows sacrifice. His Teaching is firmly grounded because it is based on sacrifice. Success is nothing else but the counterstroke of sacrifice. The success can be in advance of the sacrifice, as a loan, but inexorable is the fate of the debtor. (LMG II, p 116)

Successive Steps – Everyone agrees that books should not contain too much preliminary material. But even average builders agree that the site of the construction must first be cleared and the necessary materials assembled. You yourselves know what it means just to clear the site—one must raze veritable jungles of envy, doubt, and all kinds of rubbish. One must apply all tolerance and magnanimity in order not to be bent under the load of weeds. Of course, all the forces of darkness and ignorance will revolt with especial vehemence against Fire. Therefore each book about the successive steps of life will not be brief. Let the last part of such a book appear separately, otherwise everyone will wish to read the end before the beginning. This habit is especially pleasing to the servants of darkness. Thus they create a quicksand for the weaklings. (FW I, 277)

Suffering – Everywhere it is indicated that suffering is the best purifier and means of shortening the Path. This is undoubtedly true under the existing conditions on Earth. But could there have been Creation with an unalterable condition of suffering? No. Indeed, the Great Creativeness does not foresee a need for suffering. With terrific zeal people drive themselves into the circle of suffering. For millenniums people have tried to become mere bipeds. They try to weigh down the atmosphere of Earth with malice. Verily, every physician will bear witness that without evil there would be no suffering. Let us designate the ability to avoid suffering as a step toward Good. Truly, the passage of the Good through the furnace of Fire eliminates the sense of suffering. Thus, fiery transfiguration even on Earth lifts one beyond suffering. One should not evade suffering, for without suffering earthly achievement does not exist. But let each one ready for achievement kindle the fires of his heart. They will be the indicators of the Path, and a shield not fashioned by human hands. (FW I, 618)

Do not cause suffering—such is the Covenant imparted by the Brotherhood to the wayfarer. Let him realize how much easier it is not to cause suffering than to treat it afterwards. Should humanity renounce the causing of suffering, life would be immediately transformed. It is not difficult to torment one's friend. It is not difficult to think of how to avoid inflicting pain. It is not difficult to imagine that it is much easier not to allow illness to take place than to cure it later. (BR, 571)

Suggestion – We avoid suggestion except in certain instances when a direct danger can be avoided. It is a different matter when you see an already molded consciousness awaiting a spark from without, but any forcible invasion is condemned.

During treatment of illnesses through a command of the will, remember that one must not try to overcome infectious diseases by suggestion. (COM, 169)

Suicides – Suicide is a profanation against the heart, and the extreme limit of ignorance. (H, 592)

The despair that drives them to commit this act of madness (suicide) causes the complete ebbing of the psychic energy and thus they are left in the power of earthly attraction. Their anguish and sufferings will last until the very date of their natural death. (LHR II, p 343)

Suicide of the earthly body is the prototype of self-wounding of the fiery body. (FW II, 182)

Summit – Verily one should accept the symbol of the Summit as the goal in the ascent of the spirit. Each disciple should remember that avoiding of the Summit leads the traveller away from the path. Each excessive burden will hinder the traveller. The summit is sharp-pointed, and each needless attachment to the earthly world brings the traveller to a halt. It is difficult to halt on the slope, so let us remember about the Summit when beginning the ascent. It is difficult to reach the Summit if the spirit does not grasp the fundamentals of Hierarchy. Thus, on the Fiery Path there is no loneliness or emptiness; only a breaking away from the earthly world and an irresistible attraction toward the Fiery World. (FW III, 22)

Summons – I consider that all signals must be lit up, so that the signs may be easily understood. To each of the summoned ones I will give signs, but these must be accepted. I can say that at times one has to resort to excessive signs, but they cannot always be made use of.

Let Me recall: Once We succeeded in saving a man from a fire, but he did not harken to the signs and broke his leg. At another time, to save someone from penning a disastrous signature, there had to be applied, besides spiritual influence, such a muscular force that his hand became numb for a long time. In order that a man be saved from a dangerous beast he had to be pushed off a footpath. Hence, one should not compel the use of extraordinary measures, and one must sensibly harken to the saving signs. A spiritual uplift must be bestowed. We reverence the Teacher in action. We live aspiring to a wondrous vision. Our road is strewn with horseshoes of achievement. Above Our tents shine the rays of valor. Our joy is to be singed by the flame of Truth. Our way is triply lengthened. Is it not a joy to strive against lifeless matter, and to kindle the sparks of creative spirit with the lance of spirit, by displaying activity?

Teacher, Teacher, Teacher, walks holding the arrow of Command. Never will I choose a calm surface of water; rather will I accept all thunderings, and My Scrolls, as lightnings, will transform the Dome of the Universe. I will send a dove as messenger but I will descend as the Eagle! (LMG II, pp 167-168)

We never summon anyone to don the armor of a Hierarch, because only the spirit itself can choose such a responsibility. (HIER, 330)

Sundering – Many times you will have to sunder yourself from people on account of

Hierarchy. (HIER, 410)

Suras – (Sk.). A general term for Gods, the same as devas; the contrary to asuras or 'no-gods'. (TG) Surya-Vidya – (Sk.). Literally, Sun Science or Sun-Knowledge.

Thus was the Teaching of the Heart sometimes called. In this definition was indicated the fieriness, the solarity, the centrality of the Heart. (H, 339)

Sushumna – (Sk.). The solar ray—the first of the seven rays. Also the name of a spinal nerve which connects the heart with the Brahmarandra, and plays an important part in Yoga practices. (TG)

Suspicion – Let us not fall into bigotry or suspiciousness. The latter is to be distinguished from keenness. It has been said that keenness is straight, whereas suspiciousness is crooked. Besides, he who is suspicious is not pure and is not free. (BR, 206)

To those who are full of doubt and are lacking in steadfastness, I suggest writing down from the books of the Teaching everything that is said about doubt, instability and suspicion. (LHR I, p 134)

Swan – Nothing ever turns back, but all is impelled infinitely. Happiness is indeed in infinity. Each limitation is already a wrong against higher creativeness. Limitation is a prison, but flight into Infinity already creates the swan wings. Thus, not without reason has been used the name—Swan. (FW III, 481)

Swastika – Thus, let us understand the heart as the focus of the physical laws and the highest laws as well. This center was called the crossroad, and was represented by an equilateral cross; the dorje, like the swastika, indicated the rotation of the fire of the heart. Rotation and equilaterality are the signs of balance. (H, 261)

Sword Carrier – see Degrees of Attainment

Synthesis – And is it possible to suppose that one can acquire the synthesized consciousness just in one life unless it was previously accumulated by the spirit during aeons of time by stubborn labor for the acquisition of spiritual knowledge and experience? Indeed, synthesis is the most difficult, the rarest, and the greatest achievement. Verily, this is the crown for those who are completing their earthly path. One may talk of synthesis, but to realize it completely is possible only if one possesses the great accumulations which inevitably raise one above the crowds. (LHR I, p 320)

The true culture of thought is developed by the cultured spirit and heart. Only such a combination gives that great synthesis without which it is impossible to realize the real grandeur, diversity, and complexity of human life in its cosmic evolution. Therefore, while striving to knowledge, may woman remember the Source of Light—those great Minds who, verily, created the consciousness of humanity. In approaching this Source, this leading Principle of Synthesis, humanity will find the way to real evolution. (LHR I, p 7)

But one principle is beyond doubt in determining the Agni Yogi—it is the principle of synthesis. To kindle the fires without the Synthesis of the Chalice is impossible. By this principle you can already determine the quality of the fires. (LHR I, p 22)

Only thought and a great consciousness will conquer everything. Therefore, use all means to broaden your consciousness by absorbing with all your essence every line of the Teaching. A profound and many-sided consciousness and the application of the Covenants of the Teaching into life will give you the key to everything because you will possess a synthesis. (LHR I, p 44)

Imagine an ordinary teacher and an ordinary pupil. What would happen if the pupil protested against all the experience and the indications of the teacher and followed his own methods? How much energy would the fool waste in order to obtain the synthesis of the teacher! By giving to a pupil the synthesis of his accumulated experience, a teacher helps him to save precious time for quicker and farther advancement and for individual creativeness. (LHR I, p 64)

One may possess a brilliant intellect and at the same time not have the great synthesis which gives perception of the true nature of things. Often, narrow specialists are intellectually brilliant but reveal a complete absence of synthesis. And no explanations can help them, as nothing accumulates so slowly as the synthesis. (LHR I, p 496)

Tactica Adversa – Tactica Adversa is the tactical exhausting of the adverse. Precisely, when the Light Forces wish to fulfill some plan on Earth, They make allowances for all possibilities, envisioning even the worst circumstances, so that success can be guaranteed even under the worst conditions. Then every betterment of the conditions is already an unexpected plus. Thus, from the worst is derived a benefit. When such tactics are applied, the enemies often contribute to the success. (LHR I, p 448)

Each intensified force has its affirmed opposition. Each intensified force has its purpose. The bridges consolidated by the enemy are the best ascent. Only when all adversaries are strained in opposition can the greatest plan be introduced into life. Thus every foundation employs Tactica Adversa. (INF II, 372)

Tamas – (Sk.). The quality of darkness, foulness and inertia; also of ignorance, as matter is blind. (TG)

Light manifests darkness. What will be then the opposite to the light of psychic energy? Of course absolute darkness. This emanation of deadliness, of the void, and of nullity will be the shadow of the fire of highest energy. If we know the crystal of psychic energy, then we know the sediment of darkness. The highest ascent of Teros will echo to the lowest descent of Tamas. (AY, 638)

Tantra – (Sk.). Literally, ‘rule or ritual’.

Certain mystical and magical works, whose chief peculiarity is the worship of the female power, personified in Sakti. (TG)

Tao – The name of the philosophy of Lao-tze. (TG) see also Lao-Tze

Tara – (Sk.). Tara is a goddess, the feminine equivalent of the Arhat or a sister of the White Brotherhood. (LHR I, p 383)

Tara personifies mystic knowledge as opposed to ritualistic faith. She is the mother (by Soma) of Buddha, ‘Wisdom’! (TG) Tathagata – (Sk.). One who is like the coming (one or Avatar), he who is like his predecessors (the Buddhas) and successors, the coming future Buddha or World Savior. One of the titles of Gautama Buddha, and the highest epithet, since the first and the last Buddhas were the direct immediate avatars of the One Deity. (TG)

Tchelovek – (R.). Ponder deeply upon the word "tchelovek" (man)—it denotes the thinker existing through ages. All changes of incarnations, the whole value of consciousness, is expressed in one word. Can you name another language in which the incarnate dweller is named so spiritually? (COM, 32)

Teacher – The Teacher uplifts the dignity of the spirit. We liken the concept of the Teacher to a lamp in the darkness. Therefore, the Teacher may be called a beacon of responsibility. The bonds of the Teaching are like a saving rope in the mountains. The Teacher is revealed from the moment of kindling of the spirit. Fro that moment on the Teacher is inseparable from the disciple.

We do not see the end of the chain of Teachers, and the consciousness imbued with the Teacher elevates the attainment of the disciple as a precious, al-penetrating aroma. The bond of the disciple with the Teacher forms a link of protection in the uniting chain. Within this defense deserts bloom. (COM, 60)

Teacher and disciple are indissoluble. Each Teacher remains also a disciple, for amid Hierarchy he will be a link in the Chain of Eternity. Likewise in the descending line, each disciple will also be a teacher.

It is a mistake to think that certain initiations elevate one to the step of absolute Teachership; only continuous discipline of cognition can be the living source of perfectment. Let us not look for limits in Infinity. (AUM, 492)

Regard the relation between Teacher and disciple. The Teacher gives indications within those limits which are permitted. He uplifts the disciple, cleansing him of outworn habits. He warns him against all kinds of treason, superstition, and hypocrisy. He tries the disciple openly and in secret. The Teacher unbars the gates of the next step with the words, "Rejoice, brother." He may also close them with the words, "Farewell, passer-by."

The disciple chooses his own Teacher. He reveres Him as one of the Highest Beings. He trusts Him and brings Him his best thoughts. He cherishes the Name of the Teacher and inscribes it upon the glaive of his word. He shows diligence in labor and flexibility in achievement. He meets trials as the light of morning and directs his hope to the lock of the next gates.

Friends, if you wish to approach Us, elect a Teacher on Earth and place in Him your guidance. He will tell you in time when the key may be turned in the gates. Each one should have a Teacher on Earth. (AY, 103)

Some are searching for the happiness of life, but bliss can come only through the fulfillment of the Will of the Teacher. There is no other way. And one must keenly grasp these wonderful, profound words of the Teacher and constantly remember them: "In fulfilling My Will, thou givest Me the possibility to fulfill thy will." For who else, if not the Teacher, knows our sacred wishes and strivings? And by purifying and crystallizing them by the given Teaching, that is, by the broadening of our consciousness, who but He gives us the possibility of realizing them? Would one want to be so foolish as to ruin one's own happiness? (LHR I, pp 60-61)

Verily, the human spirit is a conductor of all the higher energies. As a strong current, the spirit performs various functions for the affirmation of manifestations of the Higher Will. How else could all the manifestations on different planes be connected? Only the affirmation of the spirit can function as the link. Therefore the heart and hand of the guiding Teacher discern all the factors which are necessary for ascent. Amid fiery concepts the greatness of the link which connects the worlds must be especially sensed. From the hands of the guiding Teacher the disciple receives instruction for his association with the power of Fire. From the heart of the guiding Teacher the co-worker obtains the fiery consciousness. Only the spirit of man can truly bind together the worlds. Thus, on the path to the Fiery World let us manifest a fiery reverence for the earthly Teacher who implants the seed of the Highest. (FW III, 72)

Teachings – The Teaching of Wisdom is not a textbook with numbered pages. The Teaching is the decree of life applied to each necessity. As lightning flashes wherever sufficient electricity has accumulated, so the command speeds to where possibility has gathered.

While affirming the common unity, the Teaching of Life must respond to each individuality. The Teaching provides a solution to the daily problems. Sometimes it seems that the Teaching returns to former themes. Comparing these directives, you see that they touch entirely different manifestations of life. The outer signs have no import. Men may become pale or blush for different reasons.

Let us broadly foresee the most prominent conditions of life, but let us leave details to the flow of karma. One can often change the main stream, whereas the details will carry the mark of a predetermined karma. Such details have no decisive significance, although people usually remember just those and judge accordingly. Similarly, one cannot expect from the missions and experiments a uniform application and flow. Evidence, again, means nothing.

... When We say, "Be unusual, and do not deprive yourself of the chalice of achievement," We thereby indicate not to obscure your life and not to spill the chalice. I confirm how much is sent to you. Every particle understood and applied will give new life. Thus, observe the rain of possibilities and rejoice at the rainbow. (AY, 304)

One will ask why the Teaching is strewn like seeds. Answer that only out of a variety of threads can one create a complex pattern.

One will ask why the Teaching has no completed tenets. Answer that because in completeness there is death.

One will ask why the parts of the Teaching cannot be connected logically. Answer that it would be ugly to grow only a head or only a hand.

One will ask why there is not pronounced first the formula of Heaven and later the conjuration of the Earth. Answer that each thread of the garment of the Mother runs throughout, from the top to the bottom, and vice versa.
(LMG II, pp 94-95)

The Teaching is given in endless succession, for the purpose of affirmation of fiery revelations and the carrying out of highest laws, and, following the same principle as that governing magnetic poles, can be given only to a fiery spirit that has been aligned with Hierarchy for thousands of years. (FW III, 21)

Each one must find the key to the Teaching in his heart. Understanding of the universal Teaching can unfold the creativeness of the spirit. (INF I, 60)

Teachings of Living Ethics – The Teachings of Living Ethics must set the direction in which the mind of man is to be propelled. Let us not violate free will, let each one make haste in his own rhythm, let each one sense the great vibrations in his own way, but let him sense it and make haste. (FW III, 585)

see also Living Ethics

Tension – The path of tension is the path of striving, that is to say, the path of life. (BR, 44)

Tension give evidence of the degree of will which underlies striving. (INF I, 168)

Vigilance of consciousness does not mean that one should try to do without sleep. The tension mentioned in the Teaching is not a physical overstraining but a vigilance and mobility of consciousness. This in turn influences our vitality, as the awakened, broadened consciousness makes a person twice as strong. (LHR I, p 231)

He who has directed his vision towards Infinity understands that the higher it is, the more tense. Thus, prepare people for an inevitable intensification. This does not mean that the Teaching propels one to tension, but that this pressure is the law of Existence. (H, 314)

When I speak of tension it must not be interpreted as fanaticism. On the contrary, the tension that links one with Hierarchy may be precisely a spiritual departure from customary conditions. Though formerly people fell into bodily fanaticism this does not mean that in a more spiritually advanced time the same primitive methods need be used. If formerly it was necessary to threaten people with the torments of hell in order to curtail their partaking of bloody food, nowadays the vegetable diet enters life quite naturally. So, also, when it is realized that the heart is the focus of the spirit, then the physical manifestation of fanatics will be replaced by the revelation of the life of the heart. Thus, gradually, even in the most difficult epoch, the spiritualization of life is entered upon. There are many grave examples before you of entire nations losing their image. But when the Fiery World is realized, the highest earthly state appears small and transitory. (FW I, 656)

Teros – Psychic Energy was sometimes called Teros. In Hermetic writings one may find this expression: 'The warrior Teros raised his shield!' So was indicated the protective significance of the psychic energy.

Did you ever hear of a yogi's being devoured by beasts? There was never such an occurence, for no animal, which possesses a particle of instinct, would dare against the shield of Teros. The essential thing is to summon the Teros out of the Chalice to the extremities. The channels of the Chalice branch out to all the extremities, and some can sense the light of the Chalice with a feeling of tension in the hands and feet, or the light of the Brahmarandhra center with a corresponding feeling in the Chalice. All this is not metaphysics but an indication for application in life. Many are in need of protection; why, then, not utilize one's own treasure?

It is not difficult to accumulate the energy of Teros, and it is not difficult to bring it out. One should also not lose consciousness at the decisive hour. Then it is not far to the deadly eye. A yogi does not kill an animal by his will, but the evil will smashes against the shield of Teros. One has to understand that not a coercive will, but the accumulation of the Chalice gives protection and reaction. (AY, 565)

Tests – There are many misunderstandings around the concept of a test. Of course, it is known that even the worlds are on trial, but people's brains are accustomed to legal and academic tests, therefore they are always able to imagine some examiners full of schemes and cunning in order only to indict the victims who fall into their hands. However, there are no examiners, but there are observers of how a man makes use of his knowledge. (H, 115)

Tests are being set for the pupil himself, as milestones on the path, which he notices when he passes over into the Subtle World. (H, 116)

Theft – In creeds and laws theft has been spoken against, but again this sounds like prohibition. Whereas, it must be pointed out that theft is harmful as a concept which augments the sense of personal ownership. Theft injures world evolution, and not enviable is the lot of those who harm world evolution ...

The law concerning theft is incomplete, because the principal thefts are those of knowledge and creative ideas, which cannot be guarded against.

Theft will be abolished with the elimination of privately owned property. (LMG II, p 209)

Third Eye – 'The third eye' certainly has its physical substratum in the center of the nervous system. Pay most serious attention to the two glands of the brain—pituitary and pineal. The molecular movements of the pituitary gland develop psychic sight, but for the spiritual, highest sight, there should also be movements of the pineal gland. The radiations or emanations of these two glands, when unified, bring the highest results. (LHR I, p 146)

There is a belief that the organ which corresponds to the third eye is the pineal gland. This gland, together with the pituitary is now considered very important in the correct functioning of the organism. In ancient India they were also known as the channels for all spiritual-manasic manifestations. (LHR I, p 400)

see also Centers, Chakra, Pineal Gland, Pituitary Gland

Thinking – Regeneration of thinking must be affirmed as the basis of a better Epoch. Thinking is a pledge of success, a pledge of new construction, a pledge of a mighty future. The transformation of life is indeed affirmed by transmutation of thinking. In each process one can trace how thinking evolves or regresses. Besides inspired thinking, there acts the impulse of kindling the thought. Therefore the law of striving produces that conformity which brings the Worlds closer through a saturation with creative fire. To ponder over the trend of thinking already helps to shift the consciousness. Thus, on the path to the Fiery World let us direct our thinking toward a better future. (FW III, 262)

Humanity must study more carefully its thinking. It is necessary to establish in schools the science of thinking, not as an abstract psychology but as the practical fundamentals of memory, attention, and concentration. (FW III, 429) see also Thought

Thought – Thought is sometimes compared with the ocean—the comparison is plausible. Each man has three basic currents of thought. A superficial one—from the flesh, connected with muscular reflections, obvious in the external life. The second already concerns the heart, and contributes to improvement and progress in the subtle feelings. And finally, in the depths of the consciousness is being conceived the achievement of self-renunciation—here the Fiery World will be near. Each man can touch all Worlds; even in the routine of his everyday life he can choose the type of thinking he desires. In order to harken to the voice of the heart it is not necessary to be poor or rich, lofty or lowly; it is not even necessary to be very learned. Verily, thought is an ocean with all its currents. (FW III, 603)

(The) affirmation of karma too can be changed, just as the span between returns to carnate life may vary in different cases—from an instant to millenia.

People also fail to understand which energy serves as the deciding factor. In all cosmic amplitudes the basic factor is thought; it can alter karma, it can determine dates, it opens gates, and it can close them. It grows wing-rays from the shoulders. It can lead one close to the Higher World or precipitate one into the abyss. The manifestation of law rests on thought. The great wisdom of thought is a shield and a guard against chaos. Thought actually rules over the fury of chaos. (AUM, 95)

Thought is the true friend of the seeker. Thought rules everything. Thought is inherent in each movement of the muscles. Thought leads and affirms. Thought finds the paths to the Covenants and the Decrees. Thought, if not scorned, teaches discrimination between the higher and the lower. Thought lives on perpetually and infinitely. It affirms movement and the realization of rhythm. Thought does not forsake one by day, nor by night. Thought uplifts the consciousness when the process of thinking becomes cherished.

Each instant man either creates or destroys. The world is filled with conflicting thoughts. A multitude of illnesses have been implanted by thoughts of destruction. A great number of murders take place at long distances from thoughts or from intersecting thoughts, but it is almost impossible to make man realize that his pre-eminence lies in continuous thinking. It is impossible to impress upon man how responsible he is for the quality of his thinking. The heart beats unceasingly, equally incessant is the pulse of thought. But it is not customary to talk about this.

Man either creates or destroys. (AUM, 140-141)

People understood long ago that thought needs no words of a definite language. Mental energy strikes upon the brain apparatus and evokes a sounding understood by the consciousness. Whether such a sounding be composed of words or lies deeper in the consciousness is merely a detail. Through the method of thinking the chief understanding is precipitated. (BR, 337)

In its timelessness and spacelessness thought belongs to the Subtle World, but also in this structure one must discern still deeper possibilities. Fiery thought penetrates still deeper than the thought of the Subtle World. Therefore fiery thought manifests even more exactly the highest creativeness. With attention, everyone can discern these two stratifications of thought. During the usual trend of thought we often sense that a current, as it were, of a second thought clarifies and intensifies the first. This is not a division of the thought, but, on the contrary, a sign that deeper centers have begun an active participation. This flaming process has a special term in Hindu metaphysics. ... Thought is linked to the World of Fire. Even children exclaim, "It came like a flash!", or "Now I see the light!" Thus are termed the moments of correct and instantaneous decisions. (FW I, 102)

Each thought which corresponds to reality forms a vehicle for an elemental.

Everything worthy, austere, vital, gravitates toward creative thought, and will beneficently sustain its creator. But the devices of slander will attract to themselves brooding elementals who, failing to find a vital foundation, will precipitate themselves upon the slanderer. (FW I, 428)

Not only do the thoughts themselves produce physical manifestations, but the condensation of the energy which is sent produces a powerful reaction … The world of thought is the heritage of the future. The investigations of thought will lead also towards psychic energy. One may begin the observations from various points of view. Therefore I direct your attention to various approaches to the subject of lightbearing thought. (FW I, 452)

All cosmic manifestations are permeated with Fire and human thought is Fire. Thought gives form; thought gives direction; thought gives life; thought imparts creativeness; thought imparts the attraction of a drawing magnet.

When the spirit kindles its fire, thought creates through the accretion of Materia Lucida. Cosmic thought is comprised in the fiery communion. (INF I, 372)

Tell the new ones that the responsibility for thoughts has to be realized. Formerly, one was responsible for action; later the significance of the word was understood; and now it is time to know the conflagration of thought. It is better to learn silence and to purify one's thoughts.

Can the roar of a tiger possibly be worse than treacherous thinking? Not only for its actions but also for its thinking does humanity accumulate a grave karma. Thought inflicts tortures on the spirit, for there is no difference between word and thought. (LMG II, p 109)

A single thought may both attract and repel. Those who rule human minds are often themselves being led. And what empty sounds can stifle the will of a man and forever impede the path already molded! (BR, 42)

Thought does not die away in space. Horizontally and vertically thought traverses space. There is no limit to its expansion. But nothing can remain in the same state. We know about the inviolability of thought, but apparently transmutation of it is taking place, and one needs to know into what the thought is being transmuted. It flows into pure fire. A beautiful circle results. From the fire arises energy—a creative thought—and through the earthly furnace this thought is again united with fire. The circle is closed, and renewed energy ascends regenerated for new labor. Such consummated cycles can be observed throughout the Universe. But the evolution of thought will be especially sublime. Therefore, does not this realization of the value of thought impel man to intensify his thought-energy? Let each one apprehend what kind of thought will be especially creative. Let man weigh in his heart which thought is fitting for him. Thus a selection of values takes place. (BR, 378)

Three Worlds, The – A Sadhu pointed to a mango fruit, saying— "Here are three worlds: first the skin, which has no value; next the pulp, transitory yet nourishing; and finally the seed, which can be preserved unto eternity." The skin is thin, the fleshy pulp is more essential, but mighty is the seed. The egg, too, presents an analogy. The shell; the transitory manifestation of the white, which is nourishing but not for long; and finally the fiery yolk. Man represents the synthesis of all the kingdoms, yet the symbol of the three worlds is everywhere evident. (FW I, 162)

The Throat Center – Be careful with the throat center; as a synthesized central point it can definitely receive spatial influences. Since radio stations can exert an influence on the mucous membranes, many other reactions likewise can burden the centers. (BR, 196)

Transmitting – see Degrees of Attainment

Transmutation – When humanity will accustom itself to the realization of the transmutation from the lowest to the highest, then the spirit-understanding may be sent. (INF I, 318)

Karma and transmutation constitute factors which are directed toward progress; they create the effect by the propulsion of karma and they set the direction through transmutation of spirit. When the striving creativeness attracts the spirit to the Cosmic Magnet, the fiery effects are inevitable. I affirm that the law of karma and transmutation leads to consummation. (INF II, 63)

If there is neither transmutation nor continuity in the process of any being, then how can one explain the life of the Universe? The law of extension is one and the same in the entire Cosmos, and all principles adhere to the same law. Therefore, each vital energy must exist in continuity. These extensions exist in all sorts of modifications, and every spirit who has attained a conscious striving to the law of continuity realizes complete duration and vastness. (INF I, 307)

Treachery, Treason – Treason is precisely the main basis of undermining by the dark forces. For treason, one must know something. This relative knowledge, not strengthened by devotion, may be found on the first steps. (LHR I, p 79)

What crime is most destructive to the monad of the criminal? Certainly treason. This crime abruptly alters the current already established, and a terrific counter-blow results. A traitor cannot live long in the world of matter, and when he crosses over to the Subtle World, being entirely without life-giving energy, he is sucked into chaos and is doomed to disintegration. Treason is never impulsive. It is always premeditated, and thus its fate is aggravated. It must be understood that the return to chaos is indescribably painful. In addition, the feeling of the primary seed remains, and facing the futility of hoping for a speedy transformation demands indescribable courage. He is above all obsessed with conceit. Thus, people should be warned that even from a physical standpoint treason is intolerable. The traitor not only condemns himself but infects about him vast strata, generating storms of fire … Let each one who has pondered about the Fiery World beware of treason even in thought. No treason is small—it is great in evil and is hostile to the Universe. Such evil is in itself an obstacle to ascent. (FW I, 609)

Triad or Higher Triad – Thus, the highest or fundamental principle, which contains potentially the synthesis of all the others, is the fiery energy of life or spirit, which is spread throughout the entire Cosmos. For its focus it requires the sixth principle, or Buddhi, (often called 'spiritual soul' as distinct from the human-animal soul). Thus the monad is formed, which is the primary, unconscious, incarnated Ego. Then follows the fifth principle—the Manas, self-consciousness, 'the thinker' (higher intelligence). These three principles form the higher triad, or the conscious, immortal Ego. In Devachan, this Ego survives after the dissolution of the other principles which form man's earthly personality, or, as the Easterners would put it, man's lower ego, or self. In the Teaching, this Higher Ego, or the triad, is often treated as the seed of the spirit, which is unable directly or independently to manifest itself on earth. (LHR I, p 472)

Triangle – A figure formed by three lines intersecting by twos in three points, and so forming three angles. (WD)

The equilateral triangle with the apex uppermost is one of the signs of the White Brotherhood. (LHR I, p 398)

The triangle was sacred and used as a religious sign in the Far East ages before Pythagoras proclaimed it to be the first of the geometrical figures, as well as the most mysterious. It is found on pyramid and obelisk, and is pregnant with occult meaning, as are, in fact, all triangles. Thus the pentagram is the triple triangle—the six-pointed being the hexalp ha. The way a triangle points determines its meaning. If upwards, it means the male element and divine fire; downwards, the female and the waters of matter; upright, but with a bar across the top, air and astral light; downwards, with a bar—the earth or gross matter. When a Greek Christian priest in blessing holds his two fingers and thumb together, he simply makes the magic sign—by the power of the triangle or "trinity". (TG)

The white and black interlaced triangles were used by the Theosophical Society as the seal, and in The Mahatma Letters, Master K.H. explains some of the great mystery inherent in such a symbol: "… the double triangle viewed by the Jewish Kabalists as Solomon's Seal, is, as many of you doubtless know the Sri-antara of the archaic Aryan Temple, the 'mystery of mysteries', a geometrical synthesis of the whole occult doctrine. The two interlaced triangles are the Buddhagums of Creation. They contain the 'squaring of the circle', the 'philosophers stone', the great problems of Life and Death, and the Mystery of Evil. The chela who can explain this sign from every one of its aspects — is virtually an adept." (ML, p 345)
see also Solomon's Seal

Trinity – All the triads of the Gentiles were composed of the Father, Mother, and the Son. By making it 'Father, Son, and Holy Ghost', he changed the dogma only outwardly, as the Holy Ghost has always been feminine, and Jesus is made to address the Holy Ghost as his 'mother' in every Gnostic Gospel. (TG)

We can say the Trinity is Atma, Buddhi, and Manas; or Spirit, Soul and Intelligence; or Spirit, Substance and Light; or Spirit, Matter and Force, etc. (LHR I, p 490)

The Mother of the Universe, or the manifested Cosmos, can be accepted as one of the Figures of the Holy Trinity. Indeed, there is no religion, except later ecclesiastical Christianity, in which the Feminine Element is not included among the Primates of Be-ness. Thus, the Gnostics also considered the Holy Ghost as a Feminine Element. In the most ancient Teachings, the manifested Trinity of Father, Mother, and Son was considered as an emanation of the highest, eternally hidden Cause; and the latter, in turn, as that of the Causeless Cause. (LHR I, p 487)

Tripitaka – (Sk.). Lit., 'The three baskets', the name of the Buddhist canon. It is composed of three divisions: (1) the doctrine; (2) the rules and laws for the priesthood and ascetics; (3) the philosophical dissertations and metaphysics: to wit, the Abhidharma, defined by Buddhaghosa Abhidharma contains the most profoundly metaphysical and philosophical teachings, and is the store-house whence the Mahayana and Hinayana Schools got their fundamental doctrines. There is a fourth division—the Samyakta Pitaka. But as it is a later addition by the Chinese Buddhists, it is not accepted by the Southern Church of Siam and Ceylon. (TG)

Mark the hours of great manifestations. Already the Vedas are merging with the Tripitaka and the Kabala. (AY, 92)

Tripod of Pythia – see Pythia

True Crowning – The confirmation, through the Cosmic Magnet, of a unification of the Origins is called the True Crowning. Thus Cosmos collects its Reason. Urusvati is verily affirmed not by the planetary laws but by the Laws of the Lords. The Lords see and know.

In the interweavement is the greatest law. There may be separations stretching over thousands of years. The attainment of the Crown is a great complexity! (INF I, 172)

Trust – On the paths to the Brotherhood let us fortify ourselves with trust. We are not speaking about some sort of blind faith but precisely about the quality of trust. It must be understood that our qualities are the habitat for vitamins. The quality of mistrust or doubt will be deadly for the best vitamins ...

The being who is filled with doubt is not fit for even a primitive form of cooperation ... The Brothers join together for work, and without trust there would be no quality in their labor. (BR, 13)

Truth – The images of Truth, which you call ideas, rule the karma of the world. One may be astonished at how the images of Truth are battling in space. While the masses of people decay in the fury of ignorance and treason, the thoughts of Truth weave their heavenly nests, which for the true evolution are far more imperative than the worship of entire nations. (AY, 122)

The same unalterable Truth is given to humanity in various garments. Invariably does it become distorted by the scurrying crowds within less than a century. Therefore the purification of Truth enters into the duties of a Yogi. When the newly disclosed image of Truth smiles upon the devoted searcher, then joy may speed to the far-off worlds. The space proclaims that the destiny of life has been purified. And the countenance of the Bearers of Truth smile. (AY, 178)

The Blessed One said: "Truth is the sole source of courage." The truth correctly understood is the most beautiful chapter of wisdom in the book of Cosmos. (LMG II, p 154)

He who seeks Truth will discover the beauty of unending Be-ness. (INF I, 66)

Hence, We, Brothers of Humanity, measure the progress in proportion to its proximity to Truth. Thus, the spirit striving toward the far-off worlds is the bearer of the full Truth. (INF I, 383)

Tushita – (Sk.). A class of gods of great purity in the Hindu Pantheon. In exoteric or popular Northern Buddhism, it is a Deva-loka, a celestial region on the material plane, where all the Bodhisattvas are reborn, before they descend on this earth as future Buddhas. (TG)

Let us end with a legend: Let us look at the stars. We were told that the vessel of Wisdom was poured from out of Tushita, and the drops of the miraculous draught became aglow in space. But the Teacher said, "Thus glow the tips of the arrows of thought, because thought pierces the radiant substance and creates worlds." (AY, 122)

Twin Souls – see Souls, Twin

U – Besides the many definitions of the word AUM let us recollect that: A is Thought —the Basis; U is Light—the Primary Cause; M is Mystery—the Sacred. (AUM, 132)

Uighurs – A Turki Tribe in Central Asia. (LHR II, p 384)

Umbrella of Dukkar – see Dukkar

Unbelief – Unbelief does not belong to spiritual discussions only; it belongs to all domains of knowledge. A particular type of people is subject to unbelief. They deprive themselves of any creativeness; they cannot be inventors; they do not know inspiration. Such unbelievers can impede the movement of evolution. There are many of them, and they are capable of condemning everything not encompassed by their consciousness. Let us not take an example from these walking corpses. (BR, 406)

Union – A concordance of actions is called a real union. Cosmic union will direct all creative forces in the future; this is the principle upon which the new manifested world will be founded. (INF I, 93)
see also Unity

Unity – To all it may be told how indispensable is unity. It has already been pointed out that unity is a real motive force. It has been said that unity is a magnet. It is healer, health, it is rapid attainment. What is there still to be added?

If what has been said has no effect, it will be useless to say that unity is harmony with Hierarchy. If this indication is not adopted, a concept about Hierarchy can hardly be assimilated. But this will denote a house without a foundation. Each whirlwind will overthrow such a shaky structure. (AUM, 433)

That which is created by the one, the universal law of Cosmos is not sundered by the ordinance of cosmic energy. Unity is manifested through all Space, and this law is reflected in all manifestations of life. (INF I, 52)

The basis of being will be inscribed into the Book of Life, and when the consciousness will reach the level of realization of eternal unity, then will it be possible to tell humanity, "Construct your life upon the principle of unity". How many spirits will be able to express themselves in the higher way? (INF I, 69)

The ascent is predestined by the manifestation of all the cosmic combinations under the pure sign of cosmic unity. (INF I, 97)

When a spirit contacts the higher spheres, cosmic creativeness is revealed to it as the law of infinite unity. (INF II, 50)

The Cosmos is strained in the blending of its parts. So powerful is the principle of blending that it may be stated that the most powerful lever is the principle of unity. (INF II, 73)

In labor and in the utilization of prana lies the mystery of the possibility of unity of a group. (AY, 134)

Let us imagine unity in the aspect of a beautiful and stable dome. Let the threads of the elevation extend upward and be joined together as the facets of a dome. No one could suspect that unity could infringe upon individuality. With the ancient builders each column, each step was individual, yet none the less they went to make up the general harmony of the structure. The vault was held up, not by ornaments, but by correct internal cohesion—thus unity can be expected where that inner cohesion which rises to the Summit is understood. (BR, 486)
see also Oneness

Universal Being – see Universal Essence

Universal Essence – Spirit.

The concept of humanity regarding the Universal Being differs so greatly from the Universal Essence that all definitions should be revised. When the meaning of Be-ness is permeated with the understanding of Omnipresence and Omnisuffusion, then verily the Cosmos assumes a Fiery Image. But if each energy is isolated in human understanding, then certainly the assertion of life proceeds in conformity. Upon the principle of correspondence depends the entire human existence. Thus, the degree of consciousness determines the quality of the evolutionary step, because the spirit itself and its striving are the foundations of existence. (INF II, 382)
see also Essence

Universal Mind – The Cosmic Mind representing 'the collectivity of the Dhyan Chohanic Minds' or the Collective Mind or Reason of the Hierarchy of Light. (SD I, p 579)

It is incorrect to call the fire of space Cosmic Reason, for the fire of space is the Source of Life. Consequently, it is the potential consciousness or the basis of Mind. The Cosmic Mind is the manifested Mind or the collective Mind or Reason of the Hierarchy of Light. (LHR I, p 376)

Indeed, the whole summum bonum of Reason in its convoluted or involuted state in the Unmanifested Universe, we may call God. But it is necessary to establish the difference between the Cosmic Foundation, or the Potential Mind, infinite in its absoluteness, and the Manifested Cosmic Mind. Thus, the Highest Reason and the Great Heart, mentioned in Chalice of the East and in the books of the Teaching, is precisely the Collective Mind and the Heart of the Great Hierarchy of Light. Precisely, the Mind and the Heart of these

Highest Spirits who have completed their human evolution for this Manvantara (either here or in other worlds or systems) direct the lower forces subordinate to Them, together with the destinies of various humanities in various worlds. (LHR I, p 390)
see also Cosmic Magnet, Cosmic Mind, Cosmic Reason

Universal Principle – Parabrahm. The Seventh or Highest Principle. (ML, p 344)

The one and chief attribute of the universal spiritual principle—the unconscious but ever active life-giver—is to expand and shed; that of the universal material principle to gather in and fecundate. Unconscious and non-existing when separate, they become consciousness and life when brought together. (ML, p 71)

Upadhi – (Sk.). Basis; the vehicle, carrier or bearer of something less material than itself: as the human body is the upadhi of its spirit, either the upadhi of light, etc., etc.; a mold; a defining or limiting substance. (TG)

Upanishads – (Sk.). Translated as ‘esoteric doctrine’, or intepretation of the Vedas by the Vedanta methods. The division of the Vedas appended to the Brahmanas and regarded as a portion of Sruti or ‘revealed’ word. They are, however, as records, far older than the Brahmanas—with the exception of the two, still extant, attached to the Rig-Veda of the Aitareyins. The term Upanishad is explained by the Hindu pundits as ‘that which destroys ignorance, and thus produces liberation’ of the spirit, through knowledge of the supreme though hidden truth; the same, therefore, that which was hinted at by Jesus, when He is made to say, "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John VIII: 32). It is from these treatises of the Upanishads—themselves the echo of the primeval Wisdom-Religion—that the Vedanta system of philosophy has been developed. (TG)

The Agni-Puranas, the Upanishads, and other ancient Covenants, in their basic portions, transmit with absolute exactness the laws of Being. (AUM, 563)

Ur – Ur is the root of the Light of the Fire. From times immemorial this Radiant Principle has attracted the hearts of many peoples. Thus, from the Covenants of the past let us transport ourselves into the future attainment. (FW I, Preface)

In directing Prana to the seat of disease one should keep in mind that the Fire of Space is inhaled and the consumed UR is exhaled. (FW I, 369)

UR. – UR. refers to the Mother of Agni Yoga, Urusvati.

The Lights of the Mother of the World resemble the pillars of the Aurora Borealis. Very rare is the phenomenon when the microcosm—man—can be compared to the Macrocosm. UR. has seen such a manifestation. (FW II, 424)
see also Urusvati

Uraeus of Knowledge – ‘Uraeus’ is a sacred symbol depicting the head of the cobra. It was used as a headdress by the Initiates and Pharoahs of Egypt, and it also adorns the Gods of India. Thus, Uraeus is a symbol of initiation and hidden wisdom. The serpent has always been a symbol of wisdom, and the ancient sages of India were called Nagas. ‘Nag’ means serpent. Uraeus also means cosmic fire. (LHR I, p 497)

The Uraeus of knowledge is not yet wrought! (AY, 30)

Uranus – Thus, Our Luminary intensifies these currents which flow in harmony with evolution. Indeed, the rays which are collecting a new race are directing to a new world and, naturally, they annihilate everything which does not conform with evolution. And Our Luminary certainly develops the principles of the nascent new race. Hence, the spatial fires are so intensively absorbed by the Agni Yogi. When Uranus strains the rays, a new step is affirmed. (INF I, 332)

When Uranus draws into coalescence the currents of the subtlest energies, it may be said verily that Uranus confirms all manifested paths and that its currents impel evolution forward. Thus the currents of the luminaries quicken the march of events, and the spirit of Our Uranus accelerates the movement of the chain of evolution. Thus, acute are the angles of correlation. Powerful are the sun’s rays at a direct angle, and likewise the attraction of Uranus. A fiery assimilation then takes place. It is a very serious time. Uranus is acting! We are preparing that step. (INF I, 334)

Uriel – Uriel is the Lord of powerful action. One may invoke different Leaders according to the nature of the help needed. If Michael unites with Uriel, it means that a powerful offensive is necessary. Uriel austerely mastered the elements upon Venus. Thus, one must temper the power, accepting the blow of the elements. One must understand these mighty Forces as reality. (H, 268)

I must also remind you that all the Archangels and Angels had to go through human evolution. And the Archangel Varahael, or Uriel, was and is a Man. (LHR I, p 350)

Urominai – Condensed thought can be detrimental for the heart. As dense gas burns away vessels, so thought can press the heart. As was said, "A serpent beneath the heart". Urominai is the serpent which gnaws the forces. (H, 161)

Uruci – Elohim or Creative Host.

We protect each particle of the energy of the Elohim and each Uruci, from the Fire of Space. (H, 56)

Urumiya – The fiery understanding of obsession is called Urumiya. Man is not the only one to possess this straight-knowledge; certain animals close to man sense this dreadful state. Horses and dogs especially sense and resent the proximity of obsessed persons … One ought to develop Urumiya in oneself, not only for protection but also for the purpose of exorcising the obsessor. Very often a single conversation about the significance of Agni begins to react upon the obsessor. Fearing Fire, the very mention of the fiery energy angers him and forces him to retreat.

Urumiya also relates to the science of Fire. The mastery of Fire directing lies not in the field of mechanics but in the cognizance of highest energy, brought back from experience in the Subtle World. (FW I, 373-374)

Urusvati – It is time to say that this is the name we have given to the star which is irresistibly approaching the Earth. Since long ago it has been the symbol of the Mother of the World, and the Epoch of the Mother of the World must begin at the time of Her Star's unprecedented approach to the Earth. The Great Epoch is beginning, because the spirit-understanding is linked with the Mother of the World. (LMG II, p 66)

Uru and Svati are found in Cosmogony. Repeated are the signs of approaching Aquarius and the combination with Saturn.

Uru and Agni are needed to bring the Svati of consciousness. (AY, 516-517)

Uruvela – Was a sacred grove on the bank where the Lord Buddha, according to legend, received His Illumination. (LHR I, p 401)

Ushas – (Sk.). The dawn, the daughter of heaven; the same as the Aurora of the Latins. (TG)

The Ushas of the New Dawn may now be manifested. Already the power of Light is consuming the darkness. M. is an invincible Spirit. (LMG II, p 171)

Vairaga – Vairaga is the very sacred flame of renunciation of corporeal things. Forbearance is more difficult in thought than in action. (FW III, 582)

Knowing how to purge the consciousness of unneeded concepts means already to get set for the distant journey. Only in such a liberated state is it possible to think about a new consciousness. Joy is born when Vairaga is shining. (FW III, 584)

Valerian – Valerian remains in the category of 'lifegivers' and its significance is equivalent to the significance of the blood in the body. Occultly, valerian is considered as the blood of the vegetable kingdom. It should be taken continuously as daily food. It can be taken in the form of a tincture, made with alcohol, but definitely without mixing with such additions as ether. Dose: ten to forty-five drops. But best of all is the valerian tea made from infusing the valerian roots in water—once or twice daily. (LHR I, p 145)

Valhalla – Devachan is the place of pleasant realizations. But at the same time it is dangerous, because a weak spirit is reluctant to leave so pleasant a station. This station yields the greatest unwillingness to return for more labor. And when the time comes to leave this Valhalla, while the mental body impels one to achievement, the astral body finds the place most comfortable. (LMG II, pp 82-83)

Varahael – see Uriel

Vedana – (Sk.). The second of the five skandhas (perceptions, senses). (TG)

We find the physical and psychic organism of a man is but the combination of five groups of aggregates or skandhas, which are divided into physical qualities: form—rupa; sensation—vedana; perception—samjna; forces—samskara; consciousness—vijnana. All five are equally unstable and dual. (LHR I, p 478)

Vedanta – (Sk.). A mystic system of philosophy which has developed from the efforts of generations of sages to interpret the secret meaning of the Upanishads. (TG)

Vedanta correctly states that the spirit remains inviolate. The fiery seed of the spirit remains in its primary consistency, because the essence of the elements is immutable. But the emanation of the seed changes, depending on the growth of consciousness. Thus one may understand that the seed of the spirit is a fragment of the elementary fire. And the energy accumulated around it is consciousness. This means that Vedanta was concerned with the seed, and Buddhism spoke of the perfectment of the bodies. Thus the movable and the immovable are completely correlated.

It is quite understandable that Buddha, who directed humanity toward evolution, pointed out the nature of mobility, whereas the Vedanta expounded the foundation. You may add any chemical ingredient to a flame and thereby change its color and size, but the primary nature of fire will remain unchanged. I do not see any basic contradiction between Vedanta and Buddhism. (AY, 275)

The entire life must be readjusted for the new direction in evolution. It is inaccessible to him who is unwilling to bring this gift to Earth in spirit; yet this gift has importance in the termination of the earthly path. From the most ancient precepts of Vedanta We know of this principle of liberation. But before the renascence of evolution it is Our mission to repeat again and again about this propelling force. (AY, 153)

Sri Shankaracharya, the founder of the Vedanta philosophy, was an incarnation of the ray of one of the Great Teachers of the White Brotherhood. (LHR I, p 443)

Vedas – (Sk.). The ‘revelation’, the scriptures of the Hindus. They are the most ancient as well as the most sacred of the Sanskrit works. (TG)

Vedic Medicine – He who wishes to make use of the foundations of Vedic medicine acts correctly. Notwithstanding the later additions, the essence of the Vedas remains useful, for to each searching investigator this sequential method remains new in its perception of the properties of vegetable precipitates. Instead of a crude listing of plants and other products of nature, a precise definition of the condition and the parts of the plants gives completely different results. Attention is paid also to the conditions of cosmic chemism.

From hoary antiquity, these conclusions can create joy for the present-day observer. (AY, 585)

Veil of the Mother of the World – Millefolium or 'Thousand Leaves', was the name of an ancient decoction of wild field herbs. Its significance lay in the belief that the field flora is in itself already a collective panacea. Of course such a combination of plant forces is very noteworthy; for who better than Nature can match up conformable neighbors! The proportions and methods of adaptation rest in the hands of man. Verily, each symphony of vegetation astonishes one by its consonance. Creativeness is rich, both externally and internally, but, as a rule, people cruelly violate this precious veil of the Mother of the World. (FW I, 320)

see also Khatak of the Mother of the World

Vengeance – No advancement is possible, no construction is possible, without the strongest expenditures of energies on the part of Hierarchy, when the co-workers are clouded with personal feelings. The co-workers must remember the first law, which affirms the first step—the expulsion of feelings of personal vengeance, for the feeling of revenge is a powerful manifestation of the unscrupulousness of selfhood. For the sake of personal vengeance the co-worker may give up that of greatest value. When a co-worker forgets, due to selfhood, the affirmation which he must forge in his spirit in order not to forget Service, the harm may become indelible. Primitive man lived and believed in vengeance, but the consciousness has broadened and man can no longer dwell with such black concepts. He who knows the meaning of Karma can understand that a man takes revenge only on himself. (FW III, 56)

Venus – Where then are the nearest worlds, whither we could direct our consciousness? Jupiter and Venus. (COM, 32)

Uriel austerely mastered the elements upon Venus. (H, 268)

The armor of Mars was prepared and forged by Vulcan and Venus. Thus the symbol of the wise myth in itself contains the meaning of life. (H, 401)

The conjuction of the Moon, Venus and Saturn is indeed rare. Precisely such a conjunction produces a chemism of extraordinary force, and it may be remembered that We pointed out the assistance of the Luminaries in actions useful for the world. (FW II, 397)

The Star of the Mother of the World is the planet Venus. In 1924 this planet for a short time came unusually near to the Earth. Its rays were poured on Earth, and this created many new powerful and sacred combinations which will yield great results. Many feminine movements were kindled by these powerful rays. (LHR I, p 376)

Why should Venus and Mercury have no satellites and by what, when they exist, were they formed? The astronomers 'do not know.' Because, we say, science has only one key—the key of matter—to open the mysteries of nature withal, while occult philosophy has seven keys and explains that which science fails to see. Mercury and Venus have no satellites, but they had 'parents' just as the Earth had. Both are far older than the Earth, and, before the latter reaches her seventh Round, her mother Moon will have dissolved into thin air, as the 'Moons' of the other planets have, or have not, as the case may be, since there are planets which have several moons—a mystery again which no Oedipus of astronomy has solved. (LHR II, p 67)

Human evolution is regarded as the crown of the Universe, but we know that the earthly man is still very crude in his form and tissues when compared with, let us say, the dwellers of Jupiter and Venus. (LHR II, p 440)

It is said that on the higher planets there are fewer animals and they are far more perfect. Thus there are no insects and beasts of prey on Venus. There exists a veritable kingdom of flights. People fly, birds fly, and even fish. And the birds understand human speech. The colors of fishes and of birds' feathers attain amazing combinations and beauty. (LHR II, pp 496-497)

Vhnana – (Sk.). Consciousness—one of the five skandhas. (LHR I, p 478)

Via Reale – You may meet people hastening with their attainments, and they may think that We are slow. But lead them under the night sky and point out the radiance of the countless worlds. Say, The Lord leads you toward this creativeness. Is it possible to be slow on this great path? We must prepare ourselves to be co-creators. It is necessary to preserve and multiply the seeds of consciousness, because the entire world is sustained by the power of consciousness. There is no power to withstand a consciousness purified of egoism. One can prepare oneself to cross all bridges with a fiery consciousness which is atremor with the pulse of Cosmos, and which, in the seed of its spirit, responds to all tremors of Earth and knows the truth of the peoples. One can apply all sacred powers of the heart to becoming co-creators of the flaming Logoi by conquering death. But so long as such daring is not instilled in the heart, the consciousness cannot grow infinitely in this direction. We call it Via Reale. Therefore, Fiat Rex is where the spirit, reverencing Hierarchy, dares! (HIER, 203)

Vidya – (Sk.). Knowledge, Occult Science.
see also Avidya

Vihara – (Sk.). Any place inhabited by Buddhist priests or ascetics; a Buddhist temple, generally a rock-temple or cave. A monastery, or a nunnery also. (TG)

Vina – (Sk.). A kind of large guitar used in India and Tibet, whose invention is attributed variously to Siva, Narada, and others. (TG)

The vina does not always ring out, but its intonation is always harmonious. (AY, 201)

The health of the yogi is analogous to the tuning of the vina. The same may be said of the work of the yogi. At times resonant, at times silent, wrapped in the veil of goal-fitness. The aim of the yogi is to fill space with useful affirmation and to direct the energy to where Truth is debased. (AY, 202)

The vina must be tuned in order to attain harmonies. (H, 465)

In order that the strings of the vina may sound harmoniously, they should be neither too taut nor too slack. Verily, every effort that is too strenuous fails, and if not sufficiently strong it results in passivity and inertness. (LHR I, p 236)

Vina of the Creator – Among the sacred pains there is a certain type which is called, "The Vina of the Creator." As chords on a musical instrument, so speed the pains of the centers of the throat, the shoulders, the elbows, the extremities, the knees, and other centers. Thus is the heart attuned. (H, 444)

Vishuddha Chakra – The Throat Center, numbered among the 7 main centers or chakras in man. (LHR I, 426)
see also Chakra, Centers

Vivekananda – I am very happy that you appreciate the works of Vivekananda and Ramakrishna. Their books were and are our greatest friends. Unfortunately, both these great spirits have already left us. Vivekananda died in 1901 and Ramakrishna before that. (LHR I, p 217)

Voice of Silence – Sensitiveness and vigilance can aid us in giving ear to the Voice of Silence. The beauty of Cosmos is manifested in silence. The beauty of silence is expressed in all the higher manifestations of life. (INF I, 80)

The transmission of thought is also a manifestation of Silence. We often use it. Before the consummation of the thought manifestation, We send the ray of Silence. The rays of Silence call forth those sacred pains in the Chalice.

There are rays which are sent into the heart, invisibly and imperceptibly. They are most penetrative, and the organism must assimilate them. At first they evoke anguish, yet they are comparable to pure Fire. The one who sends experiences a manifestation of the highest joy, and the one who receives will manifest the same joy after assimilation. In the most sacred Mysteries these rays were called ‘Agni Invisibilae.’ Thus, remember! (INF I, 81)
see also Silence

Water – Not only do people not pay attention to the emanations of the earth, they do not take into account the quality of the water used, although they have become accustomed to medicinal treatments with waters. For their protection people have devised the use of boiled water, forgetting that certain water organisms cannot live in boiled water. True, many microbes perish in the boiling, but, on the other hand, upon cooling the boiled water actually absorbs a great quantity of dead particles from the atmosphere.

If you wish to reduce brain receptivity, drink cold boiled water which has been kept for a long time—it communicates to the organism a sluggish staleness.

We teach the use of boiled water only in its fresh, very hot state.

We make use of springs, admitting for purification alum or pumice. Tufa, which is found around geysers, is also useful as a purifier of water. Pure water not only quenches thirst but also ozonizes the whole atmosphere.

We treat wounds by immersion in pure water. Light and water are Our remedies. …

This morning, imperceptibly, the song of the spring drove away fatigue. This emanation of energy is equal to a strong electrical stimulus. (COM, 159)

Well – The crown of the head is termed the well, because the waves of alien influences penetrate by this way. Everywhere in antiquity we see the covering of the head connected with the symbol of the priest. (LMG II, p 630)

see also Centers, Chakra

Will – see Wishes

Wine – Healer, tell the ailing ones that the use of wine diminishes by half their chances, that the use of narcotics takes away three quarters of their vitality. (LMG II, p 133)

Wings – The centers of the shoulders also are called wings, because during a self-sacrificing achievement rays extend from them. The legend concerning wings is highly symbolic. Likewise, it was a favorite custom of the ancients to wear a round metal plate upon their breasts. (LMG II, p 63)

Wishes – Express your wishes cautiously. Every one knows many parables and fairy tales which describe the ugly consequences of careless wishes. … If people would realize the power of the will, many manifestations would receive a practical explanation. Indeed, not a forcible tension of the will but the dynamic quality of concordance of the centers produces the effect of fulfillment. Hence, an oft-repeated desire, like a blunt blade, does not cleave space. Whereas, the ringing of unexpected concordance breaks the densest surface. (COM, 168)

Woman – Over and above man's work stands the manifestation of woman. She leads, she inspires, she guides on all paths, and she displays an example of synthesis. It is astonishing how quickly she enters any domain. From Earth up to the far-off worlds she succeeds in weaving wings of Light. She knows how to preserve the Chalice in different atmospheres. When We speak about cooperation, We always point to the achievement of woman. (BR, 282)

see also Epoch of Maitreya, Epoch of Women

Words – The sound of words should be beautiful, such harmony also produces exalted thinking. It is inadmissable to disregard any means of uplifting the consciousness. Foul language, as an infection of space, brings debasement of the whole intellect. Ugliness in all its aspects is a dangerous malady. For humanity's sake one must understand where is cure and where dissolution. It is time to cognize the purification of earthly existence. It is inadmissable to disturb space with curses that unexpectedly smite innocent beings. An arrow loosed in a moving crowd can strike a blameless one. Likewise, during thinking one can strike where karma has prepared a weak spot. Perhaps, without such a blow, karma could have somehow been altered, yet the misfortune of the blow can smite undeservedly. Therefore, people must understand their responsibility for each word let loose. (BR, 394)

Many think it is not worthwhile to be concerned about words and thoughts, for the world goes on in spite of curses. But such fools are blind, precisely, they do not see all the afflictions and misfortunes attracted by humanity. Let us not threaten, but advise purifying the atmosphere. (BR, 395)

Work – It is necessary to assimilate permanently the dignity and the work of the true work. (COM, 17)

Understand that work properly apportioned cannot in itself be fatiguing. One should understand how to effect a proper change of the group of working nerves, and then no fatigue can find access. (LMG II, pp 215-216)

Worry – Worry is a chasm of misery. He who gives himself up to worry is like a man in a burning house. Waves of flame almost consume him. He is full of a desire only to escape from the house. Scraps of thought are tossing about and fill him with irritation. In this chaos fear is born, and the will becomes paralyzed. Hence, one must avoid worry. Yet calmness is not absence of feeling nor inaction. (FW III, 588)

LIber Lucis Book CoverLiber Lucis

Exploring the Light of Your Spiritual Nature

We visualize that this Book of Light will inspire seekers to come forth into the Light of their own Inner Wisdom, to reflect mystically upon the challenges of life.

The Liber Lucis aims to be a narrative guide for calling upon each individual to create their own manifesto, their own personal declaration to themselves, about how they are going to contribute to, restore, share and protect the Light of their spiritual nature and that of others.

Positio Fraternitaits Rosae CrucisPositio Fraternitatis Rosae Crucis
The Rosicrucian World Convention in Sweden in August 2001 reflected a theme of world peace and harmony among all nations and peoples. It was at this convention that Rosicrucian Imperator Christian Bernard introduced the Positio Fraternitatis Rosae Crucis, a document informing the public of AMORC's position regarding today's world situation, the dangers threatening it, and the future prospects we wish for all. We hope that you will read the Positio with an open mind and that it will strike a responsive chord within your consciousness.

Between 1785 and 1788 an unknown Rosicrucian compiled text and images from earlier materials (1621, 1625 and 1700) that deal with Alchemy, Mysticism and other Rosicrucian themes. It was first published in two parts in Altona, Germany. A copy of this work was in the library of the Rosicrucian/Pietist mission to Pennsylvania that became the Ephrata Cloister. The present edition provides translations of the original German text, as well as reproducing the images, which are most suitable for meditation.

About Author: See website for more info - http://james-allen.in1woord.nl/ - James Allen (November 28, 1864 – 1912) was a British philosophical writer known for his inspirational books and poetry and as a pioneer of the self-help movement. His best known work, As a Man Thinketh, has been mass produced since its publication in 1902. It has been a source of inspiration to motivational and self-help authors.

Summary: Above Life's Turmoil (1910) by James Allen (Book) in Self-Improvement : If you cherish As a Man Thinketh, then Above Life's Turmoil will not fail you. Surrounded by noise, we can yet have a quiet mind; involved in responsibilities, the heart can be at rest; in the midst of strife, we can know the abiding peace. The twenty pieces which comprise this book, unrelated as some of them are in the letter, will be found to be harmonious in the spirit, in that they point the reader towards those heights of self-knowledge and self-conquest which, rising above the turbulance of the world, lift their peaks where the Heavenly Silence reigns - James Allen. All These Things Added: A Guide to Life - By James Allen (1903) - Free PDF Ebooks
Summary: James Allen's All These Things Added was first published in 1903 and contains both "Entering the Kingdom" and "The Heavenly Life", which were both later published as separate books. Allen writes: EVERY HUMAN SOUL IS IN NEED. The expression of that need varies with individuals, but there is not one soul that does not feel it in some degree. It is a spiritual and casual need which takes the form, in souls of a particular development, of a deep and inexpressible hunger which the outward things of life, however abundantly they may be possessed, can never satisfy. Yet the majority, imperfect in knowledge and misled by appearances, seek to satisfy this hunger by striving for material possessions, believing that these will satisfy their need, and bring them peace. Byways to Blessedness - By James Allen (1904) - Free PDF Ebooks Download Summary: He who will step aside from the passionate press, and will deign to notice and to enter the byways which are here presented, his dusty feet shall press the incomparable flowers of blessedness, his eyes be gladdened with their beauty, and his mind refreshed with their sweet perfume. Rested and sustained, he will escape the fever and the delirium of life, and, strong and happy, he will not fall fainting in the dust, nor perish by the way, but will successfully accomplish his journey. (205kb.pdf)

Out From The Heart - By James Allen (1904) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: James Allen, author of the bestselling As a Man Thinketh-one of the most popular writers in the fields of inspiration at the turn of the 20th century-devoted himself to helping others find inner peace and enlightenment. His prescriptions were often as practical as they were spiritual, empowering the individual by emphasizing personal responsibility. Out From the Heart continues that tradition, with essays on The Nature and Power of Mind, Formation of Habit, and Doing and Knowing, among others. Before starting down the path of truth and virtue, Allen cautions, see yourself as you are. Great discipline and patience will be required, but the result will be "the Life Beautiful."British author and pop philosopher JAMES ALLEN (1864-1912) retired from the business world to pursue a life of writing and contemplation. He authored many books about the power of thought including The Way of Peace, The Mastery of Destiny, and Entering the Kingdom.. (56kb.pdf)

The Life Triumphant - Mastering the Heart And Mind - By James Allen (1908)
Summary: Offering his patented brand of spiritual advice that relied as much on self-empowerment as inspiration, James Allen-one of the most popular writers in the field at the turn of the 20th century-sets out to show the elements of character and conduct that go towards building a "life of calm strength and superlative victory." In helping the reader achieve "victory over all the dark things of life," Allen has written a self-help book for anyone "eager to learn, and earnest to achieve." This is another inspirational landmark from the bestselling author of As a Man Thinketh. British author and pop philosopher JAMES ALLEN (1864-1912) retired from the business world to pursue a life of writing and contemplation. (109kb.pdf)

Morning And Evening Thoughts - By James Allen (1909) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: James Allen was one of the most popular writers on spirituality at the turn of the 20th century, his many books comforting millions of readers with their unpretentious wisdom about living the joyful life. This little book, first published in 1909, gathers the essence of his insight into a month's worth of twice-daily affirmations and meditations culled from his many inspiring works. From the necessity of sacrifice in aiming for blessedness to the healing power of sympathy, Allen's words still sing sweetly today, a century after they were written. British author and pop philosopher JAMES ALLEN (1864-1912) retired from the business world to pursue a life of writing and contemplation. (54kb.pdf)

The Mastery of Destiny - By James Allen (1909) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: In this companion piece to The Life Triumphant, the bestselling author of the inspirational classic As a Man Thinketh continues his life's goal of revealing universal principles-both spiritual and practical-to empower the individual. With his emphasis on personal responsibility and harnessing one's inner power, he covers such topics as the Science of Self-Control, Training of the Will, Cultivation of Concentration, the Power of Purpose, and the Joy of Accomplishment. This is self-help for the inner self, from a man who believed that we alone are masters of our own destiny. JAMES ALLEN (1864-1912) was an Englishman who retired from the business world to pursue a lifestyle of writing and contemplation. His books are classics in the fields of inspiration and spirituality. (99kb.pdf)

From Passion to Peace - By James Allen (1910) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: James Allen, author of "As a Man Thinketh" and other classics of inspiration, returns with From Passion to Peace, his thoughts on personal fulfillment. This edition adds a new introduction and a selected bibliography. The first three parts of this book, Passion, Aspiration, and Temptation, represent the common human life, with its passion, pathos, and tragedy. The last three parts, Transcendence, Beatitude, and Peace, represents the Divine Life-calm, wise and beautiful-of the sage and Savior. The middle part, Transmutation, is the transitional stage between the two; it is the alchemic process linking the divine with the human life. Discipline, denial, and renunciation do not constitute the Divine State; they are only the means by which it is attained. The Divine Life is established in that Perfect Knowledge which bestows Perfect Peace. (56kb.pdf)

Eight Pillars of Prosperity - By James Allen (1911) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: It is popularly supposed that a greater prosperity for individuals or nations can only come through a political and social reconstruction. This cannot be true apart from the practice of the moral virtues in the individuals that comprise a nation. Better laws and social conditions will always follow a higher realization of morality among the individuals of a community, but no legal enactment can give prosperity to, nay it cannot prevent the ruin of, a man or a nation that has become lax and decadent in the pursuit and practice of virtue - James Allen (130kb.pdf)

Light on Life's Difficulties - By James Allen (1912) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: James Allen was one of the most popular writers in the fields of inspiration and spirituality at the turn of the 20th century, and here, in this 1912 work, he tackles the myriad problems facing the world and all its people from a perspective of mind over matter. Shining a light of plain-spoken wisdom on everything from the personal (a sense of proportion, good manners and refinement) to the global (war and peace, diversities of creeds), he motivates us all the take a hand in making the world a better place... for ourselves and for everyone. British author and pop philosopher JAMES ALLEN (1864-1912) retired from the business world to pursue a life of writing and contemplation. (317kb.pdf)

Foundation Stones to Happiness and Success - By James Allen (1913) - Free PDF Ebooks
Summary: From the Author: "How does a man begin the building of a house? He first secures a plan of the proposed edifice, and then proceeds to build according to the plan, scrupulously following it in every detail, beginning with the foundation. Should he neglect the beginning - the beginning on a mathematical plan - his labour would be wasted, and his building, should it reach completion without tumbling to pieces, would be insecure and worthless. The same law holds good in any important work; the right beginning and first essential is a definite mental plan on which to build." (45kb.pdf)

James Allen’s book of meditations for Every Day in the Year (1913) - Free PDF Ebooks
Summary: Every day is a new beginning and not a mere repetition of the previous day. Hence each day should be spent wisely and fruitfully. As today's life is becoming hectic and busy, we are prone to illnesses and mental disturbances. Therefore, now, more than ever in the past, we need to spend few minutes in meditation. This will. give us the necessary spiritual and mental poise to enter upon our duties in the proper frame of mind. The meditations given in this book for each day of the year keep us. (413kb.pdf)

The Shining Gateway - By James Allen (1915) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: The Shinning Gateway describes actions and motives, dealing with temptation, religion, and more. It is one of Allen's deepest and most lucid works dealing with fundamental principles of human experience. "The unregenerate man is subject to these three things - "Desire, Passion, Sorrow. He lives habitually in these conditions, and neither questions nor examines them. He regards them as his life itself, and cannot conceive of any life apart from them. To-day he desires, to-morrow he indulges his passions, and the third day he grieves..."James Allen was a British philosophical writer known for his inspirational books and poetry and as a pioneer of self-help movement. Allen's practical philosophy for successful living has awakened millions to the discovery that "they themselves are makers of themselves." Allen insists that it is within the power of each person to form his own character and create his own happiness. (82kb.pdf)

The Divine Companion - By James Allen (1919) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: Life is by its nature a journey with many twists and turns-a voyage of discovery, with few road signs and many hidden bends. Alchemy Rediscovered and Restored (1941) - By Archibald Cockren - Free PDF Ebooks
Summary: The object of this book is to place before the reader in language as simple as possible the story of alchemy. Because the literature on this science has ever been an enigma to both the scientific and the lay mind, it is the earnest desire of the author to present it stripped of its symbolism, and to give some indication of its processes, its achievements, and its possibilities. This is an excellent primer for anyone interested in alchemy.

Alice Ann Bailey (June 16, 1880 – December 15, 1949) was a writer of more than twenty-four books on theosophical subjects, and was one of the first writers to use the term New Age. Bailey was born as Alice La Trobe-Bateman, in Manchester, England. The books of Alice A. Bailey, written in cooperation with a Tibetan teacher between 1919-1949, constitute a continuation of the Ageless Wisdom — a body of esoteric teaching handed down from ancient times in a form which is always suitable to each period.

Esoteric Christianity - By Annie Besant [1914] - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: Early Christianity held secrets equal to those of other great religions, says Annie Besant. Its first followers guarded them as priceless treasures. After an increasingly rigid hierarchy began to bury these truths in the early centuries A.D., they were known only to a few initiates, who communicated them privately, often in obscure language. In Esoteric Christianity, Besant's aim is to restore the secret truths underlying Christian doctrine. As public interest grows in the Gnostic Gospels and the mystical side of Christianity, Besant's remarkable book, first published in 1901, is attracting new attention. (347kb.pdf)

Fundamentals of Buddhism By Dr Peter D. Santina - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: Dr Santina covers what we might call the basic Buddhist teachings over a series of twelve lectures. The basic teachings outlined here include: the Life of the Buddha, the Four Noble Truths, the Noble Eightfold Path, Karma, Rebirth, Dependent Origination, The Three Universal Characteristics and The Five Aggregates. Dr Santina also puts Buddhism into its context by describing the pre-Buddhist background and gives an overview of Buddhism from a modern perspective in a very readable way. (487kb.pdf)

Summary: Through the efforts of our volunteers around the world, the Study Guide for Ethics for the New Millennium is being translated into more languages. PDF versions of the study guides will be made available here as we receive them. One of the best ways to study Ethics for the New Millennium is in a study circle—a gathering of friends who come together to learn about a topic and how it can be applied in their lives. The fun comes in creating your own culture, proceeding at your own pace, strengthening your bonds with your study partners, and enjoying your own learning style.(686kb.pdf)

A Survey of the Paths of Tibetan Buddhism by Dalai Lama - Free PDF Ebooks
Summary: From the intro: “In giving an overview of the Buddhadharma, as practised by the Tibetans, I generally point out that the Buddhism we practice is an integrated form comprising teachings of the low, Bodhisattva and Tantric vehicles, including such paths as the Great Seal. Because quite a number of people have already received initiations, teachings and so on, they might find it helpful to have an explanation of the complete framework. People of other religious traditions, who have an interest in Buddhism and who find such features of Buddhist practice as the meditiative techniques for developing love and compassion attractive, could also benefit by incorporating them into their own tradition and practice." Dalai Lama 1988..(686kb.pdf)

The Essence of Tibetan Buddhism by Lama Yeshe - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: The Essence of Tibetan Buddhism by Lama Thubten Yeshe consists of three teachings. The first one, "The Three Principal Aspects of the Path," was given in France in 1982, during an sponsored tour of Europe by His Holiness the Dalai Lama. Just before His Holiness's scheduled teachings at Institut Vajra Yogini, His Holiness manifested illness and asked Lama Yeshe to fill in for a couple of days— to "baby-sit" the audience, as Lama put it. This two-part teaching on three principal aspects of the path is the result. The second teaching, an "Introduction to Tantra," also in two parts, was given at Grizzly Lodge, California, in 1980. It comprises the first two lectures of a commentary on the Chenrezig yoga method taught by Lama at the request of Vajrapani Institute, Boulder Creek.

The Essence of Buddhism By Various Authors (1922) - Free PDF Ebooks Download
Summary: In this compilation no attempt has been made to present a general view of Buddhism as a religious or philosophical system. The aim has rather been to turn Buddhism to account as a moral force by bringing together a selection of its beautiful sentiments, and lofty maxims, and particularly including some of those which inculcate mercy to the lower animals. Fountain Source of Occultism - By G. de Purucker (1939) - Kindle
Summary: Derived from twelve booklets of instruction to private students, Fountain-Source restores occultism to its original purity and recreates the atmosphere and discipline of the ancient Mystery schools. The scope of teaching is vast: the primeval wisdom-teaching; discipline and the spiritual path; the genesis, structure and destiny of galaxies and solar systems; correlations of cosmic and human constitutions; death and the circulations of the cosmos; and invisible worlds and their inhabitants. Addressed to all who sense the interrelatedness of human destiny with the cosmic design, and feel the call of altruistic service to humanity.

Golden Precepts - By G de Purucker (1938) - PDF
Summary: This little book contains certain teachings given for study and for meditation to Chelas in the Esoteric School. H.P.B.'s 'The Voice of the Silence' comprises a number of extracts from the same sources of teaching in a reproduction which is faithful almost verbatim to the original works from which she drew; but the phraseology in that wonderful little work of hers is often highly technical and therefore difficult of understanding by Occidentals trained almost from birth in a quite different psychology.

The 100 Ranking of the Most Influential Persons in History By Michael H. Hart
Summary: The 100: A Ranking of the Most Influential Persons in History is a 1978 book by Michael H. Hart, reprinted in 1992 with revisions. It is a ranking of the 100 people who, according to Hart, most influenced human history. The first person on Hart's list is the Prophet of Islam Muhammad. Hart asserted that Muhammad was "supremely successful" in both the religious and secular realms. He also believed that Muhammad's role in the development of Islam was far more influential than Jesus' collaboration in the development of Christianity. He attributes the development of Christianity to St. Paul, who played a pivotal role in its dissemination. The 1992 revisions included the demotion of figures associated with Communism, such as Vladimir Lenin and Mao Zedong, and the introduction of Mikhail Gorbachev. Hart took sides in the Shakespearean authorship issue and substituted Edward de Vere, 17th Earl of Oxford for William Shakespeare. Hart also substituted Niels Bohr and Henri Becquerel with Ernest Rutherford, thus correcting an error in the first edition. Henry Ford was also promoted from the "Honorary Mentions" list, replacing Pablo Picasso. Finally, some of the rankings were re-ordered, although no one listed in the top ten changed position. The History of Spiritualism - Vol 1 - (1926)

The History of Spiritualism - Vol 2 - (1926)
By Arthur Conan Doyle
Summary: The Scottish writer Sir Arthur Conan Doyle (1859-1930) is best known for his creation of the character Sherlock Holmes. Trained as a medical doctor, Doyle - like many Victorian intellectuals - became fascinated by spiritualism and its promise of communication with the afterlife. Doyle was a firm believer in the movement, claiming as evidence 'sign[s] of a purposeful and organized invasion' from the spirit world. In 1926, towards the end of his life, he published this influential two-volume history. Volume 1 covers the background and origins of spiritualism, beginning with Swedenborg before turning to the 'supernatural' events in upstate New York in 1848 that are generally regarded as the beginning of modern spiritualism. It then focuses on key individuals including D. D. Home, and on scientific investigations of spiritualist phenomena. The History provides valuable insights into Victorian and early twentieth-century culture and the controversies generated by spiritualism at that time.

Knowledge of the higher worlds and its attainment By Rudolf Steiner - (1904) - Kindle
Summary: This is the classic account of the modern Western esoteric path of initiation made public by Steiner in 1904. He begins with the premise that “the capacities by which we can gain insights into the higher worlds lie dormant within each one of us.” Steiner carefully and precisely leads the reader from the cultivation of the fundamental soul attitudes of reverence and inner tranquility to the development of inner life through the stages of preparation, illumination, and initiation.

The Chaldean Oracles (1908)
By G.R.S. Mead (108kb.pdf)
Summary: Under this general title is now being published a series of small volumes, drawn from, or based upon, the mystic, theosophic and gnostic writings of the ancients, so as to make more easily audible for the ever-widening circle of those who love such things, some echoes of the mystic experiences and initiatory lore of their spiritual ancestry. There are many who love the life of the spirit, and who long for the light of gnostic illumination, but who are not sufficiently equipped to study the writings of the ancients at first hand, or to follow unaided the labours of scholars. These little volumes are therefore intended to serve as introduction to the study of the more difficult literature of the subject; and it is hoped that at the same time they may become for some, who have, as yet, not even heard of the Gnosis, stepping-stones to higher things.

Egyptian Book of the Dead (240BC)
Summary: Egyptian Book of the Dead was initially published in modern times in the aftermath of Napoleons expeditions to Egypt. First the Egyptian Book of the Dead was considered to be the 'Bible' of the ancient Egypt and was therefore treated with great respect and consideration. The Book of the Dead (often presented with the subtitle 'The Papyrus of Ani' or 'The Book of Coming [or Going] Forth By Day') was intended to assist the deceased in the afterlife and comprised a collection of hymns, spells and instructions to allow the deceased to pass through obstacles in the afterlife. In this sense the work has similarities with 'The Tibetan Book of Living and Dying' (249kb.pdf)

Gurdjieff, the Unknown Man by Kenneth Walker, M. D.
Summary: Gurdjieff, the Unknown Man is Kenneth Walker's vivid account of his meetings with Ouspensky and first visits to Gurdjieff's Paris apartment in the late 1940s. The text distinguished by his keenly trained powers of observation. The Russian philosopher P. D. Ouspensky illustrated the difficulty of recognizing a teacher of esoteric knowledge, with two stories. The first told of a German who journeyed to India in search of a guru and returned without having found one. He had not realized that the native servant who looked after him while he was in that country was the man for whom he was seeking. The second story referred to a dealer in parrots living in Bordeaux, who, quite unbeknown to his fellow townsmen, was a teacher of esoteric knowledge. But what is esoteric, or hidden, knowledge? INTUITION:WHAT SCIENCE SAYS (SO FAR) ABOUT HOW AND WHY INTUITION WORKS

By Paul Bernstein, Ph.D
Summary: Intuition is defined for the purposes of this analysis as: the appearance in the mind of accurate information about the external world, which can be shown to have come not through the five senses, nor through a rearrangement of stored memory contents. Forms of intuition obeying this definition have been explored scientifically under such labels as telepathy, precognition, presentiment, and remote viewing. This paper summarizes those scientific findings, and presents a few theories which have been hypothesized to explain them. Those theories are largely based in theoretical physics, including quantum non-locality, holography, and complex space-time. Related biological theories are also cited, which propose to explain how information might move from the subatomic level up into

The Flight of the Eagle by Krishnamurti (1969)
Summary: The Flight of the Eagle is one of Krishnamurtis most read books. As many other of his works it is build upon public talk, these are held in 1969 in a range of countries in Europe, Asia and America. From the book: "If we are to inquire deeply into what freedom implies, to be inwardly, completely and totally free – which then expresses itself outwardly in society, in relationship – then we must ask, it seems to me, whether the human mind, heavily conditioned as it is, can ever be free at all. Must it always live and function within the frontiers of its own conditioning, so that there is no possibility of freedom at all? One sees that the mind, verbally understanding that there is no freedom here on this earth, inwardly or outwardly, then begins to invent freedom in another world, a future liberation, heaven and soon."

A Dialogue With Oneself by J. Krishnamurti
Summary: A Dialogue With Oneself by J. Krishnamurti is a two-part short book. It consists of a discussion on love and attachment and discussion known as the Brockwood Park 1st Public Dialogue held at 30th August 1977. From the book: "I started out having a dialogue with myself. I asked myself what is this strange thing called love; everybody talks about it, writes about it – all the romantic poems, pictures, sex and all other areas of it? I ask: is there such a thing as love? I see it does not exist when there is jealousy, hatred, fear. So I am not concerned with love anymore; I am concerned with `what is', my fear, my attachment. Why am I attached? I see that one of the reasons – I do not say it is the whole reason – is that I am desperately lonely, isolated. The older I grow the more isolated I become. So I watch it." The Doors Of Perception By Aldous Huxley Summary: The Doors of Perception by Aldous Huxley is a key work in the never psychedelic non-fiction genre. It has inspired millions of readers and the book gave name to the band The Doors. From the book:
“I took my pill at eleven. An hour and a half later, I was sitting in my study, looking intently at a small glass vase. The vase contained only three flowers-a full-blown Belie of Portugal rose, shell pink with a hint at every petal’s base of a hotter, flamier hue; a large magenta and cream-colored carnation; and, pale purple at the end of its broken stalk, the bold heraldic blossom of an iris. Fortuitous and provisional, the little nosegay broke all the rules of traditional good taste. At breakfast that morning I had been struck by the lively dissonance of its colors. But that was no longer the point. I was not looking now at an unusual flower arrangement. I was seeing what Adam had seen on the morning of his creation-the miracle, moment by moment, of naked existence.” (257kb.pdf)

From this moment on we join the proposal "Argentina let's awaken our legacy will be one of Abundance"

Hear, mortals....

Hey, fellow initiate, have you helped someone else awaken their consciousness, or are you still busy telling everyone you're an initiate?

Hey, fellow occultist, have you helped others discover the secrets of life, or are you still busy looking down on humanity for not thinking like you?

Hey, esoteric brother, have you taught someone the true art, or are you so preoccupied with your stardust makeup that you've forgotten the nobility and humility of your origins?

Hey, fellow magician, fellow witch, have you found your center of power and the discipline to work on your philosopher's stone, or are you still busy and distracted, imposing your reality on others?

Hey, master of the occult sciences, have you guided others on their spiritual path, or are they still bound to you by their pride and your vanity, believing that only you possess the absolute truth?

No, seriously, my enlightened friend, have you finally understood that your reality and your truth, as a symbol of wisdom, are both the same as and different from the reality and truth of others?

Because let's understand that we don't think the same way as others, nor do we arrive at the same point, since we haven't started from the same place. And the beginning of wisdom lies in silence and observation, in teaching and reflection, in meditating and always acting with awareness and responsibility.

So, are we still playing at esotericism, or are we starting to live it now?

Whether you follow a left path or a right path doesn't exempt you from reality or society, and what you do or don't do won't eventually affect your world and your society. Understand this once and for all.

The spiritual work for those on either of these two paths is twofold, because they not only have to look out for themselves, but also for others, whether it be their partner, their apprentice, a friend who learns from them without their knowledge, or their family.

You are always being observed. Whether it's the abyss, God, Lucifer, consciousness, the universe, other people, your inner being, or your divinity, someone is always watching you. How do you respond to what you've experienced and learned? Remember, you are what you think and do!

Psychogenealogy

Psychogenealogy is a language of mathematical precision, a system of repetitions with dates, illnesses, deaths, situations, and names: neurological maps that are traversed and transmitted from generation to generation. We carry the unresolved conflicts of our family tree, and this manifests in us as experiences of suffering, illness, and ultimately, prevents us from fulfilling our dreams.

Often, unconsciously, we seek to connect with our ancestors, unknowingly following in their footsteps. Therefore, by knowing our ancestors, we acquire a more individual identity by ceasing to repeat unconscious patterns.

Transgenerational information is the information that the biological unconscious stores and that the family clan transmits from generation to generation so that a conflict can be resolved in later generations. It is everything related to family memories. The common denominator is: what are we going to hide within the clan? The objective of transgenerational analysis is to bring the family history into our consciousness, to understand it, and to understand the role we are (unconsciously) invited to play throughout our lives. In this way, we are also invited to resolve situations that have been excluded from family consciousness.

The emotional and behavioral conditioning experienced and ingrained by our ancestors, our lineage, in our personal unconscious, determines our stance toward life, toward the situations we encounter daily, and leads our actions to repeat patterns, sometimes painful ones, in different personal areas. The psychogenealogical analysis of one's own family tree reveals the original causes that triggered these patterns. Its vision and understanding are healing in themselves, but we must take a further step toward overcoming and reprogramming those hurtful routines that prevent us from living the life we want to live fully and consciously.

MagicK

MagicK, in the context of Aleister Crowley's Thelema, is a term used to denote and differentiate occult from performance magic and is defined as 'the science and art of bringing about change in conformity with the will,' including 'mundane' acts of will and ritual magic. Crowley wrote that "it is theoretically possible to bring about in any object any change of which that object is by nature capable." John Symonds and Kenneth Grant attribute a deeper occult significance to this distinction.

Crowley viewed magic as the essential method for a person to achieve true self-understanding and act in accordance with their true will, which he saw as the reconciliation "between free will and destiny." Crowley describes this process in his Magick.
One must discover for oneself, and be absolutely certain beyond any doubt, who one is, what one is, and why one is. Having thus become aware of the proper course to follow, the next step is to understand the necessary conditions for following it. After that, one must eliminate from oneself everything foreign or hostile to success and develop those parts of oneself that are especially necessary for controlling the aforementioned conditions.

Fatty Liver

Fatty liver
Other names: Fatty liver disease, Hepatic steatosis, Adipose liver

What is fatty liver disease?
The liver is the largest organ inside the body. It helps digest food, store energy, and remove toxins. Fatty liver disease is a condition in which fat accumulates in the liver. There are two main types:

Non-alcoholic fatty liver disease
Alcoholic fatty liver disease, also called alcoholic hepatic steatosis
What is non-alcoholic fatty liver disease?
Non-alcoholic fatty liver disease is a type of fatty liver that is not related to alcohol consumption. There are two types:

Simple fatty liver: There is fat in the liver, but little or no inflammation or damage to the liver cells. In general, simple fatty liver is not serious enough to cause liver damage or complications.
Non-alcoholic fatty liver disease (NAFLD): This condition involves inflammation and damage to liver cells, along with fat accumulation. The inflammation and damage to liver cells can lead to fibrosis, or scarring of the liver. NAFLD can cause cirrhosis or liver cancer.
What is alcoholic fatty liver disease?
As its name suggests, alcoholic fatty liver disease is caused by heavy alcohol consumption. Your liver breaks down most of the alcohol you drink so it can be eliminated from your body, but the breakdown process can produce harmful substances. These substances can damage liver cells, cause inflammation, and weaken your body's natural defenses. The more alcohol you drink, the more damage you do to your liver. Alcoholic fatty liver disease is the earliest stage of alcoholic liver disease (or alcoholic hepatopathy). The next stages are alcoholic hepatitis and cirrhosis.

Who is at risk of developing fatty liver disease?
The cause of fatty liver disease is unknown. Researchers do know that it is more common in people who:

They have type 2 diabetes and prediabetes
She is obese.
They are middle-aged or older (although children can also suffer from it)
They are Hispanic, followed by non-Hispanic whites. It is less common among African Americans.
They have high levels of lipids (fats) in their blood, such as cholesterol and triglycerides.

They have high blood pressure.
They take certain medications, such as corticosteroids and some cancer drugs.
They have certain metabolic disorders, including metabolic syndrome.
They lose weight very quickly
They have certain infections such as hepatitis C
They have been exposed to some toxins
Fatty liver disease affects about 25 percent of the world's population. Just as rates of obesity, type 2 diabetes, and high cholesterol are rising in the U.S., so is the rate of fatty liver disease. It is the most common chronic liver disorder in the U.S.

The Fake Alien Invasion

William Cooper and his legacy reveal that a fake alien invasion has been planned for some time, with the purpose of helping to create a World Government. For a long time now, cinemas around the world have been showing us films about alien invasions or extraterrestrial contact. This UFO propaganda that we see on TV and in cinemas is the largest psychological and mind control operation carried out with precision and timing. The important question is: On what day will the fake alien invasion take place?

Wells, Herbert George

Is there any proof that world events are following a script? The question has intrigued me because many people with inside knowledge have told me they've been attending meetings where the script for the future was written—200-year, 40-year, 20-year, 10-year, and 5-year plans. H.G. Wells's futuristic predictions demonstrate that, indeed, it's much more real than the average person could imagine.
Written in 1913, Wells's "The World Set Free" predicted the use of atomic bombs and the effect of nuclear war long before scientists even considered the possibility. He also predicted the breakdown in 1933, when the details of the nuclear chain reaction were discovered. In other books, Wells said that a New World Order would emerge so that an elite could control air and sea routes, as well as energy production, which they have already done. Another incredible visionary idea was the concept of air superiority. Whoever consistently gains control of the air will win the ground battle. This has been proven since World War I, but it wasn't realized when H.G. Wells conceived it, and it has taken many years for people to accept the idea.
H.G. Wells not only predicted modern warfare, the bombing of London, atomic bombs, the League of Nations, stealth fighters over Iraq, spaceflight, and countless other details of the future long before their eventual occurrence, he not only outlined in detail how a New World Order could be created, but he also played a role in bringing about the events that led to it.

He was a key figure in the creation of the League of Nations. When the Russian Revolution occurred, H.G. Wells (who was known simply as H.G.) went to Russia to exchange ideas with Lenin on how to follow up the Revolution to create a New World Order. They did not reach an agreement and parted ways. (The disagreement arose over HG's view that elite families, through business and technology, could create the New World Order. Lenin wanted to socialize things directly through a strong government.)

Much later, in 1934, HG personally visited Franklin Delano Roosevelt in the US and Stalin in Moscow. (Incidentally, all three were Freemasons.) After visiting Franklin Delano Roosevelt, HG declared that “the United States… [was] the most effective instrument for transmitting the arrival of the New World Order.”

He felt that Franklin Delano Roosevelt was incorporating conspiratorial ideas to bring about the New World Order that HG had been advocating; an example of this was Roosevelt's “brains,” technocratic extractors like Felix Frankfurter and Raymond Moley, who shaped Franklin Delano Roosevelt's policies.

After his meeting with Stalin, he described him as, “I have never met a more sincere, fair, and honest man… and not at all secretive or sinister… everyone trusts him.” Over the years, he advocated for the UK to assist the USSR. Readers may note from this that the US, the USSR, and the UK have all been oriented toward the same goal, but taking different paths. Overall, HG was a guru of his generation, and after his death, a society in his name continued to promote his views.

While he worked online with countless people around the world directly promoting his views (which, obviously, aligned with the “Plan”), his books played a more subtle but important role. The reader will have observed the following about human nature… the first time it encounters something true but strange, the mind dismisses it as ridiculously crazy. The second time it hears it, it does nothing but dismiss it, and often the third time the truth confronts the person, saying, “I already knew that,” as if the matter were self-evident.

Now look at the titles of his books, “Anticipation” and “Things to Come,” and the way they were written. It’s clear he psychologically conditioned the public to accept the stages of the New World Order as self-evident. He was a master at this. And, in fact, when I listen to the elite today, I hear echoes of H.G. Wells’s ideas. For example, David Rockefeller at the 1991 Bilderberg meeting said, “…the world is now more sophisticated and prepared to march toward a World Government that will never again know war, but only peace and prosperity for all humanity.”
Contrary to the assumptions of many readers of Aldous Huxley, Orson Welles, and H.G. Wells, these authors were not opposed to prophetic views of a world dictatorship. H.G. Wells firmly believed in racial eugenics to kill inferior races and useless consumers. He believed the state should educate people and control their minds in service to the state. He believed in social engineering. He opposed allowing Christians to teach their children about God and religious tolerance.

If you were an Illuminati, like the late Masonic prophet Manly P. Hall, who was a Grand Master in both the Illuminati and Freemasonry, you would understand the esoteric reference HG made in "A Modern Utopia," p. 67, where the New World Order's Dictatorship of the Air would be "Bacon's vision of the House of Solomon."

This statement only serves to highlight H.G.'s connections to the Illuminati's hidden plans. It shows that H.G. was an insider with knowledge of these plans. Of course, along with this inner knowledge, H.G. possessed intense intellectual curiosity, a fully functioning mind, great willpower, and a disdain for the common man and the Christian God. He revealed in "The Invisible King" (1917) that his deity was "the personification of… his five-year plan."

Reading the script

, is Wells merely making a prediction, or was he helping to shape and create a New World Order? There is no doubt that he was a major player in its creation. His ideas have been used as a guide; one could even argue that his ideas are copied from a master plan that remains hidden from view. The powers that have been deliberately manipulating the crime rate are in line with H.G.'s prediction that a police state would grow in response to the increasing threat of crime. The war on terror unfolds accordingly. Obviously, H.G. Wells's writings were a plan of creation and not simply the musings of a curious and intelligent man.

Born in 1866, Wells wrote a series of books explaining how the arrival of the New World Order would occur. In 1895, he published "The Time Machine" and continued writing and publishing until 1945, with works such as "The Turning Happy," which references futuristic dreams he had, such as walking with Jesus, where in his recurring dreams he was a disappointment to humanity due to his stupidity and indifference.

One of Wells's "open conspiracy" concepts was that many people in the world would openly contribute to the creation of the New World Order. This parallels another occult prophet, Alice Bailey, and her ideas in "The Externalization of the Hierarchy," where she predicts that things done in secret in the occult world will be integrated to bring about the New World Order.
For those familiar with how the Illuminati have created groups like the CFR and the TLC, it will be noted that HG was associated with the RIIA (Royal Institute of International Affairs), which was the British equivalent of the CFR. The first president of the RIIA was Waldorf Astor. As I pointed out in my book "Be Wise as the Serpents," these organizations also include some individual members who are not Illuminati, so membership cannot be equated with being a member of a high secret society, but it does place a person in the middle of what they are doing.

Edith Star Miller, in "Occult Theocracy" (posthumously published in 1933), does a good job of linking the many organizations that the hierarchical race uses to carry out its agenda; the Fabian Society was one of them. H.G. was an active member of the Fabian Society, but his views were controversial with most of its members, which again demonstrates his activity and participation in the Plan.

The Webbs, leaders of the Fabian Society, also under the direction of Lord Robert Cecil (Head of Intelligence), organized the Cliveden Set and a group called The Coefficients. The Coefficients later became the Round Table. H.G. was part of The Coefficients, which included figures such as Sir Edward Grey, Bertrand Russell, and Cecil's cousin, Lord Arthur Balfour. Incidentally, these are names that appear in my book "Bloodlines of the Illuminati" (1995).

Son of a servant who served the elite.

Now, it must be taken into account that HG was born to a servant—a servant of the British elite—and this is where he rubbed shoulders with the aristocratic Illuminati elite. We must also take into account that HG despised the lower classes and promoted the idea that large elite corporations would lead us toward the New World Order, along with technology and the technocrats who control it.

HG's ideas about the power of technology and technocrats to create a New World Order spawned an entire movement in that direction. It is beyond the scope of this short article to go into that, but the use of technology, especially in the ways described by Wells, has been achieved. I knew back in 1991, when I was the first to identify HG as a Freemason, that this might lead to controversy, since Masonic Lodges do not publicly acknowledge one of their members.

There is a certain set of members whose membership must remain completely secret. I based my assertion that he was a Freemason on some earlier issues of the Scottish Rite New Age magazine, which I was fortunate enough to purchase and which date back to almost World War I. These magazines treated him as the members did, referring to him as a “Masonic prophet.” On the other hand, HG makes references to Freemasonry in his books/films and uses Masonic imagery and symbols.

Particularly noteworthy is a reference in his short story “The Inexperienced Ghost” to the Masonic Research Lodge, Quatuor Coronados Lodge 2076. His character says: “Now Sanderson is a Mason, a member of the Lodge of the Four Kings, who is so capablely engaged in the study and elucidation of all the mysteries of Freemasonry, past and present.” (The Complete Short Stories of H.G. Wells, pp. 909-910). H.G. Wells had influence with Masons worldwide because of this.

The occult symbol of the winged globe, a symbol frequently used by the Mason Charles Taze Russell (founder of the Jehovah's Witnesses and the Watchtower Society), would become the symbol of the New World Order in the book/film “The Shape of Things to Come.” I recommend reading my books, “Be Wise As The Serpents” (available in a pirated version online) and “The Watchtower and the Masons.” – 1990) to explore all the numerous links between all these things. Also noteworthy is H.G.'s close relationship with the Huxleys, who were Freemasons. Freemason T.H. Huxley (a Fellow of the Royal Society at 26), Wells's mentor, emphasized the idea of a scientific dictatorship, which H.G. was able to promote to the extent that it became a popular movement.

H.G. Wells had a self-belief and vitality that made his ideas appealing. He was very skilled with the pen, but a poor speaker. He had relationships with a steady stream of self-interested women, which emotionally scarred him in the short term. He valued friends, such as the internationally renowned author Joseph Conrad, but the women he conquered were simply sexual objects to him. Here the reader sees that there were inconsistencies in this example; his rhetoric about women's rights was one of his causes, but not a personal lifestyle. He had his big break in life when William Ernest Henley believed in his abilities and in 1895 helped launch his career as a science fiction writer. Two books that greatly influenced Wells as a young writer were Plato's "Republic" and Jonathan Swift's satire "Gulliver's Travels."

Wells shows us that "decision-makers" are actually guided by futuristic plans. H.G. Wells was central to what the Illuminati were doing to create the developmental stages toward a World Government. That he believed in what he was doing is beyond doubt. His possible occult activities, if they took place, have been very well hidden. He was a practical intellectual whose writings have changed our world.

HG Wells, Wikipedia, and the Google brain
While H.G. Wells has become popular with today's generations as a profoundly prophetic science fiction writer, he was known in his day as a very busy man bringing about the New World Order... literally.

A staunch advocate of globalization, Wells pushed a recurring theme of a global community and maintained a deep contempt for common humanity, an elitist trait typical of the eugenics he also championed.

Why was he so accurate with his predictions, whether regarding technology or social change? Could his membership in clubs and secret societies have had something to do with it?

Same old story, who are we kidding? Things don't just happen; they're planned. Well in advance.

By the time society fully awakens, it may be too late. Even though it has been happening for centuries, if not millennia, it's too much for most to bear. Cowards. Anyway, we're seeing it; anyone unwilling to face the truth is a coward.

Of course, there's hope for everyone—there always is. Now, discover your eternal self connected to the entire Universe. Therein lies the key to freedom.

But people have to decide to take it.

H.G. Wells

: Do you smell elitist arrogance?
Armchair engineers deciding your fate. Like that? They're still here!

The Plan Unfolds
. Here are some self-explanatory extracts from an excellent paper on Wells's World Brain theory.

In 1938, at the age of 72, H.G. Wells published his small book of essays and speeches entitled, World Brain, in both American and English editions.

At this point in his life, Wells was an internationally renowned literary figure. His books, fiction and nonfiction alike, were popular and widely translated. He had access to the leading statesmen of his day.

Wells was a utopian social reformer. He was intrigued by socialism and was involved for a time before World War I with Beatrice and Sidney Webb, George Bernard Shaw, and other members of the Fabian Society . After the war, he became increasingly and passionately devoted to the idea that a new kind of world order was needed.

In this respect, he witnessed the rise of fascism and the Russian communist state with a curious ambivalence.
As the scornful critic he was, especially of fascist dictators, he sometimes seemed to suggest that their totalitarian regimes represented stages in the evolution of the new kind of unified, single World State that he believed was an inevitable consequence.

And to address the coming generations of transhumanism and the global mind:

"...Wells spoke of the progressive emergence 'in the species Homo sapiens' of 'synthetic super-minds... in which individual consciousnesses tend to merge.'

These supra-individual organizations are cultures, churches, communities, states, classes, and creeds, and represent 'the accumulations of mentalities.'

Wells suggests that current trends seem to indicate that these are 'coalescing.'

They seem to be heading toward 'a final unification in a collective human organism, whose knowledge and memory will be all science and all history, which will synthesize the prevailing will to live and reproduce into a collective purpose of continuity and growth.' Want to know where this monster Wells is going with all this?

In a later book, The Shape of Things to Come (The Shape of Things to Come), he explores the idea that these superhuman entities are the ones that will eventually coalesce into a single, cohesive whole. Things to Come), he portrayed the processes of adaptation at work in human society as overcoming "the inherent aversion of the person to subordination and sacrifice."

To ensure the success of the new social order that is beginning to emerge in the 21st century, "man's life and interests have been socialized against their natural disposition."

This is described as subversive individualism. In the future, Wells believed that "the darker processes of selection" will be "accelerated and directed by eugenic effort," and man will become a new species (p. 426). I bet you didn't know all that.

File:Wikipedia-es-logo-black-on-white.png - Wikipedia ...

The World Encyclopedia Is Now
"[Wells] believed that his 'modern encyclopedism' constituted a 'scheme for the reorganization and reorientation of education and information throughout the world. Nothing less.'" (Wells, 1938, p. 17)

"It would involve," he declared, "compiling facts and suggestions with the same insistence on scientific reality and the same exclusion of irrelevancies that has controlled the establishment of the world-conception that I have set before the reader." " Ibid.

Wikipedia and all its dubious roots are only part of this.

It is evident that this Wiki, sponsored by information globalists from the beginning, is definitely a domination agenda at work. Nobody trusts its information, yet you depend on it for quick definitions. The intelligent assimilation of information, all according to plan.

It is the World Encyclopedia on steroids as predicted/foreseen/instructed by Wells.

More profoundly, the information matrix that H.G. Wells foresaw is alive and well, all over the internet, securely and totally controlled by the NSA, every nefarious piece of information taking shape in the black heart of the world of black operations. Information giants like Google are part of it.

Everyone knows it. But it's not skin falling off your nose, it's just the way cold-hearted executors execute this master plan.

What is astonishing is reading it so specifically foreseen in the well-publicized words of

H.G. Wells ,

George Orwell,

Aldous Huxley

, George Bernard Shaw,

...and Other members of the Fabian Society are much further behind, when it becomes clear that the plan is long-term and carefully monitored.

Eugenics is the lifeblood of globalist elites.
In order to have their utopian society, the elites must clear the undergrowth—the undesirables, the impure, the most disadvantaged—as if they had nothing to do with their decisions.

The arrogant hypocrisy is indescribable, but suffice it to say that we need to identify these parasites for what they are and expose their nefarious compromises.

Wells and many others were part of bringing these machinations to fruition. What is astonishing when examining this evolution of the structure is the smoothness with which these parasites have been able to push this through, generation after generation.

That this stealthy, swift nature is so akin to the satanic foundations of the elite is undeniable.

It's Almost Over - Time to Boost Engagement.

The Truth cannot be overcome, despite all their long-term plans.

We've covered this many times: these sons of bitches are long-term planners, and motivated and empowered by we don't know what, but it's not good, and it's long-term.

And so what?

This part of their agenda is just another piece of the puzzle of their multifaceted oppression of humanity. History has been bastardized, nullified, and adulterated. In the US school system, eugenics or whatever H.G. Wells was preaching is never mentioned. It's typical.

You just have to learn from this. It's just touching on another aspect. Seeing the bigger picture is what this is all about.

Trust your instincts. Trust your heart. Be courageous in your convictions...

“The first thing the Initiate learns, however, is that he knows almost nothing about himself. The personality is a mass of parental and social conditioning, shaped and reshaped by advertising, propaganda, and selective education. The first tasks for the student are to strip away the additions in order to finally reveal his own pristine core. This process of self-revelation is the first opening of the Eye of Leviathan, learning to see things—and particularly oneself—as they truly are. Even this first realization is difficult and time-consuming, a far harder task than most modern people—and certainly most occultists—are prepared to commit to. Add to this the fact that it is always a terrifying and disorienting experience that will irreversibly change the Initiate, and you really needn't be too surprised at why the Left-Hand Path is rejected and feared."

Collection History
Part of Cornell University Library's Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections, Cornell's Witchcraft Collection contains over 3,000 titles documenting the history of the Inquisition and the persecution of witchcraft, primarily in Europe.

The majority of the Witchcraft Collection was acquired in the 1880s through the collaborative efforts of Andrew Dickson White, Cornell's first President, and his first librarian, George Lincoln Burr. The collection documents the earliest and the latest manifestations of the belief in witchcraft as well as its geographical boundaries, and elaborates this history with works on canon law, the Inquisition, torture, demonology, trial testimony, and narratives. The collection focuses on witchcraft not as folklore or anthropology, but as theology and as religious heresy.

It features many early texts from the period when the theory of the heresy of witchcraft was being formulated, including fourteen Latin editions of the Malleus maleficarum, which codified church dogma on heresy. Four of these Latin editions were printed in the fifteenth-century, most notably the scarce first edition printed before April 14, 1487. The collection also contains other defining texts of the doctrinal discussion of demonology, such as Jean Bodin's De la Demonmanie des sorciers (1580), Nicolas Remi's Daemonlatreiae (1595), Henri Boguet's Discours des sorciers(1602) and Pierre de Lancre's Tableau de l'inconstance des mauvais anges (1612).

Transcript of Trial of Maria Renata S﹀nger von Mossau Transcript of Trial of Maria Renata Sänger von Mossau, 1749. Open to her Inquisition sentencing.
Significant in the collection are a small and extremely rare number of works by theologians who opposed the Inquisition, such as those of Cornelius Loos, the first theologian in Germany to write against the witch hunts. The most important materials in the Witchcraft collection, however, are the court records of the trials of witches, including original manuscript depositions taken from the victims. These documents, in both original manuscript and in print, reveal the harsh outcome of the more remote doctrinal disputes. Perhaps the most significant of all manuscripts in the Witchcraft collection is the minutes of the witchcraft trial of Dietrich Flade, a sixteenth-century city judge and rector who spoke out against the cruelty and injustice of the persecutions in the 1580s. These and other trial documents are listed in the collection's finding aid.

In the 21st century, curators began building on AD White's witchcraft collection by acquiring modern materials such as posters and publicity for films featuring witches or sorcery, and newsletters on the activities of contemporary Wiccan and Pagan communities.

Search/Browse Digitized Witchcraft Books in English
While the entire physical Witchcraft Collection is available for in-person research in Cornell Library's Rare and Manuscript Division, 104 English language books from the collection can be read online in the Digital Witchcraft Collection. These titles were digitally scanned from microfilm by Primary Source Media in 1998. The resulting full text scans were later made available to Cornell University Library to enable free public access.

Hello. I am Witch Christina, welcome to my free Magic Library!

Witch Christina Portrait About Me
Greetings, wanderer.
I am Christina — known by few, seen by fewer — a Witch who walks not in shadows of fear, but in the quiet dignity of mystery.

By the hour of moonrise, I turn inward. I commune with the silent flame. I practice the ancient rite of candle magic — not for show, but for healing. Each working is a sacred act: I inscribe my intent upon the wax, anoint it with scented oils of forgotten gardens, and whisper my desires into the burning wick. As the flame devours, my will ascends. It is not spectacle, but sacrament.

Though all my kindred know me for what I am — a witch of the old ways — I wear no theatrical robes in the streets, nor do I proclaim my craft to passing strangers. The world is not always kind to those who walk between the veils. I pass as one among the living — for I, too, am human. But my spirit speaks the language of stars and ash.

I spend many of my waking hours in study, wandering the labyrinth of arcane texts. At this moment, I am deep within the pages of Grimoires: A History of Magic Books by Owen Davies — a tome that traces the lineage of occult knowledge from the sacred traditions of the Hebrews to the purging fires of the Church.

To the gracious soul who discovered this volume and delivered it to my hands through the ether of the internet — I offer my sincere gratitude. And to all others who have shared with me their treasured finds — you honor the ancient covenant of knowledge.

To share is to invoke power.
Power unshackled by greed, power tempered with wisdom.
What is freely given cannot be bound — and what is shared becomes immortal.

In this spirit, I have founded darkbooks.org — a sanctum where seekers, scholars, witches, and wanderers may find the greatest texts of magic and occult science. My personal library holds thousands of grimoires and esoteric volumes; over 2,100 now reside within the digital shelves of the site, with more added each moon.

Every book presented in downloadable form is of Public Domain origin. Though my private collection includes rarer volumes still under the bindings of copyright, I have sought — and oft found — lawful versions or descriptions for the benefit of the collective.

Should you possess a sacred text whose public form I have not yet uncovered, I welcome your offering. Such gifts help complete the invisible library of the awakened world.

Know this: all books may be downloaded freely. For those who desire a physical archive, the entire collection is available upon CD, offered for a humble price — not as profit, but to cover the necessary rituals of upkeep and transmission.

The site is a living grimoire. Beyond books, it contains many treasures:

Videos and writings on witchcraft
Dark arts and ceremonial magic Voodoo, pagan rites, and the deep roots of esoterica
Drink deep of the knowledge.
Watch. Read. Learn. Remember this:
Just because the path is veiled, does not mean it is closed to you.
Your belief is the key. Your will is the door.

Should you ever find yourself lost in the archives, or in need of a book not yet made visible — write to me. If the tome rests within my personal vaults, I shall endeavor to send it to you.

✦ May your path be lit by strange stars.
✦ May your voice carry power.
✦ May your dreams be guided by the oldest fire.

Winner of the APTA "Outstanding Service Award" 2012
"In this age of over specialization, with emphasis on chemistry, bacteriology, and mechanical and surgical research, we have lost sight of the over-all picture of man as a living being with lines of force working in fields of finer energies."
- Dr. Randolph Stone
Dr. Randolph Stone, DO, DC, ND (1890-1981), was an American Osteopath born in Austria. He created Polarity Therapy as a synthesis of western medicine and eastern wisdom traditions. In his fifty years of general medical practice in Chicago, he developed a deep understanding of the subtle principles underlying wellness and disease.

Beginning in 1948, Stone self-published a series of books and pamphlets to explain his ideas and methods. Unfortunately his writing style and information organization were not linear. Topics appear sprinkled throughout the whole of the work and no indexing was done. In addition, much of the text was presented in hand-lettered charts, thus making it inaccessible to optical character recognition software. All these factors have combined to make scholarly study of the whole of Dr. Stone's work difficult at best.

This project is intended to make Dr. Stone's Polarity Therapy more accessible by converting everything into a digital, searchable, and indexed format. The Associate Polarity Practitioner Class of 2010 at the Colorado School of Energy Studies laboriously transcribed all the hand-lettered charts as a gift to the worldwide Polarity Therapy community. Our hope is that holistic health scholars everywhere will benefit from full access to Dr. Stone's material.

Because of his background and the era in which he wrote, Dr. Stone used some European spellings and (now) out-dated phrases in his texts. In the spirit of preserving his original work, we have kept these spellings and phrases exactly as Dr. Stone first published them. But to make searches more intuitive for modern researchers, modern variations are included in brackets following the original text (e.g., "psoas magnus [psoas major]"). Call-out points and notes within illustrations are included either as lists next to the illustration or as notes at the bottom of each page, thus making their words searchable as well.

This project also included creating additional keywords and editorial notes for the transcribed charts, and offering numerous other supportive resources and tools. Its growth is ongoing and new features are being contemplated. To enable free access for users, this "Stone-ipedia" is supported by donations large and small, sponsorships, referrals and advertising. Please use the links provided if you feel moved to help this project grow and flourish by patronizing the vendors who are contributing, or contact us with any questions about funding.

If you have any difficulties with this site, or any ideas on how to improve it and make the information even more accessible, please feel free to contact us and let us know. Otherwise, happy searching!

Benefits of Playing at PA Online Casinos
PA online casinos continue to grow in popularity. Modern platforms in the pa online casinos market operate on advanced technology that ensures secure systems, fast transactions, and a smooth gaming experience. These regulated sites work differently from older gambling websites by automating processes, improving transparency, and delivering faster payouts. Unlike traditional casino platforms, today's Pennsylvania online casinos offer enhanced privacy, speed, and convenience for every type of player. (Throughout the comparison, you'll also see references to broader online casinos.)

Secure and Private Transactions at PA Online Casinos
One of the biggest advantages of modern online casinos PA is their secure and private transaction systems. These platforms rely on advanced encryption to protect your funds and personal information at every step.

A secure payment method or digital wallet is essential for safe deposits and withdrawals—allowing you to store, send, and receive money without unnecessary risk. This added layer of protection ensures your transactions remain private and convenient, giving players greater confidence while gambling at the best pa online casinos.

Wide Variety of Games and Verified Fair Play
PA online casinos offer a massive selection of casino games, each designed to deliver a unique and enjoyable experience. Platforms like Betwhale, Raging Bull, Lucky Red, Lucky Creek, Buffalo Casino, TheOnlineCasino, SlotoCash, DuckyLuck, OnlineCasinoGames, and VegasCasino include everything from hundreds of slots and jackpot games to table classics and high-quality live dealer rooms.

Many leading pa online casinos also feature verified fair-play systems, allowing players to confirm that every game result is random and fair—a crucial factor for trust and transparency. This level of verification helps pa online casinos stand above many older online casinos that lack modern testing systems.

Bigger Bonuses and Exclusive PA Online Casino Promotions
Pennsylvania online casinos typically offer much bigger and more appealing bonuses than traditional gaming platforms. Players receive generous welcome packages, reload bonuses, free spins, cashback rewards, and VIP perks that greatly enhance long-term entertainment.

These exclusive promotions give players more winning opportunities and add significant value to every deposit—one of the biggest advantages of choosing regulated pa online casinos over older, outdated online casinos.

Fast Deposits, Instant Withdrawals, and Strong Privacy Protection
Speed is a major highlight of top-rated pa online casinos. Many Pennsylvania platforms offer instant withdrawals, allowing players to access their winnings without unnecessary delays. Deposits are also processed quickly, giving players a smooth, uninterrupted experience.

Combined with strong privacy protection and secure banking options, Pennsylvania online casinos create a fast, trustworthy, and enjoyable environment suitable for both casual and frequent players.

What Players Should Know Before Using PA Online Casinos

Before exploring Pennsylvania online casinos, having the right information is essential for a safe and enjoyable experience. It's important to understand licensing, rules, security, and overall reliability. You also need to know the differences between modern online casino PA and older, traditional casino sites, as today's platforms provide improved features, stronger bonuses, and far better technology. Knowing this helps shape your entire gaming journey.

Responsible Gambling Tools and Self-Control Tips

Most trustworthy pa online casinos offer strong responsible gambling tools. These include:

deposit limits loss limits wagering limits session time reminders temporary cooldown periods account-based timeouts

Using these tools helps ensure your gaming stays enjoyable, controlled, and stress-free. They're designed to support healthy gambling habits and prevent excessive spending—one of the key advantages of licensed Pennsylvania online casinos compared to older online casinos.

Payout Speed, Reliability, and Platform Trustworthiness

Payout speed is one of the most important factors when choosing between online casinos PA. Fast and consistent withdrawals indicate that a platform is legitimate and professionally managed.

It's also wise to check real user ratings and detailed Pennsylvania online casinos reviews to judge reliability. Player feedback reveals how committed each platform is to secure payments, smooth withdrawals, and overall fairness. The combination of fast payouts and strong reputation is what separates the top online casino PA from weaker competitors and outdated online casinos.

How to Start Playing at PA Online Casinos – Step-by-Step Guide

Starting at online casino PA is simple once you understand the basic steps. The first step is creating your account, which unlocks all gaming features, bonuses, and payment options. When funding your account, you can choose from standard payment methods such as debit cards, credit cards, e-wallets, prepaid vouchers, and bank transfers. This guide ensures you understand everything needed for a smooth start, letting you begin without confusion—whether you're new to pa online casinos or transitioning from general online casinos.

Choose a Licensed and Trusted PA Online Casino

Your first move is selecting a reputable platform. Players can choose trusted names like Betwhale, Raging Bull, Lucky Red, Lucky Creek, Buffalo Casino, TheOnlineCasino, SlotoCash, DuckyLuck, OnlineCasinoGames, or VegasCasino. These operators are trusted options within Pennsylvania online casinos, offering secure systems, strong bonuses, and a wide variety of casino games—creating a safe and enjoyable space to play.

Register Your Account Quickly

Once you've chosen your preferred platform among Pennsylvania online casinos, the registration process is usually fast and simple. Most casinos require only basic information, allowing you to set up your account in minutes. After completing verification, you can immediately start exploring games, bonuses, and promotions available at leading pa online casinos.

Deposit Using Popular Payment Methods

Next, fund your casino wallet. PA online casinos support numerous convenient payment options such as Visa, Mastercard, Skrill, Neteller, PayPal, Paysafecard, bank transfers, and more. Deposits are typically processed instantly, allowing you to start playing right away—just like the fastest nationwide online casinos.

Claim Your Bonus and Start Playing

Don't forget your welcome bonus. Most pa online casinos offer generous sign-up packages that include bonus funds, free spins, or both. Once your bonus is activated, you can explore slots, table games, jackpots, and live dealer rooms while enjoying boosted value.

Types of Games Available at PA Online Casinos

PA online casinos offer a huge selection of games designed to match every player's taste—from exciting modern slots to massive jackpot titles. You'll find video slots, classic table games, specialty games, and complete live dealer sections. This variety ensures that every player can find something enjoyable when exploring the best pa online casinos.

Modern Slots and Progressive Jackpots

Modern video slots are among the most popular choices at pa online casinos. These platforms offer a vast collection of themed slot games with advanced graphics, rich animations, and dynamic bonus mechanics. Progressive jackpot slots are especially exciting, with prize pools that continuously grow until one lucky player wins big.

Table Games Like Blackjack, Roulette, and Baccarat

For players who enjoy timeless classics, table games are essential. PA online casinos provide high-quality versions of blackjack, roulette, baccarat, poker variants, and more. Trusted software providers power these games, ensuring fairness and smooth gameplay. Multiple variations are often available, giving players the option to choose between traditional rules or modern twists.

Live Casino Games with Real Dealers

Live dealer games recreate the authentic atmosphere of land-based casinos through HD livestreams and professional dealers. Popular options include live blackjack, live poker, live roulette, and live baccarat. This format blends the excitement of an in-person casino with the convenience of Pennsylvania online casinos.

Instant Play Games: Scratch Cards, Mini-Games, and Crash-Style Games

For quick entertainment, instant play games are ideal. Pennsylvania online casinos offer scratch cards, arcade-style mini games, instant-win titles, and modern crash-style multiplier games. These fast-paced options are perfect for short sessions and add extra variety to the gaming experience.

Bonuses and Promotions at PA Online Casinos

PA online casinos attract players with a wide range of exciting bonuses and promotional offers. These perks often include welcome bonuses, free spins, cashback deals, reload bonuses, and exclusive rewards for registered PA players. Reload bonuses give returning users extra value on additional deposits, making long-term gameplay more rewarding.

Some platforms go beyond the basics, offering some of the best bonus packages among all new pa online casinos. These include high match percentages, large signup offers, exclusive perks for loyal players, and frequent promotional drops. The best pa online casinos stand out for providing generous, flexible, and fast-paying bonuses crafted to maximize entertainment and player satisfaction.

These promotions do more than simply attract new players—they increase entertainment value, extend gameplay sessions, and offer more chances to win. Every operator in the Pennsylvania online casinos market features a unique promotional lineup designed to enhance the overall gaming experience.

Welcome Bonuses, Free Spins, and Cashback Deals

When joining new pa online casinos, new players are often greeted with massive welcome bonuses that may include:

Deposit match bonuses that multiply your first deposits
Special boosts for selected payment options
Free spins on popular slot games
Cashback offers that return a portion of your losses

Welcome bonuses significantly increase your bankroll, letting you explore a wider variety of games from the very beginning. Free spins add extra chances to win at no additional cost, while cashback deals reduce overall risk—important advantages that make new pa online casinos appealing compared to older online casinos.

Terms of Use: Wagering Requirements, Limits, and Expiry
Bonuses at new Pennsylvania online casinos come with terms and conditions that players must follow. Key points include:

Wagering requirements: How many times you must wager the bonus before withdrawing winnings
Contribution rates: Different games contribute differently to clearing requirements Betting limits: Maximum allowed bets during bonus play
Payout caps: Limits on how much you can cash out
Expiry windows: Bonuses and free spins expire if unused
Since pa online casinos process payouts quickly, bonus terms can sometimes be stricter. Understanding them is essential for using rewards effectively.

Tips to Maximize Every Promotion
To get full value from pa online casinos promotions:

Choose bonuses with low wagering requirements
Play slots or other high-contribution games to clear wagering faster
Track your progress to avoid missed deadlines
Spread bets across multiple games
Use cashback offers on high-volatility slots
Smart planning helps turn bonuses into real winning opportunities.

Reload Bonuses for Returning Players

Reload bonuses add extra value for players who deposit regularly. PA online casinos often provide reloads during:

Weekly deposit periods
Weekend top-ups
Seasonal events
VIP or email-exclusive offers
Reloads may include 20–100% match bonuses, free spins, or mystery rewards—helping maintain bankroll longevity.

No-Deposit Bonuses and Free Credits
Some pa online casinos offer no-deposit bonuses, giving players:

Free bonus funds
Free spins
Free chip-style rewards
These don’t require any deposit, making them ideal for testing a platform. While they usually have higher wagering requirements, they offer risk-free gameplay.

Loyalty Programs and VIP Rewards
Most pa online casinos feature multi-tier loyalty systems where players earn points with every wager. These points can be exchanged for bonuses, free spins, or other rewards. VIP players gain access to:

Higher cashback percentages
Faster withdrawals
Lower wagering requirements
Exclusive promotions
Personal account managers
Birthday and anniversary gifts
High-value players enjoy some of the most generous perks in the pa online casinos industry.

Daily, Weekly, and Seasonal Promotions
To keep players engaged, pa online casinos run rotating promotions such as:

Daily spin drops
Weekly reload bonuses
Monthly cashback
Prize boosts
Holiday and special-event bonuses
Limited-time free spin bundles
These frequent offers create a dynamic and exciting gaming environment.

Game-Specific Promotions
Some promotions apply only to certain categories, such as:

Live casino cashback
Slot-specific free spins
Bonus buy discounts
Special game boosts
High-multiplier events
These targeted rewards benefit players who enjoy specific types of games.

Tournament Rewards and Prize Drops
Pennsylvania online casinos frequently host competitive events like:

Slot tournaments
Leaderboard races
Live dealer competitions
Mystery prize drops
Jackpot hunts
Winners can earn large bonus funds, free spins, or leaderboard prizes—perfect for players who enjoy competitive, fast-paced gameplay.

Processing Times and Possible Fees
One major advantage of modern banking in pa online casinos is transaction speed. Most deposits appear instantly, while withdrawals take only a short time—much faster than traditional banking, which can take several business days.

Fees vary by provider, but modern payment services often offer lower transaction costs. Faster processing and reduced fees mean players keep more of their winnings.

Additional Payment Options and Modern Banking Solutions
Many pa online casinos support alternative methods beyond standard debit cards and e-wallets:

Instant-transfer services
Fast mobile payment apps
Digital banking solutions
Prepaid and voucher systems
Region-specific local payment methods
These modern tools make deposits and withdrawals faster and more accessible.

How to Make a Deposit at PA Online Casinos
Depositing at pa online casinos is straightforward:

Log in and visit the cashier.
Select your preferred payment method.
Enter the required deposit information.
Confirm your transaction.
Wait for the payment to process (usually seconds or minutes).
How Withdrawals Work at PA Online Casinos
Withdrawing funds is equally simple:

Go to the cashier/withdrawal section.
Select your preferred withdrawal method.
Enter your account or wallet details.
Confirm the request.
Receive your funds once verification is completed.
Most best online casino pa process withdrawals quickly, giving players fast access to their winnings.

Exchange Options and Converting Funds
For players wanting flexibility, many best online casino pas offer:

Integrated currency conversion tools
On-site purchase tools for quick deposits
Automatic conversion into your account’s default currency
These features simplify fund management and create a smoother gaming experience across the best pa online casinos.

Responsible Gambling Resources for PA Online Casino Players

Maintaining balance while playing at the best online casino PA platforms is essential for a positive, healthy gaming experience. Modern Pennsylvania online casinos offer a wide range of tools and resources designed to help players stay safe, responsible, and fully in control of their gambling habits.

Most licensed PA online casinos provide customizable responsible gambling tools, including spending limits, deposit caps, loss limits, wagering controls, session reminders, and temporary cooldown periods. These features allow players to regulate their activity and maintain consistent, healthy gameplay patterns across all platforms.

Self-exclusion programs—another valuable option available throughout the best online casino PA sites—allow players to voluntarily block access to gambling for set periods. This helps manage or prevent problematic behavior and supports long-term well-being.

Beyond casino-based tools, players also benefit from direct access to professional support organizations, including:

NCPG (National Council on Problem Gambling) – Offers confidential help, 24/7 hotlines, and educational resources.
Gamblers Anonymous – Provides peer-support meetings and recovery programs for individuals seeking community-driven assistance.
BetBlocker – A free blocking software that allows players to restrict access to thousands of gambling sites on their devices.
These trusted organizations offer guidance, counseling, and self-help programs, ensuring players have the support needed to maintain responsible habits.

Using these tools and resources keeps your gameplay enjoyable, secure, and balanced. With strong responsible-gaming measures in place, your experience at the best online casinos PA remains fun, safe, and well-structured.

Final Thoughts – Are PA Online Casinos Worth Trying in 2025?

In 2025, pa casinos online continue to evolve, growing quickly alongside new technology and rising player demand. Unlike traditional land-based casinos, modern pa casinos online offer advantages in speed, convenience, privacy, and transparency—making them superior to many older gambling formats.

These platforms provide strong account protection and extremely fast payments while eliminating delays associated with bank transfers and outdated manual processing. Everything is optimized for smooth, efficient, and modern gameplay.

Pennsylvania online casinos also tend to offer bigger bonuses than physical venues. Welcome packages, reload bonuses, free spins, cashback offers, and loyalty rewards are major advantages that attract and retain players.

The game selection continues expanding as well. You can enjoy everything from classic table games to modern video slots, live dealer streams, jackpots, instant-win games, and more. There is truly something for every type of player across pa casinos online.

Overall, 2025 is shaping up to be a strong year for best online casinos pa. They combine modern technology with fast payments, top-tier entertainment, strong security, and some of the biggest bonuses in the industry. Platforms such as Betwhale, Raging Bull, Lucky Red, Lucky Creek, Buffalo Casino, TheOnlineCasino, SlotoCash, DuckyLuck, OnlineCasinoGames, and VegasCasino continue pushing boundaries and offering innovations that traditional casinos cannot match.

For most players, it’s a secure, convenient, and exciting way to enjoy online gambling.

The origin of action - its effecient, not its final cause - is choice, and that of choice is desire and reasoning with a view to an end. This is why choice cannot exist either without thought and intellect or without a moral state; for good action and its opposite cannot exist without a combination of intellect and character. Intellect itself, however, moves nothing, but only the intellect which aims at an end and is practical. -- Aristotle

There seems to be an archonic firewall error when accessing many of the book, fear not, since the inception of this site, open source book resources have grown exponentially. Most books can be found on archive.org, others by just typing the book title followed by pdf in any search engine, or lastly more obscure website resources found on the bottom of this page. If all else fails email me at logoilibrary@gmail.com and I will send the book to you.... Outer knowledge without inner work, using extreme focus to recognize your reactions, impulses, desires and where they come from and how to control them, will lead you in stagnant circles, like a hamster in wheel putting in work but not moving forward.

Welcome to Logoi Library, a continuously growing library with over 2000 PDF books from multiple schools of philosophy and esoterica from around the world during varying time periods.

CRTL + F for PC or Search Field/ Find in page for mobile is the easiest way to search titles.

If you have PDF book links or any other information you want to share, post here in the comments.

Somewhere in the words and more importantly between the words, may you find what you are looking for. Think for yourself and question everything so you can finally break the monopoly the fallen egrḗgoroi have on this realm

Fragmenta Ex Machina - Initia Perdita

🕸 Fragmenta Ex Machina

Project AngelBook – Volume X – Parts 1–36

By Ezekiel Redik Yarbrough

This volume is not made up of my own words.There is no original commentary here, no narrative, no analysis.This is simply me copying and pasting large chunks of text from my bookmarks—pages that were easy to extract, with no hyperlinks or formatting issues, saved from open tabs and archived corners of the web.
It's messy. It's unfiltered. It's chaotic.But it's valuable.
Each piece inside this volume was bookmarked for a reason.Not always because I agreed with it, but because it felt like a fragment of something larger—an insight, a worldview, a download.This is source material, plain and raw.
Fragmenta Ex Machina isn't about authorship.It's about preservation and system-building.It's about feeding the machine—laying bricks for the Operating System I'm constructing across these books.This is the raw intake phase. The memory dump. The zero layer.
Later volumes will be cleaner, more refined, more structured.But this? This is the foundation. The ether stream, bound and frozen before it vanished.
So if you're looking for polished prose, skip this one.But if you're here to explore the roots of something much bigger, this is where the signal begins.
Welcome to the fragments.

Сакральные знаки, цифры, символы Категория: КНИГИ » ЭЗОТЕРИКА

Название: Сакральные знаки, цифры, символы
Автор: Джон Мартино, Миранда Ланди
Издательство: Эксмо
Год: 2020
Страниц: 410, ил.
Формат: pdf
Размер: 36 мб
Язык: русский

Данное уникальное издание является одновременно иллюстрированным справочником, исследованием древних книг и произведений искусства, сборником научно-популярных статей и духовно-философских эссе. По широте и глубине охвата темы эта книга, созданная трудом интернационального коллектива авторов, не имеет себе равных среди изданных на русском языке за последние 100 лет.
Впервые принципы Квадривиума сформулировал древнегреческий мыслитель Пифагор Самосский в шестом столетии до Рождества Христова.
В Квадривиум входят следующие дисциплины: Нумерология (Арифметика); Геометрия – Число в Пространстве; Музыка (Гармония) – Число во Времени; Космология – Число во Времени и Пространстве.

Сны - это подсказки из иной реальности, но что за сила посылает нам эти подсказки и как разгадать их смысл? Поможет Универсальный сонник, при помощи которого вы сможете проникнуть в тайну вещих снов и научиться предсказывать свое будущее. Что нам сулят Сны об умерших родственниках и нужно ли бить тревогу, если вам привиделся кошмар о болезни и смерти? К чему снятся Черно-белые сны? И что они предвещают? На какие сны стоит обращать внимание, а какие не сулят нам ничего особенного? В какие дни у нас есть шанс увидеть Сон-подсказку и что нужно сделать, чтобы он сбылся? Сколько часов нужно спать и почему наши предки укладывались на боковую аж два раза? Как бороться с главным недугом современного человека - бессонницей и какие правила здорового сна надо соблюдать?

Исцеляющий кристалл Категория: КНИГИ » ЭЗОТЕРИКА

Название: Исцеляющий кристалл
Автор: Баумен К.
Издательство: СПб.: Будущее Земли
Год: 2002
Страниц: 224
Формат: pdf
Размер: 14 мб
Язык: русский

Это практическое пособие рекомендуется всем, кто интересуется вопросами самоисцеления и исцеления других, а также всем, кто любит драгоценные камни и кристаллы. Люди издревле использовали могущественную силу кристаллов и драгоценных камней. Кристаллы рассматривались не просто как украшения — они были друзьями людей. Для тех, кто знал, как ими пользоваться, они совершали чудеса: излечивали самые тяжелые болезни, защищали и приносили успех в любом начинании.

Большая энциклопедия. Россия. Места силы Категория: КНИГИ » ЭЗОТЕРИКА

Название: Большая энциклопедия. Россия. Места силы
Автор: Вяткин А.

Издательство: Эксмо
Год: 2013
Страниц: 288
Формат: PDF
Размер: 70 Mb

Россия полна невероятной силы и многих чарующих тайн. Как и везде на поверхности нашей планеты, на ее огромной территории существуют места и довольно обширные регионы, в которых физические законы не действуют.Посещать многие из них и тем более жить в них не всегда безопасно, поскольку они имеют выраженное магнитное и энергетическое воздействие как на физический мир, так и на сознание человека. В то же время на территории нашей Родины существуют зоны, где действует позитивная, целительная сила. Она может питать и оздоровлять человека, наделяя его невероятными способностями. Это красочное, иллюстрированное издание предлагает ознакомиться с наиболее ярко выраженными зонами отрицательного и положительного воздействия, с указанием их географического местоположения, описанием интересных фактов, а также причин аномальности и способов возможной защиты от их активного влияния или, наоборот, применения с максимальной пользой.

Руны оружие воина Категория: КНИГИ » ЭЗОТЕРИКА

Название: Руны оружие воина
Автор: Ксения Меньшикова
Издательство: Центрполиграф
Год: 2025
Формат: fb2, rtf
Размер: 10 Мб
Качество: Хорошее
Язык: Русский

Руны – уникальный магический инструмент, через который можно постичь суть северной магии. Древние маги и волхвы, познавая руны, чувствуя через них все грани мироздания, учились изменять эти грани в соответствии с правилами этого мира. Не нарушая его, но исправляя его.
Руны могут многое – и исправить, и навредить, это зависит от того, в чьих руках они находятся. Поэтому древние делили людей на касты и следили за тем, чтобы магические знания и инструменты не попали в руки недостойных. Только тот, кто способен быть честным, способен держать в руках руны и слышать их шёпот. Нижние касты – купцы и земледельцы – не способны почувствовать этот мир, как единый организм, но это может человек уровня воина, ведь в его сознании есть жёсткая установка, что ложь – постыдное занятие. Руны – оружие воинов, они не приемлют лжи и лукавства. Руны требуют полной самоотдачи и готовности пройти любые трансформации, которые превратят простого человека в воина. Воин – это не профессия, это состояние сознания, не зависящее от пола, возраста и происхождения. С ним либо рождаются, либо воспитывают в себе в течение жизни, становясь тем, кто не способен на ложь физически, потому что ложь нарушает законы мира.

Welcome to the Occult.Digital.Mobilization forums!

Within you will find a number of discussions, all of them ongoing, about various aspects of the occult and esoteric. Nearly every area of study is covered, with space for the few we may have missed. Whether you are a serious student and practitioner of the occult, or are merely curious about what the occult truly is, this is one of the most open places to discuss your interests.

Feel free to look around, and if you like what you see, register and start a topic in Introductions, telling us about who you are and why you're interested in what we have to offer. We encourage everyone to express what they feel, believe, have experienced or learned, or otherwise just know - even if it's "this doesn't work" - though giving some supporting remarks with your comments (i.e., "this doesn't work because...") is always a good idea.

Until then, go well, and may the Winds guide you in your Journey!

Index Server Change
Sun Mar 27, 2011 11:13 pm by Admin

Once again we have had to move the index because the server it was hosted on decided to change their policy. The prior server is no longer hosted free of charge, forcing us to relocate. The Release Index link here at the forums will continue to be up to date as server moves are required, so instead of bookmarking the index itself, try bookmarking the forums and linking in to the index from here.

Of course, you could alternately just update your bookmarks.

If the index server is not working, give it a few minutes and try again. We do not have direct control of the server, so we cannot bring it back online if it for any reason goes down. There was a slight glitch during the transfer which blocked our access to the index for several minutes, but it was automatically resolved after a short wait. Please, enjoy!

Community Submissions
Wed Oct 14, 2015 2:47 am by sendoshin

This will be brief, as it's the middle of the night where I am, and I'm busy rebuilding the Release Index. We have a new method for submitting resources for consideration in future Releases. In the past, we've asked these to be emailed to the group address, and while that will still work, you can now also simply upload them to a Dropbox account we've created just for the purpose. Here's the link:

Community Submissions Link

NOTE: Dropbox will ask for a name in order to upload files. Please use your forum name for this, as your files' names will be changed to add the name you provide. This is meant to prevent issues when multiple people upload a file with the same name. We will remove your name from the files' names long before release in any case.

We do have a fairly small size limit, so email before submitting videos and other files larger than 50 or so MB so we can check whether there's enough space there first. Of course, if your own Dropbox has plenty of space, you can always just share it with us from there directly - just use the group's email address for that.

Hopefully this will make things easier to get to us so we can review it and release it! In the meantime, back to work with me...

Enhancing The Release Index
Sun Sep 09, 2012 3:50 pm by sendoshin

OK, so all of this [the items discussed at Assisting with the (digimob) Project] came to fruition not long ago with the Release Index (see the navigation bar at the top of the page), but there are still some features missing. Since everything in the database was put there automatically, by script, and straight from the .torrent files, at that, there is no categorization (aside from file types), and no author info. It wouldn't be hard to automate this information going into the database in the future, but some sort of mechanism still has to be devised to make it work. And then there are the 12,310 files already listed that would have to be updated with the relevant info. So still a lot of work ahead to get all of this working well, but I think it might be manageable.

So the next step would be to figure out how to indicate the categories and authors in future digests. There are a couple of ways I can think of, some more difficult and involved than others, but I think the easiest would be to set up the folders into categories, for example:
Code:
/Western Inner Traditions/Fraternal Societies/Golden Dawn/:file:

From there, for the author name, I see two possibilities, both as easy to work with as the other. The first option would be to begin the file name with the author's name, much as has been done with prior releases, in a format like "Crowley, Aleister - Book of the Law.pdf" or "Gozaknee, Tanranin Uhcheek, Frater - The Red Planet Arrives.pdf":
Code:
:last:, :first: :middles:, :titles: - :work:

This has the added benefit that the author is never severed from the file, but the drawback of having really long file names, which can be a problem on some file systems, such as DVD.

The second option is to continue the use of folders. Using the same basic format as above, with the difference that the author's name would be a folder name, so it would come out "/Western Inner Traditions/Fraternal Societies/Golden Dawn/Gozaknee, Tanranin Uhcheek, Frater/The Red Planet Arrives.pdf":
Code:
/:category:/:subcategories:/:last:, :first: :middles:, :titles:/:work:

This only shortens the file name by two characters from the method above, but that may be all that is needed in many cases. The author is no longer directly associated with the file, but since file names can be changed after downloading anyway, that is not a great drawback. And credit is still given.

It may be obvious that I'm leaning …

Where is Submissions Digest #30?
Sun Apr 24, 2011 9:36 pm by Admin

Digimob is a quarterly-release group, but many of you may have noticed that two quarters have ended without a Release. Part of this is the fault of the current wearer of the hat of group Admin - namely myself, F.D.T. A combination of laziness, busyness, and lack of resources has gotten in the way, and for that I sincerely apologize.

However, another part is a general lack of assistance from the community itself. Live links are prohibited on the forums for two reasons: first, we cannot verify the legality of such links without extensive research, not to mention the applicability. Second, we prefer to share those works which qualify not only with members of our community, but with the world as a whole - which is why we opted to use Bittorrent as our Release mechanism. (There is also the technical limitation of using a free forum which doesn't grant us access to our forum database - if we get kicked off of this server for whatever reason, we may not be able to take your posts with us.)

So, the main reason I am not writing an article about having just released #30 is because we need your help. If there is anything in your collection which is not in ours (the Release Index was created to help check just that), please submit it for inclusion in our next Release. All you have to do is ZIP it up, upload it to a free file hosting site (there is a list here), then email the link to occult [dot] digital [dot] mobilization [at] gmail [dot] com. Our Content Team will download the files, check them over, and then include them in the next Release. If your files don't make it, wait to see if they show in the next Release before asking us what gives. We'll try to let you know if we can't include something because of legal limitations (this tends to be very rare).

If the time has not come to retire this project and give way to others, such as theoccult.bz (which has a high level of interest among members of this site), we will continue to do our best to provide what service we can. However, without your help, we will never be able to pull it off.

Go well, and may the Winds guide you in your Journey.

digimob.tk Expiration
Mon Apr 09, 2012 6:34 pm by sendoshin

Several of you will have noticed already that digimob.tk is no longer working. This is because the government of Tokelau has decided that digimob is a "special" domain, and wants to not only charge us for it, but wants to charge us more than the regular going rate for paid .tk domains. (In case you weren't aware, .tk means the domain was registered through the Tokelau government domain registrar, since Tokelau considers itself too small to really make any money from their country code without letting the rest of the world register there cheap. But that gets rather technical rather quickly.) Since we are a volunteer-run organization, we cannot afford to purchase the digimob.tk domain - and beyond that, once we start spending money on this, it stops being what it is, so we try to avoid paying for anything at all if we can help it.

All of this is a wordy way of saying digimob.tk is no more. Please continue to visit the forums by going to https://digimob.forumotion.net/ as you have been, and pass this URL to anyone who asks. We can't update the notes in the Releases, so there will still be many who cannot find us without your help.

Occult Books for sincere seekers seasons greetings
As ever at this Special Season we like to reward our regular readers for their loyal support throughout the year by publishing a Christmas article. This year John Temple has written an analysis of a spine-tingling tale by M. R. James.

We review and recommend many books on occult, philosophical, scientific and religious subjects
The first point of wisdom is to discern that which is false, and the second, to know that which is true.

Lactantius — 'Institutiones Divinae'

Introduction
We have not reviewed any books about the so-called 'left-hand path' (LHP), witchcraft, wicca, the fantasies of conspiracy theorists or the speculations of psychics and mediums. If that's what you're looking for you won't find it here. If, on the other hand, you're looking for books that provide plain answers to the many questions sincere seekers ask about Man, Life and the Universe, you're in the right place. To read our book reviews, browse the categories below. To learn more about what books we review and why, or how and where to obtain them, read the notes in the sidebar.

To learn more about this website and our aims, see our About page.

Occult book reviews

Our occult book reviews are listed under the following separate categories:

GENERAL OCCULT BOOKS (this page)
Occult books that do not fall into any specific category.

HERMETIC BOOKS
Classic Hermetic books that should be in every occult student's library.

OCCULT BIOGRAPHY
Occult biographies containing many occult truths.

OCCULT FICTION
The best classic occult fiction books.

BOOKS BY J MICHAUD
Dr Michaud's books describe and explain the true laws and principles of Occult Science.

H .P. BLAVATSKY BOOKS
Blavatsky's books are essential reading if you wish to learn the Ancient Wisdom.

THE BOOKS of Dr E. V. KENEALY
The Book of God, The Book of Enoch and The Book of Fo reviewed and downloadable.

FAIRIES & NATURE SPIRITS
These five books accurately describe the inhabitants of the Elemental Kingdoms.

ASTROLOGY
We review and recommend three books for the serious student of Astrology.

ATLANTOLOGY
We review seven books that discuss Atlantis in a scientific manner.

General occult Books (this page)
We hope that one or more of the books we review below will strongly appeal to you. If this happens it often means that there exists a special link between you and the thoughts and teachings of the author; and it is always wise to follow up such intuitions.

The Search for Truth—by John Temple
Aula Lucis, 2024. Hardcover limited to 500 copies, 304pp. Bound in foil-blocked yellow silk cloth with 16 illustrations, price £40 ($52).

AVAILABLE FROM Aula Lucis and booksellers in the UK and USA

Also available to read here free of charge in HTML format

the search for truth
The Search for Truth is a unique investigation in twelve chapters that explores the many links between Religion and the Occult, focusing especially on the hidden meaning concealed within the Bible and its many correspondences with the Wisdom Teachings of ancient Egypt. During the course of the book the author gradually introduces the keys to the Mystery Language without which it is impossible to unlock the hidden meaning within any sacred writings, some of which pre-date Christianity by many millennia. The book covers a wide range of subjects that include, but are not limited to: an occult analysis of folly and wisdom, hidden wisdom in the Bible and how and why it was concealed; the problem of good and evil; the real nature of God and man; the esoteric meaning of Christmas and Easter; the concealed meaning of some of the parables of Jesus; the origins and dogma of original sin and how this relates to the so-called 'fall of man'; the facts and fictions of the Christian Church; the secrets of the ancient Egyptian religion; the Wisdom Literature of Egypt compared and contrasted with the proverbs in the Bible; the right and wrong use of talent and what it really is; the magical power of prayer; and much, much more.

The content and arrangement of this book differs from the series of twelve articles John Temple wrote for this website between 2013 to 2019. The main changes are the exclusion of the first two articles in the online series, namely 'Searching for Truth' and 'Who are the Real Illuminati', and the addition of 'Folly and Wisdom' and 'The anatomy of Sin'. These two articles were published separately from the series in 2021 and 2024 respectively. The author decided, rightly in our view, that these two articles — both dealing with vitally important aspects of the search for truth — were more relevant to a printed book than the excluded articles, neither of which fitted into it quite as effectively or harmoniously. We feel sure that lovers of John Temple's invaluable contributions to this website will see the wisdom of this change and appreciate having these two articles included in this new book.

The Search for Truth is available in two different formats: a hardcover edition limited to 500 copies and a full vellum deluxe edition (see note below). The monochrome colour frontispiece and chapter headings are beautifully illustrated by Kateryna Zubakhina. The book includes a brief biography of the author which will be welcomed by his many fans and a comprehensive bibliography which serious occult students will find invaluable. Finally, as some casual visitors have queried our claim to be 'not for profit' whilst promoting a book that is being sold by a commercial publisher, we wish to make it quite clear that any profits accruing from the sale of The Search for Truth will firstly, be used to fund future printed editions of our articles, and secondly, go to John Temple — or more likely his pet parrot — but not to us!

A full Vellum deluxe edition, price to be announced, will be available from the publisher in late 2024 or early 2025.

astral conversations
This unusual book is neither fiction nor non-fiction, but combines both genres in a unique way. The main narrative is the record of twelve lively and sometimes humorous conversations between two occult students overheard clairaudiently by the author. The two interlocutors — Arthur Flitterflop and Joshua Bombast — meet in the astral world to discuss many different subjects, including magic, masters, conspiracy theories, the illuminati, aliens, planet 'x', 'Ascension', 'DNA activation', consciousness, dreams, life after death, Tibetan magic, Shamans, drugs, channeling, witchcraft, paganism, the tarot, fate versus free will, necromancy, heaven and hell, and much more.

The secondary narrative consists of separate commentaries which follow each of the twelve conversations in the book. A similar format has been used before in print, most notably in The Comte de Gabalis, reviewed on our Occult Biography Books page. Bombast and Flitterflop are based on real individuals well-known to the author whose names have been deliberately changed to protect their identities. During the course of their conversations the reader is gradually introduced to a number of little-known occult laws and principles which have rarely appeared in print before. These reveal who and what man truly is, his material and spiritual origins and the purpose of life on earth.

Some of the subjects Bombast and Flitterflop discuss will be familiar to readers, others will not. What makes this book stand out from the mass of modern occult literature is that it does not consist of the author's personal beliefs, opinions or speculations. All the facts, information and teachings in this book rest on the solid foundation of the Ancient Wisdom, gathered together over many thousands of years, which the profound learning of all the greatest Teachers and Philosophers, aided by Divine Inspiration, has recorded for our minds to dwell on, so that we might behold Truth. There is a comprehensive bibliography at the end of the book which lists the many occult, philosophical and scientific sources the author has drawn upon.

For technical reasons the twelve chapters in this book are presented in a slightly different manner to the articles on our website. However, with the exception of a Preface by the author and a Foreword by the publisher, the content is identical. You can watch a video review of the book on YouTube by 'The Lunar Key'. We would add that the reviewer has no connection with us or the publisher.

Serpents of Wisdom—by Edda Livingston
Originally self-published in 1994 by the author on her own (now defunct) website, Argotique.

Available TO READ & DOWNLOAD HERE IN PDF FORMAT

The author made this remarkable book freely available to all who wished to read it during her lifetime. We have followed her generous example by doing the same in creating our PDF, using many of the same illustrations she used. Written in a refreshingly down-to-earth manner, Serpents of Wisdom describes the search for a genuine Spiritual Master in plain language, indicating the many traps and false teachings the sincere seeker may encounter along the way with insight, warmth and wry humour.

It is impossible in a short review such as this to do justice to the wealth of real occult facts and information packed into this little book of just 72 pages, but the following are some of the many subjects covered: false masters; why asceticism does not lead to illumination; how to distinguish false teachers from genuine ones; willpower; alchemy; true faith versus mere optimism; karma and destiny; magic; reincarnation; sensible spiritual meditation; mental transformation; the higher and lower selves; black magic in modern science (this will be an eye-opener for many); the importance of simplicity; real, effective prayer; and how to make oneself ready for the True Teacher.

Those who have spent many years swimming in an ocean of New Age nonsense, will welcome the clarity this book sheds on the many wrong teachings and speculations masquerading as Truth. The author pulls no punches in lambasting the many past and present vultures in human form who prey upon the weaknesses and gullibility of those seeking a spiritual Master. For this reason alone, we highly recommend this unusual little book to the beginner in occult studies, as well as those who are well advanced upon the path to the Light. You can read a short extract from this book in the sidebar further down this page.

There cannot be many readers interested in the occult who have not heard of this book. Manly P. Hall self-published this monumental survey of the ancient wisdom and the occult sciences at his own expense in 1928. The only reason we have not reviewed it before is that until recently the book was both scarce and expensive. Fortunately, an excellent e-text is now available at Sacred Texts which is freely available for all to read online. So far as we have been able to ascertain this is an exact facsimile of the original edition complete with all the black and white illustrations found in the printed book, though the colour illustrations which fronted each chapter in the first edition of 1928 and reprints of it, have been omitted for reasons of economy and copyright. There is also an illustrated paperback reprint published by TarcherPerigee in 2003 which is verbatim with the original edition (See note at end).

Those who study this book in its entirety will gain a broad understanding of such varied subjects as the Qabbalah, Alchemy, Magic, Astrology, Neo-Platonism, Egyptian Hermetic Philosophy, Pythagorean mathematics, Native American myths, the esotericism of the Shakespearean dramas, the various Mystery Religions and ancient Mystery Schools of Greece and Egypt, and their modern offshoots of Rosicrucianism and Freemasonry. The number of ancient and modern sources Hall drew upon for his magnum opus is quite extraordinary. Aside from the works of Plato, Aristotle, Plutarch and Iamblichus, he cites translations of the Gnostic, Nicene, and Hermetic literature, the writings of Paracelsus, Ptolemy, Roger Bacon, Basil Valentine, Cornelius Agrippa, Eliphas Levi and H. P. Blavatsky, to name just a few of the most well-known writers on the ancient wisdom and occult sciences.

This is not to say that the book does not contain several errors. Among these may be mentioned Hall's contention that the Roma or Gypsies came from Egypt, a view which was popular in the 19th and early 20th centuries. We now know this to be incorrect. He also contends that the Tarot may be traced back to the religious symbolism of the ancient Egyptians, when in fact it was the product of the Rosicrucians of the 18th century who drew upon the Jewish mysticism of the Qabbalah for its symbolism, not the ancient Egyptian Wisdom teachings. But these shortcomings in no way spoil what is one of the most comprehensive surveys of the ancient Wisdom and occult sciences ever compiled, and that is the reason we recommend Manly P Hall's book to our readers.

IMPORTANT NOTE! There are now several editions of this book available including various 'print-on-demand' and Kindle versions which are badly typeset and omit many or all of the illustrations of the original. The most complete edition is the hardcover "University Edition" published by the Philosophical Research Society (PRS) in 2008, but at $225 this is very expensive. The "Reduced Size Paperback" published in 1978 and reprinted in 1988 and 2000 by the PRS, costs $75. This includes 54 symbolic colour plates, foldouts and an overlay as well as 200 black and white illustrations, an extensive bibliography and complete index. ISBN 10: 0-89314-830-X. There is also a hardcover edition of this book, price $95 from PRS. ISBN-10: 0-89314-548-3 and a paperback compact "Reader's Edition" with 100 black and white illustrations and a 16-page colour insert, price $26 from PRS. ISBN-10: 1585422509. Finally, there is the illustrated paperback reprint mentioned above, published by TarcherPerigee in 2003. This contains most, but not all of the illustrations included in the original edition of 1928 but omitted from many of the subsequent reprints.

in tune with the infinite
Ralph Waldo Trine presents the eternal Spiritual and material truths of Life in a clear and simple manner which all can understand. It requires no great intellect or education to apply the very simple laws which he so beautifully reveals in this inspired book. In the degree that you do so you will change sadness into joy, failure into success and weakness into strength.

Although claimed by many as a pioneer of 'New Age' teaching, there is nothing in Trine's message that was not known and taught thousands of years ago. We hear the same truths from the immortal lips of inspired teachers like Jesus, Buddha and Krishna. Trine's great accomplishment was to re-state these truths in simple words that even a child can understand and to make them accessible to millions. This is no accident; for the truth is always simple if we are simple enough to recognise it when it is presented to us. Sadly, so many seekers desire mystery, glamour and complexity. Such will turn away from the simplicity of this book. But the simple in mind and heart will recognise the Truth within its luminous pages.

It will remind them in no uncertain manner that the keys to health, happiness and success are to be found within and not without. As the Author says in his Prelude: "THE optimist is right. The pessimist is right. The one differs from the other as the light from the dark. Yet both are right. Each is right from their own particular point of view, and this point of view is the determining factor in the life of each. It determines as to whether it is a life of power or of impotence...of success or of failure."

How true these words are! Do we not all know seekers whose 'glass is always half-empty'?—who fear the worst and anticipate disaster and disappointment at every turn? And is it not also true that such people often live lives of sorrow, confusion, ill-health and failure? But it needn't be like this. In US lies the power to change our own individual lives for the better. And in the degree that we do so we shall change the lives of others around us and the world in general. This is the simple way to bring peace and light into this sorely-troubled world. It needs no 'occult powers' nor special training to do so. All it requires is an understanding of the TRUE LAWS of Life and a willingness to put them into practise in our daily lives. This is the SIMPLE message which Ralph Waldo Trine gave to the world over 100 years ago.

Read an abstract adapted from the Introduction to the book

upanishads
The Upanishads have rightly been described as the 'Himalayas of the Soul' and we regard this selection from them by Juan Mascaro as the finest and most accurate translations ever rendered into English. Readers who are unfamiliar with these sublime spiritual treatises on Man, God and the Universe are advised to read our abstract adapted from the translator's introduction to the book.

Born in Majorca of Spanish parents in 1897, Juan Mascaro's own search for Truth began at the tender age of 13 when he studied a book on occultism. This led to his discovery of an inferior English translation of the Bhagavad Gita which inspired him to learn Sanskrit by himself. He went on to study and teach at Cambridge University, in England, where he lectured on the spiritual values in the Bible and Spanish mysticism. He died in Cambridge in 1987 at the ripe old age of 90, having left the world some of the finest translations of the sacred texts of Hinduism ever written.

Rabindranath Tagore, the famous Bengali poet wrote in a letter to Mascaro that he had "caught from those great words the inner voice that goes beyond the boundaries of words." We agree and do not doubt that Mascaro's early occult studies greatly helped him to imbue his masterly translation with the fire of true inspiration which shines from every page of this book. For this is an occult book in the best and highest sense of that much misunderstood word, which contains some of the most elevated spiritual truths ever composed by the hand of man.

These timeless treatises upon Truth are as far removed from the dry and dusty curiosities of religious scholarship as the Sun is removed from a guttering candle in a dark cellar filled with bemused bats. H. P. Blavatsky tells us that upa-ni-shad is a compound word meaning "the conquest of ignorance by the revelation of secret, spiritual knowledge." Mascaro confirms this in his introduction where he says that Upanishad means to "sit at the feet of the Master", which means the same and is the same, for one cannot learn the true occult sciences without a spiritual Master as we point out in many of our articles. The Upanishads are to the Vedas what the Qabbalah is to the Jewish Bible. They treat of and expound the secret meaning of the Vedic texts and the occult sciences.

Every sincere seeker who truly longs to scale the mountain of Truth should read the Upanishads, for in few other sacred texts can we find such clear and simple instructions to guide the feet of the traveller on the path to the Light.

serpent in the sky
We first read John Anthony West's groundbreaking reinterpretation of the science and civilisation of Egypt more than 30 years ago and were deeply impressed by it. We remain impressed today, for what he has to say about the wisdom of ancient Egypt has rarely been expressed more clearly or completely by any other popular author. West challenged the prevailing dogmas about ancient Egypt for the very first time, providing a generation of readers with information which had either been suppressed, ignored or misinterpreted by orthodox archaeologists and Egyptologists.

The service West has rendered to scholars and ordinary readers alike cannot be underestimated. By summarising and extending the work of the philosopher and mathematician, R. A. Schwaller de Lubicz, he has not only made the ancient Egyptian sciences of art, architecture, mathematics, geometry and philosophy comprehensible to the lay reader who knows little or nothing about these subjects, but provided the serious occult student with a wealth of hitherto scarce and invaluable information on the hidden wisdom of ancient Egypt.

While we would recommend Schwaller de Lubicz's own books to those who wish to delve more deeply into the sacred sciences of ancient Egypt, his magnum opus—The Temple of Man—runs to over 1,000 pages and is not cheap at nearly £170 for the hardcover edition published by Inner Traditions in 1998. For most readers, Serpent in the Sky covers the same ground as de Lubicz, and is considerably easier to read.

West is no New Age apologist promoting the weirder speculations of conspiracy theorists, but a conscientious and accomplished scholar who has the advantage over most orthodox Egyptologists in that he writes with great clarity, acuity and humour, dispelling the many popular misconceptions which surround the subject of ancient Egypt and its civilisation with rapier-like wit and inescapable logic. If you are fascinated by ancient Egypt (and we know few seekers after truth who are not) you will not be disappointed by this book.

NOTE: The paperback edition published in 1993 includes an update on the author's dating of the Sphinx.

Secrets of the Great Pyramid—by Peter Tompkins

secrets of the great pyramid
Although written over 40 years ago, this lavishly illustrated book remains the most comprehensive compendium of accurate facts and data about the Great Pyramid we know. As secondhand copies of the 1978 softcover edition (shown at right) are readily available in the UK and USA for less than £10 there has never been a better time to add this book to your occult library. Many contemporary writers about Egypt, such as Graham Hancock, John Anthony West (see previous review) and Robert Bauval, have drawn much of their material from the enormous amount of data Tompkins collected together for his book.

The book contains over 300 illustrations from sources ranging from the twenty-volume survey of Egypt commissioned by Napoleon to the first photographs taken inside the Pyramid in 1865; and an appendix by Professor Stecchini on the relations of ancient measures to the Great Pyramid. From the first Arabian investigations in the 8th century, to the latest theories and explanations, this book relates the complete history of the exploration of the Great Pyramid. Peter Tompkins recounts the explorations and adventures of the archaeologists, treasure-hunters, soldiers, scientists and eccentrics who have tunnelled into and studied the Pyramid over many centuries. He analyses the various theories as to how and why the Pyramid was built, and its relation to other monumental structures of antiquity, including Stonehenge and the ziggurats of Babylon.

Whilst we would not necessarily endorse all the author's conclusions about the purpose and function of the Great Pyramid, we know of no other book in which so many different theories have been presented in such a thoroughly sensible and scientific manner. This is in sharp contrast to many newer books on the subject, which, we are sorry to say, promote the most improbable fantasies based on variations of the same crackpot theories Tompkins demolishes in this book. Among these theories may be included the hair-brained notion that the Great Pyramid was a 'nuclear' power station, a prophetic device to predict the future or was built by aliens.

Several chapters in the book will be of great interest to occult students, not least those which explore the many astronomical, astrological and mystical aspects of this mysterious monument, whose primary purpose was a Temple of Initiation into the ancient Mysteries, as many of our readers will know. For these reasons alone we highly recommend this book.

This rare book on the metaphysical doctrines, religion and magical practises of ancient Egypt was first published as volume VIII of Collectanea Hermetica (see Numbers: Their Occult Power and Mystic Virtues, reviewed below), in 1896. Although the book was written at a time when the science of Egyptology was in its infancy, this in no way negates the invaluable esoteric lore the author has collected from the translations of Egyptian papyri available to her in the 19th century, which remain as much of an enigma to modern scholars as they were to Egyptologists in Farr's time.

Understandably, she draws heavily on the books of E. A. Wallis Budge, now sadly out of favour among Egyptologists for reasons of political correctness rather than scholarship in which he vastly exceeded all his modern contemporaries put together. The book includes a detailed examination and discussion of reincarnation, initiation, evolution and the afterlife which is in complete accord with the true laws and principles of Occult Science as expounded in many of our articles.

Farr correctly deduced that the principles of Egyptian magic were based on an elaborate series of correspondences derived from the fact that material and spiritual evolution follow the same Hermetic law of 'As above; so below', and that matter and spirit are the opposite states of the one Universal Substance, or Prima Materia.

The book begins with a dissertation upon the seven principles of man as they were known in ancient Egypt, explaining how they enter into the body at birth, what happens to them at death, and the manner in which they are connected. Later chapters include several so-called 'spells' taken from the Book of the Dead, which are nothing of the kind, for all these exhortations and prayers are nothing more nor less than allegorical representations of the various transformations the Higher Self undergoes during life and after death.

Over half the book is taken up with extracts from a Gnostic papyrus entitled The Book of Knowledge of the Invisible God, which forms part of the Bruce codex found in Upper Egypt in 1769, and now preserved in the Bodleian Library, in Oxford. This luminous text is reminiscent of the Pistis Sophia in parts and consists of some of the esoteric teachings Jesus imparted to his disciples after his resurrection. These alone make this little book well worth studying. You can read about the hidden meaning of the resurrection in our article about the esoteric meaning of Easter.

NOTE: Amazon sell a Kindle edition for just over £2.00 but not having seen it we cannot vouch for its quality or accuracy. Kessinger Publishing produced a reprinted edition in 1993, but this may contain errors and omissions. Hence, we recommend that those on a tight budget avail themselves of the free e-text published by the Hermetic Library (see above link).

We feel compelled to begin this review with an apology. Numerology cannot be picked up piecemeal in an idle hour or two. Nor can it be used to tell 'fortunes' as many people have been led to believe. If that is your desire, we suggest that you take up reading tea-leaves or the Tarot! As we point out in our article on symbolism, the students of Pythagoras spent seven years learning the basic principles of the sacred science of numbers, as you can read in our article on numerology. Consequently, Westcott's book, like our own article, should be regarded as an introduction to this vast and complex subject, not a complete course of instruction in the science of numbers, which cannot be condensed down into a slim volume of just 120 pages.

The book was first published in 1890 as volume IX of Collectanea Hermetica, a series of 9 books on the occult sciences issued under the imprimatur of the Theosophical Society with Westcott as editor. Westcott expanded and revised the book in 1902 and 1911. A 4th edition was published in 1974, which is the edition shown at right that we have used for this review. Those who judiciously study this book will gain a first-rate understanding of the main principles of the hidden properties and meaning of numbers.

Westcott drew on an immense number of ancient Greek, Roman, Chaldean, Hebraic, Egyptian, Chinese and Sanskrit sources for this book, as well as the writings of Eliphas Levi, the Egyptologist E.A. Wallis Budge, Thomas Taylor, Godfrey Higgins, Michael Maier, Gerald Massey and H. P. Blavatsky. But Westcott's main source, and the reason that this book is of such value to the serious occult student, are the teachings of Pythagoras himself, which the author has collected together from the fragmentary remains of the writings of the Sage's pupils.

The science of numbers is one of the most important keys that unlocks the secrets of man and the universe. As H. P. Blavatsky said so truly: "Everything in the Universe was framed according to the eternal proportions and combinations of numbers—God geometrises—and numbers and numerals are the fundamental basis of all systems of mysticism, philosophy, and religion." Pythagoras stated that the Monad or unity, emanated the Dyad, and thus formed the spiritual trinity, from which is derived the quaternary, or the mystic four, the number of the material world. These numbers comprise the totality of the forces of Nature and the principles of man, both of which are seven in number.

IMPORTANT NOTE! There are several print-on-demand and Kindle editions of this book available from Amazon and other booksellers. These are best avoided as almost all are badly typeset and contain innumerable errors and omissions. If you want a printed copy our advice is to obtain the 4th edition shown above, published by the Theosophical Publishing House in 1973. Otherwise, read the free e-text at the Sacred Text Archive.

qabbalah by isaac myer
The Qabbalah (also written "Kabbalah", "Cabala", etc), which word means "doctrines received by tradition"—is a system of Jewish theosophy that played an important part in the establishment of the Christian Church. As such, it is a valuable work for the study of the origin of religions and their philosophy in general, and the origin of the formulations, dogmas and doctrines of early Christianity in particular. We would add that Isaac Meyer's book has nothing whatsoever to do with the fashionable craze of 'kabbalah' popularised by various Hollywood celebrities in recent years!

First published at the author's own expense in 1888, Meyer's Qabbalah remains the most accessible and readable summary of these important Hebrew writings that we know of. The book includes a short account of the life and writings of the philosopher, Solomon ben Yehudah Ibn Gebirol or Avicebron; some parts of the Qabbalistic philosophy, quotations from the Zoharic books, explanations of many New Testament passages, the basic element in Religions, and extracts from the so-called "Pagan" writers on the Invisible and Visible and the Ideal and Real. In addition, the book contains Qabbalistic accounts of the Creation which should be of interest to every seeker, for it is only by carefully comparing the various accounts to be found in the sacred books of all times that the diligent occult student may arrive at a true conception of the origins of Man and the Universe. The book also contains important discussions upon the nature of illusion, sound, colour and rhythm, and an interesting article on an Ancient Lodge of Initiates.

For those interested in making a deeper study of Jewish Mysticism it is important to get as close as possible to the original sources upon which the early philosophers erected the doctrine and teaching of the Kabbalah. For this reason we also recommend two further classic books on this system of Jewish theosophy. These are: The Kabbalah: its Doctrines, Development, and Literature by Christian David Ginsburg, published by G Routledge & Sons, London, 1920 and The Kabbalah or the Religious Philosophy of the Hebrews by Adolphe Franck (translated by I. Sossnitz) 1926. This latter book is available to read online in HTML format at the Internet Sacred Text Archive. We review this superb compendium of sacred and occult texts on our Links page.

NOTE. We recommend the edition published by Weiser Books in 1970/72 (ISBN 0-87728-008-8), OR the photographic reprint by Elibron Classics published by Adamant Media Corporation in 2001 (ISBN 978-1402185038). We do not recommend the Kindle and other electronic editions sold by Amazon as these often suffer from defects and imperfections that make such ebooks virtually unreadable.

occult curative powers precious stones
Although it was first published more than 100 years ago, W. T. Fernie's seminal source book on the various occult, alchemical, historical, mythological and magical lore and properties associated with precious stones and minerals has never been equalled. The book is a virtual encyclopedia of invaluable information about stones and metals, and copiously enlivened with anecdotes and historical information on how precious and semi-precious stones and metals were used in the past.

Given the present-day fascination with "crystals" and the very many uses (and we may say many more "abuses") to which they are now put, the serious student of occultism will find this book indispensable in his researches into the historical and occult lore of gems of all kinds. Having said that, the book is not without errors and should not be taken as an infallible guide to the use of precious stones for occult purposes. The real occult facts about precious stones and their employment have and always will remain a closely-guarded secret for the reasons we give in our Occult FAQ.

NOTE. The edition illustrated above is the HarperCollins paperback reprint of 1981. So far as we have been able to ascertain this is verbatim with the original edition of 1907. When we last updated this page in late November 2024, used copied of the HarperCollins reprint were readily available from Abe Books and other booksellers from £25.00 or less. The various print-on-demand editions of this book now being produced are best avoided for the reasons given in our note 'Where and how to buy occult books' in the sidebar.

OCCULT BOOKS
"Of the making of many books there is no end."

Ecclesiastes 12:12

This reminds us of a very good friend of ours, a Mystic and Seer of wide experience and great wisdom, who, when he was asked which of the many thousands of rare occult books in his library he would recommend, he said "None of 'em!!"

We agree with him. The fact of the matter is that with very few exceptions, the books which are recommended to Occult students are often chaotic in their contents and contradict one another. The problem is that it is impossible to put the most profound spiritual and mystical experiences into words that cannot be misunderstood by a large number of seekers.

We only have to consider the many different interpretations of the Bible and other Sacred books to know that this is true. We could easily have reviewed 500 occult books, or 5000, but whether acquiring that many books leads to knowledge and understanding or confusion and mental indigestion, is a question we leave our readers to ponder. . .

Moreover, in all our wide experience of occult and mystical literature, we know of no books that do not contain some errors, while in most truth and error are so inextricably intertwined that only a trained Occultist can sift the one from the other. Yet some truth is better than none. This is especially true of the thousands of new occult books that are now appearing, very few which of contain anything that has not been said better before. This answers the question we have often been asked as to why so many of the books we do review were published in the last century or even earlier.

It is for this reason that we have chosen only those books which contain real occult wisdom and truth which stand out like beacons of Light amongst a sea of mediocrity, plagiarism and fantasy. Books that explain who and what Man truly IS, whence he comes, whither he is going and the purpose and meaning of life. In connection with this, an anonymous alchemist has written:

"Let a Lover of truth suspect things that are quickly understood; for truth lies hid in obscurity; for Philosophers never write more deceitfully—than when plainly, nor ever more truly—than when obscurely."

This is true, though it may come as a shock to those who imagine there is a secret 'Da Vinci' code which at a stroke will magically 'unlock' the obscure allegories, arcane symbolism and archaic language used by occultists, mystics and philosophers. We're afraid that no such 'code' exists, has existed, or ever will exist, except in the minds of novelists and conspiracy theorists. It requires wide reading, long study, intuition and sheer hard work to discover the hidden meaning in the best occult books as we explain in our occult studies course.

Occult books for beginners

We are often asked to suggest the 'best' occult books for beginners. Our invariable answer is that the 'best' books are those that teach us the most. For this reason we suggest that if you know little or nothing about the occult sciences, you start off by reading the following three articles we have published:

Occult FAQ
Why study Occult Science?
There is only One LIGHT

Then, if you wish to learn more, The Secret Teachings of All Ages is a readable and comprehensive introduction to the occult sciences for those who know little or nothing about them. Those who prefer to read the personal experiences of seekers, should enjoy Serpents of Wisdom or The White Brother. Both these books were written by authors who drew on their own personal experience to describe the search for a genuine spiritual teacher and answer the many questions asked by beginners. These two books are reviewed on this website and can be downloaded in PDF format.

In addition, we would also recommend In Tune with the Infinite by Ralph Waldo Trine. Although not an 'occult' book in the strict sense, it presents the Eternal Truths of life with great clarity and simplicity—and just as importantly—how to apply them to improve your life, health, wealth and happiness.

astral conversations
Finally, we strongly recommend that you read and study Astral Conversations—a series of articles in which two typical occult students—one a mere beginner—discuss many different subjects and provide plain, no-nonsense answers to them. A hardcover print edition of these twelve conversations was published by Aula Lucis in 2022. This is arranged slightly differently to the website articles but the content is the same. For further information about this printed edition see our review of the book on this page.

Serpents of Wisdom
An extract adapted from the book by Edda Livingston reviewed on this page
You have probably come to the realization that there are no listings of Masters and true Teachers in the Yellow Pages. It is possible to find psychics, astrologers, and other such flora and fauna, and you may even find advertisements in metaphysical-type magazines for birds of ill-omen who call themselves masters, but unless we have polyps for brains, we ought to know that the only thing they are masters of, is deceit of an expensive kind.

The ill-advised followers of these self-appointed teachers, swallow wholesale the most absurd propositions put forward by these coolies of the Occult; these poachers on Spiritual grounds. But is there a single Master among them? An Adept, perhaps? Or an Initiate? The sad but true answer is NO—not one. There is not even a good imitation of one.

So where will you find one?

Do you think you would recognize a Master if you did meet one? Are you under the impression that he would advertise his Mastership by wearing saffron robes? Flowing locks? Sandals? A halo? A crown of thorns? Or could it possibly be that he is so well hidden because he looks like any one of us, giving us no obvious signs to recognize him by, and, in this manner, throwing us back on our ability to tell Truth from falsehood? How many of us are willing or able to know and welcome Mastership or Adeptship by listening to words of Truth? The majority seem to prefer personality, fame, and drivellers of ineptitude who reconfirms our preconceived opinions.

And anyway, to the ordinary man, all that stuff about Masters, Wisdom, Light and Love, has no meaning—it makes him yawn. What matters to him is profit, the latest football scores, fun, food, and lots of sleep. If you talk to this kind of plebeian about the more elevated things—things of the Spirit and of the Higher man, he will probably brush you aside with: 'In my opinion, that's a lot of bull.' and it will be your own fault for thoughtlessly throwing your pearls before the swine. Your hard gained pearls of wisdom will be trampled underfoot, and neither you nor the plebeian you sought to enlighten will have gained a thing by your eagerness to share your new-found Light. Regretfully, you will soon learn that most men shun the light like so many vampires hiding in their coffins as soon as the sun comes out.

The 19th Century occultist, Eliphas Levi said that: "Fools are the people who kill men of genius", and we might add that they are also fond of killing the Messengers sent to us from God. We all know what crass humanity did to Jesus. Apollonius of Tyana was thrown into prison and later tortured to death; Daniel was thrown to the lions; Raymund Lully was stoned to death; Joan of Arc was burnt at the stake; Ibn Gebirol, the Kabbalist, was murdered; Jaques Cazotte, the seer, was executed, and Socrates was condemned to death. Pythagoras had to flee from the tyranny of Polycrates. Cagliostro died while confined in prison; Giordano Bruno was burnt alive; Sendivogius was imprisoned and tortured; Paracelsus and Agrippa were forced to spend their lives as wretched wanderers. . . and the list goes on.

You may argue that all this took place a long time ago, that we are more civilized these days and would never tolerate such barbaric behaviour. Don't believe it! Human nature does not change much, and however arrogant and self-satisfied modern man is concerning his latest achievements and so-called progress, he is still as stupid and as cruel as ever. Fools are still persecuting and killing messengers, whether physically or by ridicule and calumny, who irritate them, or who hold views considered threatening.

This is one of the reasons why the Wise keep silent as to who, what and where they are—and maybe—to a lesser extent, so should you. It is also wrong to foist your beliefs on others who may be at a different stage on the Path than yourself; or who may simply be going by a different route. Since it is only possible for us to understand something up to our own level, how would we know if we were foisting ourselves and our beliefs on those who have far surpassed us in knowledge and Wisdom? And yet, people do all the time, unaware of the pitying and gentle smiles of those who can see through them.

And although you should always protect the fellow traveller lower than yourself on the ladder to the Light, you must at all times guard against being preached at or dictated to by them. As for the majority, those who care not, let them go on their merry way, without judging them, but at the same time make sure that you see them for what they are, freeing you from the danger of falling for outward trappings.

But if the opportunity to plant a seed in their barren soils presents itself, you should do so. A good seed may lay dormant until the experiences of their lives has watered their soil with tears and enriched it with the ashes of their dreams, sprouting into a beautiful flower of wisdom, years—or lifetimes hence.

It is possible that you yourself are on the Path because someone, at some time, planted a seed in you. A kind soul did the work of the Master on your behalf and you are now reaping the benefits of that kindly act. This is the Way of Service and it is the only Path you can take if you want to reach one of the Masters.

There are no short-cuts to be had on the Path to the Light. We all have to travel the same road and overcome the same obstacles in order to obtain our Goal, and only the strong and steadfast, the loving and faithful, will be crowned with success. Let us at all times remember that even the Masters had to travel along this Path in times gone by, and for this reason they understand fully our aching hearts and our yearnings, but they also know that the Reward is well worth striving for. They know that it is necessary for man to live through material darkness, for we can only be born into the Light from this darkness. But before we start longing for this Birth, we must reach a point where we feel the limitations and the powerlessness of the darkness. We must long, with our whole hearts and minds, to live within the rays of the Light, and we must fearlessly face the Truth. If the Truth hurts, we must have the ability to look within ourselves for the fault, rather than change the Truth in order to spare ourselves.

Then, and only then, can we hope to be noticed by the Masters who live within the Light.

Upanishads

An abstract adapted from Juan Mascaro's introduction to his translations of the Upanishads (see book review at left)

If all the known Upanishads were collected into one volume, they would make an anthology about the length of the Bible. The spirit of the Upanishads can be compared with that of the New Testament summed up in the words 'I and my Father are one' and 'The kingdom of God is within you', the seed of which is found in the words of the Psalms 'I have said: Ye are gods; and all of you are the children of the most High'.

The central message of the Upanishads is that God must not be sought as something far away, abstract, and separate from us, but rather within us in the Higher Self which transcends the limitations and littleness of our earthly personality. In rising to the best in us we rise to the Higher Self in us and to God Himself. Thus when the sage of the Upanishads is pressed for a definition of God, he remains silent, meaning that God is silence. When asked again to express God in words, he says: 'Neti, neti', 'Not this, not this'; but when pressed for a positive explanation he utters the sublimely simple words: 'TAT TVAM ASI', 'Thou art That'.

According to the Upanishads, the reality of God can only be apprehended in a consciousness of joy that is beyond ordinary consciousness. The silent voice of the Eternal is perpetually whispering in us his melodies everlasting. The radiance of the Infinite is everywhere, but our ears cannot hear and our eyes cannot see: the Eternal cannot be grasped by the transient physical senses or the transient material mind. This is beautifully expressed in the Taittiriya Upanishad: 'Words and mind go to him, but reach him not and return. But he who knows the joy of Brahman fears no more.'

Brahman is described as immanent and transcendent, within all and outside all. If the All is imagined as a triangle, the apex might be imagined as God transcendent, who in his expansion creates matter out of Himself—not out of nothing as science believes—and thus becomes immanent until the end of evolution when the immanent has once again become transcendent in the ascension of evolution towards Him. Why? For the joy of creation. Why is there evil? For the joy of good arising from it. Why suffering? For the instruction of the Higher and lower self. Why darkness? That the Light may shine the more brightly and gloriously. This teaching is as old as man and the very essence of true Occult Science.

The Upanishads introduce the reader to the conception of a fourth state of consciousness, above waking, dreaming and deep sleep. The law of attunement, wrongly called Karma—which we discuss in our study course—explains the apparent injustice in the world with sublime simplicity. We alone are the builders of our own destiny, and the results are not limited to one life, since our Higher Self that was never born and will never die must come again and take to itself a fresh body, that both selves may have the reward of their works. Good shall lead to good, and evil to evil. From good, joy shall come, and from evil shall come suffering. And thus the grand scheme of evolution flows on towards perfection.

And when all the transient has been left behind, when final liberation has been attained, when our little self is lost in the greater Self in us and in the ALL, as a drop of water is lost in the sea, does it mean that all consciousness is lost? After the death of the lower self, when the small drop of human consciousness has become one with the vast ocean of Consciousness, does it mean that our individual consciousness is lost? Yes, say some spiritual teachers, both past and present but they err and err profoundly as you can read in our astral conversation on consciousness after death. The truth, as you may read in that article, is that the Higher Self gathers the spiritual qualities of every terrestrial personality into which it incarnates and adds them to its own eternal consciousness.

The Higher Self has then become the Self supreme and not only has it full consciousness of its own experience through its many incarnations, but access to the consciousness of all other selves too. How could the union with God be unconsciousness, unless God Himself was unconsciousness? We all know that caterpillars die in order to transform themselves into beautiful butterflies. Free from its limitations, the little self forgets its limited life in the boundless ocean of life. It is not a death, but a victory over death, a rising and a resurrection to greater and more vivid life.

This is the central message of the Upanishads and why we commend the book to you for serious study and meditation.

NOTE: Juan Mascaro translated portions of several other Indian sacred texts during his lifetime. Foremost among them are the Bhagavad Gita (1962) and the Dhammapada (1973). Both are well worth reading.

Where and how to buy occult books

The occult books we have reviewed have been carefully selected as the best of their kind. We could easily have included many more books which are both scarce and expensive, but being aware of the fact that most sincere seekers have limited means we have favoured those that are free to read online, and/or are readily available in several editions and formats, both new and second-hand, at modest cost.

BUYERS BEWARE!
And now we must issue a strong warning. Whilst Information Technology and the Internet have vastly increased the availability of rare and/or out-of-print books, it has also made buying definitive editions very much harder.

Such books are increasingly being digitally-scanned and published as print-on-demand or e-books. Whilst some are well-reproduced, accurate facsimiles of the original editions, the majority are not. Many are incomplete and contain serious errors and omissions, and in the worst cases, may be completely unreadable.

Notwithstanding these grave shortcomings, such reprints are often prohibitively expensive, so adding insult to injury whilst providing a jolly good income for the publisher! The latter is usually a 'one-man-band' whose sole interest is in making a fast buck from the unsuspecting.

The only way to be sure you are not paying good money for waste paper is to buy the specific edition we recommend, or if that is not possible, contact the publisher or seller to make sure that the book they are selling is an exact facsimile of the original with no errors or omissions.

We have indicated below where to obtain the occult books we have reviewed, but this information is subject to change as titles go in and out of print and/or stock and web links are updated. In most cases a web search will return results from various sellers, and it is also worthwhile contacting booksellers directly.

Don't rely on booksellers' online lists of titles in stock as these are often out-of-date. Do try charity shops, as these often stock rare or unusual books at bargain prices. You will find a short list of booksellers specialising in occult books in the UK and some in the USA below.

Occult booksellers and publishers
Whilst we try to keep this list up-to-date, these websites may become unavailable at any time
Abe books is a major seller of second-hand books but delivery can be slow and customer service rather poor.
Atlantis Bookshop is London's oldest independent occult bookseller established in 1922. Unfortunately, they now seem to focus mainly on books about black magic and witchcraft, do not list their current stock, and provide no search facilities.
Magis Books—mail-order bookseller based in Leicestershire, in the UK. Although their website is awkward and frustrating to use, it does list their current stock and provides a search facility by title, author and category.

Treadwell's Books located in Bloomsbury, in London, sells books on occultism, mythology, folklore and religion. Like the Atlantis Bookshop, Treadwell's favour books on witchcraft and black magic rather than the Ancient Wisdom and Occult Truth.
Courtyard Books based in Glastonbury, sells esoteric and occult books including fine, limited edition titles in hardcover from small publishers and private presses. Their website is easy to use with a good search facility.
Watkins Books—esoteric bookshop in London, established over 100 years ago. Watkins have an extensive list of books on philosophy, metaphysics, mythology, the occult sciences, astrology, magic and mysticism, both new and second-hand, including rare and out-of-print classics.
Wizards Bookshelf—mail-order publisher and bookseller based in Michigan, USA, publishes high quality reprints of many scarce metaphysical classics, such as The Divine Pymander of Hermes Trismegistus, Anna Kingsford and Edward Maitland's translation of The Virgin of the World, On the Mysteries of the Egyptians, Chaldeans and Assyrians by Iamblichus, and many of the books referred to by H. P. Blavatsky in her master-work, The Secret Doctrine.

Introduction
We have not reviewed any books about the so-called 'left-hand path' (LHP), witchcraft, wicca, the fantasies of conspiracy theorists or the speculations of psychics and mediums. If that's what you're looking for you won't find it here. If, on the other hand, you're looking for books that provide plain answers to the many questions sincere seekers ask about Man, Life and the Universe, you're in the right place. To read our book reviews, browse the categories below. To learn more about what books we review and why, or how and where to obtain them, read the notes in the sidebar.

the search for truth
The Search for Truth is a unique investigation in twelve chapters that explores the many links between Religion and the Occult, focusing especially on the hidden meaning concealed within the Bible and its many correspondences with the Wisdom Teachings of ancient Egypt. During the course of the book the author gradually introduces the keys to the Mystery Language without which it is impossible to unlock the hidden meaning within any sacred writings, some of which pre-date Christianity by many millennia. The book covers a wide range of subjects that include, but are not limited to: an occult analysis of folly and wisdom, hidden wisdom in the Bible and how and why it was concealed; the problem of good and evil; the real nature of God and man; the esoteric meaning of Christmas and Easter; the concealed meaning of some of the parables of Jesus; the origins and dogma of original sin and how this relates to the so-called 'fall of man'; the facts and fictions of the Christian Church; the secrets of the ancient Egyptian religion; the Wisdom Literature of Egypt compared and contrasted with the proverbs in the Bible; the right and wrong use of talent and what it really is; the magical power of prayer; and much, much more.

The content and arrangement of this book differs from the series of twelve articles John Temple wrote for this website between 2013 to 2019. The main changes are the exclusion of the first two articles in the online series, namely 'Searching for Truth' and 'Who are the Real Illuminati', and the addition of 'Folly and Wisdom' and 'The anatomy of Sin'. These two articles were published separately from the series in 2021 and 2024 respectively. The author decided, rightly in our view, that these two articles — both dealing with vitally important aspects of the search for truth — were more relevant to a printed book than the excluded articles, neither of which fitted into it quite as effectively or harmoniously. We feel sure that lovers of John Temple's invaluable contributions to this website will see the wisdom of this change and appreciate having these two articles included in this new book.

The Search for Truth is available in two different formats: a hardcover edition limited to 500 copies and a full vellum deluxe edition (see note below). The monochrome colour frontispiece and chapter headings are beautifully illustrated by Kateryna Zubakhina. The book includes a brief biography of the author which will be welcomed by his many fans and a comprehensive bibliography which serious occult students will find invaluable. Finally, as some casual visitors have queried our claim to be 'not for profit' whilst promoting a book that is being sold by a commercial publisher, we wish to make it quite clear that any profits accruing from the sale of The Search for Truth will firstly, be used to fund future printed editions of our articles, and secondly, go to John Temple — or more likely his pet parrot — but not to us!

A full Vellum deluxe edition, price to be announced, will be available from the publisher in late 2024 or early 2025.

Astral Conversations—by A Listener
Aula Lucis, 2022. Hardcover limited to 250 copies, 367pp. Bound in gold-stamped purple cloth, with purple endpapers and a purple ribbon. Colour frontispiece and title pages, with thirteen illustrations by Justin Estcourt. Presented with a purple bookmark, gold-stamped on 250gsm paper and supplied with a gold-stamped dust jacket, price £36 ($45).

astral conversations
This unusual book is neither fiction nor non-fiction, but combines both genres in a unique way. The main narrative is the record of twelve lively and sometimes humorous conversations between two occult students overheard clairaudiently by the author. The two interlocutors — Arthur Flitterflop and Joshua Bombast — meet in the astral world to discuss many different subjects, including magic, masters, conspiracy theories, the illuminati, aliens, planet 'x', 'Ascension', 'DNA activation', consciousness, dreams, life after death, Tibetan magic, Shamans, drugs, channeling, witchcraft, paganism, the tarot, fate versus free will, necromancy, heaven and hell, and much more.

The secondary narrative consists of separate commentaries which follow each of the twelve conversations in the book. A similar format has been used before in print, most notably in The Comte de Gabalis, reviewed on our Occult Biography Books page. Bombast and Flitterflop are based on real individuals well-known to the author whose names have been deliberately changed to protect their identities. During the course of their conversations the reader is gradually introduced to a number of little-known occult laws and principles which have rarely appeared in print before. These reveal who and what man truly is, his material and spiritual origins and the purpose of life on earth.

Some of the subjects Bombast and Flitterflop discuss will be familiar to readers, others will not. What makes this book stand out from the mass of modern occult literature is that it does not consist of the author's personal beliefs, opinions or speculations. All the facts, information and teachings in this book rest on the solid foundation of the Ancient Wisdom, gathered together over many thousands of years, which the profound learning of all the greatest Teachers and Philosophers, aided by Divine Inspiration, has recorded for our minds to dwell on, so that we might behold Truth. There is a comprehensive bibliography at the end of the book which lists the many occult, philosophical and scientific sources the author has drawn upon.

For technical reasons the twelve chapters in this book are presented in a slightly different manner to the articles on our website. However, with the exception of a Preface by the author and a Foreword by the publisher, the content is identical. You can watch a video review of the book on YouTube by 'The Lunar Key'. We would add that the reviewer has no connection with us or the publisher.

Serpents of Wisdom—by Edda Livingston
Originally self-published in 1994 by the author on her own (now defunct) website, Argotique.

Available TO READ & DOWNLOAD HERE IN PDF FORMAT

serpents of wisdom pdf
The author made this remarkable book freely available to all who wished to read it during her lifetime. We have followed her generous example by doing the same in creating our PDF, using many of the same illustrations she used. Written in a refreshingly down-to-earth manner, Serpents of Wisdom describes the search for a genuine Spiritual Master in plain language, indicating the many traps and false teachings the sincere seeker may encounter along the way with insight, warmth and wry humour.

It is impossible in a short review such as this to do justice to the wealth of real occult facts and information packed into this little book of just 72 pages, but the following are some of the many subjects covered: false masters; why asceticism does not lead to illumination; how to distinguish false teachers from genuine ones; willpower; alchemy;

true faith versus mere optimism; karma and destiny; magic; reincarnation; sensible spiritual meditation; mental transformation; the higher and lower selves; black magic in modern science (this will be an eye-opener for many); the importance of simplicity; real, effective prayer; and how to make oneself ready for the True Teacher.

Those who have spent many years swimming in an ocean of New Age nonsense, will welcome the clarity this book sheds on the many wrong teachings and speculations masquerading as Truth. The author pulls no punches in lambasting the many past and present vultures in human form who prey upon the weaknesses and gullibility of those seeking a spiritual Master. For this reason alone, we highly recommend this unusual little book to the beginner in occult studies, as well as those who are well advanced upon the path to the Light. You can read a short extract from this book in the sidebar further down this page.

There cannot be many readers interested in the occult who have not heard of this book. Manly P. Hall self-published this monumental survey of the ancient wisdom and the occult sciences at his own expense in 1928. The only reason we have not reviewed it before is that until recently the book was both scarce and expensive. Fortunately, an excellent e-text is now available at Sacred Texts which is freely available for all to read online. So far as we have been able to ascertain this is an exact facsimile of the original edition complete with all the black and white illustrations found in the printed book, though the colour illustrations which fronted each chapter in the first edition of 1928 and reprints of it, have been omitted for reasons of economy and copyright. There is also an illustrated paperback reprint published by TarcherPerigee in 2003 which is verbatim with the original edition (See note at end).

Those who study this book in its entirety will gain a broad understanding of such varied subjects as the Qabbalah, Alchemy, Magic, Astrology, Neo-Platonism, Egyptian Hermetic Philosophy, Pythagorean mathematics, Native American myths, the esotericism of the Shakespearean dramas, the various Mystery Religions and ancient Mystery Schools of Greece and Egypt, and their modern offshoots of Rosicrucianism and Freemasonry. The number of ancient and modern sources Hall drew upon for his magnum opus is quite extraordinary. Aside from the works of Plato, Aristotle, Plutarch and Iamblichus, he cites translations of the Gnostic, Nicene, and Hermetic literature, the writings of Paracelsus, Ptolemy, Roger Bacon, Basil Valentine, Cornelius Agrippa, Eliphas Levi and H. P. Blavatsky, to name just a few of the most well-known writers on the ancient wisdom and occult sciences.

This is not to say that the book does not contain several errors. Among these may be mentioned Hall's contention that the Roma or Gypsies came from Egypt, a view which was popular in the 19th and early 20th centuries. We now know this to be incorrect. He also contends that the Tarot may be traced back to the religious symbolism of the ancient Egyptians, when in fact it was the product of the Rosicrucians of the 18th century who drew upon the Jewish mysticism of the Qabbalah for its symbolism, not the ancient Egyptian Wisdom teachings. But these shortcomings in no way spoil what is one of the most comprehensive surveys of the ancient Wisdom and occult sciences ever compiled, and that is the reason we recommend Manly P Hall's book to our readers.

IMPORTANT NOTE! There are now several editions of this book available including various 'print-on-demand' and Kindle versions which are badly typeset and omit many or all of the illustrations of the original. The most complete edition is the hardcover "University Edition" published by the Philosophical Research Society (PRS) in 2008, but at $225 this is very expensive. The "Reduced Size Paperback" published in 1978 and reprinted in 1988 and 2000 by the PRS, costs $75. This includes 54 symbolic colour plates, foldouts and an overlay as well as 200 black and white illustrations, an extensive bibliography and complete index. ISBN 10: 0-89314-830-X. There is also a hardcover edition of this book, price $95 from PRS. ISBN-10: 0-89314-548-3 and a paperback compact "Reader's Edition" with 100 black and white illustrations and a 16-page colour insert, price $26 from PRS. ISBN-10: 1585422509. Finally, there is the illustrated paperback reprint mentioned above, published by TarcherPerigee in 2003. This contains most, but not all of the illustrations included in the original edition of 1928 but omitted from many of the subsequent reprints.

in tune with the infinite
Ralph Waldo Trine presents the eternal Spiritual and material truths of Life in a clear and simple manner which all can understand. It requires no great intellect or education to apply the very simple laws which he so beautifully reveals in this inspired book. In the degree that you do so you will change sadness into joy, failure into success and weakness into strength.

Although claimed by many as a pioneer of 'New Age' teaching, there is nothing in Trine's message that was not known and taught thousands of years ago. We hear the same truths from the immortal lips of inspired teachers like Jesus, Buddha and Krishna. Trine's great accomplishment was to re-state these truths in simple words that even a child can understand and to make them accessible to millions. This is no accident; for the truth is always simple if we are simple enough to recognise it when it is presented to us. Sadly, so many seekers desire mystery, glamour and complexity. Such will turn away from the simplicity of this book. But the simple in mind and heart will recognise the Truth within its luminous pages.

It will remind them in no uncertain manner that the keys to health, happiness and success are to be found within and not without. As the Author says in his Prelude: "THE optimist is right. The pessimist is right. The one differs from the other as the light from the dark. Yet both are right. Each is right from their own particular point of view, and this point of view is the determining factor in the life of each. It determines as to whether it is a life of power or of impotence...of success or of failure."

How true these words are! Do we not all know seekers whose 'glass is always half-empty'?—who fear the worst and anticipate disaster and disappointment at every turn? And is it not also true that such people often live lives of sorrow, confusion, ill-health and failure? But it needn't be like this. In US lies the power to change our own individual lives for the better. And in the degree that we do so we shall change the lives of others around us and the world in general. This is the simple way to bring peace and light into this sorely-troubled world. It needs no 'occult powers' nor special training to do so. All it requires is an understanding of the TRUE LAWS of Life and a willingness to put them into practise in our daily lives. This is the SIMPLE message which Ralph Waldo Trine gave to the world over 100 years ago.

Read an abstract adapted from the Introduction to the book

upanishads
The Upanishads have rightly been described as the 'Himalayas of the Soul' and we regard this selection from them by Juan Mascaro as the finest and most accurate translations ever rendered into English. Readers who are unfamiliar with these sublime spiritual treatises on Man, God and the Universe are advised to read our abstract adapted from the translator's introduction to the book.

Born in Majorca of Spanish parents in 1897, Juan Mascaro's own search for Truth began at the tender age of 13 when he studied a book on occultism. This led to his discovery of an inferior English translation of the Bhagavad Gita which inspired him to learn Sanskrit by himself. He went on to study and teach at Cambridge University, in England, where he lectured on the spiritual values in the Bible and Spanish mysticism. He died in Cambridge in 1987 at the ripe old age of 90, having left the world some of the finest translations of the sacred texts of Hinduism ever written.

Rabindranath Tagore, the famous Bengali poet wrote in a letter to Mascaro that he had "caught from those great words the inner voice that goes beyond the boundaries of words." We agree and do not doubt that Mascaro's early occult studies greatly helped him to imbue his masterly translation with the fire of true inspiration which shines from every page of this book. For this is an occult book in the best and highest sense of that much misunderstood word, which contains some of the most elevated spiritual truths ever composed by the hand of man.

These timeless treatises upon Truth are as far removed from the dry and dusty curiosities of religious scholarship as the Sun is removed from a guttering candle in a dark cellar filled with bemused bats. H. P. Blavatsky tells us that upa-ni-shad is a compound word meaning "the conquest of ignorance by the revelation of secret, spiritual knowledge." Mascaro confirms this in his introduction where he says that Upanishad means to "sit at the feet of the Master", which means the same and is the same, for one cannot learn the true occult sciences without a spiritual Master as we point out in many of our articles. The Upanishads are to the Vedas what the Qabbalah is to the Jewish Bible. They treat of and expound the secret meaning of the Vedic texts and the occult sciences.

Every sincere seeker who truly longs to scale the mountain of Truth should read the Upanishads, for in few other sacred texts can we find such clear and simple instructions to guide the feet of the traveller on the path to the Light.

We first read John Anthony West's groundbreaking reinterpretation of the science and civilisation of Egypt more than 30 years ago and were deeply impressed by it. We remain impressed today, for what he has to say about the wisdom of ancient Egypt has rarely been expressed more clearly or completely by any other popular author. West challenged the prevailing dogmas about ancient Egypt for the very first time, providing a generation of readers with information which had either been suppressed, ignored or misinterpreted by orthodox archaeologists and Egyptologists.

The service West has rendered to scholars and ordinary readers alike cannot be underestimated. By summarising and extending the work of the philosopher and mathematician, R. A. Schwaller de Lubicz, he has not only made the ancient Egyptian sciences of art, architecture, mathematics, geometry and philosophy comprehensible to the lay reader who knows little or nothing about these subjects, but provided the serious occult student with a wealth of hitherto scarce and invaluable information on the hidden wisdom of ancient Egypt.

While we would recommend Schwaller de Lubicz's own books to those who wish to delve more deeply into the sacred sciences of ancient Egypt, his magnum opus—The Temple of Man—runs to over 1,000 pages and is not cheap at nearly £170 for the hardcover edition published by Inner Traditions in 1998. For most readers, Serpent in the Sky covers the same ground as de Lubicz, and is considerably easier to read.

West is no New Age apologist promoting the weirder speculations of conspiracy theorists, but a conscientious and accomplished scholar who has the advantage over most orthodox Egyptologists in that he writes with great clarity, acuity and humour, dispelling the many popular misconceptions which surround the subject of ancient Egypt and its civilisation with rapier-like wit and inescapable logic. If you are fascinated by ancient Egypt (and we know few seekers after truth who are not) you will not be disappointed by this book.

NOTE: The paperback edition published in 1993 includes an update on the author's dating of the Sphinx.

Although written over 40 years ago, this lavishly illustrated book remains the most comprehensive compendium of accurate facts and data about the Great Pyramid we know. As secondhand copies of the 1978 softcover edition (shown at right) are readily available in the UK and USA for less than £10 there has never been a better time to add this book to your occult library. Many contemporary writers about Egypt, such as Graham Hancock, John Anthony West (see previous review) and Robert Bauval, have drawn much of their material from the enormous amount of data Tompkins collected together for his book.

The book contains over 300 illustrations from sources ranging from the twenty-volume survey of Egypt commissioned by Napoleon to the first photographs taken inside the Pyramid in 1865; and an appendix by Professor Stecchini on the relations of ancient measures to the Great Pyramid. From the first Arabian investigations in the 8th century, to the latest theories and explanations, this book relates the complete history of the exploration of the Great Pyramid. Peter Tompkins recounts the explorations and adventures of the archaeologists, treasure-hunters, soldiers, scientists and eccentrics who have tunnelled into and studied the Pyramid over many centuries. He analyses the various theories as to how and why the Pyramid was built, and its relation to other monumental structures of antiquity, including Stonehenge and the ziggurats of Babylon.

Whilst we would not necessarily endorse all the author's conclusions about the purpose and function of the Great Pyramid, we know of no other book in which so many different theories have been presented in such a thoroughly sensible and scientific manner. This is in sharp contrast to many newer books on the subject, which, we are sorry to say, promote the most improbable fantasies based on variations of the same crackpot theories Tompkins demolishes in this book. Among these theories may be included the hair-brained notion that the Great Pyramid was a 'nuclear' power station, a prophetic device to predict the future or was built by aliens.

Several chapters in the book will be of great interest to occult students, not least those which explore the many astronomical, astrological and mystical aspects of this mysterious monument, whose primary purpose was a Temple of Initiation into the ancient Mysteries, as many of our readers will know. For these reasons alone we highly recommend this book.

egyptian magic
This rare book on the metaphysical doctrines, religion and magical practises of ancient Egypt was first published as volume VIII of Collectanea Hermetica (see Numbers: Their Occult Power and Mystic Virtues, reviewed below), in 1896. Although the book was written at a time when the science of Egyptology was in its infancy, this in no way negates the invaluable esoteric lore the author has collected from the translations of Egyptian papyri available to her in the 19th century, which remain as much of an enigma to modern scholars as they were to Egyptologists in Farr's time.

Understandably, she draws heavily on the books of E. A. Wallis Budge, now sadly out of favour among Egyptologists for reasons of political correctness rather than scholarship in which he vastly exceeded all his modern contemporaries put together. The book includes a detailed examination and discussion of reincarnation, initiation, evolution and the afterlife which is in complete accord with the true laws and principles of Occult Science as expounded in many of our articles.

Farr correctly deduced that the principles of Egyptian magic were based on an elaborate series of correspondences derived from the fact that material and spiritual evolution follow the same Hermetic law of 'As above; so below', and that matter and spirit are the opposite states of the one Universal Substance, or Prima Materia.

The book begins with a dissertation upon the seven principles of man as they were known in ancient Egypt, explaining how they enter into the body at birth, what happens to them at death, and the manner in which they are connected. Later chapters include several so-called 'spells' taken from the Book of the Dead, which are nothing of the kind, for all these exhortations and prayers are nothing more nor less than allegorical representations of the various transformations the Higher Self undergoes during life and after death.

Over half the book is taken up with extracts from a Gnostic papyrus entitled The Book of Knowledge of the Invisible God, which forms part of the Bruce codex found in Upper Egypt in 1769, and now preserved in the Bodleian Library, in Oxford. This luminous text is reminiscent of the Pistis Sophia in parts and consists of some of the esoteric teachings Jesus imparted to his disciples after his resurrection. These alone make this little book well worth studying. You can read about the hidden meaning of the resurrection in our article about the esoteric meaning of Easter.

NOTE: Amazon sell a Kindle edition for just over £2.00 but not having seen it we cannot vouch for its quality or accuracy. Kessinger Publishing produced a reprinted edition in 1993, but this may contain errors and omissions. numbers

We feel compelled to begin this review with an apology. Numerology cannot be picked up piecemeal in an idle hour or two. Nor can it be used to tell 'fortunes' as many people have been led to believe. If that is your desire, we suggest that you take up reading tea-leaves or the Tarot! As we point out in our article on symbolism, the students of Pythagoras spent seven years learning the basic principles of the sacred science of numbers, as you can read in our article on numerology. Consequently, Westcott's book, like our own article, should be regarded as an introduction to this vast and complex subject, not a complete course of instruction in the science of numbers, which cannot be condensed down into a slim volume of just 120 pages.

The book was first published in 1890 as volume IX of Collectanea Hermetica, a series of 9 books on the occult sciences issued under the imprimatur of the Theosophical Society with Westcott as editor. Westcott expanded and revised the book in 1902 and 1911. A 4th edition was published in 1974, which is the edition shown at right that we have used for this review. Those who judiciously study this book will gain a first-rate understanding of the main principles of the hidden properties and meaning of numbers.

Westcott drew on an immense number of ancient Greek, Roman, Chaldean, Hebraic, Egyptian, Chinese and Sanskrit sources for this book, as well as the writings of Eliphas Levi, the Egyptologist E.A. Wallis Budge, Thomas Taylor, Godfrey Higgins, Michael Maier, Gerald Massey and H. P. Blavatsky. But Westcott's main source, and the reason that this book is of such value to the serious occult student, are the teachings of Pythagoras himself, which the author has collected together from the fragmentary remains of the writings of the Sage's pupils.

The science of numbers is one of the most important keys that unlocks the secrets of man and the universe. As H. P. Blavatsky said so truly: "Everything in the Universe was framed according to the eternal proportions and combinations of numbers—God geometrises—and numbers and numerals are the fundamental basis of all systems of mysticism, philosophy, and religion." Pythagoras stated that the Monad or unity, emanated the Dyad, and thus formed the spiritual trinity, from which is derived the quaternary, or the mystic four, the number of the material world. These numbers comprise the totality of the forces of Nature and the principles of man, both of which are seven in number.

IMPORTANT NOTE! There are several print-on-demand and Kindle editions of this book available from Amazon and other booksellers. These are best avoided as almost all are badly typeset and contain innumerable errors and omissions. If you want a printed copy our advice is to obtain the 4th edition shown above, published by the Theosophical Publishing House in 1973. Otherwise, read the free e-text at the Sacred Text Archive.

The Qabbalah (also written "Kabbalah", "Cabala", etc), which word means "doctrines received by tradition"—is a system of Jewish theosophy that played an important part in the establishment of the Christian Church. As such, it is a valuable work for the study of the origin of religions and their philosophy in general, and the origin of the formulations, dogmas and doctrines of early Christianity in particular. We would add that Isaac Meyer's book has nothing whatsoever to do with the fashionable craze of 'kabbalah' popularised by various Hollywood celebrities in recent years!

First published at the author's own expense in 1888, Meyer's Qabbalah remains the most accessible and readable summary of these important Hebrew writings that we know of. The book includes a short account of the life and writings of the philosopher, Solomon ben Yehudah Ibn Gebirol or Avicebron; some parts of the Qabbalistic philosophy, quotations from the Zoharic books, explanations of many New Testament passages, the basic element in Religions, and extracts from the so-called "Pagan" writers on the Invisible and Visible and the Ideal and Real. In addition, the book contains Qabbalistic accounts of the Creation which should be of interest to every seeker, for it is only by carefully comparing the various accounts to be found in the sacred books of all times that the diligent occult student may arrive at a true conception of the origins of Man and the Universe. The book also contains important discussions upon the nature of illusion, sound, colour and rhythm, and an interesting article on an Ancient Lodge of Initiates.

For those interested in making a deeper study of Jewish Mysticism it is important to get as close as possible to the original sources upon which the early philosophers erected the doctrine and teaching of the Kabbalah. For this reason we also recommend two further classic books on this system of Jewish theosophy. These are: The Kabbalah: its Doctrines, Development, and Literature by Christian David Ginsburg, published by G Routledge & Sons, London, 1920 and The Kabbalah or the Religious Philosophy of the Hebrews by Adolphe Franck (translated by I. Sossnitz) 1926. This latter book is available to read online in HTML format at the Internet Sacred Text Archive. We review this superb compendium of sacred and occult texts on our Links page.

NOTE. We recommend the edition published by Weiser Books in 1970/72 (ISBN 0-87728-008-8), OR the photographic reprint by Elibron Classics published by Adamant Media Corporation in 2001 (ISBN 978-1402185038). We do not recommend the Kindle and other electronic editions sold by Amazon as these often suffer from defects and imperfections that make such ebooks virtually unreadable.

Although it was first published more than 100 years ago, W. T. Fernie's seminal source book on the various occult, alchemical, historical, mythological and magical lore and properties associated with precious stones and minerals has never been equalled. The book is a virtual encyclopedia of invaluable information about stones and metals, and copiously enlivened with anecdotes and historical information on how precious and semi-precious stones and metals were used in the past.

Given the present-day fascination with "crystals" and the very many uses (and we may say many more "abuses") to which they are now put, the serious student of occultism will find this book indispensable in his researches into the historical and occult lore of gems of all kinds. Having said that, the book is not without errors and should not be taken as an infallible guide to the use of precious stones for occult purposes. The real occult facts about precious stones and their employment have and always will remain a closely-guarded secret for the reasons we give in our Occult FAQ.

NOTE. The edition illustrated above is the HarperCollins paperback reprint of 1981. So far as we have been able to ascertain this is verbatim with the original edition of 1907. When we last updated this page in late November 2024, used copied of the HarperCollins reprint were readily available from Abe Books and other booksellers from £25.00 or less. The various print-on-demand editions of this book now being produced are best avoided for the reasons given in our note 'Where and how to buy occult books' in the sidebar.

OCCULT BOOKS
"Of the making of many books there is no end."

Ecclesiastes 12:12

This reminds us of a very good friend of ours, a Mystic and Seer of wide experience and great wisdom, who, when he was asked which of the many thousands of rare occult books in his library he would recommend, he said "None of 'em!!"

We agree with him. The fact of the matter is that with very few exceptions, the books which are recommended to Occult students are often chaotic in their contents and contradict one another. The problem is that it is impossible to put the most profound spiritual and mystical experiences into words that cannot be misunderstood by a large number of seekers.

We only have to consider the many different interpretations of the Bible and other Sacred books to know that this is true. We could easily have reviewed 500 occult books, or 5000, but whether acquiring that many books leads to knowledge and understanding or confusion and mental indigestion, is a question we leave our readers to ponder. . .

Moreover, in all our wide experience of occult and mystical literature, we know of no books that do not contain some errors, while in most truth and error are so inextricably intertwined that only a trained Occultist can sift the one from the other. Yet some truth is better than none. This is especially true of the thousands of new occult books that are now appearing, very few which of contain anything that has not been said better before. This answers the question we have often been asked as to why so many of the books we do review were published in the last century or even earlier.

It is for this reason that we have chosen only those books which contain real occult wisdom and truth which stand out like beacons of Light amongst a sea of mediocrity, plagiarism and fantasy. Books that explain who and what Man truly IS, whence he comes, whither he is going and the purpose and meaning of life. In connection with this, an anonymous alchemist has written:

"Let a Lover of truth suspect things that are quickly understood; for truth lies hid in obscurity; for Philosophers never write more deceitfully—than when plainly, nor ever more truly—than when obscurely."

This is true, though it may come as a shock to those who imagine there is a secret 'Da Vinci' code which at a stroke will magically 'unlock' the obscure allegories, arcane symbolism and archaic language used by occultists, mystics and philosophers. We're afraid that no such 'code' exists, has existed, or ever will exist, except in the minds of novelists and conspiracy theorists. It requires wide reading, long study, intuition and sheer hard work to discover the hidden meaning in the best occult books as we explain in our occult studies course.

Occult books for beginners

We are often asked to suggest the 'best' occult books for beginners. Our invariable answer is that the 'best' books are those that teach us the most. For this reason we suggest that if you know little or nothing about the occult sciences, you start off by reading the following three articles we have published:

Occult FAQ
Why study Occult Science?
There is only One LIGHT

Then, if you wish to learn more, The Secret Teachings of All Ages is a readable and comprehensive introduction to the occult sciences for those who know little or nothing about them. Those who prefer to read the personal experiences of seekers, should enjoy Serpents of Wisdom or The White Brother. Both these books were written by authors who drew on their own personal experience to describe the search for a genuine spiritual teacher and answer the many questions asked by beginners. These two books are reviewed on this website and can be downloaded in PDF format.

In addition, we would also recommend In Tune with the Infinite by Ralph Waldo Trine. Although not an 'occult' book in the strict sense, it presents the Eternal Truths of life with great clarity and simplicity—and just as importantly—how to apply them to improve your life, health, wealth and happiness.

astral conversations
Finally, we strongly recommend that you read and study Astral Conversations—a series of articles in which two typical occult students—one a mere beginner—discuss many different subjects and provide plain, no-nonsense answers to them. A hardcover print edition of these twelve conversations was published by Aula Lucis in 2022. This is arranged slightly differently to the website articles but the content is the same. For further information about this printed edition see our review of the book on this page.

Serpents of Wisdom
An extract adapted from the book by Edda Livingston reviewed on this page
You have probably come to the realization that there are no listings of Masters and true Teachers in the Yellow Pages. It is possible to find psychics, astrologers, and other such flora and fauna, and you may even find advertisements in metaphysical-type magazines for birds of ill-omen who call themselves masters, but unless we have polyps for brains, we ought to know that the only thing they are masters of, is deceit of an expensive kind.

The ill-advised followers of these self-appointed teachers, swallow wholesale the most absurd propositions put forward by these coolies of the Occult; these poachers on Spiritual grounds. But is there a single Master among them? An Adept, perhaps? Or an Initiate? The sad but true answer is NO—not one. There is not even a good imitation of one.

So where will you find one?

Do you think you would recognize a Master if you did meet one? Are you under the impression that he would advertise his Mastership by wearing saffron robes? Flowing locks? Sandals? A halo? A crown of thorns? Or could it possibly be that he is so well hidden because he looks like any one of us, giving us no obvious signs to recognize him by, and, in this manner, throwing us back on our ability to tell Truth from falsehood? How many of us are willing or able to know and welcome Mastership or Adeptship by listening to words of Truth? The majority seem to prefer personality, fame, and drivellers of ineptitude who reconfirms our preconceived opinions.

And anyway, to the ordinary man, all that stuff about Masters, Wisdom, Light and Love, has no meaning—it makes him yawn. What matters to him is profit, the latest football scores, fun, food, and lots of sleep. If you talk to this kind of plebeian about the more elevated things—things of the Spirit and of the Higher man, he will probably brush you aside with: 'In my opinion, that's a lot of bull.' and it will be your own fault for thoughtlessly throwing your pearls before the swine. Your hard gained pearls of wisdom will be trampled underfoot, and neither you nor the plebeian you sought to enlighten will have gained a thing by your eagerness to share your new-found Light. Regretfully, you will soon learn that most men shun the light like so many vampires hiding in their coffins as soon as the sun comes out.

The 19th Century occultist, Eliphas Levi said that: "Fools are the people who kill men of genius", and we might add that they are also fond of killing the Messengers sent to us from God. We all know what crass humanity did to Jesus. Apollonius of Tyana was thrown into prison and later tortured to death; Daniel was thrown to the lions; Raymund Lully was stoned to death; Joan of Arc was burnt at the stake; Ibn Gebirol, the Kabbalist, was murdered; Jaques Cazotte, the seer, was executed, and Socrates was condemned to death. Pythagoras had to flee from the tyranny of Polycrates. Cagliostro died while confined in prison; Giordano Bruno was burnt alive; Sendivogius was imprisoned and tortured; Paracelsus and Agrippa were forced to spend their lives as wretched wanderers. . . and the list goes on.

You may argue that all this took place a long time ago, that we are more civilized these days and would never tolerate such barbaric behaviour. Don't believe it! Human nature does not change much, and however arrogant and self-satisfied modern man is concerning his latest achievements and so-called progress, he is still as stupid and as cruel as ever. Fools are still persecuting and killing messengers, whether physically or by ridicule and calumny, who irritate them, or who hold views considered threatening.

This is one of the reasons why the Wise keep silent as to who, what and where they are—and maybe—to a lesser extent, so should you. It is also wrong to foist your beliefs on others who may be at a different stage on the Path than yourself; or who may simply be going by a different route. Since it is only possible for us to understand something up to our own level, how would we know if we were foisting ourselves and our beliefs on those who have far surpassed us in knowledge and Wisdom? And yet, people do all the time, unaware of the pitying and gentle smiles of those who can see through them.

And although you should always protect the fellow traveller lower than yourself on the ladder to the Light, you must at all times guard against being preached at or dictated to by them. As for the majority, those who care not, let them go on their merry way, without judging them, but at the same time make sure that you see them for what they are, freeing you from the danger of falling for outward trappings.

But if the opportunity to plant a seed in their barren soils presents itself, you should do so. A good seed may lay dormant until the experiences of their lives has watered their soil with tears and enriched it with the ashes of their dreams, sprouting into a beautiful flower of wisdom, years—or lifetimes hence.

It is possible that you yourself are on the Path because someone, at some time, planted a seed in you. A kind soul did the work of the Master on your behalf and you are now reaping the benefits of that kindly act. This is the Way of Service and it is the only Path you can take if you want to reach one of the Masters.

There are no short-cuts to be had on the Path to the Light. We all have to travel the same road and overcome the same obstacles in order to obtain our Goal, and only the strong and steadfast, the loving and faithful, will be crowned with success. Let us at all times remember that even the Masters had to travel along this Path in times gone by, and for this reason they understand fully our aching hearts and our yearnings, but they also know that the Reward is well worth striving for. They know that it is necessary for man to live through material darkness, for we can only be born into the Light from this darkness. But before we start longing for this Birth, we must reach a point where we feel the limitations and the powerlessness of the darkness. We must long, with our whole hearts and minds, to live within the rays of the Light, and we must fearlessly face the Truth. If the Truth hurts, we must have the ability to look within ourselves for the fault, rather than change the Truth in order to spare ourselves.

Then, and only then, can we hope to be noticed by the Masters who live within the Light.

Upanishads

An abstract adapted from Juan Mascaro's introduction to his translations of the Upanishads (see book review at left)

If all the known Upanishads were collected into one volume, they would make an anthology about the length of the Bible. The spirit of the Upanishads can be compared with that of the New Testament summed up in the words 'I and my Father are one' and 'The kingdom of God is within you', the seed of which is found in the words of the Psalms 'I have said: Ye are gods; and all of you are the children of the most High'.

The central message of the Upanishads is that God must not be sought as something far away, abstract, and separate from us, but rather within us in the Higher Self which transcends the limitations and littleness of our earthly personality. In rising to the best in us we rise to the Higher Self in us and to God Himself. Thus when the sage of the Upanishads is pressed for a definition of God, he remains silent, meaning that God is silence. When asked again to express God in words, he says: 'Neti, neti', 'Not this, not this'; but when pressed for a positive explanation he utters the sublimely simple words: 'TAT TVAM ASI', 'Thou art That'.

According to the Upanishads, the reality of God can only be apprehended in a consciousness of joy that is beyond ordinary consciousness. The silent voice of the Eternal is perpetually whispering in us his melodies everlasting. The radiance of the Infinite is everywhere, but our ears cannot hear and our eyes cannot see: the Eternal cannot be grasped by the transient physical senses or the transient material mind. This is beautifully expressed in the Taittiriya Upanishad: 'Words and mind go to him, but reach him not and return. But he who knows the joy of Brahman fears no more.'

Brahman is described as immanent and transcendent, within all and outside all. If the All is imagined as a triangle, the apex might be imagined as God transcendent, who in his expansion creates matter out of Himself—not out of nothing as science believes—and thus becomes immanent until the end of evolution when the immanent has once again become transcendent in the ascension of evolution towards Him. Why? For the joy of creation. Why is there evil? For the joy of good arising from it. Why suffering? For the instruction of the Higher and lower self. Why darkness? That the Light may shine the more brightly and gloriously. This teaching is as old as man and the very essence of true Occult Science.

The Upanishads introduce the reader to the conception of a fourth state of consciousness, above waking, dreaming and deep sleep. The law of attunement, wrongly called Karma—which we discuss in our study course—explains the apparent injustice in the world with sublime simplicity. We alone are the builders of our own destiny, and the results are not limited to one life, since our Higher Self that was never born and will never die must come again and take to itself a fresh body, that both selves may have the reward of their works. Good shall lead to good, and evil to evil. From good, joy shall come, and from evil shall come suffering. And thus the grand scheme of evolution flows on towards perfection.

And when all the transient has been left behind, when final liberation has been attained, when our little self is lost in the greater Self in us and in the ALL, as a drop of water is lost in the sea, does it mean that all consciousness is lost? After the death of the lower self, when the small drop of human consciousness has become one with the vast ocean of Consciousness, does it mean that our individual consciousness is lost? Yes, say some spiritual teachers, both past and present but they err and err profoundly as you can read in our astral conversation on consciousness after death. The truth, as you may read in that article, is that the Higher Self gathers the spiritual qualities of every terrestrial personality into which it incarnates and adds them to its own eternal consciousness.

The Higher Self has then become the Self supreme and not only has it full consciousness of its own experience through its many incarnations, but access to the consciousness of all other selves too. How could the union with God be unconsciousness, unless God Himself was unconsciousness? We all know that caterpillars die in order to transform themselves into beautiful butterflies. Free from its limitations, the little self forgets its limited life in the boundless ocean of life. It is not a death, but a victory over death, a rising and a resurrection to greater and more vivid life.

This is the central message of the Upanishads and why we commend the book to you for serious study and meditation.

NOTE: Juan Mascaro translated portions of several other Indian sacred texts during his lifetime. Foremost among them are the Bhagavad Gita (1962) and the Dhammapada (1973). Both are well worth reading.

Where and how to buy occult books

The occult books we have reviewed have been carefully selected as the best of their kind. We could easily have included many more books which are both scarce and expensive, but being aware of the fact that most sincere seekers have limited means we have favoured those that are free to read online, and/or are readily available in several editions and formats, both new and second-hand, at modest cost.

BUYERS BEWARE!

And now we must issue a strong warning. Whilst Information Technology and the Internet have vastly increased the availability of rare and/or out-of-print books, it has also made buying definitive editions very much harder.

Such books are increasingly being digitally-scanned and published as print-on-demand or e-books. Whilst some are well-reproduced, accurate facsimiles of the original editions, the majority are not. Many are incomplete and contain serious errors and omissions, and in the worst cases, may be completely unreadable.

Notwithstanding these grave shortcomings, such reprints are often prohibitively expensive, so adding insult to injury whilst providing a jolly good income for the publisher! The latter is usually a 'one-man-band' whose sole interest is in making a fast buck from the unsuspecting.

The only way to be sure you are not paying good money for waste paper is to buy the specific edition we recommend, or if that is not possible, contact the publisher or seller to make sure that the book they are selling is an exact facsimile of the original with no errors or omissions.

We have indicated below where to obtain the occult books we have reviewed, but this information is subject to change as titles go in and out of print and/or stock and web links are updated. In most cases a web search will return results from various sellers, and it is also worthwhile contacting booksellers directly.

Don't rely on booksellers' online lists of titles in stock as these are often out-of-date. Do try charity shops, as these often stock rare or unusual books at bargain prices. You will find a short list of booksellers specialising in occult books in the UK and some in the USA below.

Occult booksellers and publishers
Whilst we try to keep this list up-to-date, these websites may become unavailable at any time
Abe books is a major seller of second-hand books but delivery can be slow and customer service rather poor.
Atlantis Bookshop is London's oldest independent occult bookseller established in 1922. Unfortunately, they now seem to focus mainly on books about black magic and witchcraft, do not list their current stock, and provide no search facilities.
Magis Books—mail-order bookseller based in Leicestershire, in the UK. Although their website is awkward and frustrating to use, it does list their current stock and provides a search facility by title, author and category.
Treadwell's Books located in Bloomsbury, in London, sells books on occultism, mythology, folklore and religion. Like the Atlantis Bookshop, Treadwell's favour books on witchcraft and black magic rather than the Ancient Wisdom and Occult Truth.
Courtyard Books based in Glastonbury, sells esoteric and occult books including fine, limited edition titles in hardcover from small publishers and private presses. Their website is easy to use with a good search facility.
Watkins Books—esoteric bookshop in London, established over 100 years ago. Watkins have an extensive list of books on philosophy, metaphysics, mythology, the occult sciences, astrology, magic and mysticism, both new and second-hand, including rare and out-of-print classics.
Wizards Bookshelf—mail-order publisher and bookseller based in Michigan, USA, publishes high quality reprints of many scarce metaphysical classics, such as The Divine Pymander of Hermes Trismegistus, Anna Kingsford and Edward Maitland's translation of The Virgin of the World, On the Mysteries of the Egyptians, Chaldeans and Assyrians by Iamblichus, and many of the books referred to by H. P. Blavatsky in her master-work, The Secret Doctrine.

Parker Publishing Metaphysical & Healing Books.

This site is dedicated to Parker Publishing, from the late 1960's to the late 1980's Parker Publishing offered a fantastic selection of metaphysical books, all in their own unique style. This is a Fan Club for everything Parker Publishing. Little is known about the activities of this publisher. They published hundreds of books on metaphysics, healing, and many other non-fiction subject matter. With the major changes in the publishing industry Parker was sold and became part of many other publishing companies and slowly faded out of business. None of their books are in print today and few have ever been reprinted in general. The classic texts everyone loves are slowly disappearing for good. This Fan Club hopes to serve as a meeting place for all those interested in Parker Publishing.

The Fan Club would like to assist in getting all the Parker Books republished. There still is a great question as to whom owns the rights to the Parker books. Most of the authors are now dead and who owns the publishing rights is in great question, since the numerous publishers that once offered the books are all now out of business and sold off to other companies. None of the original authors republished their books in over 30 years. With the New Age of Digital Publishing, books can be republished almost instantly in many media formats. The authors being from the "old school" may not understand this.

If it is about Parker Publishing , let us know and we will publish it on the Fan site, or write it on the Fan Club Blog.

Everything Parker on this Site is Free

This Fan Club is all about FREE. Everything directly related to Parker Publishing on this site is offered at no cost. This site is not a business, we may offer a few related books to assist in fund raising but, this site is about keeping Parker Publishing a live and accessible to fans for free. The high cost of some Parker titles has greatly limited public access to these fine books. The Fan Club feels this is a great injustice to the public and will offer links whenever possible to free editions online. Parker Books are offered online on many sites for free. The Fan Club will publish these links for everyone to benefit from, not just those that can afford hundreds of dollars for rare books.

Thinking, Fast and Slow
Daniel Kahneman

The Guru To The Gurus At Last Shares His Knowledge With The Rest Of Us. Nobel Laureate Daniel Kahneman's Seminal Studies In Behavioral Psychology, Behavioral Economics, And Happiness Studies Have Influenced Numerous Other Authors, Including Steven Pinker And Malcolm Gladwell. In Thinking, Fast And Slow, Kahneman At Last Offers His Own, First Book For The General Public. It Is A Lucid And Enlightening Summary Of His Life's Work. It Will Change The Way You Think About Thinking. Two Systems Drive The Way We Think And Make Choices, Kahneman Explains: System One Is Fast, Intuitive, And Emotional; System Two Is Slower, More Deliberative, And More Logical. Examining How Both Systems Function Within The Mind, Kahneman Exposes The Extraordinary Capabilities As Well As The Biases Of Fast Thinking And The Pervasive Influence Of Intuitive Impressions On Our Thoughts

And Our Choices. Engaging The Reader In A Lively Conversation About How We Think, He Shows Where We Can Trust Our Intuitions And How We Can Tap Into The Benefits Of Slow Thinking, Contrasting The Two-system View Of The Mind With The Standard Model Of The Rational Economic Agent. Kahneman's Singularly Influential Work Has Transformed Cognitive Psychology And Launched The New Fields Of Behavioral Economics And Happiness Studies. In This Path-breaking Book, Kahneman Shows How The Mind Works, And Offers Practical And Enlightening Insights Into How Choices Are Made In Both Our Business And Personal Lives--and How We Can Guard...Read more…

Mindset : The New Psychology of Success
Carol Dweck, Carol S. Dweck

Mindset is one of those rare books that can help you make positive changes in your life and at the same time see the world in a new way.A leading expert in motivation and personality psychology, Carol Dweck has discovered in more than twenty years of research that our mindset is not a minor personality quirk: it creates our whole mental world. It explains how we become optimistic or pessimistic. It shapes our goals, our attitude toward work and relationships, and how we raise our kids, ultimately predicting whether or not we will fulfill our potential. Dweck has found that everyone has one of two basic mindsets.If you have the fixed mindset, you believe that your talents and abilities are set in stone–either you have them or you don’t. You must prove yourself over and over, trying to look smart and talented at all costs. This is the path of stagnation. If you have a growth mindset, however, you know that talents can be developed and that great abilities are built over time. This is the path of opportunity–and success.Dweck demonstrates that mindset unfolds in childhood and adulthood and drives every aspect of our lives, from work to sports, from relationships to parenting. She reveals how creative geniuses in all fields–music, literature, science, sports, business–apply the growth mindset to achieve results. Perhaps even more important, she shows us how we can change our mindset at any stage of life to achieve true success and fulfillment. She looks across a broad...Read more…

The Mountain Is You : Transforming Self-Sabotage Into Self- Ma stery Brianna Wiest

"This is a book about self-sabotage. Why we do it, when we do it, and how to stop doing it-for good. Coexisting but conflicting needs create self-sabotaging behaviors. This is why we resist efforts to change, often until they feel completely futile. But by extracting crucial insight from our most damaging habits, building emotional intelligence by better understanding our brains and bodies, releasing past experiences at a cellular level, and learning to act as our highest potential future selves, we can step out of our own way and into our potential. For centuries, the mountain has been used as a metaphor for the big challenges we face, especially ones that seem impossible to overcome. To scale our mountains, we actually have to do the deep internal work of excavating trauma, building resilience, and adjusting how we show up for the climb. In the end, it is not the mountain we master, but ourselves."-- Provided by publisherRead more…

First Time Caller
B. K. Borison

A hopeless romantic meets a jaded radio host in this cozy, Sleepless in Seattle–inspired love story from beloved author B.K. Borison. Aiden Valentine has a secret: he’s fallen out of love with love. And as the host of Baltimore’s romance hotline, that’s a bit of a problem. But when a young girl calls in to the station asking for dating advice for her mom, the interview goes viral, thrusting Aiden and Heartstrings into the limelight. Lucie Stone thought she was doing just fine. She has a good job; an incredible family; and a smart, slightly devious kid. But when all of Baltimore is suddenly scrutinizing her love life—or lack thereof—she begins to question if she’s as happy as she believed. Maybe a little more romance wouldn’t be such a bad thing. Everyone wants Lucie to find her happy ending...even the handsome, temperamental man calling the shots. But when sparks start to fly behind the scenes, Lucie must make the final decision between the radio-sponsored happily ever after or the man in the headphones next to her.Read more…

I Who Have Never Known Men
Jacqueline Harman, Ros Schwartz (Translation), Sophie Mackintosh (Afterword)

WITH A NEW INTRODUCTION BY SOPHIE MACKINTOSH, MAN BOOKER PRIZE-LONGLISTED AUTHOR OF THE WATER CURE “It is surprising that a book with the psychological detail of a nightmare elicits in the reader feelings of such profound intensity.” — Le Monde“The delirium of I Who Have Never Known Men suggests the work of a feminine Kafka.”—Le Nouvel Observateur 'For a very long time, the days went by, each just like the day before, then I began to think, & everything changed'Deep underground, 39 women live imprisoned in a cage. Watched over by guards, the women have no memory of how they got there, no notion of time, & only vague recollection of their lives before.As the burn of electric light merges day into night & numberless years pass, a young girl - the fortieth prisoner - sits alone & outcast in the corner. Soon she will show herself to be the key to the others' escape & survival in the strange world that awaits them above ground.°°° Jacqueline Harpman was born in Etterbeek, Belgium, in 1929, & fled to Casablanca with her family during WWII. Informed by her background as a psychoanalyst & her youth in exile, I Who Have Never Known Men is a haunting, heartbreaking post-apocalyptic novel of female friendship & intimacy, & the lengths people will go to maintain their humanity in the face of devastation. Back in print for the first time since 1997, Harpman’s modern classic is an important addition to the growing canon of feminist speculative literature. Ros Schwartz is an...Read more…

Lights Out: A Dark Stalker Rom-Com
Navessa Allen

“I don’t need another kink.”That thought pops into my head whenever I pull up my favorite social media app, but alas, every time I scroll, I learn something new about myself, and another one is born. And yes, I know I’m responsible for what the algorithm shows me, but I’m trying to ignore that fact.Lately, my feed has been dominated by masked men. I’ve favorited videos with them dressed in full cosplay, decked out in futuristic military apparel, and wrapped up like ghouls.But more than anything else, my FYP is filled with shirtless men wearing ghost masks. Bonus points if they’re heavily tattooed, wielding a knife, or covered in fake blood. At night, I dream about being chased by them, of them catching me and doing deliciously dark things to my more than willing body.I never could have guessed that by sending one drunken text, those dreams would become my new reality.Read more…

Boundaries Updated and Expanded Edition: When to Say Yes, How to Say No To Take Control of Your Life
Dr. Henry Cloud, Dr. John Townsend

Boundaries is the book that's helped over 2 million people learn when to say yes and know how to say no in order to take control of their lives. Does your life feel like it's out of control? Perhaps you feel like you have to say yes to everyone's requests. Maybe you find yourself readily taking responsibility for others' feelings and problems. Or perhaps you focus so much on being loving and unselfish that you've forgotten your own limits and limitations. Or maybe it's all of the above. In the New York Times bestseller, Boundaries, Drs. Henry Cloud and John Townsend help you learn when to say yes and know how to say no in order to take control of your life and set healthy, biblical boundaries with your spouse, children, friends, parents, co-workers, and even yourself. Now updated and expanded for the digital age, this book continues to help millions of people around the world answer these tough questions: Can I set limits and still be a loving person? What are legitimate boundaries? How do I effectively manage my digital life so that it doesn't control me? What if someone is upset or hurt by my boundaries? How do I answer someone who wants my time, love, energy, or money? Why do I feel guilty or afraid when I consider setting boundaries? How do boundaries relate to mutual submission within marriage? Aren't boundaries selfish? You don't have to let your life spiral out of control. Discover how boundaries make life better today Plus, check out Boundaries family collection...Read more…

Man's Search for Meaning
Viktor Emil Frankl

A book for finding purpose and strength in times of great despair, the international best-seller is still just as relevant today as when it was first published. “This is a book I reread a lot . . . it gives me hope . . . it gives me a sense of strength.” — Anderson Cooper, Anderson Cooper 360/CNN This seminal book, which has been called “one of the outstanding contributions to psychological thought” by Carl Rogers and “one of the great books of our time” by Harold Kushner, has been translated into more than fifty languages and sold over sixteen million copies. “An enduring work of survival literature,” according to the New York Times, Viktor Frankl’s riveting account of his time in the Nazi concentration camps, and his insightful exploration of the human will to find meaning in spite of the worst adversity, has offered solace and guidance to generations of readers since it was first published in 1946. At the heart of Frankl’s theory of logotherapy (from the Greek word for “meaning”) is a conviction that the primary human drive is not pleasure, as Freud maintained, but rather the discovery and pursuit of what the individual finds meaningful. Today, as new generations face new challenges and an ever more complex and uncertain world, Frankl’s classic work continues to inspire us all to find significance in the very act of living, in spite of all obstacles.Read more…

Audio Books
Audio books are a great way to enjoy literature. We recommend the following sources. All of them are digitizations of Project Gutenberg texts. They are freely available and in the public domain in the US.

- Project Gutenberg’s 662 titles read by people

- Human-read audio books from LibriVox. LibriVox is a volunteer community that produces high-quality performances.
- The Project Gutenberg Open Audiobook Collection. Almost 5,000 computer-generated titles from 2023 via a Project Gutenberg collaboration with Microsoft and MIT.
- Project Gutenberg’s audio books from 2003. They are computer-generated and listenable but relatively low quality compared to today’s technology.

The Hermetics Resource Site was established to provide online resources to a growing community of individuals seeking answers to age old questions, as well as those who need study material to aid their inner quest.

Throughout history a body of knowledge has existed providing a philosophy of life that is attuned to the true nature of things with clear instructions and methods for self-realization and transformation. Hermeticism, Hermetism and Hermetics is one name for this body of knowledge.

Essentially, Hermeticism is the ancient philosophy, theory and practice of the inner secrets of man, nature and spirit. It's origins are lost in the mists of prehistory. Its revivals in the Hellenistic, Renaissance and modern times have often been pale reflections of its real nature. Though much of its records are lost, it has re-risen from the flames like the Phoenix under many different guises. Fragments of this great primal teaching are distributed throughout the world.

The ancients have called Hermes Trismegistus, its legendary founder, the originator of writing, the sciences and arts, as well as the patron of esoteric teachings, alchemy, astrology and theurgy. He has been equated as one and the same as Tehuti, Thoth, Enoch and Idris, among many other spiritual teachers at the dawn of human history.

Hermetic teachings have been transmitted through a long line of masters and teachers throughout the ages. Its survival throughout the ages has been accomplished by means of guardians of the holy mysteries. These guardians have emerged from time to time to disclose precious fragments of these timeless teachings.

Sir John Woodroffe

Alongside his judicial duties he studied Sanskrit and Hindu philosophy and was especially interested in the esoteric Hindu Tantric Shakti system. He translated some 20 original Sanskrit texts, under his pseudonym Arthur Avalon. He was mostly known for the book "Serpent Power" and "The Garland of Letters"

Great Teachers of Mystic Knowledge
Our mission is to assist people in their pursuit of gaining a greater knowledge in the mystic sciences. We are dedicated to providing serious students with a true mystic pathway to spiritual development without the commercial glamour within most popular new age books today dealing with spiritual development. Our teachings and lessons are uniquely designed to guide the student towards spiritual development.

The program lessons are catered towards the individual, with our commitment to the highest standards of personal service. We understand the importance of value; thus we consistently and consciously work towards providing the most comfortable environment possible for you to learn. Our books and teachings are designed to bring clarity and proper guidance.
Alice A. Bailey
Her works, written between 1919 and 1949, describe a wide-ranging system of esoteric thought covering such topics as how spirituality relates to the solar system; meditation, healing, spiritual psychology, the destiny of nations, and prescriptions for society in general

Born June 16, 1880
Died December 15, 1949

Yogi Ramacharaka / William Walker Atkinson (December 5, 1862 – November 22, 1932)
These teachings were written and translated by William Walker Atkinson a former attorney in the late 1800's who left his profession and devoted the rest of his life studying, teaching and publishing Yogi Philosophy teachings. William W. Atkinson translated a good portion of these teachings from two of the late Yogi Ramacharaka student's who approach him in order to get their master teachings published, Mr. Williams was noted to be one of the well known leaders of the New Thought Movement at that time.

Sir John Woodroffe also known by his pseudonym
Sir Author Avalon (1865–1936)

Sir John George Woodroffe (December 15, 1865 January 18, 1936, also known by his pseudonym Arthur Avalon, was a British Orientalist whose work helped to create a deep wide interest in the West in Hindu philosophy and Yogic practices. A former British attorney and high court judge living in Calcutta India in the late 1800's and early 1900's who studied and practice yoga under a Yogi Tantric Master (Sibchandra Vidarnava) in a Hindu monastery that specialized in Tantra Sastra and Mantra Sastra. His book The Serpent Power was a very rare book when it was published in 1919 and is still a rare book some 94 years later. The Yogi Master Dr. George King stated that "The Serpent Power" book has more deeper and sacred knowledge than "The Secret Doctrines" and it would take you 20 years just too truly understand a few pages of this book.

Helen P. Blavatsky (August 12, 1831 – May 8, 1891).
An advance Yogi Master, she came on the scene in the mid 1800's and was instructed by the Great White Brotherhood, the Spiritual Hierarchy of Earth to setup the Theosophical Society. About 20 to 30 years after founding the Theosophical Society just in United States alone they had reportedly over 100,000 followers. Helen P. Blavatsky is well known for her books 'The Secret Doctrines, and ISIS Unveiled. She was also known for her extraordinary demonstrations of psychic abilities. Blavatsky helped found the Theosophical Society in New York City in 1875 with the motto, "There is no Religion higher than Truth". Its other principal founding members include Henry Steel Olcott (1832–1907), and William Quan Judge (1851–1896). After several changes and iterations its declared objectives became the following:

1.To form a nucleus of the Universal Brotherhood of Humanity, without distinction of race, creed, sex, caste, or color.
2.To encourage the study of Comparative Religion, Philosophy, and Science.
3.To investigate the unexplained laws of Nature and the powers latent in man.

Annie Besant (October 1, 1847 - September 20, 1933)
A very advance Student of H.P. Blavatsky, a former well known activist for women's rights when it came to labor, civil and the right to vote. Annie Besant was an extraordinary orator, she was known for her ability to lecture on vast subjects and convey complicated subject lines in a simple to understand manner. Besant was a prolific writer and a powerful orator. In 1889, she was asked to write a review for the Pall Mall Gazette on The Secret Doctrine, a book by H.P. Blavatsky. After reading it, she sought an interview with its author, meeting Blavatsky in Paris. In this way she was converted to Theosophy. Besant's intellectual journey had always involved a spiritual dimension, a quest for transformation of the whole person. As her interest in Theosophy deepened, she allowed her membership of the Fabian Society to lapse (1890) and broke her links with the Marxists. When Blavatsky died in 1891, Besant was left as one of the leading figures in Theosophy and in 1893 she represented it at the Chicago World Fair.

In 1893, soon after becoming a member of the Theosophical Society she went to India for the first time. After a dispute the American section split away into an independent organization. The original Society, then led by Henry Steel Olcott and Besant, is today based in Chennai, India, and is known as the Theosophical Society Adyar. Following the split Besant devoted much of her energy not only to the Society, but also to India's freedom and progress. Besant Nagar, a neighborhood near the Theosophical Society in Chennai, is named in her honor.

Mabel Collins (September 9, 1851 – March 31, 1927)

Mabel's name pops up again and again in theosophical histories. Yet no one knew much about her – in fact I have seen it written that her life was a complete mystery. Like many of these mysteries the information is there as soon as you begin to look. Mabel Collins was an instrumental figure in early theosophy but owing to the disputes she was involved in she has more or less disappeared from the history books. She was an author, a medium, a theosophist, the lover of Jack the Ripper, a fashion writer, an anti vivisection campaigner...the list is a lot longer than that of most people's achievements. Mabel Collins was a clairvoyant and author of romance novels, whose theosophical fame started with Light on the Path, a book written in trance and still her most well selling work. After having been expelled from the Theosophical Society by H.P. Blavatsky for unknown reasons, she spent a lot of energy fighting for animal rights.

The Books by Mabel Collins included the following:

(1) Light on the Path (1885) (Very advance teachings made for meditation)
(2) The Blossom and the Fruit (1888)
(3) The Idyll of the White Lotus (1890)
(4) Morial the Mahatma (1892)
(5) Suggestion (1892)
(6) The Star Sapphire (1896)
(7) The Story of Sensa (1913)

Swami Rama Prasad Released a Secret Upanishad to the West in 1893

Rama Prasad a Yogi Adept in the late 1890's who realize it was time to translate and release certain ancient teachings regarding the mystic science of the Maha-bhutas (cosmic elements), the 5 major pranas (cosmic energies radiating through and from the Sun to help our environment), tattvic rays (the 360 modes of vibrations that radiates through and from the Sun to help build our environment) and the nadic vibrations the holy sound vibration that is repeated by solar logi in order to trigger and sustain all life in the Solar system including our world the Mother Earth. The essays written by the Yogi Rama Prasad which came to be this book called “Nature Finer Forces” describes the five major pranas that radiates from the Mighty Sun of our Solar System every thirty-two minutes through the Holy Word being issued by this great Celestial Being (or Maha-Bindu) called the Mighty Sun.

Swami Vivekananda (January 12, 1863–July 4, 1902).

A very advance Yogi Adept, born Narendranath Dutta (Bengali :) was the chief disciple of the 19th century mystic Sri Ramakrishna Paramahamsa and the founder of Ramakrishna Mission. He is considered a key figure in the introduction of Hindu philosophies of Vedanta and Yoga in Europe and America and is also credited with raising interfaith awareness, bringing Hinduism to the status of a major world religion during the end of the 19th century. Vivekananda is considered to be a major force in the revival of Hinduism in modern India. He is perhaps best known for his inspiring speech beginning with "Sisters and Brothers of America", through which he introduced Hinduism at the Parliament of the World's Religions at Chicago in 1893. Swami Vivekananda was born in an aristocratic Bengali family of Calcutta in 1863. Swami's parents influenced his thinking—the father by his rational mind and the mother by her religious temperament. From his childhood, he showed inclination towards spirituality and God realization. While searching for a man who could directly demonstrate the reality of God, he came to Ramakrishna and became his disciple. As a guru, Ramakrishna taught him Advaita Vedanta (non-dualism) and that all religions are true, and service to man was the most effective worship of God. After the death of his Guru, Vivekananda became a wandering monk, touring the Indian subcontinent and getting first-hand knowledge of India's condition. He later sailed to Chicago and represented India as a delegate in the 1893 Parliament of World Religions. An eloquent speaker, Vivekananda was invited to several forums in the United States and spoke at universities and clubs. He conducted hundreds of public and private lectures and classes, disseminating Vedanta and Yoga in America, England and a few other countries in Europe. He also established the Vedanta societies in America and England.

Later he sailed back to India and in 1897 founded the Ramakrishna Math and Ramakrishna Mission, a philanthropic and spiritual organization.

The New Free Library of Alexandria

Hundreds of Free Metaphysical, Occult, Healing, New Age, Alternative Science, Radionics, UFO, Martial Arts, Computer Books & Information Links

A completely FREE link listing service to serve the occult community and spread knowledge. New Books & Information Links Added Often.

Many Links Exclusively Found Here!!

Few occultists know there are vast numbers of free Occult media on the web, media that have been offered for FREE for years, to those that know where to look. This site will provide links to the books, and websites, that offer FREE informational links of occult interest, thus making this a vast resource for occult knowledge.

Why look through thousands of non-occult books to find the few quality occult books offered, when this service offers screened high quality free occult books and information links. No fiction books or scam links to paid sites or services. Just Free direct occult book and information links.....

Occultists are being Ripped Off by businesses selling book offered for Free online. Do not be fooled by the frauds on the Web doing this. A list of these rip off businesses are listed at the Rip Off Button to the left.

All the links listed on this site are to DIRECT FREE BOOKS OR INFORMATION. None require buying access to illegal downloading services or require fees of any kind. The links will take you directly to the book or information stated. Some sites require you to "sign in" or "register". But, no money is required to read or access the information. YOU SHOULD NEVER PAY A FEE FOR A BOOK ON A WEBSITE UNLESS YOU ARE BUYING IT DIRECTLY FROM A LEGAL BUSINESS. The Free books links offered on this site, are links to legal responsible businesses that will remove alleged infringing content at the owners request by completing a simple form.

Thousands of Free Occult Resources Online.. This Is The Source To Find Them

The problem with free book sites is that it is extremely difficult to find books on their sites. Site search engines are poor and the listing are incomplete or wrong. Sometimes you can find a book and another time you cannot, even when you input all the correct information. There are numerous tricks to find and locate books, far beyond the simple search provided. We have spent years locating rare books on these public sites, it is a very time consuming task. All these years of work are offered here for free as a service to the Akashic Energy and the need for Gnosis, in a confused time of occult education.

"In the space which thought creates around itself there is no love. This space divides man from man, and in it is all the becoming, the battle of life, the agony and fear. Meditation is the ending of this space, the ending of the me. Then relationship has quite a different meaning, for in that space which is not made by thought, the other does not exist, for you do not exist. Meditation then is not the pursuit of some vision, however sanctified by tradition. Rather it is the endless space where thought cannot enter. To us, the little space made by thought around itself, which is the me, is extremely important, for this is all the mind knows, identifying itself with everything that is in that space. And the fear of not being is born in that space. But in meditation, when this is understood, the mind can enter into a dimension of space where action is inaction. We do not know what love is, for in the space made by thought around itself as the me, love is the conflict of the me and the not-me. This conflict, this torture, is not love. Thought is the very denial of love, and it cannot enter into that space where the me is not. In that space is the benediction which man seeks and cannot find. He seeks it within the frontiers of thought, and thought destroys the ecstasy of this benediction."

There may be a lot of things wrong with our modern age (like a LOT of things), but I do firmly believe that we're living in a golden age when it comes to access to occult and esoteric texts

Yeah but better start downloading stuff asap because the attacks on privacy of internet users are crazy lately.

I've beem downloading like a crazy person, for that exact reason. You never know, someone might just decide to get rid of all that good information, and ban that knowledge.

I might not ever be able to read all of my occult pdf's (realistically, never), but at least I'll have it if someone else would like to copy and learn for themselves, especially if the information has been deleted.

From what I have heard does Adderall have the opposite effect on people without ADHD.

Family Guy made an episode about it, where Brian actually got constructive.

This is amazing! Thank you so much for sharing. Digitization projects are so important to not only document history but to allow access for everyone everywhere. Super excited to explore this project more.

Next up is doing OCR(optical character recognition) to turn these images into text files that will be significantly smaller for easier downloads. It's got to process 1.8TB of images on my little M4 MacBook Air, so it's going to take awhile.

I'm putting together a torrent of all of the books in the highest quality images available. It'll be a few more days of downloading. I'm trying to do it slow enough that they don't ban my IP or change their API key.

after that is complete, and the torrent is available, can you automate the AI translation?

Is there no way to get books for free anymore?
Im from the south, the bible belt and none of my libraries have books on witchcraft, mythology, deities or anything of the like. I prefer to read books rather than reading internet articles because in my opinion its a lot easier to find and research the author than on internet articles. Call me old fashioned and a book nerd, but i also am in between jobs and going to school so literally not much money. Is there no other way to get this knowledge for free but online articles? Is it selfish to even be asking this question because I definitely want to support the authors i just do not have money and i am in no way shaming them for selling their work for the money they deserve. I am just so frustrated and hitting a brick wall at this point.

I like this one as an alternative to sacred texts and this one has books and images and a few other niche bits & bobs. Though obviously subject/school specific Thelemapedia is chock-full of publications, text extracts and around 1000 magick and occult related articles.

Put in your location, search for what you need, and it will give you the libraries that have it. Then go through an interlibrary loan or reach out to whatever university might have it.

Library genesis has basically every occult book that I've searched for. I don't think you'll find physical copies for free or loan.. a lot of occult books are very expensive and the types of people that want to check them out are.. well, you know.

Yes and the internet archive was mentioned already but I would like to double down on that because it's collection of occult, philosophy, and religious content is vast, not just the books section but the video as well. There's also the option of buying hardrives with content already downloaded on them, transferring the PDFs or videos to your cell phone, and using a text to speech app to listen to them. If you are blessed with the ability to listen to headphones at work, or if you have a calm home you can spend hours discovering and learning. I work 12 hours shifts 5-6 days a week so lots of time to learn.

People have already given suggestions, but I'd recommend checking out the internet archive. They have some of Crowley's works and some other occultic books like books on Kabbalah and spell work too. I can't promise too much as I've only gone through bits of it, but there's some useful stuff there to look for.

The Henry S. Olcott Memorial Library run by the Theosophical Society in Wheaton Illinois is an amazing occult resource and open to the public. They have a mail borrower program that is free if you are a member or 40 bucks a year if you are a non member. I believe you have to pay for shipping but because of the USPS media mailer program it is I believe de minimis.

https://www.theosophical.org/library

So free books, not free library membership and shipping.

also if you are okay with ebooks https://www.globalgreyebooks.com/index.html has a lot of public domain occult stuff.

it’s not the best but barnes & noble usually has a decent occult-ish section which pairs well with their religion, philosophy, etc areas. was a good jumping off point for my own research & i actually still have a crazy detailed grimoire with all the info that i couldn’t write on the pages. the vibe there is a plus so 10/10 recommend lol that store was like my sanctuary at one point

There’s an app called Hoopla and you can connect a library card to it and you then download them for free

https://apps.apple.com/app/id580643740

https://play.google.com/store/apps/details?id=com.hoopladigital.android&hl=en&gl=US

There’s also a pdf download site, where you can find almost anything, and I found it to be safe

Calendar
Days and Dates
Dates and times are recorded using the typical notation of Astrology, indicating the positions of the Sun and Moon in the tropical zodiac. The day of the week is recorded in Latin.

Precision
The more precisely the solar and lunar positions are noted, the more precisely the date and time will be known. The Moon takes about 2.3 days to move through a zodiacal sign. Simply recording the signs that the Sun and Moon are in will therefore only describe a period of slightly more than two standard days. Recording the day of the week eliminates the possibility of uncertainty about the day referred to. In addition, more precision can be had by indicating the degrees, minutes, and seconds of the position of the Sun and Moon.

Symbolism
The planetary assignment of days of the week and the tracking of the sun and moon through the zodiac all tap into a great wealth of symbolism. Events may be scheduled according to their symbolic relevance: for example, the installation of a lodgemaster on Dies Jovii (the day of Jupiter).

Examples
The following are examples of accepted ways to record the same Thelemic date, beginning with the most precise.

Sol 22°13'5" Taurus, Luna 29°6'19" Pisces, dies Saturnii
Sol 22°13' Taurus, Luna 29°6' Pisces, dies Saturnii
Sol 22° Taurus, Luna 29° Pisces, dies Saturnii
Sol in Taurus, Luna in Pisces, dies Saturnii
Sol in Taurus, Luna in Pisces

I managed to grab a bunch of stuff from Concen.org before it suddenly denied me access. Specifically stuff from Theoccult.click. I'd love an invite to complete the set. In the meantime if anyone needs some files I'm happy to share. I have roughly 687GB worth of stuff so far.

Pirating books
I've recently gotten the thought that maybe occult authors curse their books so the rituals in them won't work if the book is pirated.

I've heard the Gallery of Magick have done this with some of their books but then again people are saying the magick works anyway and some are saying it doesn't if they're pirated.

But what I am mainly worried about is if this is the case with Modern Magick by Donald Michael Kraig.

I have already started going through lesson 1 and now I am worried I will have to buy the physical book and restart the lesson if I want the magick to work. Is this the case?

If you're afraid it won't work without the physical book then it won't. If you're not, it'll work fine.

Having said that, no one ever got rich off of writing occult books. When/if you can afford it, you should buy the book if the author is still alive so they can continue to write more. IMHO, the dead can look after themselves or accept offerings like any other spirit. They don't need cash.

Yes I do plan on buying physical copies of every PDF I have.

I prefer physical books, especially if I can get it hardcover.

PDFs are just quick and easy to acquire and I can store them all on my phone so ease of transport.

Protip: Magick consists of illussions to enslave the Will. Pick your illussions, and attribute effectiveness only to systems and phenomena beneficial to you and your work.

Don't be superstitious.

I don't care if people pirate my books, for instance, but there are definitely people who put curses or similar enchantments on their books.

Modern Magick gets pirated all of the time to no ill effect. I wouldn't worry about it.

I've known many occultists who torrent entire libraries of occult pdfs. If this were a real concern, I'd definitely have found out by now, lol.

Maybe if you're calling upon their own spirits they created or it's part of an organized tradition, it would be best not to use what's in the book, but you don't need to worry about using the techniques or universal aspects of it.

Modern magick is totally fine to do anything in it. The guy's been dead for a while anyways, not like he would get any of the earnings from it.

In general I'd say if you find the information super helpful in a pirated book, it's good to support their work in some way, occult authors don't usually make a lot from their work.

The better question is, why would the author curse the book ? For I will not deny others from seeking wisdom and grace

[deleted]
1y ago
However I get books I often try to pay back in some way even if it's not via money. I will leave reviews on Amazon etc for books I think are helpful. I used to do a book review blog until my health got really sucky. I sometimes mention a book I am reading and why on social media.

I try to direct people towards books that I like and find truly useful in my magickal practice. That's helpful too and I've actually had authors send me copies in return for reading them and reviewing them.

Nobody here has commented about the strategies of the actual curses contained in these books.

The issue, as I understand it, is if you try to profit from their work, essentially representing as your own, your finances will be affected.

This is an issue of respect. And the magick will affect you if you were actually causing harm to them. Chances are pirating their book isn't causing direct harm to them.

To answer your question, I doubt you need to buy the book and repeat the rituals. Express some gratitude. Do the magick. Buy the book if the magick works.

Bullshit. You realize that pretty much all grimoires are compilations of stolen knowledge, right? Take, for instance, the Lemegeton, which is a compilation of ancient Sumerian knowledge stolen from Jewish Kabbalistic practice. This information, which used to be available only to a select few within their tradition, has been repackaged and simplified for broader audiences. None of these cultures are ours; they are ancient cultures, and their magic is a manifestation of ancient, rich traditions. The truth of magic is that you can't take another's anyway. You can learn some tips, tricks, and art forms from others, but in the end, magic is a manifestation of your intentions and is specifically reciprocal to your psychology—your perception of it. You're supposed to make your own magic by studying the processes of divining and rituals.

This is where the problem with books like "Modern Magick" by Donald Michael Kraig comes in. While popular, it's a simplified and somewhat diluted introduction to the occult. Crafted for a broad audience, it sacrifices depth and complexity for accessibility. This is not necessarily a bad thing for beginners, but it's not the book that will take you into the deeper, more powerful realms of magic.

If you're serious about magic, following the right-hand path as laid out in Kraig's book might lead you to the superficial aspects of the craft. It's a path more focused on adherence to order, structure, and often a kind of spiritual safety net that avoids the darker, more challenging aspects of true magical work. In many ways, it is the "fast food" of the occult: it's convenient, it's easy to digest, but it lacks the substance and richness of a meal that's been carefully and thoughtfully prepared.

The right-hand path, by its nature, tends to avoid the shadow work that is so critical to true personal and magical growth. It can leave you with a false sense of security, a belief that you are progressing when, in fact, you're merely skimming the surface. The rituals and practices it promotes may be effective in a limited sense, but they're not likely to lead to the profound transformations that are the hallmark of true magic.

As for the idea that pirated copies of such books might be cursed or ineffective, that’s a red herring. The effectiveness of magic is not about the book or the source from which you obtained it; it’s about the depth of your understanding, the strength of your intent, and your ability to apply the knowledge effectively. If you’re relying on "Modern Magick" to guide you, be aware that you’re dealing with a tool that’s more about surface-level practices than deep, transformative magic.

You may use other people's magic from well-established traditions because they are a collective of many people's magic compiled over centuries. Some will resonate with you, while others will not. For instance, I work very well with the pentacles of Mars, Venus, and Mercury because that is my birth rite. I also come from an ancient bloodline of holy men who were sorcerers that date back to the dawn of civilization in Mesopotamia. Because of this, I can use nearly anyone's magic because my genetics are the root of many bloodlines. That means that pretty much everyone's magic is mine as well.

However, if you’re truly serious about walking the path of magic, you will eventually need to move beyond the watered-down approaches of books like "Modern Magick" and delve into more authentic, traditional sources. Study the grimoires that have stood the test of time, the ones that demand more from you as a practitioner. These are the works that don’t just tell you what to do—they force you to confront yourself, your fears, your desires, and your place in the cosmos.

True magic isn’t about following a step-by-step guide; it’s about forging your own path, guided by the wisdom of those who have come before but ultimately defined by your own experiences, trials, and insights. If you feel that Kraig’s book is the right place to start, go ahead—but be prepared to outgrow it quickly if you’re genuinely committed to the craft.

I wouldn’t worry about it too much. While I think it’s a good practice to purchase physical copies of books, I don’t believe it to be necessary. I prefer to support authors and publishers who are worth supporting. There will invariably be something that you’d like to read, but is out of reach, be it due to being out of print, or just prohibitively expensive.

In the case of Andrew Chumbley’s work, I own very little. What’s available is obscenely expensive, and I just don’t feel like giving my money to Xoanan. So, I’ve pirated pretty much his entire library. Chumbley, Th Cultus Sabbati, and Xoanan would love it if people believed that pirating their works would leave you cursed.

I downloaded one of his books and the website updated Facebook about it for me. 🙄

Someone messaged me telling me to delete it, so I deleted Facebook. (Thanks, whoever that was!)

Warning about /r/psychic - mod weirdness regarding how to identify frauds meta
I feel like this and other communities should know about this. During a question there Where does one find a good psychic, I posted comments linking to a long-form article on how cold-reading works, and how to spot if you're being subject to someone well versed in this stage-magic form.

I also linked that there was also recently a PSA here about 'not buying demon pact spells for $9000'. Similar idea, since a lot of cold-reader types will also sell spells to fix the ailments they 'discover' during your cold-read.

The fishy part: multiple times, mods silently removed my posts with no explanation. Reaching out also lead to no responses as to why.

You can see one of them via reveddit.

After conveying with dear witchy and occult friends about this, we had the idea that perhaps mods of r/psychic are doing cold reading tactics, and removal of this post was so others couldn't learn to be informed of these types of fraudulent actions.

There's something definitely "weird" about this situation. So, at least, this can be a warning to be aware.

This is happening at r/psychicdevelopment as well.

The only people who seem to engage are the ones who seem desperate. Reporting these posts does nothing to have them removed.

As a clairvoyant, I don’t need anyone to do my readings for me but apparently lots of people are falling for these scams so yikes to that.

Ugh, that is terrible...

I did do some professional (paid) tarot. I had a client whom, after being asked the similar desperation questions, refused further readings of those questions and gave back her money.

I don't mind helping people, but I won't sit back collecting $$$$ because of what amounts to desperation. Even if they paid someone else for it. I won't be a party to that.

Every single human being on this planet has the potential to unlock their clairvoyant abilities, friend. I'm sure it does apply to you.

I always knew things, felt things, saw things, heard things… but earlier this year, I was given the number of a clairvoyant reader by a friend. I googled her and since she had no online "psychic" presence, just her realtor career stuff, I figured I would book a reading and see what was up.

This lady blew me away. Insane. Never met anyone like her. She knew things that she had no way to know. Specific things. She sent me images of the things she was seeing with her mind. She saw my life, man. She's taken me to the Akashic Records, showed me past lives, helped me clear karma and cut karmic cords. I've never met her in person and we do everything over the phone.

Long story short, I have readings with her on occasion still, but she referred me to the place that she studied clairvoyance and I have been taking classes there. I start my next one tomorrow. Everything has gone fast as hell from that first reading. My abilities are exploding but it takes consistent, daily practice. It is hard. Frustrating at times and has really opened my (third) eye to how arrogant I was about my own abilities. It's been humbling to see how far I have to go still. In January, I start their two year mediumship program. Everything we learn is meditation based. It is very precise and involves very specific exercises done in a specific order. At least that is what I've experienced so far.

If you are interested in a link to the school, message me and I'll hook you up. Too many scammers on here to post in a comment. They teach teleconference classes all over the world. It's pretty neat and, I think, affordable.

If you are also interested, the book "Basic Psychic Development" by Jon Friedlander contains all the exercises I am learning so far.

I get irritated when people message me about "I have a message for you", typically it's a dm. I play along and let it draw out, just to see what they want. As they continue, I catch on that it's bs. "I need to tell you about this generational curse." 🙄🙄

Then I tell them to go away, because I'm the only witch in my family and I know how to do my own readings tyvm. Then they leave me alone. There were quite a few recently, and I ignored them.

From my own experience with gifted people in my life. Legit psychics will never ask you a question. They don't have to.

They may be a little fuzzy trying to describe the i formation they're recieving. But they won't ask. It will depend on their experience. So you may need to work out what they describe.

One fellow wasnt use to using his abiliy for a while. And had a hard time conveying info he got from my uncle. Who eventually lead him to a turtle tank our friend has. Then I figured out it was my uncle. He coulnt have just guessed why turtles would be significant. When I was a wee kid. I was nearly bitten by a big snapping turtle that had taken up residence in our pond.

But what had me confused for a while, once I knew it was my uncle every clue made perfect sense the fellow could not have guessed, was I think he presumed my uncle was the same color as me. Lol

So I think his presumption affected how he saw my uncle.

But someone with a true gift wont ask or lead you to fill in the blank.

I'd download this 45 GB torrent of occult materials

(an even larger occult torrent at 480GB is https://1337x.to/torrent/3800017/The-Occult-Library-v1-5-480GB/ , but the above one is plenty suitable.... unless you're hunting down very narrow works that aren't available anywhere else.)

And then, I would start reading them. It'll be slow. You'll find areas that pique your interest. And others will make you uninterested. Write down your experiences as you learn.

Some paths will have practices you can try. As you are comfortable with them, try them. Also write down your experiences here. Some may be very uncomfortable - like meditation can have some disturbing imagery.

This is a path that will likely take you 1-3 years to accomplish. And by then, you'll have a respectable understanding of many occultic systems, basics of how they work, their histories, and what paths you wish to work with.

How much do you think a demon pact is worth? If I were to sell one, $9,000 seems pretty low considering the risk... not that I would sell or look to buy one.

Hello, Theistic Luciferian here - it is worth nothing. Would you sell a prayer? This is the same thing. Now if the customer offers something on their side, it will be between them and the Infernal Divine, the 3rd party in between can not add anything to said offer. In the end it will be up to Infernal Divine to answer or not, meaning that the person could have cut the 3rd party entirely and simply meditated on a sigil, or chanted an Enn.

Some spirits allow such sales, I hear. It's common in voodoo. I guess if people say its worth it... I knew a guy in Chicago years ago who sold voodoo contracts STARTING at $10,000 and he was very popular...

Where does one find a good psychic?
Basically the title is my entire question/story. I‘ll continue writing because I need to push those 100 words out but if someone could let me know how they know how to pick one not being a scammer I’d be forever grateful.

Well the first thing to know, is that the influx of DM’s you’re going to get after posting this should probably be ignored. As a sub we recommend not replying to any unsolicited reading offers, as this is how a lot of scammers on the spirituality subs work. No good reader has to reach out for business.

Unfortunately the only way to find the right reader for you is by trial and error. Reviews can be faked, a reader who connects superbly with your best friend may not be able to read you, and cost has no bearing on a readers skills.

Unfortunately scammers are more & more common, you just have to browse this sub and the scammer subs to see it's becoming more & more popular. Just keep your wits about you and think about what you're doing. Think how much information you're giving someone (irl or online) and if you're asked to pay for anything above and beyond your pre-arranged reading fee, walk away. Any upselling of candles, crystals, rocks, spells or cleansing, walk away.

And don't be afraid to speak up if your reading doesn't resonate with you. No reader is 100% accurate 100% of the time - about 75% is good, but remember your reading is only advice. No reading comes with assurances or guarantees. And yes, we can get things wrong! But if you're 10 minutes on and NOTHING is making sense, stop your reader and tell them! A good one wants to know so they can refocus and correct their mistakes, or reschedule if for some reason they aren't connecting with you. Don't wait until the end to say it was rubbish, that just smacks of not wanting to pay.

Finally, we don't allow recommendations, reviews, promotion or advertising on this sub, but we do have a readers request and offer thread, which is exactly as it sounds! And we all readings offered through this sub must be completely free of charge, we don't even allow our readers here to ask for donations, and you're free to request from as many readers as you'd like as often as you'd like!

https://www.reddit.com/r/Psychic/comments/ylwewf/weekly_reading_offer_request_thread/?utm_source=share&utm_medium=ios_app&utm_name=iossmf

Good luck and enjoy

Well done. You said it all. I am a professional psychic (I am in no way soliciting). I just want to use that to say as someone who is both a client and a reader. There is an over saturation of illegitimate liars and thieves. So many of them ready to take your money. I would mostly stay offline for these services. It's too hard to trust. Myself has looked into brick and mortar stores. Where the psycic has cared enough to actually set up a phsycial business. You can go in, meet them, feel out their vibe, and schedule (if you like). I have walked in, and quickly out before. I think meeting the person face to face validates the service you should want to expect.

Thank you for your info. I've never had a reading, so I've actually been apprehensive about storefront psychics concerned about scamming. I realize scammers are everywhere though. So, how would you suggest someone scope out a psychic storefront to determine if you vibe with the reader? Is it OK to walk in and say your looking for a psychic you feel you have a connection with before scheduling a reading? And is it OK to just walk in without an appointment?

I'd heard about psychic fairs and wondered if that's a good way to find a psychic you like. I've never been to one, so is that too much energy in one place to get a good reading?

Obviously, I'm not a reader, so that might be an ignorant question. 😁 Some of the kids on 'Psychic Kids' mention being overwhelmed with many spirits reaching out to them, so it seemed plausible.

Thanks to everyone here for all the helpful suggestions!

Same ways you can make a decision to work with any trusted professional: referrals, research and intuition.

Ask anyone you feel comfortable with asking for recommendations for who they used

Do some due diligence: dig around, interview possible service providers and ask questions about their education, experience and approach

As you do 2/3, trust your vibes and let your own intuition lead you

That's what's helped me.

It depends on what you are looking for and what kind of reading you want. If you want an in person psychic you can always talk with them first before booking something and see if you like their energy. It may be harder with online ones, but often they have a website or social media account of some form you can look through and get a feel for their overall vibe and style.

You can always look at reviews if they have them but I usually take them with a grain of salt. If you find one you like, and they are in your price range, I think the only way to really know is to try them out. I am somewhat wary of those who charge extremely high or extremely low prices though.

Synchronicities led me to an amazing psychic who changed my life.

I sought one out once before but it wasn’t a great experience at all.

I feel like you should follow where your intuition leads you.

Psychic fairs are amazing! I would highly suggest tuning in with your local metaphysical stores. Becoming part of the community is fun, and in my experience I have met some life changing mentors and teachers.

Are you in touch with your guides? If not, start there for best results. They have probably been sending you 11:11s or feathers to catch your attention. When you are ready to see, they will bring you more and more info. Mine brought me EVERY teacher I needed to move along. Be prepared to do your own homework.

Your biggest job at this moment, based on you describing this being a life question, is to observe. Your team knows you are seeking answers. I am telling you, they will show answers to you using symbolism and synchronicities that make sense to you.

If you need a teacher or a medium, one will come to you and you will feel the connection. This will require self control and patience not to over anticipate like I did! 😂

I honestly don't even know how to start to get in touch with my guides. I've seen angel numbers everywhere most of the days. Yesterday for example I saw 10:10 on the 10th of November. I'm observing, or maybe better to say analyzing, if not over analyzing. But I just can't seem to connect the dots unfortunately.

I've used the best psychic directory site a few times. I've found a few really great legitimate ones on there. If you find one off that site I highly encourage you to read reviews and Google them as well. Also, use your best judgment or intuition and see if it feels right to see them. Good luck.

I guess you have your answer already - but it's practically impossible for us to guarantee that you'll find a psychic in your immediate area, not knowing the area, etc. Also wanted to say, you have a psychic within you - perhaps you should think about trying to access Divine guidance in your daily life. All humans have that potential.

I like to watch a lot of different readers to see and get a better understanding of different interpretations and finding spreads to try and what not. If I get a good feeling and I feel that I need one I'll look into getting a reading from them and go from there.

It’s like finding a decent cop in the United States. They definitely exist but you’re gonna go through a LOT of liars trying to find one.

Cold Reading: How I Made Others Believe I Had Psychic Powers

I've always wanted to become a fortune teller's apprentice. I would have loved to peek behind the velvet curtain to see what people ask, what the psychic tells them, and how these recommendations are really made. Plus, there are great fringe benefits such as getting the upcoming lottery numbers every week.

My career took me down a different path, but I recently seized the opportunity to give psychic sessions myself. I did this using a method called cold reading, a way to make people believe you have psychic powers that includes techniques such as using social cues, making broad statements, and betting on probabilities.

Cold reading is a way to make people believe you have psychic powers that includes techniques such as using social cues, making broad statements, and betting on probabilities.
Personally, I don't believe in psychics but have an interest in social engineering (check out this video of how I owned a Fortune 500 company over the phone). I had read the book The Full Facts Book of Cold Reading by Ian Rowland and was itching to apply the techniques. Luckily, I work at Veracode, and our HR team didn't even twitch when I asked if I could do psychic readings as part of our biannual Hackathon (they've heard much crazier ideas, believe me).

The cold reading was fun and worked better than I expected, even if not all of my readings turned out to be true. In this blog, I'd like to share the experiment, result and some of the techniques you can try at home and at work (or to start your own psychic business).

My Psychic Experiment
I advertised my services as free psychic readings where people could hear about their career, health, relationship, and money issues — past, present and future, with predictions based on "a conjoint reading of your astrology, hands, and aura" (I made this up). I asked people to either drop by or schedule a slot by email but I didn't accept people who I knew very well personally to control for previous knowledge tainting the experiment.

I gave a total of eight readings over two days. This was more exhausting than I thought because I had to hold a meaningful conversation while processing what I saw on the other side and making a fast decision of what I would say next. I had the full spectrum of people taking me up on my service, from hardcore skeptics to firm believers.

Giving an elaborate explanation, I had every person draw some lines on an astrological chart I downloaded off Google Image Search and had them trace the outline of their hand before I started giving the reading. At the end, each respondent filled in an online survey (science!) and got a 1:1 debrief on the fact that I am not in fact psychic and that they shouldn't follow my advice (ethics!). I'm very thankful that everyone took my revelation very positively.

A version of the astrological chart I printed out and handed to people. I asked sitters to draw lines across the chart with their eyes closed and then "interpreted" the lines. This was just a prop and had nothing to do with the content of my readings.

Have you had a Reading Before?

A great way to gauge a “sitter” right from the start is to ask them if they have had a psychic reading before. I stated to everyone that what I see is not a science and not always clear to me and that I would need their help in interpreting the findings. This is a great way to prime them to provide interpretations of my sometimes vague statements.

I divide sitters into three categories: Skeptics, Maybes, and Believers. Skeptics usually have not had any readings before and were the hardest to read because they did not provide much help in terms of body language and verbal confirmations. Maybes may or may not have had readings before and were easiest to impress because they didn’t have a baseline and were open to the idea of psychic powers. The Believers have had many psychic readings before (some for decades) and generally gave the best cues and feedback; one was skeptical that I had real psychic powers but open to the idea, the other one didn’t believe that I had no psychic powers even after I disclosed my methods.

Rainbow Ruses based on Social Cues

I usually started out my readings with so-called rainbow ruses, which are broad statements that basically say “you are one thing but sometimes you are also the exact opposite”. Sitters will usually hear (and remember) the part that is most applicable to them. I then paired this with observations to lean more in a direction that made intuitive sense to me.

For example, one person was in a job that is usually quite formal and requires sticking to the company line. While others in her particular profession would wear a business suit, she appeared in a hoodie and had a tattoo on her forearm. My rainbow ruse for her was:

“There are some people who need rules in their lives to function, and others that are more of a free spirit. I get the the sense that you are more of a free thinker, but that you can stick to the rules in your job when you have to.”

Another sitter was a sales person. Knowing that sales is a role that is compensated partially by commission, sales people are usually more comfortable with risk. My rainbow ruse for this person was:

“You are comfortable assessing and accepting risk in your life. You weigh the pros and cons of risk and then make a decision. However, when you think about other people in your family and social circles, you are more comfortable with risk than most others.”

One person has a technical role and was clearly an introvert. My rainbow ruse for this person was:

“Some people prefer to hash things out in conversations, but I get the sense that you find these tedious and unproductive. While you will get input from others, you'd much rather read up on a topic, find some peace and quiet and figure things out for yourself."

You get the picture. While this was quite obvious to me as a keen observer, it wasn't all that obvious to the sitters that they were broadcasting a lot of these signals. If you'd like to give these a try, observe the following and come up with your own rainbow ruses:

Social harmonizers are soft spoken, friendly, and wear earthy tones
Job, thinking style, or clothing that suggests scientific or artistic outlook on life
Optimist/pessimist statements, check also for dimples or frown lines
Fitness level (does the person look like they work out every day, are overweight, etc.)
Clothing and jewelry communicate a lot, such as fashion consciousness, status symbols Especially when giving both extremes of a rainbow ruse in the beginning of the statement, I paid close attention to the body language, particularly nodding, smiling, and micro expressions. These gave me valuable cues that I used to pivot on the spot.

As I chained several of these rainbow ruses, I made sure to touch on several of the following CHARM topics:

Career Health Ambitions Relationships
Money
Someone Significant to You Called Jessica
